A As we were all talking about family and, you know, kids and so forth, that was probably the beginning of the conversation But as the flight went on, Jonnie pulled out his little Tic-Tac bottle and started passing around what seemed like mints And then I was like, "What is this?" And he began to give his whole spiel on Anatabloc and how he derived with this product and got a whole little history of it

Q Did he tell you about his wife's condition?

A That's -- he went around, explained the whole thyroid problem and how she was going to have thyroid surgery, and asked the doctors to give him a month to, you know, I guess fine tune the product, and within 30 days she was no longer a thyroidectomy candidate, and hence, Anatabloc

Q Did he say anything about trying to develop new uses for Anatabloc?

A Yes He then began with a story about how he had got hit in the head, I think, with a golf club or something, and he had been already working on a product putting the anatabine in lotions, and he started putting it on his head and, you know, within hours, it had, you know, gone down from a goose egg to just hardly a contusion

Q And did he give any further detail about whether or not he was trying to incorporate that into his product line?

A Yes He said that he had been working, he had sent his wife out to --

MS ABER: Objection.

THE COURT: It is all hearsay, every single word of it You know, we are trying to let you put a case on, but you can't just violate the rules You've got to behave within them. So please do that

MS MARTIN: Right Well, I'll move on, Your Honor

BY MS MARTIN:

Q So you eventually got to California?

A We did.

Q And what time of day was that?

A It was late in the afternoon, around evening

Q And where did you go once you got there?

A He brought us to this beautiful resort in South

Beach, California

Q And what happened there that evening?

A He invited us to dinner, and we had a nice little quaint dinner and continued chatting about just random things.

Q And so at dinner, did anyone do anything else that evening?

A No, we pretty much just hung out at the resort Jonnie did say, "If any of you guys are interested, they have a great spa "

MS ABER: Objection

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Did anyone partake in any spa appointments that evening?

A Maureen and Shirley did.

Q And were the spa appointments their idea?

A No

Q Whose idea were they?

A Jonnie's

Q Now, who paid for the dinner and the spa appointments and the --

A Jonnie Williams did.

Q Now, are you, without getting too deep into your finances, are you in a financial position that you could have paid for your own meals and accommodations?

A Absolutely

Q Why didn't you pay?

A I think he just treated us because he diverted our whole trip.

Q Now, did you have a plan for the next day?

A No.

Q Why not?

A Because it wasn't part of the itinerary when we left

Q And so what did you do that day?

A The next morning we got up and went shopping and had lunch and just enjoyed the day

Q You say "we " Who was with you for that portion?

A Maureen and Shirley Forbes

Q And what about -- around what time did the shopping and sort of --

A It was the early part of the morning

Q What did you do after that?

A We went back to the little bungalow we stayed in and got ready to go to the presentation Jonnie invited us to go to

Q And at what point did you learn about this presentation?

A It was either at dinner -- I think it was at dinner He invited us to watch the presentation.

Q And what were your expectations of what the presentation would be like, and what was it, what was this presentation?

A Well, it was the doctor that we brought with us, and he was going to give a presentation of Anatabloc, and I thought it was just a handful of doctors

Q This is Mario, who you met on the plane?

A Mario, yes

Q And who gave you the impression that it would just be a couple of doctors?

A Jonnie

Q And did you go to this presentation?

A I did.

Q How did you get there?

A Jonnie's staff came and picked us up at our bungalow and drove us over there

Q And what, when you arrived at the presentation, what was it like?

A Well, when we walked in, there were tables lined up along the wall with Anatabloc piled high with little gift bags At the end of the corridor was what looked like a six-foot Barbie doll, which was introduced as his assistant, and she actually had the Boomer magazine on the table And I asked, "Why are you having a Richmond magazine here?" And she says, "Because they had the whole slick covered with Anatabloc advertising " So I was just surprised because my family was presented in that magazine, so that's why it just brought it to my attention. Then they asked us to go in, and --

Q In where?

A Into the, where the presentation was going to be held

Q What type of facility was this?

A It was in a resort hotel

Q And so where the presentation was being held, what was that like?

A We were all shocked when we walked in. There was hundreds of people sitting there waiting for this presentation

Q How did that compare to the size that you expected?

A It was -- it was not anything that we expected.

Q Now, were you or Maureen or Shirley supposed to have any role at this conference?

A None. We were just there to watch.

Q Did that change?

A Yes

Q When and how did that change?

A When we were walking in, Jonnie asked her if she would mind if he introduced her to say a few words

MS ABER: Objection.

THE COURT: Go ahead. She has answered the question

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Had Ms McDonnell prepared any remarks in advance?

A No. In fact, she looked at me like, you know, a deer in the headlights, because she was not prepared. She didn't want to say anything She didn't have anything to say about Anatabloc

Q Having known Ms McDonnell for a while at that point, what did you know about her, how much she liked -- her taste for public speaking, I guess?

A She hated it

Q So what was her initial reaction to being asked?

A She said, "No, I don't feel comfortable doing that "

MS ABER: Objection

THE COURT: Overruled Go ahead.

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Now, if we could pull up Government Exhibit 257, already in evidence

(Video played.)

Is that what you remember happening?

A Yes

Q Now, he said, "I want you to say a few remarks" about why you were there Why were you guys there?

A We weren't even supposed to be there We were there as his guests just to watch

Q What was your reaction to seeing Jonnie Williams put Maureen McDonnell on the spot like that?

A I thought it was pretty wrong I mean, it was just wrong

Q Why do you say that?

A Because she wasn't prepared.

MS ABER: Objection.

THE COURT: Overruled Go ahead.

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Did you ever get to Utah on this trip?

A Finally, right after the conference, we were flown to Utah

Q And how did you get there?

A Jonnie Williams' plane

Q Who was on the plane, if you recall?

A It was Maureen, Shirley, and myself.

Q Was Jonnie Williams there?

A I don't recall him flying on that leg with us

Q And did you attend the Nu Skin conference in Utah?

A Yes

Q What was that like?

A It was like going to a Christian revival It was over the top crazy

Q A lot of energy, fair to say?

A So much energy

Q And how was Maureen in relation to all that crazy energy going on?

A She was very reserved, very quiet It wasn't like you would be going to a convention that you are all excited about, and this is, you know, why you are there She was sad.

Q And did you have any sense of what she was sad about?

A With everything going on with Todd and Mary-Shea and the wind was just taken out of her sails She was just spent.

Q Had she been excited about this conference leading up to going there?

A I don't think so. She just -- that's why she needed a girlfriend trip She just needed to get away, and it gave her that avenue to do something outside of the Governor's Mansion

Q Now, you say "outside of the Governor's Mansion." Had she expressed any frustration with living in the Governor's Mansion?

A Many times She would complain about absolutely zero privacy She would be in the First Family space and the butler would walk up and she would be in her underwear And it was just such an invasion to her personal space

Q So you get to the conference, and who pays for your meals and accommodations in Utah?

A Maureen and I split our hotel We shared a room together, so we split our bill

Q And did Jonnie Williams attend the conference with you at all?

A I saw him the last day

Q And what were the circumstances under which you saw him?

A Well, on the plane --

Q Without saying what he said, what if you know caused him to show up in Utah at the conference?

A Because -- I'm not sure how to answer that I couldn't answer from before

Q What did Ms McDonnell do?

A Maureen was upset that Jonnie was using a company outside of the United States for his Anatabloc lotion And she was like, "If you are not going to use a company in Virginia, at least use a company in the United States Why don't you talk to Nu Skin since we are here? Let me see if I can coordinate something You can talk to them. Maybe you can use your product in a United States company " And that's what facilitated it

Q You mentioned setting up a meeting Did she set up a meeting?

A It took her a bit to be able to coordinate that Because with the convention, everyone is doing so many other things, the last thing they are probably looking to do is have a meeting with someone She was looking to get that coordinated just before we were to head back home

Q Did such a meeting take place?

A It did.

Q Did you attend the meeting?

A Yes, I did.

Q Was Ms McDonnell there?

A Yes

Q And without getting into specifics of who said what, give us sort of a Reader's Digest version of what happened at that meeting

A Basically, we were brought into a very large conference room. Maureen and I sat to the side There were two researchers from Nu Skin and I think another head of Nu Skin, and Jonnie Williams sat at the head of the table He gave a PowerPoint presentation, and there was a dialogue back and forth from the researchers to Jonnie What I observed, the researchers, you could tell that they had a posturing of, "Yeah, we are not really buying this," and Jonnie was, you know, doing his dialogue And when I walked out of the room, it did not seem they were interested

Q His pitch wasn't well received by the researchers?

A I don't think it was well received.

Q Was it essentially the sort of same pitch you had heard on the airplane?

A Yes As well as the night before Or earlier that day, rather I mean, when we were in Utah.

Q Did Ms McDonnell interject or promote Anatabloc at that meeting?

A We said nothing We just sat to the side and watched.

Q Now, did you eventually go home from this trip?

A Finally, yes

Q And how did you get there?

A Jonnie Williams' plane

Q And was there any sort of relevant discussion or anything?

A Not so much There was probably a little bit of chat, but I think we were all kind of tired We kind of read and slept most of the trip back home

Q Just to be clear, whose idea was it to delay the Salt Lake City portion of the trip and go to California instead?

A Jonnie Williams'

Q And who chose the resort where you stayed in California?

A Jonnie Williams

Q Who chose the dinner arrangements in California?

A Jonnie

Q Whose idea was it for some of the ladies to get spa treatments?

A Jonnie's

Q Whose idea was it for you and the First Lady and the others to go see Dr Caturegli speak at this event?

A Jonnie's

Q Whose idea was it for Maureen McDonnell to speak at that event?

A Jonnie's

Q Now, you mentioned that Ms McDonnell didn't really confide in you about the state of her marriage But did you see from the outside any other sort of signs of the state of communications between her and Mr McDonnell?

A Not so much that I ever witnessed any confrontation, but there were a couple of times that she made comments And one in particular, one of the first FLITE gatherings that we had at the Mansion, Diana Cantor and her were speaking about how they texted each other at 2, 3 o'clock in the morning And I just thought to myself, "If they are texting each other at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning, their husbands aren't in bed with them," because my husband wouldn't have let me sit there texting I thought, "How lonely, that she is --"

MS. ABER: Objection, relevance

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Now, having observed Ms. McDonnell and Jonnie Williams together, what was your impression of the nature of their relationship?

A I thought they were longtime friends

Q Did their relationship ever strike you as a business relationship?

A No

Q And from your observations, what did Jonnie Williams contribute to this friendship?

A I thought he was just trying to help them, you know, along their path, you know He would just offer things for assistance It never seemed like it was a business situation. I had no idea

Q Did he pay attention to her?

A Oh, all the time

Q Did he share in her passion for nutraceuticals?

A Absolutely

MS MARTIN: I have no further questions

THE COURT: All right. Mr Asbill? Government, any questions?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MS ABER:

Q Good morning, Ms Niamtu.

A Good morning

Q You and Ms McDonnell met back in 2009; is that right?

A Yes.

Q So at the time of these events you had been acquainted for approximately two years-ish?

A Oh, yes

Q 2011, 2012?

A Yes

Q But it sounds like you two became fast friends; is that right?

A Yes

Q You talked on the phone?

A Yes

Q You e-mailed, I take it?

A E-mailed, texted, probably talked in person a lot, too We went out to lunch and shopped a little bit, yeah

Q And when Ms McDonnell was stressed out in October of 2011 she called on you as her girlfriend, right?

A Yes

Q And actually, as an aside to that, how sure are you that October of 2011 is when Ms McDonnell was concerned about Todd Schneider, the chef? Are you certain about that timing?

A It all kind of ran together I mean, that was three years ago But it just seemed -- by my recollection, it was, everything was all on top of each other

Q Are you aware that the Mansion did not actually begin investigating Mr Schneider until the beginning of 2012?

A No.

Q Okay So when Ms McDonnell stressed out, she was calling on you and she wanted you by her side for this trip to California, right?

A Yes

Q And is it, I don't mean to be unkind, but is it fair to say as First Lady Ms McDonnell didn't have a lot of close girlfriends?

A I have no way of answering that

Q But I assume you are among the top of the list, right?

A I felt like I was a good friend, yes But I believe she has, you know, a lot of girlfriends

Q Now, I take it that Ms McDonnell never mentioned having any romantic feelings for Mr Williams to you?

A No.

Q I'd like to bring up, please, Government Exhibit 258 Now, Ms Niamtu, I'm sure you have never seen this flyer before; is that right? But I'll direct your attention to the date, October 27th, and I'll represent to you that that's 2011 This is a flyer for the conference in California you discussed Does that sound about the right timing?

A Yes

Q Okay And I think your testimony was that Ms McDonnell seemed surprised that she was being called to the stage at this event

A Yes

Q And I think you said she was surprised by the number of doctors or folks present in the audience; is that right?

A I don't know if she was, but I was

Q And I think you testified, maybe I misheard you, that it didn't appear like she knew what was going on when she walked into the room.

A You are asking if I thought she knew?

Q Yes Based on your observations, is it your testimony that Ms McDonnell was totally surprised that she was coming into an event of this magnitude?

A We were all surprised.

Q Okay I'd like to bring up Government Exhibit 254, please Now, did you know that Ms McDonnell had attended a similar event in Michigan five days earlier?

A I knew she was in Michigan. I'm not sure I knew it was about this

Q Did she tell you that that event was virtually identical to the California event?

A No

Q Did she tell you that that event had dozens of doctors in attendance?

A No, we didn't speak about the event I just knew she had been to Michigan.

Q She didn't tell you that she spoke at the Michigan event and made virtually identical comments?

MS MARTIN: Objection, asked and answered

THE COURT: Overruled.

BY MS. ABER:

Q Ms McDonnell didn't tell you about that?

A I just said she didn't talk to me about this conference

Q I'd like to bring up Government Exhibit 250, please. This is a flyer for an event actually in Richmond at the Westin Hotel on October 18th, which would be roughly nine days before the California event that you attended. Did Ms McDonnell tell you that she attended this event?

A No

Q Did she tell you that she made any comments at this event?

A No

MS ABER: If I could have one moment, please, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MS ABER: No further questions, Your Honor Thank you

THE COURT: All right. Any redirect?

MS MARTIN: Briefly, Your Honor

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Directing your attention to this same exhibit that the government just showed you, do you see on there where it says "Featured Guest: The First Lady of Virginia, Maureen McDonnell"?

A Yes

Q And all right, if we can pull it back out And that's the Richmond event, right?

A Yes

Q All right If we can pull up Government Exhibit 254 And do you see on there where it says, "Featured Guest: The First Lady of Virginia, Maureen McDonnell"?

A Yes

Q And that is the Michigan event?

A Yes

Q All right Can we take that down? Pull up Government Exhibit 258 Where on there does it say that Maureen McDonnell is the featured guest?

A Nowhere.

Q Or speaker.

A Nowhere

Q And that's the California event, correct?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q Now, she asked, Ms Aber asked you some questions about Ms McDonnell's frustration with Chef Todd?

A Yes

Q Did she say it was specific to a Mansion investigation of Chef Todd?

A No

Q Is that what you understood at the time in October of 2011?

A No.

MS MARTIN: No further questions

THE COURT: Thank you, ma'am. You may stand down

(Witness stood aside)

Call your next witness, please

Q Are you here under a subpoena today?

A I am not from you.

Q Did anybody subpoena you in this case?

A The government did, yes, ma'am.

MR HARBACH: Objection

THE COURT: What does that have to do with anything? Please just ask the questions that you have

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Until what age did you live at home?

THE COURT: I can't hear you Would you speak up or lift the mic up a little bit?

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Until what age did you live at home?

A Until 18

Q What did you do after that?

A I went into college at the University of Notre Dame

Q Why did you choose Notre Dame?

A My dad went there I grew up in an Irish family who loved Notre Dame I was the fourth to go there

Q The fourth --

A McDonnell

Q All right And what did you do after -- did you graduate?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q With a degree in what?

A I had a degree in political science

Q What did you do after that?

A I went into the Army

Q And how did you choose to do that?

A I always admired that my dad was an Army officer, and I wanted to be like him. And when applying to college I was filling out scholarship applications, and ROTC was one of them, so he encouraged me to do that

Q What did you do in the Army?

A I was a signal officer

Q Did you ever deploy?

A Yes, ma'am, I deployed from '05 to '06

Q Where did you deploy?

A I deployed to Iraq

Q And are you still in the Army?

A No

Q What did you do after?

A I became a government contractor

Q And can you elaborate on what you were doing as a government contractor?

A Yes, ma'am. I worked at Joint Forces Command for a while, and right now I work for a company that's a service-disabled veteran-owned small business and I support the Navy

Q Do you hold a security clearance?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q What is your current family situation?

A I just got married last May and we are expecting a little girl in January

Q Congratulations

A Thank you

Q Now, I'm going to talk about your mom and dad

A Okay

Q Do you love your mom?

A I do, very much.

Q Do you love your dad?

A I do, very much

Q Do you think either of them is perfect?

A No

Q Are you prepared to talk about some of those imperfections today?

A Sure

Q When you were growing up, which one of your parents was around more?

A My mom.

Q And what was your dad doing?

A He was working, and in school

Q And then so what about your mom? While he was working and in school, what was she doing?

A She was working She was waitressing while he was in law school, and the rest of the time she was home until she started getting into the nutraceuticals

Q What level of education did your mom achieve, if you know?

A I think she had some college, but not a degree

Q Where did she get that college experience?

A I'm actually not sure In Northern Virginia somewhere after high school

Q Now, we have heard some testimony that she worked at the FBI Do you know what she did there?

A I know she was a typist when my dad was in college

Q Did you have an opportunity to see your father's career progression as you grew up?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And so what was your dad doing when you were sort of first old enough to remember?

A He was in law school when we came back to Virginia after Kansas So I remember very long hours in law school, and then I remember him running for state delegate in 1991, and doing that for 14 years, as well as in law

Q So going back to the time that he was in law school, how many siblings did you have then?

A So when he started law school, it was me and my sister, Cailin, and then while he was in law school, my sister, Rachel, was born

Q Did your mom work during any of that time?

A Yes, she would waitress

Q What about when she was pregnant?

A Yes, she waitressed when pregnant

Q Did you have any understanding of what your family's financial situation was then?

A I didn't know details I just know we didn't have much money

Q And do you recall what your dad did immediately after law school?

A He went to work in the Commonwealth's Attorney's Office He was a prosecutor

Q And what was your mom doing once he started working at the Commonwealth's Attorney's Office?

A I can't recall exactly the timeline, but I know at some point after waitressing she started with the nutraceuticals

Q Do you recall when he ran for the House of Delegates?

A Yes, 1991

Q And what was your mom doing then?

A I think she was getting into the nutraceuticals then

Q And what about in terms of the family? Had your brothers come along then?

A Oh, yes She was pregnant with twin boys that year, and they were born in September So five weeks before the election

Q And he won the election?

A Yes

Q And what impact did that have on his presence in the home?

A It reduced the amount of time he was home He was busier with General Assembly sessions every January, February, as well as working at the law firm, Huff, Poole & Mahoney

Q Where was the family living at that time?

A In Virginia Beach

Q And where were sessions?

A Sessions were here in Richmond

Q And what did he do for the commute, if he made it?

A He would stay up here definitely during the weekdays. He would come home some weekends, most weekends, I think, but weekdays for six or nine weeks depending on the year he was gone

Q So he would be gone for two months at a time and mom was at home with five kids including two newborns?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q How did she handle it?

A I mean, it was hard It was frustrating, and she felt alone at times. And I was ten by then so I helped as much as I possibly could, but it was hard.

Q Now, as your father's career trajectory increased, what effect did that have on his presence within the home?

A With each job with more responsibility, it reduced the amount of time he was around.

Q And what effect did that have on your mom?

A Frustration, loneliness, anger at times

Q And for instance, did you have an opportunity to see how she spent her time when you were home on summer break from school?

A Yes We would be on swim teams, and when I wasn't in school and around, she would be with us and get into soap operas and things like that to fill her time

Q What else did she do to pass her time during the day, if you know?

A She would, besides hanging out with us, she would have drinks sometimes and I think she just liked to take long baths sometimes, and I think she was depressed So she would try to escape.

Q Now, talk to me about the concept of frugality in your home Is that a concept you were raised with?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And how was that concept instilled in you?

A I just always knew that we were never going to spend money we didn't have, and waste money, and we just, that was the way I grew up.

Q And is that something that your parents instilled in you?

A My dad and mom, yes

Q And this is something you heard them talk about frequently?

A I know that there were arguments when I would grow up about different times that my mom would go shopping while my dad was working, and there wasn't really communications prior to those trips, and there were arguments later that so much money shouldn't have been spent on things and they needed to have conversations about those things So I know it caused arguments a lot

Q So is it fair to say that one of your parents was sort of more in favor of frugality than the other?

A I would say so

Q And which one was that?

A Probably my dad.

Q Now, I want to talk a little bit about family time We have heard some about, in particular, your father's prioritization of family time, even in the midst of his career Goings on. Would it be fair to say that he prioritized it?

A Yes, family time, very much.

Q How would you describe family time in your household?

A Well, it wasn't that frequent, because he was always so busy, and working But when he was around, he just loved his family very much, and he loved his children, and it was kind of kids were the priority and then my mom came last

Q And so did family time also -- well, who did it encompass?

A It was all five kids and my mom.

Q Sometimes aunts and uncles, too?

A Sometimes, yes

Q And what about one-on-one time between your parents? Did you see that get prioritized?

A No I did not

Q Is that something that changed over time from your observations?

A No I know that my dad tried to make time There just wasn't time I mean, he has always been so busy

Q Now, growing up, did you observe your parents' level of communication?

A I observed that it was very nonexistent

MR. HARBACH: Could we get a time frame, please, Judge?

THE COURT: Overruled.

BY MS MARTIN:

Q You say very nonexistent Did they not talk at all or they just didn't talk well, or what do you mean?

A They didn't communicate well

Q Did they talk at all?

A Yes, but it was never more than just logistics about children and necessities It wasn't what I observe in my own marriage as a normal conversation

Q Did they have disagreements?

A Yes

Q Fights?

A Yes

Q How frequent?

A Pretty frequent

Q What about, what would they fight about?

A I'm sorry, money, money that was spent that didn't need to be spent, time that my dad was gone, logistics of organizing moving us from Point A to Point B All five of us were in different sports, and I mean, it was a lot of coordination with five children having their own lives

Q Did you ever hear your mom raise her voice with your dad?

A Yes

Q Did you ever hear your dad raise his voice with your mom?

A Never

Q Just because he wasn't raising his voice, did that mean that he was communicating well from your perspective?

A No

Q And can you say why?

A He was just trying to not have it escalate further

Q And what do you mean by that?

A I mean that's why he -- I've never in my whole life ever heard him raise his voice, and he was just trying to end the conversation as quickly as possible with the least amount of fighting possible, knowing that his five children could hear, and he just didn't want it to keep going on So he would try to mediate that

Q Escalate further, you say Is this already a situation that escalated at this point?

A Typically they ended up escalating rather fast

Q Did you ever observe either your mom or your dad hide things from each other?

A Yes I would say there were, especially when it came to purchases, my mom, they were hidden until the bill came, and then it would turn into an argument

Q And how frequently did that occur?

A Pretty frequently

Q Now, as your father became increasingly professionally successful, how did that impact their communications?

A With increased responsibility, it became less time for talking with all of us So it definitely impacted it

Q And how, if you saw, did your mother react to that decreased time with her husband?

A More frustration. I mean, it was hard for her, more frustration, more anger

Q How did that impact the whole family dynamic? How did you guys deal with it?

A I think when we were all together, we all tried to just maintain the happy environment Nobody wanted to create any kind of tension We were all on eggshells to make sure that everything went well, and nobody made anyone else mad and tried to keep the limited time we had together happy

Q Fast forwarding to the time when your dad became

Attorney General, were you around much during that time?

A I was deployed when he was elected, and then I was in the Army for a little while after I came back to Virginia in '08, and that's when I started to be around for the second half of his term.

Q And so did you have much opportunity to observe your parents' communications then?

A Occasionally when I would come up to Richmond to see them.

Q Had they improved?

A No

Q How did it compare to the level of communication you saw when you were growing up?

A Probably less My dad was gone a lot more It was a statewide office So that meant less time for them to communicate

Q And then how about when your dad became Governor? Did you observe the state of their communications then?

A Yes

Q Had they improved then?

A No.

Q Had they gotten worse?

A I would say so, yes

Q And during the time that your dad was Governor, did you observe the demands being put on your mother as First Lady?

A Yes

Q And what were those like?

A There were a lot of different requirements of her, and different things that she was asked to go do, and speaking engagements, and a lot of things that at first she was nervous about But she was very excited and passionate about her initiatives, and when she was in the middle of those things she did very well

Q Had she ever been in a similar environment?

A No

Q And how was this environment different from anything you saw her experience?

A There was no getting out of it She is in the Mansion, and the events are in the Mansion, and she is just always in the middle of all these people and staff and events It was just non-stop

Q Had she ever had a staff before?

A No.

Q And do you think she was equipped for this role?

A I think they thought that they were ready earlier, and leading into this And every time my dad would talk about the next job, she was excited for him and supportive, and it was always -- kind of the way it sounded in the fantasy of what it would be like was a lot easier to take and accept than the reality of when they got into it. I think it was a lot harder when they were actually living it

Q Did you occasionally travel with them?

A Yes

Q With both of them together?

A Yes

Q Also with them individually?

A Yes

Q Were those, were you traveling with them on leisure trips, on gubernatorial trips, or on political trips?

A All of them.

Q And how frequently when you traveled with them would a trip encompass more than one of those categories?

A Frequently, the leisure, or the leisure would always be separate, but the other two were frequently combined.

Q And just because you traveled for the leisure or vacation event, did that mean that dad wasn't working?

A No, definitely not

Q What was his sort of routine on leisure trips?

A We would steal his phone when we had a chance, but I mean, he was always still plugged in He loved his job He was passionate about it And he would feel guilty if he wasn't constantly monitoring things

Q And how much one-on-one time did he and your mother spend together, if you saw?

A Pretty much none

Q And if you had to summarize, in the past ten or so years when you have been on trips with them, what are their interactions like?

A They are infrequent and, I mean, his focus is us, his children, when he is on his trips And so any interactions with them, it is minimal And if there is interaction, it is usually not pleasant

Q Now, in particular, did you go to Camp Pendleton with them in July of 2011?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And is there anything that happened along the lines of communications during that trip that stands out in your mind?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q What happened?

A We were in the family room, and something had happened, and my mom had gone into a separate room. And this happened frequently over the course of my years growing up And she was just isolated in the room watching television And my dad, I saw a drop on his face, and he was upset and he was walking down the hallway and I was walking with him and I stopped to ask him if he was okay And this stood out to me because this is not frequent that he would ever confide, but he actually did open up and said, "I don't know what to do anymore I can't make her happy She is always angry And I just wish there was something I could do." And he just felt like helpless, like it was a new low they had reached.

Q Had he ever opened up to you like that about that issue?

A No

Q What about your mother? Did she ever open up to you about their communications?

A Not really, no

Q During the conversation you had with your father when he was confiding in you, did he say the things that your mother said to him that were bringing him to this low?

MR HARBACH: Objection

THE COURT: Sustained

MS. MARTIN: It's not offered for the truth, Your Honor

THE COURT: The objection is sustained. You're asking her what somebody else told somebody else I mean, it's -- ask another question

BY MS MARTIN:

Q What about in 2012? Did you have an opportunity to observe your parents' communications then?

A Yes

Q And better or worse than you had seen before?

A They weren't any better

Q And what was your father's schedule like, comparatively, with other years?

A 2012 was probably the busiest year of his life He was campaigning for Mitt Romney He was leading the Republican Governors Association He was never home So it was crazy I barely got to talk to him If anything, we might squeeze in a call every couple weeks or so But he just did not have any time

Q And did you have an opportunity to observe your parents together in the same space?

A I would go on some trips I was engaged to my husband at the time, and so I had two reasons to go on the trips, since Adam worked for my dad So I would go to spend time with both of them, being very busy

And I -- I mean, my mom, a lot more of the same, was frustrated getting ready for events, and sometimes would not go to things And I'm -- it was a lot for her I understand But there was not barely any communication And if it was, it wasn't good

Q Did you ever have an opportunity to contrast their sort of personal existence versus their public existence?

A Yes Behind closed doors, as I've said, there was tension There was anger There were arguments But anytime they went into a public setting, it was like a switch flipped and they could turn it on And they both loved being around people So they weren't faking loving the people, but they were definitely kind of putting on an act and, you know, being more touchy-feely, I guess, than they were ever behind closed doors

Q So if you were to see a photo of them being affectionate at an event, is that indicative to you that they went home and had a good night with each other that night?

A No

MR HARBACH: Objection

THE COURT: Overruled

BY MS MARTIN:

Q I want to talk some about Jonnie Williams How did you first hear about Jonnie Williams?

A From my mom

Q And when did she start talking about him?

A She probably started talking about him in 2011, early 2011, and talking about her new friend who had this product Anatabloc that she believed in and that helped inflammation And I was a runner, so she gave me some to take, and she really believed in his product

Q How frequently would she talk about him?

A Very frequently

Q What -- as an outside observer, what impression did your mom's frequent discussion of him leave you with?

MR HARBACH: Objection Relevance

THE COURT: She can answer the question

A I think she had a mild obsession with Jonnie I had never heard her talk about any other friend in this manner

BY MS MARTIN:

Q And aside from not hearing her talk about anyone else, had you ever seen her develop any type of relationship with any other friend than she did with Jonnie Williams?

A No

Q You mentioned that she also -- she believed in his product too, Anatabloc?

A Yes.

Q And did she talk about her involvement in -- or potential involvement in Anatabloc? Or what did she say about it? Let me ask you a better question

A I think that, for her, she wanted to be part of something big, and she believed it was something that could be big And growing up --

MR HARBACH: Objection This is nonresponse The question was what she said

THE COURT: The objection is overruled

Go ahead

A I'm sorry Can we start over?

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Sure What did your mother say about Anatabloc when she talked about it?

A She said she believed in it And I think that she believed in it because she's always been passionate about the nutraceuticals, and she believed in the effects that it was going to have, and she wanted to be part of it

Q Did you ever meet Jonnie Williams?

A Yes

Q And on how many occasions?

A Not many Maybe three

Q Did you ever speak to him?

A Yes

Q And when you two did speak, generally, topically, what did you speak about?

A Anatabloc He was just very flamboyant He liked to talk about his money and how much he had and his houses, and if I ever wanted to take a vacation, go use his properties Meaning he was very just flamboyant and generous

Q And at that point, like when he was talking about you taking a vacation at his property, had you asked him for anything like that?

A Absolutely not

Q Did you see your mom and Jonnie Williams interact much?

A Yes A few times

Q And so is your impression of how she viewed their relationship, is that based both upon what you heard from her and your own observations?

A Yes

Q And when you've heard your mother describe her relationship with Jonnie Williams to others -- or let me back up Sorry

When you have described your mom's relationship with Jonnie Williams to others, how have you described it?

A I have just --

MR HARBACH: Relevance

THE COURT: Sustained

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Did you think that he was your mother's friend?

A Yes

Q Did you think that he was your mother's business associate?

A No

Q Did you think that he was your mother's good friend?

A Yes

Q What were the things that caused you to think that they were friends?

A By the frequency of how much she talked about him, by the fact that in preparation for my wedding, anytime I asked on the wedding list or for the tool party, he was the first name out of her mouth

Q When you say "in preparation," how did he come to be involved in lists for your wedding?

A Because I asked my friend -- or my parents which friends of theirs they would like to invite, and he was at the top of the list for the wedding and then for the tool shower

Q Have you ever heard anybody describe your mother's relationship with Jonnie Williams as anything other than a friend?

A Not at all

Q Ever heard it described as a business relationship?

A No, ma'am

Q Now, we've heard some discussion of Jonnie Williams potentially purchasing a generator for you and your husband.

A Yes, ma'am

Q His name is Adam, right?

A Yes

Q All right Now, did there come a time that you understood that Jonnie Williams intended to buy you a generator?

A Yes, ma'am

Q How -- when did that happen?

A At our tool party, which I believe was October of '12, my mom and dad got to the shower, and she walked up to me and said that Jonnie has a special gift that she wants -- that he wants to call and tell you about His wife fell ill and she was taken to the emergency room, which is why they did not end up flying up from Florida to attend the party and, I guess, bring the generator

Q All right So you were having this tool party?

A Yes

Q And he -- you found out he wasn't attending?

A Uh-huh

Q But he had been invited; is that right?

A Yes

Q And who was he invited by?

A My mom and dad My mom

Q And so what happened next with this generator?

A So he -- my mom ends up saying she wants to call him to tell us about the generator --

Q When --

A In the middle of the party

Q In the middle of the party?

A Yes

Q So where were you? Sort of --

A So it was a back deck, and everyone was kind of filtered among the lower deck and the upper deck And I was on the upper deck when they got there

Q And how many people were around?

A Forty

Q Who was there? Was your dad there?

A Yes

Q And who, sort of generally, else was there?

A Well, it was a shower thrown by Adam parents' friends, a couple of the couples So it was their friends, and my parents' friends, and then some of our friends

Q So your mother mentioned a telephone call?

A Yes She wanted to call Jonnie in the middle of the party I asked her please don't But she did

Q Why didn't you want her to?

A I just wanted to focus on the people that were there I didn't want to have a phone call about another gift while we were at the party I wanted to enjoy those people

Q And so was a phone call made --

A Yes

Q -- to or from Jonnie Williams?

A Yes

Q Who made that phone call?

A My mom

Q And what happened next with the phone call?

A She put him on speaker phone and put the phone between Adam and I And --

Q What kind of phone was it? A cell phone?

A A cell Yes, ma'am

Q And so was this telephone -- this call on speaker phone, was it sort of able to be widely heard that you could tell?

A No It was between our heads So I don't think anyone could hear

Q And was your mom standing there?

A Yes

Q Was your dad?

A No

Q And so what happened next?

A So Jonnie told us that since it's a tool shower, he wanted to get Adam the best tool of all, and that's a generator And we said, "That's extremely generous You really don't need to do that. Please just worry about your wife " And we thanked him, and the call ended And that was all we heard at that point

Q Now, had you ever talked to Jonnie Williams about a generator before then?

A No

Q Had Adam, to your knowledge?

A No

Q Were you in the market for a generator at that point?

A No

Q And so what was the next thing to happen in this generator saga?

A Next thing was out of the blue, Adam got a phone call from Michael & Son And they were setting up a time --

Q What's Michael & Son?

A I guess a company that does generators and AC, and things like that

Q Contractor of some sort?

A Yes Yes So they were setting up a time to come do a survey of our house And then they set up the time He came out to the house

Q Did you -- I mean, did you listen in on this phone conversation at all?

A Not the phone conversation But I was there when he came out to the house

Q And "he" being the contractor for Michael & Son?

A Yes, ma'am

Q All right And what happened once the contractor got there?

A He walked into the backyard to look where he could put the generator, and he said that the generator would have to be run into the gas line and that -- and Adam was asking, "Oh, well, where is it going to go in case somebody steals it?" And he said, "Oh, this isn't a generator that anyone is going to steal "

And we started asking, "Well, what kind of generator is this?" And he said, "Well, the gentleman who's arranged this gave me instruction to get you the generator that's going to keep your house lit up to where you'll never notice any kind of interruption when the power goes out " We had no idea it was a generator of that scale

But that was the instruction

Q Had you ever had any experience with such a generator?

A No, ma'am

Q When you heard "generator" initially, what were you thinking?

A I was thinking some couple-hundred-dollar thing from Home Depot or Lowe's

Q Do you have any idea how much something like that costs?

A I had no idea

Q Did you end up getting a generator from Jonnie Williams?

A No, ma'am

Q Why not?

A The gentleman who came and surveyed our property, I guess, went back and contacted Mr Williams And the next thing we heard was -- after Adam had finished working for my dad, he and I went to Florida for a week, and he had some missed calls from Jerri, who he used to work for -- or work with when he worked for my dad

Q So Jerri, Mr Williams' assistant?

A Yes

Q All right

A She and Adam had previously worked together, so they had each other's contact info. Jerri had tried calling a few times Adam did not answer while we were in Florida, and when he came back, he ended up answering And she called to just tell us that there was a check in the mail, the logistics had become too much

Q And were you on that phone call when --

A No

Q And did you, in fact, receive a check?

A Yes

Q And what was -- what was the amount of the check?

A 10,000

Q $10,000?

A Yes, ma'am

Q And what was your reaction to receiving a $10,000 check from Jonnie Williams?

A I was overwhelmed I thought that was a very large amount of money But we also put it into perspective because Jonnie Williams was going to fly on a private jet from his house in Florida up to our party and fly back, which would have been over the amount of the check

So we said, "Well, we'll put this into savings " It was written to Adam We put it into Adam's savings account, and we never touched it And it's been returned

Q When did it get returned?

A Once we realized that Jonnie himself was a criminal

MR HARBACH: Objection Move to strike

THE COURT: All right The question was when, not what So if you know of a date or time that you came to that decision --

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor

THE COURT: -- we'd like to hear it

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor

A It was a spring of '13

BY MS MARTIN:

Q Before or after the news coverage of the investigation broke?

A After

Q And just to be clear, did you ever ask Jonnie Williams to buy you a generator?

A No, ma'am

Q To your knowledge, did Adam ever ask him to buy you a generator?

A No, ma'am

Q Now, did there ever come a time when Jonnie Williams supplied airline points for a purchase for you?

A Yes, ma'am

Q What happened there?

A Over the holidays of 2012, my mom had asked if we had booked our flights yet for our honeymoon to St Lucia And I told her we had not I was about to, but you can't book unless you're six months out

And so she said, "Jonnie, you know, always talks about all these airline points that even his kids won't be able to use, so he always says, 'Please use these '" And then she had brought it up another time, saying, "Jonnie wants you to use these points You know, let's get you guys this flight He'll do it for your wedding "

Q So you had this conversation with your mother more than once?

A Yes

Q And how many times did you have this conversation, do you think?

A Probably three or so

Q And did you eventually act on that?

A After the holidays, Adam and I went back home to Virginia Beach, and he ended up contacting Jerri, Jonnie's assistant, just to check the validity of this claim to see if this was accurate, if he actually was offering And Jerri said, "Yes " So Adam went ahead and e-mailed the flight that we were about to buy, and she booked it with points There was zero penny spent

Q Did you ever speak to Jonnie Williams about him supplying you airline miles for your honeymoon flights?

A No

Q To your knowledge, did Adam ever speak to him about that?

A No

Q And did you end up taking the flights for your honeymoon that were purchased with Jonnie Williams' airplane miles?

A No, ma'am.

Q Why not?

A Through all of the investigation, my dad had found out about the flights And we knew, once we started seeing all this negative coverage on Jonnie, that we wanted to cancel them anyways And the day that my dad found out that we had them, he suggested that we return them. So that night we ended up canceling them, and I -- once they were canceled, I bought the flights

Q Did you testify before the grand jury in this case?

A Yes, ma'am I did

Q And were you truthful in your grand jury testimony?

A Yes, ma'am

Q And have you had a chance to review your testimony in preparation for your testimony today?

A Yes, ma'am

Q And having reviewed it, are there any questions you wish you would have answered differently?

A Yes

Q What question or questions?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR HARBACH:

Q Good morning, ma'am

A Good morning, sir

Q I would like to start with the testimony you provided earlier today about your parents' marriage and their frequency of communication Okay?

A Yes, sir

Q You remarked at one point during your testimony that you had observed some things in their marriage that you had never observed in years Do you recall that testimony?

A Yes, sir

Q How long have you been married, ma'am?

A I've only been married a little over a year.

Q And how long have your parents been married?

A For 38 years

Q I believe you also testified, when you were talking about their communication, that at some point -- it wasn't clear to me -- during your time growing up, that their communications were -- I believe you said never more than logistics about children Do you recall that testimony?

A Yes, sir

Q And I just want to -- is that what you really meant; that as far as your observation was concerned, there was never any communication other than logistics about children? Is that really what you meant?

A That was most of it, sir

Q Well, you said never, though, didn't you?

A I don't recall if I said never

Q On direct examination, a little while ago, you don't really whether you said never?

A I might have said never

Q And if you did, that would have been a bit of an exaggeration, wouldn't it?

A It didn't feel like it to me, sir

Q You also testified that you observed your mother to -- you were asked a question about whether she has a tendency to hide things from your father Do you recall that testimony?

A Yes, sir

Q And I believe you said that -- you testified that there were purchases -- you were aware of purchases that she had made that were hidden until bill time, and then there would be an argument?

A Right

Q Okay Before we get to that, on the subject of your mother's deception, you do consider her to be an honest person, don't you?

A For the most part

Q And on the subject of bill time, isn't it true that the reasons there would be fights at bill time is because your dad checked the bills?

A That's not why there were fights

Q Well, I understood you to say on direct that some of your mother's purchases would be hidden until bill time --

A Yes, sir

Q -- correct?

A Yes

Q And the reason that they were no longer hidden at bill time is because your father had access to the bills?

A Yes

Q And so your testimony is that she would make a purchase, say, a significant purchase for something, a refrigerator, whatever it is. It might be secret, might keep it from him. And then the bill comes, and he would become aware of it that way?

A Yes, sir

Q All right And is it your testimony that as a result of your father learning after the fact about things that your mother had purchased that he didn't know about, there would be fights?

A Yes, sir

Q Your father, based on your observations growing up was the one who paid the bills?

A Yes, sir

Q Monitored the credit card statements?

A When he had time He was very busy

Q Made sure that things were paid on time?

A Yes

Q You were also asked some questions about one-on-one time that you had observed between your mom and your dad?

A Yes, sir

Q And I believe your testimony was that you said it was pretty much none --

A Right

Q -- from what you were able to observe?
A Yes
Q How long has it been since you have lived with your parents, ma'am?
A Since I was 18
Q And I'm not meaning to ask your age, but can you just tell us what year it was that you moved out?
A Yes, sir '99
Q '99 So it's been some 15 years since you have resided with your folks?
A Yes, sir
Q And fair to say that since you've left the household, the bulk of your time with your parents has been on family vacations that you described?
A Or visiting them here Yes, sir
Q And those vacations in Maine or at nice places, aren't they?
A Yes, sir
Q You had a good time?
A Yes
Q You also said that in 2012, things didn't get any better with your parents communication wise I believe you remarked that it was the busiest year of your father's life from your standpoint --
A Yes

Q -- is that right?

A Yes

Q And I believe you said -- this was another use of the word never that I want to make sure we're clear on I believe you said he was never home Was that your testimony?

A Yes, sir But I meant most -- almost never

Q Right You didn't really mean never?

A Right

Q If you had said that and meant it, that would have been a bit of an exaggeration, wouldn't it?

A That would have been

Q Okay Let's talk about Jonnie Williams for a minute I believe you said that you had met him approximately three times?

A Yes, sir

Q I wasn't clear on whether that means that was time you spent with him in person, or does that include times you've talked to him on the phone? Could you clarify that for us?

A That was all in person

Q All in person It was about three times, you said?

A Yes

Q When were those?

A The first time was on a flight to The Homestead with

Mr Williams, summer of 2011 That was probably the longest period of time I've spent talking with him.

Q Okay What else? What was the second time?

A I think the other two were events at the Mansion

Q Do you remember what the events were?

A I do not, sir

Q Do you remember when they were?

A I don't, sir

Q And, now, you've already told us about one telephone conversation you had with Mr Williams We'll get to that in a second

A Yes

Q Putting the one at the tool party aside, how many other times did you talk to him on the phone, to your recollection?

A None

Q That was it? Solitary occasion?

A Yes, sir

Q All right And I believe you testified that from your interactions with Mr Williams, he talked a lot about Anatabloc And I believe you said he was flamboyant and very generous?

A Yes, sir

Q And at least from your standpoint, your interactions with Mr Williams, it sounded like Mr Williams, at least in his conversations with you, is pretty much talking about two things It's either Anatabloc or offering you nice things like vacations Is that a fair summary?

MS MARTIN: That mischaracterizes prior testimony

THE COURT: I can't hear you

MS MARTIN: Objection. That mischaracterizes the prior testimony

THE COURT: Overruled

A Can you repeat, sir?

BY MR HARBACH:

Q Sure It sounds like, from what you're testifying about, in terms of your personal communications with Mr Williams, that he pretty much would talk about two things at least with you; either Anatabloc or offering you generous things like vacations and generators, and that sort of thing?

A Those are two of the things I wouldn't say that's the only things

Q But those are the two main things, right?

A I suppose

Q I mean, the two things you mentioned when you were talking about him on direct examination were that he spoke about Anatabloc and that he was a flamboyant, generous person Those are the two things you said, right?

A Yes, sir

Q You testified on direct examination that one of the -- one of the qualities that was instilled in you by your parents was frugality?

A Yes, sir

Q And I want to talk about that just for a minute You've read the indictment in the case, haven't you?

A Yes, sir

Q You're aware that among the issues in the case are, among other things, some golf clubs that Mr Williams bought for your younger brother Bobby?

A Yes

Q And you're also aware of a trip that your younger sister Rachel took to Florida, and I think stayed at one of his places, and maybe went on a sailing trip, or something like that You're aware of that, right?

A I am now Yes, sir

Q You were aware of it at the time, weren't you?

A I wasn't aware of the sailing trip I was aware of the trip

Q I see And isn't it true that when you found out about these things in realtime, the golf clubs and the golf bag for Bobby and the trip to Florida for Rachel, isn't it true that you thought it was overboard and a little inappropriate for your family members to be taking those things?

A Yes, sir

Q And at the time, you didn't even know about the $15,000 that Mr Williams had put toward your sister Cailin's wedding, did you?

A No, sir

Q And you also didn't know about the 120 grand in loans that Mr Williams had extended to your parents or their beach rental company?

A No, sir

Q And you also weren't aware of all the times that your father golfed at Kinloch on Mr Williams' dime, were you?

A No

Q Let's talk about the -- the tool party for a minute I believe you testified on direct examination that Ms McDonnell, your mom, put Mr Williams on speaker phone at this party?

A Yes, sir

Q And I believe you said that, on direct examination, that you -- you didn't think anyone could hear you --

A Yes, sir

Q -- right?

A Yes

Q But isn't the whole reason you didn't want her to put it on speaker phone because you didn't want other people to hear?

A Yes I didn't want her to make the phone call at all

Q Okay And fair to say that -- well, I don't want to say mortified, but you weren't happy when she had it on speaker phone?

A Correct

Q And the truth is, is it not, that you don't know how many people were listening to that phone call, do you, ma'am?

A I don't know, sir, but it was very loud in that backyard

Q After the conversation with Mr Williams that you just described, I want to make sure I heard you correctly Did you testify that the folks from Michael & Son showed up at your home out of the blue? Was that the phrase you used?

A No, sir I said the phone call to my husband was out of the blue And then they scheduled a time to come to the home

Q My mistake It was the phrasing that I was interested in So it was the phone call to your all's house from Michael & Son that was, as you put it, "out of the blue"?

A Yes, sir

Q Okay And you all ended up getting a check for $10,000 instead of the generator, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And forgive me I know you've already testified to this You deposited it?

A Yes, sir.

Q You didn't give it back right away until summer of '13?

A Spring or summer Correct

Q And isn't it also true that you didn't tell your dad?

A That is true

Q And the reason you didn't tell your dad is because you were embarrassed and uncomfortable, and that's not the way you operate; isn't that true?

A That's not the only reason, sir

Q Is that among the reasons you didn't tell your father?

A I was uncomfortable with the check But the real reason that I did not tell him is because I barely had a chance to talk to my dad

Q Is it true or not true that you were embarrassed about getting the check?

A I would say I was uncomfortable, sir

Q Is it true or not true that taking a $10,000 check from someone is not the way you operate?

A That is not how I've ever operated prior to Yes, sir

Q And that was before -- when Mr Williams gave you the check and you all made the decision to deposit it, that was long before any of the newspaper stories that you testified about on direct, correct?

A Correct

Q Your mom knew about the gift, didn't she?

A She knew that there was supposed to be a generator Yes, sir

Q And she never said to you, "Hey, don't tell your dad about the generator, and don't tell your dad about the $10,000 check to you"? She never said anything to you like that, did she?

A No, sir

MR HARBACH: Just a moment, Judge, please

THE COURT: Sure

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR HARBACH: No further questions, Your Honor Thank you

THE COURT: Anything based on that?

MS MARTIN: Three questions, I think, Your Honor

BY MS MARTIN:

Q You were asked on cross-examination whether Jonnie Williams talked about two things, right? Anatabloc --

A Yes

Q -- and offering you things?

A Yes, ma'am

Q Did he also talk about his wealth?

A Yes, ma'am

Q Did he also talk about himself?

A Yes, ma'am

Q How much time did he spend talking about those things?

A I would say there was a significant amount of time talking about himself and his trips and things

Q What about his family?

A Not very much A little bit about his wife

Q And there was some questions regarding the phone call from Mr Williams during the tool party?

A Yes, ma'am

Q And your desire not to have it put on speaker phone?

A Correct

Q Is that because you wanted to conceal the phone call or the offer of a generator?

A No, ma'am

Q Is it because you didn't want your mom to make a scene by imposing this phone call in the middle of your party?

A Yes, ma'am

MS. MARTIN: No further questions

THE COURT: All right

Thank you, ma'am You may stand down

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor

(Witness stood aside)

THE COURT: Call your next witness, please

MR BURCK: Thank you, Your Honor We call Emmet T Flood

MR DRY: Can we approach, Judge?

THE COURT: Uh-huh Come on up

(At Bench)

THE COURT: You all haven't worked this out?

MR BURCK: I think we have

MR DRY: Well, I think that two things One is we're going to let Mr Burck lead Mr Flood through this But the second is depending on how this goes, we're not saying that they are not waiving the privilege And on cross-examination, we might go into some of the conversations that have occurred between Mr Flood and both the Governor and Ms McDonnell

So we just want everybody on notice that depending on how this goes, that a can of worms might be opened up, and it's both your client and your client that the worms would come out of the can on

MR BURCK: Your Honor, I'm a little confused Because I thought we just had an agreement that if it comes out the way I described it, that there was not a waive of the privilege

MR DRY: No. I'm still a little bit unclear exactly I think I understand the three points If it goes anything broader than those three things, we're -- this would be a mess

THE COURT: Well, from what you described earlier, I wouldn't have any problem with it And you have discussed this with them?

MR BURCK: Absolutely Everybody knows exactly what he's going to say

THE COURT: All right Then let's --

MR FAULCONER: Obviously, stop me if there's a question that I ask that goes too far But from my perspective, any conversation that's he had about grand juries, potential investigations, the likelihood of an investigation, could potentially undercut if he relays something from the prosecutors that says, "Well, she said this " If he previously had a conversation with her saying, "Well, there's a possibility of X, Y, Z," all of that is potentially within the scope of what her understanding was, because the reason is what her understanding was And if he has prior conversations with her that would go to that, then those are within the scope of the cross

MR BURCK: We were advised -- all we're trying to do is get to the state of mind I don't think he would actually -- I think he would testify that he didn't talk --

THE COURT: Well, let's see what the answers are I'll see how it goes

MR DRY: Thank you, Your Honor

MR BURCK: Thank you, Your Honor

(In Open Court)

EMMET FLOOD,

called as a witness by and on behalf of Defendant Maureen G McDonnell, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

MR BURCK: May I inquire, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Go ahead Thank you

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR BURCK:

Q Good morning, Mr Flood

A Good morning

Q Would you please spell your name for the court reporter

A Sure First name is Emmet E-M-M-E-T Middle initial T. Last name Flood F-L-O-O-D.

Q Mr Flood, you and I have known each other since 2007?

A That's correct

Q And we were colleagues together in the White House Counsel's Office for a couple years?

A That's right

Q And we've become personal friends, right?

A We are

Q And we worked together in cases in private practice?

A We have.

Q You were counsel to Bob and Maureen McDonnell earlier last year, right?

A I was

Q And for a time, you represented them both, and then introduced me to Ms McDonnell in May of 2013, right?

A Yes

Q And at that point, you ceased representing her, and I took over her defense, right?

A Yes

Q Can you just give us a brief summary of your education?

A Sure I'll be brief I went to school a long time Undergraduate degree from University of Dallas, 1978 Took -- and I was a high school teacher Then I went to graduate school. I have a master's and Ph D in philosophy from the University of Texas in Austin, 1986. I was a philosophy professor of sorts for several years And in 1988, I left academia to go be a -- to go to law school I went to the Yale Law School in New Haven, up in Connecticut, in '88 And I graduated with my law degree in 1991

Q And then after 1991, tell us briefly about your professional career

A A week after graduation, I began a clerkship with a federal Court of Appeals judge whose chambers were in New Haven in what's called the Second Circuit Court of Appeals His name was Judge Ralph -- or is Judge Ralph Winter

After that, I practiced law for a year in New Haven, Connecticut, at a firm called Brenner -- then called Brenner, Saltzman, Wallman & Goldman And then I left the Brenner firm in 1993, to move to Washington, D C , because I was fortunate enough to get a clerkship at the Supreme Court of the United States with Justice Antonin Scalia, for whom I worked for about a year I left the Scalia clerkship in the summer of 1994 And then after a little bit of time off, I went to my current employer, which is the Williams & Connolly law firm in Washington, D C , and I've been there ever since, with the exception of a couple years in government

Q Now, turning to February of 2013 At that time, did you become counsel to Mr. McDonnell, Governor McDonnell, and his wife, Maureen McDonnell?

A I did Sometime middle, toward the late month of February of 2013, last year, I began to advise them

Q All right And did you understand this was sometime shortly after an interview that Ms McDonnell had -- had -- an interview that had been done by investigators of Ms McDonnell on February 15, 2013?

A That was my understanding Yeah

Q Okay Now, Mr Flood, as a lawyer, you know that you have an obligation to maintain the confidentiality of all communications between yourself and your clients concerning legal advice you provided them, right?

A Yes That's -- I'm aware of that

Q Okay So I'm going to try to ask questions that do not require you to reveal any legal advice you provided to your clients Okay?

A Okay

Q If you have any concerns that I'm asking a question that strays beyond that, please let us know

A I will

Q Now, turning to the week of February 18 of 2013, did there come a time that you were -- that you contacted the prosecutors in this case? And when I ask you about "the prosecutors," please don't refer to them by name Just as the prosecutors

A Sure I placed a phone call to the prosecution team, you know, the 19th or 20th of that week As I remember, I think I left a message, and they -- and some members of the team called me back pretty promptly

Q Okay And that phone call, was that a fairly short phone call, that first -- that initial phone call?

A Yeah Five, ten minutes Not terribly long

Q Okay. Now, did there come a time that you had a second phone call with them that week?

A I did I had a second call with the prosecution team on Friday of that week, which was the 22nd of February Kind of mid, late afternoon, as I remember it

And in that case, as I remember it, they called me back, left a message, asked me to call them And then I called them back, along with -- along with a colleague of mine from Williams & Connolly

Q Okay So the two of you called them back?

A Yeah

Q Okay Now, I'm going to ask you a series of questions, and I'd just like a yes/no answer to them, please

A If I can

Q Okay Did the prosecutors tell you on that second phone call that there was no federal investigation of public corruption of Governor McDonnell or his wife?

A Yes, they told me that

Q Did they tell you on that phone call that there was a federal securities fraud investigation of Jonnie Williams?

A Yes, they did

Q Did they tell you in that call that if you had any questions about a -- about the state of play of a possible state inquiry, you should call a person named Mike Herring?

A Yes, they did

Q Did they tell you that Maureen McDonnell could be a potential witness in the federal investigation of securities fraud by Jonnie Williams?

A Yes

Q Did they tell you that the possible interest in her as a witness in the Jonnie Williams securities fraud investigation was related to certain checks she had received from Starwood Trust, which they told you was an entity controlled by Mr Williams?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, if I may depart from the yes or no to clarify?

THE COURT: Absolutely

A They told me that there may be interest on the -- I think they used the word "overlap" between what I would talk to Mr Herring about, or might talk to Mr Herring about, and their inquiry into Mr Williams

And they said that -- that -- I mean, the example they gave, or the instance they gave, was the Starwood Trust checks about which they said Ms McDonnell may have some information to provide

Q Okay And Mr Herring was the state investigator?

A Well, I didn't actually know who Mr Herring was at the time But I think -- as I recall, they identified him to me as the Commonwealth Attorney

Q Okay

A So, you know, sort of a state, you know, official

Q And fair to say, they directed you to him if you had any questions about the Commonwealth Attorney's inquiry?

A Yeah Not in a sort of mandate "you must" sense of direct, but it was a sort of by way of a strong suggestion

Q Okay Thank you

Now, is it your practice to inform your clients what you learn from prosecutors?

A Generally speaking, yes

Q And, in fact, tell us -- just briefly, you are a white-collar defense lawyer Is that your practice?

A I do -- I don't do only criminal defense, but a substantial part of my practice is, and has been, criminal defense, and largely defense of what are called white-collar individuals and entities Sure

Q And you've been doing that for a couple decades?

A Yeah I mean, rather than more of the white-collar stuff in the last ten years But I began practicing as a lawyer in '92, so sprinkled throughout, you know 20, 21 years

Q Okay And is it important to you to relay information you receive from prosecutors to your clients, when you do so, accurately?

A Yes Of course

Q Now, did you inform Mr and Ms McDonnell of what you learned from the prosecutors on February 22nd -- in the February 22nd, 2013, phone call?

A Yes, I did

Q Can you tell us, when did you inform Mr McDonnell?

A I first informed then Governor McDonnell that evening So it would have been in a phone call after I talked to the prosecution team So that would have been on the 22nd

And then I went over it again and told both the Governor and the then First Lady on the -- in the following week I believe on Monday, the 25th

Q Okay So you told -- Ms McDonnell was -- you told her what the prosecutors had told you on Monday, February 25th?

A That's how I remember it Yes

Q Okay Now, did there come a time that you learned that a grand jury investigation had, in fact, been opened in this case?

A Yes There did come such a time

Q When did that happen?

A You know, within a couple of days It was around April 17 or April 18 of last year, 2013

Q Okay So this is roughly two months after the phone calls you were just describing?

A Yeah More or less

Q And how did you learn about the opening of the grand jury investigation?

A A member of the prosecution team telephoned me at my desk and notified me of that in that phone call

Q Okay And did you inform your clients, who at the time were still Bob and Maureen McDonnell, of what the prosecutors told you on that call?

A Yes, I did

Q And you testified earlier that there came a time that you ceased representing Maureen McDonnell but continued to represent Governor McDonnell, right?

A That's right

Q And do you recall when you ceased representing Maureen McDonnell?

A Approximately the first week of May of 2013

Q So that was a couple weeks after you learned about the grand jury?

A Yeah That's about right

MR BURCK: No further questions, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right

Anything from the government?

Sorry Mr Brownlee

MR BROWNLEE: No, Judge

MR FAULCONER: Yes, Your Honor

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q Good morning, Mr Flood

A Hi

Q All right You said on direct examination that you were retained after Maureen McDonnell was interviewed by law enforcement, right?

A Well, what I think I said is I began to advise them at that point

Q Okay You became their lawyer after that?

A Yeah

Q And just so I'm clear on sort of the sequence of events, was it you who reached out to the prosecution team or vice versa?

A In the first -- there were -- as I said on direct, there were two phone calls in that week, and my colleague and I at Williams & Connolly placed the first phone call to the government, to the prosecution team, and then they called me back So the initiative, in my judgment, lay with myself and my colleague

Q And in terms of your reaching out to them, do you say, "Hey, I'm Mr Flood You should know what I'm calling about," or did you say, "This is what I'm calling about"?

A I think what I said was closer to the latter I think I called up, I said, you know, "This is my name This is my law firm These are my clients, and I'm calling to understand, you know, the state of what you're up to "

Q And based on that -- at least at that point, you didn't have any sort of firsthand knowledge of any of the underlying events, right?

A Yeah I'd say that's fair I mean, I -- yeah

Q And so during the conversations -- well, I guess leading in to that, you don't typically make a call to something like the prosecution team without having advised your clients that you're going to do it beforehand, right?

A I'm not sure I have a universal practice there But it's a serious step to engage with the government So I would think that typically, I would first -- you know, speaking generally, and not about this case, I think my general practice, although perhaps not, you know, completely unvarying, would be to first talk about that with a client

Q And, of course, you know that -- you were a prosecutor for some period of time, right?

A I've never been a prosecutor

Q You haven't Okay But you've worked in government, right?

A I have worked in government.

Q And you've certainly dealt with white-collar cases, right?

A Sure

Q And so you, of course, know that when you're making a call to prosecutors, there's a distinct possibly of there being some sort of grand jury being involved, right?

A Anything is possible Okay

Q Well, in fact, it's -- would you say it's -- if you're making a call to prosecutors, is it more or less likely that there might be a grand jury involved?

MR BURCK: Objection, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled

A I'd say -- and I'm sorry, sir I didn't get your name

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q Mr Faulconer

A Yeah Mr Faulconer, I'd say it's very situation specific because you learn about the investigation -- the existence of a government inquiry at different sort of stages on the timeline. It can happen at different times.

So I could not generalize about whether, you know, in the -- in the majority of cases or, you know, the average is post convening of a grand jury, as distinguished from pre I mean, I just don't know I couldn't tell you

Q But certainly from your perspective, if you don't even know there is a prosecution team even in existence, that would make it less likely that there is some sort of grand jury in the offing, right?

A No Because what I know, I think, may not affect whether a grand jury exists or not So to be really rigorous about your question, you know, I might know there's a grand jury because somebody might tell me You know, somebody might -- a client might come to me and say, "Here's my grand jury subpoeana " Then I know there's a grand jury because I've got a grand jury subpoena

But if one hears that questions have been asked of one's client, all right, but no sort of, you know, frame has been put around it, the reality is maybe there's a grand jury convened and maybe there isn't And until you get the government to tell you or you have evidence, like a grand jury subpoena, you just don't know

Q And I'm sorry I -- sorry if my question was unclear But I wasn't asking about whether or not you know, in fact, that there is one at a point in time But the possibility that there might be one coming down the pike, that is certainly more likely in a situation where law enforcement is asking questions of people, right?

A Well, more likely than what? It's certainly a genuine possibility, if that helps.

Q And it's certainly more likely than if no law enforcement has ever asked any questions about anything?

A Well, again, if you -- if no law enforcement has asked any questions and I'm the lawyer and I don't know, you know, I'm in a complete state of ignorance about that I don't have any baseline to say, "It's likely to happen It's not likely to happen " Because from where I sit, I just don't know Okay

Q Right So -- it was intended to be an easy question I apologize

Now, on the call when you first called the prosecution team, as you were referencing with Mr Burck, or at least in those first two phone calls, it's true that you specifically raised questions about whether or not the FBI might be looking into the McDonnells, right?

A I think what I said is something like that, but not quite Mr Faulconer, I think what I said in the first call is, "My understanding is that Ms McDonnell was questioned and an FBI agent was there, or may have been there, and I want to get clarification because of that " So that's how I remember it

MR FAULCONER: One moment, Your Honor

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q Now, in those initial phone calls, and I'm just lumping the two together just in terms of whether or not the topic came up, the topic of the McDonnells' financial interactions -- or potential financial interactions with Mr Williams did come up in those conversations, right?

A Well, as I remember it, it came up to the limited extent that the prosecution team made the point to me that there had been checks about -- on a Starwood Trust account So from my vantage point today, that looks like financial dealings All right I think that's fairly an instance of financial dealings involving at least Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams All right

But I don't have any recollection, and actually feel quite confident, there was no sort of general statement, "Hey, we're looking into, as some general topic, the financial dealings between the Governor and the First Lady "

Q But to be clear, sir --

A And --

Q To be clear, sir --

A Let's be clear

Q You were told that they were looking into Jonnie Williams, right? That's unambiguous

A They -- well, for clarity, they were looking into -- they were conducting a securities fraud investigation of Mr Williams

Q And the topic of financial transactions between Mr Williams and at least one of the McDonnells came up in that conversation, right?

A It came up by way of example. Okay. The example that I testified about

Q Okay And in that conversation, nobody ever said, "There will never be a federal grand jury investigation," right, "of public corruption"? It was never said that that is never going to happen in the future?

A Most -- you're correct That was never said Okay Nobody ever says that

Q Now, after this conversation, you communicated not just what the status is of different potential investigations were, but you communicated essentially all of the information from that phone call to Mr and Ms McDonnell, right?

A Well, let me -- there's two parts to your question Okay What I communicated to both of my clients after the call was what I testified to on my direct

Q Okay

A So I didn't -- just for clarity, I don't think I said, "Hey, here's the status of two investigations " Okay So I don't accept your premise Because what I had been told was there is no --

Q Hang on, sir

A No If I may finish What I had been told was, "There is no federal public corruption investigation of your clients " And I was not told that Mr Herring was conducting an investigation, but, rather, all right, that he had an interest in this and that it would be a good thing for me to talk to him So I want to be clear

Q Right But financial transactions between Mr Williams and the McDonnells came up on the conversation, right?

A Checks relating to Starwood Trust came up in the second of those conversations

Q Got it And your clients knew that when you relayed your conversations with the prosecution team to them, right? I mean, that's why you were calling in the first place, sir, right?

A I was calling in the first place because one of my clients had been interviewed in a surprising manner and without the presence of counsel All right And I wanted to find out what was going on Okay That's why I initiated the conversations

Q Right And, sir, yes or no Did checks from Starwood Trust associated with Jonnie Williams to one of the McDonnells come up in a conversation with the prosecution team?

MR BURCK: Objection, Your Honor Asked and answered three times

THE COURT: It's been asked, but it hasn't been answered All right Just answer the question

A Sure Of course Yes Of course

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q All right And in your conversations you had with your clients after that conversation with prosecutors, you relayed that part of the conversation to them, right?

A I believe I did Yes

Q Okay And when you talked to your clients after the conversation with the prosecution team, you never told them, "A grand jury is never going to happen here," right?

THE COURT: He's answered that I don't know how much more we can get out of this

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q Certainly after the conversation that you had with your clients, this is after the conversation with the prosecution team, you didn't cease representing them, right?

A Well, at some point down the road I ceased representing them But it didn't happen in the near aftermath of the conversations we've been discussing the back and forth here

Q Right In fact, as Mr Burck said, you continued to represent Ms McDonnell until sometime around May of 2014, right? Or 2013? Sorry

A Yeah Correct

Q And just to be clear, there's been some testimony about a letter that Ms McDonnell sent to Mr Williams or sent a letter with some clothing Without telling us about how you learned about that, can you tell us when you learned about that, timeline wise?

A Yeah I mean, if that's not a privilege problem, I learned about it sometime in March of 2013

Q And --

A Kind of -- Mr Faulconer, kind of mid-March But I don't remember the specific date

Q And you -- after you ceased representing Ms McDonnell in May of 2013, you continued to represent

Mr McDonnell until July of 2013, right?

A Yep

Q And you weren't fired, were you?

A No I was not fired

MR FAULCONER: One moment Your Honor

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel

MR FAULCONER: No further questions, Your Honor

THE COURT: Mr Burck, anything?

MR BURCK: No, Your Honor Thank you very much

THE COURT: Thank you, sir You may stand down

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Judge

(Witness stood aside)

Q And just looking at the last two entries on here, had the stock been sold at the peak price on July 3rd, 2012 of 4 99 per share, it being 6,672 shares, what would have been the amount on that sale?

A The amount of that sale would have been $33,293 28.

Q Just to be clear, that's the gross amount, that's not the profit, correct?

Q Very briefly, the first entry, is that a text message from Ms McDonnell to Donnie Williams on November 17th, 2012?

A Yes, sir, it is

Q Is that talking about inviting Mr Williams and his brother, Dean, to a Christmas party?

A That's correct

Q Looking next at December 14th, 2012, what's the first text message that Mr Williams sends to Ms McDonnell?

A It is a message that advises that "The spa cover will be here in three weeks "

Q And how does Ms McDonnell respond?

Q How does Mr Williams respond?

A He replies: "No, Jonnie's paying for it "

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q Good afternoon, Mr Ross

A Good afternoon, sir

Q Now, you said that you work currently for Holland & Knight, right?

A That's correct

Q And that is Mr McDonnell's law firm?

A Yes, sir

Q The law firm that's representing Mr McDonnell?

A Yes, sir

Q But here today, you are testifying for Ms McDonnell, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Okay She is represented by Mr Hauss and the people over at Quinn Emanuel, right?

A Correct

Q But you are working with Ms McDonnell's lawyers on your testimony here

A Yes, sir

Q Now you said, I think, that you started working on this case in July of 2013?

A Yes

Q And about how many documents would you say that you have looked over during the course of your time working on the case?

A I could only guess that it would be in the thousands

Q Quite a few?

A Quite a few

Q Have you participated in interviews of witnesses?

A Yes, sir

Q Have you interviewed either Mr or Ms McDonnell?

A No.

Q Can you tell us when you first started preparing for your summary testimony?

A I guess you would say the home stretch was within the last two weeks

Q And at any time during the course of your work in this case, have you spoken to Jonnie Williams?

A No, sir

Q Have you spoken to Adam Zubowsky?

A No

Q Have you spoken to Mary-Shea Sutherland?

A No, sir

Q All right Now, I'd like to -- you also said that you had reviewed some of the transcripts, right?

A The transcripts of the testimony?

Q Of the trial testimony

A I've reviewed all of the prosecution witness transcripts

Q Got it I think you also mentioned some of Mr McDonnell's testimony as well

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now, I'd like to work through some of your charts and just talk about what is and isn't on some of them. Now, I'd like to start with RM-0294 And I think this is, in our system, I think it is RM-0293-2 All right, now, Mr Ross, I think you said here that what this is showing is the total number of minutes on calls greater than a minute, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And so essentially what this is showing is that Ms McDonnell was talking to both of these people for quite a significant period of time, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Or at least it is pretty close in terms of the volume of communication, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Now, if you split this up, Ms Taylor, could we compare this side by side with Government Exhibit 573? All right, now, Mr Ross, I think when Mr Hauss first showed you your chart, first he showed this one to the left, right?

A Correct

Q And that's the one from Special Agent Hulser's testimony, right?

A Right It is my left But --

Q To your left Sorry

A I know which one you are talking about, yes

Q Looking at the one that Special Agent Hulser testified to, that actually splits it out by time period, right, one in 2011 and one from 2012 on?

A I'm sorry, I didn't follow you on that

Q I was probably speaking too fast The one on the left, and this is the one from Special Agent Hulser, that splits it into the 2011 time frame in the left column and then 2012 on in the right column.

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now, are you aware that if you took that same sort of split and put it in the chart that you have on the right, that the communications between Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell would go up from 2011 to 2012?

A It could I hadn't looked at it that way

Q Are you aware that the communications in terms of total number of minutes between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams actually go down to less than Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell?

A No, I'm not aware of that

Q Now, regardless, this chart that you have on the right, that doesn't include any calls from Ms McDonnell to Mr McDonnell's Travel Aide, does it?

A No No, sir

Q This is just Mr McDonnell's personal cell phone

A Correct

Q But you are aware of his testimony about the Travel Aide sometimes handing the phone off to him, right?

A Yes, sir

Q This also doesn't include any landlines associated with Ms McDonnell?

A Cell phones only

Q Got it It certainly doesn't include any one-on-one personal conversations, right?

A No, sir

Q It doesn't include any conversations during travel or something like that

A No, sir

Q Now, are you aware, sir, you said that you reviewed a number of communications between Mr Williams and Mary-Shea Sutherland, right?

A Yes

Q Are you aware that the number of minutes for Mary-Shea Sutherland on this chart would be 184?

A I'm not, no She is not on the chart No, sir

Q Okay Now, I'd like to show you the next chart of yours, this is RM-0295, or Page 3 of 293 Now, again, you testified about this one on direct examination, but to be clear, you didn't go through and calculate how it compares from 2011 to 2012 and on, did you?

A No, I just used the total time frame

Q And again, this doesn't account for some of the things that we talked about just a moment ago in terms of in-person or landline conversations?

A Personal conversation, no No, sir, it is cell phones only

Q Let's go to RM-0296, the next one All right, now, sir, I think you said on direct examination that this one includes zero-second calls, right?

A This is all calls, yes, sir, regardless of time limit

Q So even a call that doesn't connect

A Regardless of time limit, yes, sir

Q And you have Mr Williams as the common party on both of these rows You have seen Mr Williams' phone records, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Did you review them on paper or electronically?

A On paper

Q Is it a fairly tall stack of paper if you put it up here?

A Yes, sir, very extensive

Q More than 10,000 pages, right?

A A lot

Q Are you aware that during this time frame, he had approximately 105,000 calls and text messages?

A It wouldn't surprise me I wasn't aware of that

Q And that number, if Special Agent Hulser testified to something to that effect, this number here, 1349, would be right around one percent of that, right?

A My math is not very good. I'll take your word for it, yes, sir

Q Got it I guess a thousand into a hundred thousand is about one percent Now, I'd like to show you the next one, RM-0297 Now, this here, the chart has April of 2011 as the month with Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams, right?

A Yes, sir

Q For the second row there

A Second row, yes

Q Now, you are obviously aware that that is the month where the first phone call between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams shows up in the records, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And that it is also the month of the shopping trip to New York?

A Yes, sir

Q And are you aware that the highest month of communications between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams was over 200 in August of 2011?

A No, sir, not offhand, no

Q Did you calculate the total number of text messages and calls between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams in August, the month of the lunch event at the Mansion?

A No, sir

Q All right. So I'd like to now go to RM-0299, which is two charts forward Now, just to be clear, Mr Ross, at this time in December of 2009, based on your understanding of the chronology, the McDonnells weren't in the Executive Mansion, right? Yet? The inauguration hadn't happened?

A That's correct

Q And this chart doesn't include any calls from landlines, right?

A That's correct, also

Q All right Now I'd like to go to the next one, RM-0300 Sir, this is the chart showing Mary-Shea and Mr Williams' communications on April 13th of 2011, right?

A Yes

Q Based on your understanding of the evidence as you have reviewed it, Mary-Shea Sutherland was Ms McDonnell's Chief of Staff, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And this was the date of that shopping trip, right?

A That's correct

Q Now, are you aware that this call here from Mary-Shea Sutherland to Mr. Williams is the first communication between Ms. Sutherland and Mr. Williams in Mr Williams' records?

A I'm not aware of that, no, sir

Q But you are aware that the first one between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams is two days before that on April 11th.

A Yes, sir

Q And you haven't prepared or reviewed any sort of chart that shows any earlier calls between Mr Williams and Ms Sutherland, have you?

A No, I have not

Q All right Now, on here, you have that the first communication on this chart, it says Mary-Shea Sutherland to Jonnie Williams at 9:07 a.m. Is that right?

A Yes

Q I'd like to put a little bit more context around this one and hand up to you what's been marked for identification as Exhibit 833 Government Exhibit 833 Just so it is easier for you to see

(Document proffered to witness)

Now, sir, this is a copy of a two-page version of Ms McDonnell's phone records for that general time frame covering April 13th, roughly from April 11th down to April 17th, right?

A April 11th -- yes, sir

MR. FAULCONER: We would offer Exhibit 833 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q All right, now, if you could direct your attention down and if we could scroll down to April 13th, 2011 Do you see there, sir, where it has -- where it says at 8:54 a.m., there is a call from, incoming, to Ms McDonnell from a phone number, 6837?

A Yes, sir

Q You are aware that that's one of Mary-Shea Sutherland's cell phone numbers, right?

A It is familiar The last four digits are familiar

MR FAULCONER: I think the parties have stipulated that that's one of Mary-Shea Sutherland's cell phones

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q That call is three minutes at 8:54, right?

A Yes, sir Three minutes

Q And then at 9:34 a.m. there is an outgoing call from Ms McDonnell's cell phone to Mary-Shea Sutherland's other cell phone, 8927, at 9:34 a.m., right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now, if we could go back to your chart, RM-0300, which I believe is Page 7 -- no -- okay, so we had there what we just looked at was a call between Ms McDonnell and Ms Sutherland at 8:54 a.m. That would be before the 9:07 call that's on this chart, right?

A Where are we?

Q Sorry We are on the -- the chart here says 9:07 a.m. is the first call, right?

A Yes, sir

Q In that paper copy of 833 that you have in front of you, the call between Ms McDonnell and Ms Sutherland at 8:54 a m., that occurs before the call between Ms Sutherland and Mr Williams, right?

A That's correct

Q And you don't know what Ms McDonnell discussed with her Chief of Staff in that call before the call shown here

A We didn't have any content for any of the calls

Q Got it All right, now, I'd like to go to the next of these charts, RM-0301 Now, sir, what you are essentially or what this chart is essentially showing is the relative communications of Ms Sutherland and Mr Williams to Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams, right?

A Correct

Q And if you total it up, it is about 15 to two or about seven-and-a-half times as many by Ms Sutherland, right?

A Yes, sir

Q But, of course, you don't know how many of these communications were at the direction of the First Lady to the First Lady's Chief of Staff, do you?

A No, sir

Q I'd like to show you another comparison, and that is Government's admitted Exhibit 571 All right, now, at the risk of asking you to do math again, the total here for Maureen McDonnell listed at the bottom, $19,000, that's more than ten times the dollar amount for Mary-Shea Sutherland of $1,690, right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now, I'd like to go to RM-0302 All right, sir, this is the chart for April 14th and 15th, 2011, right?

A Correct

Q And this is the two days immediately following the shopping trip, right?

A Yes, sir

Q But this chart here, this only shows communications between Mary-Shea Sutherland and Mr Williams, right?

A That's correct

Q This doesn't show any communications between Jonnie

Williams and Ms McDonnell, does it?

A No, sir

MR. FAULCONER: With the assistance of the Court Security Officer, I'd like to hand up a copy of what's been marked as Exhibit 834.

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q All right, now, sir, this is a series of pages from Mr Williams' phone records ranging from April 13th down to April 15th; is that right?

A I'm sure it is Yes, sir

MR. FAULCONER: We would offer Exhibit 834 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q Now, if we could flip to the, I apologize, the bottom of Page 3 If we could zoom in there for the jury, but if you could just look at, do you see where at 10:56 p.m., these are text messages actually, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Okay And at 10:56 p.m., at the end of the day on the 13th, that's a text from Ms McDonnell, the 9777 number to Mr Williams' 5828, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Now, if we go to the text immediately below that, skip one and go to 7:51 a.m. It is correct that this shows that there were three text messages from Mr Williams to Ms McDonnell at 7:51 a m. on the 14th, the next morning, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And then it is only after texting Ms McDonnell three times at 7:51 a m. that then it shows the text from Mr Williams to Mary-Shea Sutherland right below that to that 6837 number, right?

A That's right

Q All right Well, now, let's take a look at the phone calls from that same day I'd like to hand up a copy of 835

(Document proffered to witness)

All right, now, this is a series of pages from Mr Williams' records of calls from that same time frame, right?

A Yes, that's correct

Q And these are Mr Williams' records, if I didn't already say that?

A Yes, sir

MR FAULCONER: We would offer 835 into evidence, Your Honor

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q Now, the day we were just talking about was April 14th, 2011 What I would like to do is focus in on the third page of this document And look at the call that's at 3:15 p.m. Do you see that there?

A Yes, sir.

Q And this is April 14th, 2011, one of the dates from that chart we were just looking at And this shows that call from Mr Williams to Ms Sutherland at 3:15 p.m. for 17 seconds, right?

A 17 seconds, yes, sir

Q But it is true, sir, that when you look at the line immediately preceding it, again, Mr Williams is reaching out to Ms McDonnell immediately before that at 3:14 p.m., right?

A 3:14, right, the call, zero seconds on that call, yes, sir

Q All right We can take that one down. All right, so we have sort of started to go through these a little bit chronologically, but I'd like to now sort of move to the end and work our way back a little bit through some of them. I'd like to show you RM-0329, which is the second to last of yours Now here, you would agree with me that you are obviously aware that the interview with law enforcement of Ms McDonnell was on February 15th, 2013, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And you said you reviewed all of the prosecution's testimony That would include Donnie Williams' testimony that the invoice that he put together overstated -- understated the value of the work, right?

A Yes, sir.

Q And you are aware that there were no payments to Mr Donnie Williams before the interview with law enforcement, right?

A Right

Q And there is no text message in response to the "No, Jonnie's paying for it," say, "No really, here is my credit card number" or anything like that

A No, sir

Q At least nothing --

A Not at that time, no

Q All right Now, I'd like to talk about the stock charts that you discussed a little bit Starting with RM-0322 Now, to be clear, sir, I though that Special Agent Hulser's chart did not have MM purchases or MM sells on it, right?

A That's correct

Q Now, to be clear, the source that you are getting that from for this chart is that the statement says the account is in MM's name, right?

A In part, yes, sir

Q But, of course, you don't know what if any conversations occurred between Ms McDonnell and Mr McDonnell about any of these transactions

A No.

Q And you didn't look at any of his mail from statements that had come in from Davenport to determine whether or not he had read it or anything like that, right?

A No, sir

Q Now, I'd like to turn to RM-0324 And this is the chart with the stock prices on it, right?

A Correct

Q And I'd like to compare this side by side with Government Exhibit 606 And Page 3 of 606 All right, now, those four, I know it is a little hard to see, obviously, but those four texts and e-mails on the right in the government's exhibit, those would go in that blank space on the chart to the left, right, sort of in the middle?

A Yes, sir

Q Because basically, it is the same stock prices It is just showing transactions instead of the text messages

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now, if we could zoom in just on Government Exhibit 606 The text message, sorry, that's the lower righthand one on July 3rd, 2012 Now, that is a text message from Mr McDonnell to Mr. Williams on July 3rd, 2012, saying, "Stock looks good," right?

A Yes

Q If we could go to your chart, RM-0323, now, so the text message that we were just looking at, sir, that was July 3rd, 2012, right?

A That's correct

Q And that stock price here matches at $4 99 a share, right?

A Yes.

Q I think you said in response to Mr Hauss that on your review of the stock records, that was actually the highest price in those stock records for Star Scientific stock, right?

A Yes, sir, during that period

Q Based on your review of the text messages and the testimony, after that, it pretty much only went downward, not every day, but it never got back up to $4 99

A That's correct

Q There were no longer, after that day, any text messages from Mr McDonnell making comments about Mr Williams' stock, were there?

A No, sir Not that I know of

Q All right Now, I'd like to go to RM-0328 All right, now, this is the chart for March 1st to 11th of 2012, right?

A Yes, sir.

Q And I think, Mr Hauss asked you about calls between Mr McDonnell and Mr Williams, and you say on here that there were none between the cell phones, right?

A That's correct

Q But, of course, you don't know whether for any of these phone calls Ms McDonnell handed off the phone to Mr McDonnell to talk to Mr Williams

A No, sir, we don't have any content at all

Q Got it Now, I'd like to show you a paper copy of what's been marked as Government Exhibit 836

(Document proffered to witness)

And sir, this is a copy of Mr McDonnell's phone records from Verizon from March 1st, and then going forward until about March -- at least part of March 12th; is that right?

A Yes, sir

MR. FAULCONER: We would offer Exhibit 836 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q All right So what I would like to do, sir, here, is go through this and just see how many communications there were between Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell just on cell phones during this time period. Now, on that first page, there are five calls between March 1st and March 3rd between Mr McDonnell and that 9777 number, right?

A Five calls on the first page Let's see -- five on the first page, yes, sir

Q If you go forward to the fourth page, which has the Bates stamp 097 in the bottom, there is one at 8:05 p.m for four minutes; is that right? On 3-6?

A 3-6 -- oops, no. 3-6, 8:05 p.m. to the 9777 number

Q That's Ms McDonnell, right?

A For four minutes, yes, sir

Q You are aware that that's the date of the check that was written from Starwood Trust to MoBo Realty, right?

A March 6th, yes, sir

Q All right Now, going to Page 5 briefly, on Page 5, there's another four calls from March 7th to 9th with that 9777 number, right?

A Four Yes, sir

Q And then finally, on Page 6, there's another three calls on March 10th and 11th between Mr and Ms McDonnell; is that correct?

A Three calls to the 9777 number, yes, sir

Q Got it I'd like to now shift to Government Exhibit

594 And Page 2 of this one All right, now, I think the chart that you had went from March 1st to March 11th, right?

A Right. Yes, sir

Q Okay Now, it is true that on this chart, what you actually see is that the last communications here by text message are actually Mr McDonnell and Mr Williams, right, on March 11th?

A Yes, sir

Q And your chart was showing Mr Williams and Ms McDonnell, but these communications at least checked out with the records as best you know

A Yes, sir

Q Now, I'd like to show briefly Exhibit 595, which has been admitted. Sir, this is the following day, right?

A Correct

Q And this shows several phone calls between Mr Williams and Mr McDonnell, right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now, I'd like to go to RM, one of your other charts, RM-0327 Now, sir, I think that if I heard Mr Hauss correctly, I think he said something on this chart about Mr Eige's testimony about shutting something down. Do you recall that on direct examination?

A Yes, sir

Q But to be clear, sir, this chart doesn't include any e-mails, does it?
A No, it does not.
Q So I'd like to show you, and the dates here are February 8th and 9th, right?
A Right
Q All right I'd like to show you admitted Government Exhibit 312 Zoom in on the top portion. Now, that's February 9th, 2012, right?
A Yes, it is.
Q And that's actually three minutes after the call on that chart from February 9th ended, right?
A Yes, sir
Q And if we could go to Exhibit 314 This is another e-mail from Ms McDonnell to Mr Eige, right?
A Yes, it is
Q And this is the following day on February 10th, 2012
A February 10th, yes, sir
Q And then I'd like to go to Exhibit 320, which has been admitted. On that subsequent one, that's Mr McDonnell to Mr Eige, right? Sorry, the second lower one
A Yes, sir
Q That's on February 17th, 2012?
A That's correct

Q And so I know the chart that you showed was focused mostly on calls and text messages, but you would agree these are at least three e-mails with Mr Eige and either Mr or Ms McDonnell after the dates on the chart we looked at.

A Yes, sir.

Q Now I'd like to go to RM-0326 Now, this is the chart for January 19th to 20th of 2012, right?

A That's right

Q And just if we could, I'd like to do a side-by-side comparison with Government Exhibit 586 Now, sir, was there any particular reason why you didn't include the lunch on Mr. McDonnell's schedule at the Executive Mansion from 12 to 12:45 there?

A There was no particular reason that it would not be included. As I tried to point out when we introduced the charts there, there are certain calls designed to add context to the other -- to the situation. But there was no particular reason why it wouldn't have been added, no, sir

Q Got it But based on your review of the records, I see that on the chart on the left it shows 1:36 to 1:40 from Mr Williams to Ms McDonnell, and then it goes straight to 1:42 between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams But you would agree that the chart that Special Agent

Hulser entered that shows essentially back-to-back calls to Mr McDonnell and then his Travel Aide, the chart that Special Agent Hulser introduced, it wasn't inaccurate based on your review of the records, was it?

A No, sir.

Q So you are just putting only Ms McDonnell communications on the left, but the ones for Mr McDonnell, those are still accurate on the right

A Just adding context, yes, sir

Q I guess in this case it is subtracting context, right?

A Well, adding context to what was in there, yes, sir

Q All right I guess the added one is the 9:16 p.m. text at least for the 19th, right?

A Correct

Q Well, let's go to that January 20th portion and let's add some context to this one I'd like to hand up 837, what's been marked. Now, sir, you would agree with me that these are text records for Mr Williams covering January 20th, 2012, the second date on that chart we just looked at, right?

A Yes, sir It goes through the 22nd, right January 20th to 22nd

Q Got it

MR FAULCONER: We would offer Exhibit 837 into evidence.

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q Now, looking at this record, at 9:26 and 9:27 a.m., do you see there the call or text messages, sorry, from Mr Williams to a number ending in 9367?

A Yes, sir

Q You are aware, sir, that this is, the number ending in 9367, that's the number for Mr McDonnell's Travel Aide, right?

A I believe so, yes

MR. FAULCONER: And Your Honor, the parties have stipulated to that number

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q Now, that shows two text messages at 9:26 a.m., right?

A Right

Q And then it looks like there is another one back from the Travel Aide to a third text message from the Travel Aide to Mr Williams at 9:27 a.m., right?

A Yes, sir

Q And then if we go to Page 2 at the bottom, do you see there where at 10:17 p.m. there is a text back from Mr Williams to Mr McDonnell's Travel Aide?

A Yes, sir

Q And then three more from the Travel Aide back to Mr Williams at 10:18 p.m.

A That's correct

Q And so that's, I think we had three on the first page, four on that page, so we are up to seven. Let's go to Page 3 And then you would agree that from 10:19 to 10:27 p.m., there are another seven messages between Mr Williams and Mr McDonnell's Travel Aide, correct?

A Seven. Yes, sir

Q So that's a total of 14 texts in that day If we could go back briefly to RM-0326 That's double the number of text messages between Mr Williams and Ms McDonnell on that day, right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right And you are also aware of the testimony at trial that that was the day of the Mitt Romney -- a trip for Mitt Romney down to South Carolina, right?

A Yes, sir

Q So now I'd like to bring up the timeline that you showed towards the end of your direct testimony And this is RM-0330 Now, to be clear, sir, we went over, I think, three e-mails from February of 2012 They are not on this timeline, right, the e-mails to Mr Eige from Ms McDonnell?

A No, sir, they are not

Q And you would agree that this chart doesn't include or timeline doesn't include any reference to loan negotiations with Mr McDonnell in that January to March time frame, right?

A No, sir

Q And I see that you have, you know, some events later in 2012, but you are aware of the testimony about a March 21st, 2012 Cabinet meeting involving Mr McDonnell, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And that would go in between these two loans if it was on this timeline, right?

A If it was on that timeline, yes, sir

Q Okay And you have a second loan here to MoBo, and again, all that you have seen is a check to MoBo, right? And whether it is a loan to MoBo, you are just deciding which testimony to rely on there, right?

A That's correct

Q Now, that date of May 22nd, 2012, I'd like to bring up Government Exhibit 391 And sir, this is dated May 30th, 2012 You are aware of Dr Vetrovec's testimony about still considering doing studies at VCU as late as this date, right?

A Yes, sir

Q I'd now like to bring up, still staying in 2012, but moving forward on the timeline to RM-1542 If we could zoom in on that text message Now, sir, this text message is from Mr Williams to Mr McDonnell, right?

A That's correct

Q And it references clinical trials in one sentence and cash in the next

A Yes, sir

Q And this is not on that timeline we were just looking at, right?

A No It is not

Q And then finally, I'd like to go to, for the timeline, I'd like to go to Government Exhibit 402, which has been admitted. And sir, you are familiar with Dr Clore, right? He is one of the doctors from VCU?

A Yes, sir

Q He testified about this letter, still considering doing studies as late as August of 2012, right?

A Correct

Q And going back to the timeline, RM-0330 briefly, and sir, this ends in February and March of 2013, right?

A Right Yes, sir

Q And that's about the time that the law enforcement interview happened, right?

A That's correct

Q All right Now, I'd like to now work our way back through some of the 2011 charts that I sort of zoomed past before I'd like to start with RM-0321 All right, now, this is that chart of December 4th, 2011, which I think we have heard this mentioned a number of times in trial I think you clarified at the end of your direct testimony that this is actually one call and 52 texts, right?

A That's correct

Q So "calls" really shouldn't be plural there, right?

A No, sir, you are correct

Q Okay Now, I'd like to just make sure that we understand Mr Williams' communications on this day I'd like to hand up to you what's been marked for identification as Government Exhibit 838 and 839 All right, now, sir, 838, that is Mr Williams' phone records for December 4th of 2011, right? At least, sorry, it covers from December 4th and then goes forward, has a little bit of the 5th, but it is mostly just the 4th

A My copy has December 3rd to the 5th

Q Part of the 3rd, all of the 4th, and part of the 5th?

A Yes, sir

MR. FAULCONER: We would offer Exhibit 838 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q Now, that single call that we were talking about, that is at 5:41 p.m. on the third page; is that right?

A Yes, sir

Q And the elapsed time of that is 0 seconds? I'm sorry, there is actually a second one of five seconds two lines down; is that right?

A Right Yes, sir, five seconds

Q All right So looking at that, what I would now like to do is have you take a look at Government Exhibit 839 And that's essentially the same time frame of Mr Williams' text messages, right? 839

A Yes, sir.

MR FAULCONER: We would offer Exhibit 839 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q Now, sir, you said 52 texts with Ms McDonnell this day I'd like to turn your attention to Page 2 Take a look at 7:35 p.m. on December 4th, that same day You would agree with me that at 7:35 p.m. there is a text from Mr Williams to Mr McDonnell on that same day, right? His number, one of his numbers is the 0714 number?

A Yes, sir

Q And then if you go to Page 4 of this document at 8:38 p.m., you would agree with me that there, there is another text message from Mr Williams to Mr McDonnell on that day Sorry, at 8:38 p.m.

A Thank you 8:38 Yes, sir, 5828 Yes, sir

Q Now, keeping that time in mind, 8:38 p.m. on December 4th, and going back to your RM-0321, you would agree with me that that text message from Mr. Williams to Mr McDonnell was later than the last communication between Ms. McDonnell and Mr Williams, right?

A The 8:38 p.m., yes, sir

Q Okay Now, I'd like to try to maybe give a little bit of context of what might have been going on on this particular day. Now, I'd like to show you what's been previously admitted as RM-0178-0795 Then I think page 0195 Sorry, RM-0178-0195 And it figures that I got the date wrong 0795, sorry RM-0178-0795. There we go All right, now, you agree with me that this is Mr McDonnell's schedule for December 4th of 2011, right?

A Can they enhance my copy of it a little bit, make it a little bit larger? Thank you Yes, sir

Q If we could scroll down there If we could go to the next page We may have to do this a slightly different way There is nothing actually shown on the prior page on December 4th, 2011 in the evening, right?

A After the six p.m. entry? No, nothing after the six p.m. entry

Q I think I'm getting my days mixed up But this shows that at six p m. for Mr McDonnell on December 4th, this is the day of those text messages, that he departs for the Executive Mansion, at least is scheduled to, at six p.m., right?

A Yes, sir

Q Now, I'd like to show you Government Exhibit 840, marked for identification. Now, sir, this is an e-mail from Ms McDonnell to Mr Williams and Celeste Williams, right?

A Yes, sir

MR FAULCONER: We would offer Exhibit 840 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q Now, sir, at 5:37 p.m. on December 4th, 2011, that's the date of this e-mail, right?

A Yes, it is

Q And the subject says, "You are cordially invited to an evening reception with Governor Mitt Romney," right?

A That's correct

Q If we scroll down, it shows that the date of that reception is December 8th, 2011, right?

A That's right

Q So now I'd like to go to Government Exhibit 841, marked for identification. All right, now, you are familiar with all the testimony about Katherine Harris sending out schedules on a regular basis, right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right And this is an e-mail sending out a schedule for December 8th of 2011?

A Yes, sir, it is

MR FAULCONER: We would offer Exhibit 841 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q If we could go to the bottom of Page 3, this shows on December 8th, 2011 that Mr McDonnell is scheduled to depart for the Marriott at 7:35, or 7:20 to 7:35, and then attend the Romney event that night in Richmond, right?

A That's right

Q And it shows Mr Zubowsky traveling with him?

A Yes, sir

Q All right I'd like to hand up what's been marked for identification as Government Exhibit 842

(Document proffered to witness)

Now, sir, these are Mr Williams' calls covering December 8th of 2011, right?

A Yes, sir, 7th through the 9th.

Q Now, looking at this --

MR. FAULCONER: Your Honor, we would offer Exhibit 842 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q Now, sir, going to Page 4, which is 1:22 p.m., focusing in on the call that's right before the little space in the record there, sorry, the one a little bit further down at 1:22 --

A Yes, sir

Q -- that's a call from Mr Williams to Mr McDonnell's Travel Aide on December 8th, 2011 at 1:22 p.m., right?

A That's correct

Q And the duration of that call is two minutes and 44 seconds?

A That's right

Q Now, and that's the same day as the Romney, the scheduled Romney event, at least as it was referenced in that e-mail, right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now I'd like to go to another one of the charts, RM-0320 All right, now, this is September 5th, 2011, right, sir?

A That's right

Q Essentially, what this chart is trying to show is that this e-mail is sent, and then later on in the day, there's five text messages between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams, right?

A That's what it shows, yes, sir

Q Now, of course, sir, you don't know from anything that you have reviewed when Ms McDonnell actually received that e-mail, right?

A No No, I don't.

Q You don't in fact even know if she read it, do you?

A No, sir, I don't

Q But what you know is what the phone records say

A That's correct.

Q And to be clear, sir, I'd like to show you Government Exhibit 843, a paper copy And also a copy of Government's 844, one page for each.

(Documents proffered to witness)

All right, sir, Government Exhibit 843, that's Ms McDonnell's phone records covering from part of September 2nd down to September 8th; is that right?

A That's right

MR FAULCONER: Your Honor, we would offer Government Exhibit 843 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q Now, sir, focusing in first on September 5th, 2011, the date of that e-mail, it is true that there are no phone calls between Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell on that specific date, right?

A September 5th?

Q Correct

A Yes, sir That's true

Q There are none with Mr McDonnell's cell phone on that date

A Correct

Q Now, but you are aware, of course, that at 5:14 and 5:19 p.m., that number, 7779, that's Sarah Scarbrough, right?

A I'll --

MR FAULCONER: The parties have stipulated to that, Your Honor

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q And then the 2717 and 2323 phone numbers, those are two of the McDonnells' children. Does that seem somewhat familiar to you?

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now, I'd like to, though, not just focus on September 5th, and actually look at the very next day as well Now, looking at September 6th, it is true that at 11:33 a.m. the following day, there's a two-minute call between Ms McDonnell and Mr McDonnell, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And then at 12:10 p.m. there's what looks like an unavailable call It is sort of a little blacked out, right?

A That's correct

Q And then down at 6:11 p.m. on the 6th, there's another call to Mr. McDonnell's -- with Mr McDonnell's cell phone?

A Yes, sir

Q And then an unavailable call at 6:49, right?

A Right

Q And then at 10:51 a.m. the following day, September 7th, there is a call to 0714, Mr McDonnell, right?

A Right

Q A couple lines down, 12:20 p.m. there is a call to Mr McDonnell for three minutes shown there, right?

A Right

Q All right Now, I'd like to point your attention to Government Exhibit 844 And this is the -- these are the records for Mr McDonnell's 0714 number on that day, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Or that time frame, I'm sorry

MR FAULCONER: We would offer Government Exhibit 844 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR. FAULCONER:

Q Again, focusing on this one with Mr McDonnell, again, to be fair, there are no calls on September 5th, 2011, with Ms McDonnell, right?

A Yes, sir

Q But then there is a call at 12:09 p.m. to Ms McDonnell's number; is that right?

A Yes, sir

Q And that's within one minute of the similar three-minute call that shows up as unavailable on her records, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And then going down further, there is another call at 6:49 p.m. to Ms McDonnell for one minute?

A Yes, sir

Q And that matches up to that unavailable call on her records for the same time.

A That's correct

Q Then going down further at 11:21 a m., there is another call to Ms McDonnell?

A Yes, sir

Q And that's a three-minute call that matches up with an unavailable call on her records, right? Sorry, four-minute call

A Four minutes at 11:21, yes, sir

Q Then at 12:21 again there is another call to

Ms McDonnell's cell phone?

A Yes, sir

Q Sorry, an incoming call at 12:21, right?

A Yes, sir, a three-minute call

Q And then at the bottom of the page, 6:08 p.m., there is another outgoing call to her cell phone, right?

A One-minute call, yes, sir

Q All right Now, sir, I think the last date we were looking at there was September 7th of 2011 I'd like to briefly bring up Government Exhibit 7 You are aware of the testimony about this picture being taken at the Commonwealth Club on September 7th of 2011, right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right So let's continue to go back into August of 2011 I'd like to show you Government Exhibit 0314 RM-0314 All right, now, this was one of a number of charts that you had or that you showed us that lists communications between Mary-Shea Sutherland and Ms McDonnell in August of 2011, right? At least there were five or six or seven or somewhere in that range

A Right Ms McDonnell and Jonnie Williams, yes

Q Between Ms Sutherland, Jonnie Williams, and then some involving Ms McDonnell

A Yes, sir

Q Now, you have this e-mail here at 2:55 p.m., right?

A Right

Q But I'd like to do a side-by-side compare with Government Exhibit 584 And sir, you are aware that on 8-16 at 2:47 p.m., there was a call from Ms McDonnell to Mr McDonnell's cell phone, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Okay And that then led to, or at least it was immediately preceding the 2:50 p.m. e-mail from Mr Zubowsky to Mary-Shea Sutherland, right?

A That's correct

Q And that e-mail there, Government Exhibit 207, is actually the e-mail that immediately precedes Government Exhibit 208 over on the left, right? At least five minutes before

A Yes, sir

Q And it is the same e-mail chain, right?

A I believe it is, yes

Q All right Now, I'd like to hand up to you what's been marked for identification as Government Exhibit 845

(Document proffered to witness)

All right, this is a series of Ms McDonnell's phone records going from August 13th of 2011 through to September 2nd of 2011, right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now, the chart we were just looking at --

MR. FAULCONER: Your Honor, I would like to offer Government Exhibit 845 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FAULCONER:

Q Now, sir, this first page includes portions of August 15th and 16th, the dates we were just looking at, right?

A Yes, it does

Q All right Now, on this chart or on this, sorry, phone record, we talked earlier, I think, about 8927 being one of Mary-Shea Sutherland's phone numbers, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And I'm correct that on August 15th, there's two calls there at 8:58 and 9:14 a.m. with Ms Sutherland and Ms McDonnell, right?

A I'm sorry, I missed the times

Q Sorry 8:58 and 9:14 a.m.

A Yes, sir

Q All right And then if you keep going down, there's another one at 3:15 p m., right, on the 15th?

A Yes, sir, that's correct

Q And then another one at 6:23 p m. for 12 minutes on the 15th?

A 12 minutes, yes, sir

Q And that immediately -- not immediately precedes, but the next call down a couple hours later at 9 p.m. is a call at 9 p.m. Is that correct, sir?

A 9 p.m., yes, sir

Q And then continuing down, there's two more calls on the 16th at 10:28 and 10:42 a.m. from Ms. McDonnell to Ms. Sutherland, right?

A That's right

Q And then it looks like there is a call to Mr Williams at 11:05 a.m., and then the next after that is that 2:47 p.m. call that was on Special Agent Hulser's chart to Mr McDonnell, right?

A That's right

Q And then I think the e-mails we looked at were 2:50 and 2:55 After that, there's a 3:09 and 3:11 p.m., calls with Ms McDonnell and Mary-Shea Sutherland, right?

A That's right

Q Okay Now I'd like to go to Government Exhibit -- sorry, RM-0313

THE COURT: Why don't we -- it has been an hour and a half I don't like to go past that We will take the break. I was, again, trying to wait him out It is not going to work. We will take our 15 minutes and come on back.

(Recess taken from 3:43 p m until 4:01 p m.)

(The jury entered the courtroom)

THE COURT: All right Government

MR. FALCONER: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MR. FALCONER:

Q All right, Mr Ross I'd like to pick back up with Government's Exhibit 203.

MR FALCONER: And if we could go to the second page

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Now, that portion that's highlighted there on August 14th of 2011, that's the -- the Rolex purchase that's been testified about a little bit, right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right And I think you had a chart, and I think there -- sorry It says August 14th transaction date August 16th posting date, right?

A That's right

Q But, of course, this bill doesn't tell you what day Mr Williams walked into the store, right?

A No, sir

Q And it doesn't tell you what day he picked up an engraved watch, right? Or whether it all happened on one day or two different days, right?

A The statement itself does not No, sir

Q Got it This just tells you the transaction date on the credit card and the posting date, right?

A It tells that that's the date that the jeweler charged for the -- for the watch

Q All right Now, I think, if I recall correctly, one of your charts had that there were no calls between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams on August 14th, the date of the transaction date, right?

A That's right

Q All right Now, I'd like to direct your attention to the exhibit that I think should still be in front of you, which is 845 And this is --

MR FALCONER: We can pull it up on the screen as well

BY MR FALCONER:

Q This is Ms McDonnell's phone records covering that general time frame; is that right?

A Yes, sir

Q Now, if you could go with me on August 16th

MR FALCONER: Scroll down a little bit

BY MR FALCONER:

Q And you'd agree with me that on August 16th of 2011, two days after the purchase date, there's a call with Mr Williams at 9:51 a m ; is that correct?

A August 16th Yes, sir

Q And that is a 15-minute call on that day, right?

A That's right

Q And then later on that day at 10:12 a m there's another 13-minute call with Mr Williams?

A That's right.

Q And then a six-minute call at 11:05 a m with Mr. Williams?

A Yes, sir

Q Okay And, of course, as you said, there's no content So you don't know the content of that conversation?

A Correct

Q Now I'd like to go to RM-0312, which is the chart for August 11th and 12th of 2011 -- or sorry August 11th to 13th All right Now, the e-mail that you have here for August 12th, that shows 10:09 a m , right?

A That's right

Q And then I think the day -- you have some communications there, texts leading up to that with Mary-Shea Sutherland, right?

A Right

Q All right Now, I'd like to hand up Government's Exhibit 846 And actually -- sorry Thank you

A Thank you

Q All right Now, these are Ms McDonnell's -- part of her phone records again And at least the first page covers August 11th and 12th, right?

A Actually, it goes to the 13th Yes, sir

Q Got it One call on the 13th

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Exhibit 846 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, the e-mail that we had -- sorry

All right Now, there was a text on the chart that we were just looking at just a second ago from Mary-Shea Sutherland to Jonnie Williams at 10:08 a m on August 11th And I'd like you to focus in on August 11th at 10:01 a m Do you see there a call between Ms McDonnell -- an incoming call from Mr Williams at 10:01 a m ?

A Yes, sir

Q And so that's -- and that's a 13-minute call, right?

A That's correct

Q And so that actually spans the time frame of the text from Mary-Shea Sutherland to Mr Williams, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And then after that, there's another call at 10:27 a m for a minute?

A That's right

Q And, again, sir, this is three days before the transaction date for that jewelry purchase, right?

A Three days Yes, sir

Q And then I think we also saw an e-mail on the chart at 10:09 a m from Mary-Shea Sutherland on the 12th about the lunch at the Mansion But to be clear, on 8/12, August 12th, that same day, at 12:18 p m -- or sorry, 8/12 at 11:34 a m , there's a call to Mr McDonnell on that day from Ms McDonnell, right? 0714?

A Right Yes, sir, there is Three-minute call.

Q And then later on that day, 12:18 p m , there's another call with Mr McDonnell, right?

A 12:18 Another three-minute call Yes, sir

Q And then if you go down to 12:30 p m , there's actually a three-minute call to the Travel Aide again? 9637?

A Yes, sir

Q All right Well, now I'd like to go to another one of your charts

MR FALCONER: This is RM-0311 Sorry I think it will be -- or sorry 19 All right

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Now, sir, this is the chart showing some communications on August 1st of 2011, right?

A Correct

Q And just real quick, I'd like to do a compare with Government's Exhibit 582 All right Now, sir, I'm correct in saying that the communications that you show with Mary-Shea Sutherland here on the left, those are not on the chart on the right, right?

A That's -- that's right

Q Okay But, likewise, there are communications involving Mr McDonnell, his cell phone, on the right that are not on the chart on the left, right?

A That's also right Yes

Q All right But to be clear, in review of Special Agent Hulser's testimony in these charts, you didn't find any inaccuracies in the communications involving Mr McDonnell that are in the chart on the right, did you?

A No, sir None

Q All right So now I'd like to go to RM-0310 And, sir, this is the chart for July 28th of 2011; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q And this shows a number of communications with Mary-Shea Sutherland and a few involving Ms McDonnell, right?

A That's right

Q All right Now, I think I heard correctly that you said that this 1:20 p m call, that's from Maureen

McDonnell's office, right?

A That's right

Q And I think you said you don't know who actually placed that call, but what you do know is that it's her office number, right?

A That's right

Q And you're also aware, from Special Agent Hulser's redirect testimony and the records in this case, that Ms McDonnell, her phone records show her being in Richmond, Virginia, until at least as late as 6:02 p m that day, right?

A That -- that sounds right. Yes, sir

Q And you're also aware from testimony that the Mansion logs, I think you have here at 8:50 a m , that Mary-Shea Sutherland arrives at the Mansion, right?

A Right

Q But, of course, you're aware that Ms McDonnell lives there -- or lived there, so she wouldn't sign in to a Mansion log, right?

A That's right, also

Q So you wouldn't have any way to necessarily be able to tell was she in the office that day or not?

A No, sir

Q All right Well, now I'd like to go to RM-0309 And, sir, this is the chart for July 25th and 26th of 2011, right?

A That's right

Q And I think there was some conversation about -- there's phone calls down there between Jonnie Williams and Mary-Shea Sutherland, right?

A Right

Q I'd like to hand up to you what's been marked as Government's Exhibit 847

MR FALCONER: Thank you, sir

A Thank you

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, these are Ms McDonnell's phone records that go from July 20th to, the second page, July 29th, right?

A That's right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 847 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, the chart we were just looking at had calls between Mary-Shea Sutherland and Mr Williams What I'd like to look at on this one is calls between Ms McDonnell and Mary-Shea Sutherland on those same days

Now, on July 25th, towards the bottom there, you'd agree with me that there are three calls between 12:12 p.m and 3:10 p m between Ms McDonnell and Mary-Shea Sutherland, right?

A Three Yes, sir

Q One of those is five minutes, the first one at 12:12 p m.?

A Five minutes, two minutes, and one minute

Q Got it And then if you look at July 26th, that same page, a little bit lower down, there's another one-minute call with Mary-Shea Sutherland on July 26th?

A Yes, sir

Q And then if you go to the second page, again, later on on July 26th, 6:47 and 6:58 p m , am I correct that there's --

MR FALCONER: Or sorry On to the second page I apologize. Zooming in at top there

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Am I correct that there are two calls at 6:47 and 6:58 p m with Mary-Shea Sutherland?

A That's right

Q And those are a total of ten minutes on those two calls, right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right Now, July 25th and July 26th, I'd like to now hand you up Government's Exhibit 848

A Thank you

Q All right Now, sir, these are Mr McDonnell's phone records for July 20th to 28th of 2011, right?

A That's right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 848 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, if we could go look towards the bottom on July 25th, and you'd agree with me that at 12:06 p m there's a three-minute call from Mr McDonnell to Mary-Shea Sutherland's 6837 phone number; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q And then on July 26th, on the next page, there is a nine-minute call at 11:11 a m with Ms McDonnell; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q All right Now, I'd like to go to -- I think it is RM-0308

MR FALCONER: Actually, go forward one to -- whoops Sorry

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, this refers to -- this is the one we were just looking at, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Just a little bit ago And this refers to a trip on July 23rd of 2011, right?

A That's right

Q And as I think we looked at the flight info, it shows that it was Mary-Shea Sutherland and not Ms McDonnell on that flight, right?

A That's right

Q But what I'd like to do is briefly go to one of the exhibits that Mr Hauss showed you and a portion of the e-mail that we didn't really focus on, which is RM-1990-0002

MR FALCONER: You don't have it

Can we switch over to the defense system briefly? Thank you It's RM-1990-2

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, I think we looked at --

MR FALCONER: And if we could zoom in on that bottom e-mail Thank you

BY MR FALCONER:

Q I think we looked at the next page But this page here is from -- is from Mary-Shea Sutherland to Jerri Fulkerson, right?

A That's right

Q And this says, "All of that information from the Gibson event" -- you're aware the Gibson event is the July 23rd event, right?

A Yes, sir

Q What Mary-Shea Sutherland says here is, "Jonnie had me share with the First Lady and she never gave it back She isn't here today," right?

A That's right

Q So now I'd like to move to May of 2011 And May is the last month I think we're going to talk about, sir

I'd like to first start by asking -- now, I think you had a couple of charts from May of 2011; is that right?

A I believe so Yes, sir

Q And you're obviously aware that May of 2011, that's the time frame where the $50,000 and $15,000, the first two checks came over from Mr. Williams for the wedding and then a loan of $50,000?

A Yes, sir

Q And that's also the same month as the first golf trip out to Kinloch?

A Correct

Q All right Well, now I'd like to start with RM-0307 Your chart for May 25th of 2011

MR FALCONER: Oh, sorry Back to the government system Sorry, Ms Hancock

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, this is the chart that you have -- that we saw for May 25th, 2011, showing these text message communications between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams, right?

A Right

Q Now, just to provide a little bit more context for some of the timing, I see there that Ms McDonnell's first text messages are pretty early in the morning, right? 6 -- at least the latter half, there's 6:44, 7:06 a m , right?

A Yes, sir

Q Now, I'd like to show you what's been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 849

MR FALCONER: And I think we may be able to just do this one on the screen

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Sir, this is an e-mail sending out Mr McDonnell's schedule for May 24th of 2011, right?

A Right Yes, sir

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Exhibit 849 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

MR FALCONER: All right Now, if we could turn to the -- I think it's the fourth page of this document

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Sir, that shows that at the end of the day on

May 24th, 2011, Mr McDonnell is scheduled to be at the Executive Mansion; is that correct?

A After 10:05 p m , yes, sir

Q So now I'd like to go to Government's Exhibit 850 And this is the schedule, the e-mail with the schedule for May 25th, 2011

MR FALCONER: Did I admit the prior one?

MR DRY: I don't think you did

MR FALCONER: Sorry, Your Honor I apologize I'd move to admit Government's Exhibit 849, the May 24th schedule

THE COURT: It's admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, I'd like to -- this one, 850, this is May 25th of 2011, right?

A That's right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 850 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, this is the date of those text messages that we were looking at on that chart, right? May 25th?

A 25th Right Yes, sir

Q Right And this shows that --

MR FALCONER: If we could scroll down just a little bit

BY MR FALCONER:

Q That morning, Ms McDonnell and Mr McDonnell are scheduled to depart pretty early, at 7:55 a m ; is that right?

A Yes, sir That's right

Q All right And now I'd like to -- I think your -- the chart that we saw was May 25th of 2011 I'd like to go to RM-0306 Now, sir, you're aware on May 23rd, 2011, this is the date that Mr. Williams testified that he delivered that check, right?

A That's right

Q Or at least --

A Checks

Q I guess it was two checks?

A Yes

MR FALCONER: Now, if we could compare this side by side with Government's Exhibit 8 -- sorry, Government's Exhibit 576

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, again, I guess the chart for May 23rd, 2011 there, it says no meetings scheduled between RFM and JRW, the one on the left that we talked about on your direct examination, right?

A That's right

Q Now, to be clear, that means no meetings scheduled You don't necessarily have any independent knowledge one way or another whether a meeting occurred, right?

A That's right

Q But the records over here to the right from Special Agent Hulser's testimony, the phone records showing Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell traveling together pretty much the rest of that day after 1:30 p m , you don't have any reason to -- you didn't find any inaccuracies in Agent Hulser's testimony, did you?

A No

Q All right So now I'd like to talk a little bit about RM-0305 All right Now, this is a chart describing communications and some Outlook events on May 11th and 12th of 2011, right?

A That's right

Q And there's a number of references here to -- or at least one reference here on the Outlook event to HDL, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And you're aware that HDL is something called -- from the testimony, from Health Diagnostics Laboratory, correct?

A Yes

Q And essentially what this chart is saying is Mary-Shea Sutherland have this event at HDL, and Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell, they're in China on a marketing mission, right?

A Right

Q Well, I'd like to put a little bit more context around this HDL visit And what I'd like to do is first show you Government's Exhibit 859 All right Now, sir, this is an e-mail exchange between Ms McDonnell and Mary-Shea Sutherland on May 16th of 2011, right?

A Yes That's right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 859 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, the bottom e-mail from Ms McDonnell to Mary-Shea Sutherland on May 16th, 2011, she actually says at the bottom of that e-mail, the very last line before the little signature portion, says, "How was Jonnie's meeting with HDL last week," right?

A That's right

Q All right So now what I'd like to do is hand up to you a copy of Government's Exhibit 860

A Thank you

Q All right Now, sir, these are Mr Williams' phone records for May 16th and 17th and a little bit on the 18th of 2011, right?

A Yes, sir

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 860 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, if we could go to May 17th of 2011, and if we could go on to the -- I apologize

MR FALCONER: You know what, Your Honor I'm going to move on to a different point and ask my co-counsel to help me out with this

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, we've been talking about this HDL event

MR FALCONER: I'd like to briefly bring up Government's Exhibit 855

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, this is a version of -- or it's the same document that was previously entered on direct examination for the May 11th, 2011, calendar event, right?

A That's right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, if we could publish this to the jury It's already been admitted as defense exhibit, I believe, RM-0350

THE COURT: All right

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Now, this is the calendar event for May 11th 2011 for meet Jonnie at Mansion, right?

A That's right

Q But, sir, I'd like to show you Government's Exhibit 856 Now, I think Mr Hauss might have shown you one of these types of documents, but you're familiar with these metadata pulls from those Outlook events, right?

A Yes, sir

Q And this is one that matches the "meet Jonnie at Mansion" that we were just looking at, right?

A Right Yes, sir

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 856 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, the time at the bottom here that this meeting was sent and delivered is May 6th of 2011 at 4:43 p m ; is that correct?

A That's right

Q So that's about five days before the event itself occurs?

A Yes, sir

Q All right

MR FALCONER: Now I'd like to go to Government's Exhibit 857, which has been previously admitted as RM-0349 I'd ask that we could publish that to the jury

THE COURT: All right.

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, this is the Jonnie at HDL Outlook event that's the next half hour, right?

A That's right

Q And so what I'd like to now do is show you Government's Exhibit 858 And this is an Outlook metadata pull for that Outlook entry that we were just looking at, right?

A Right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 858

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Now, sir, this one shows, sort of like the other one, that the Outlook event is set on May 6th of 2011 at 2:59 p m , right?

A That's right

Q And, again, that's five days before the actual event itself Am I correct about that?

A That's correct

Q All right Now, briefly, I'd like to go back to Government's Exhibit 860 And that's the phone chart that's there in front of you. And these are Ms McDonnell's records -- or sorry, Mr Williams' records for May 17th And that's the day after that e-mail that we looked at from Ms McDonnell asking Ms Sutherland how the visit went Are you aware of that?

A Yes, sir

MR FALCONER: Now, if you could go to Page 3 of this document

BY MR FALCONER:

Q And on May 17th, the next day, of 2011 at 3:55 p m , do you see there a call from -- a phone number ending in 3391 to 5828?

A Yes, I do

Q And you're aware that the parties have stipulated that the number ending in 3391 is Ms McDonnell's office number It's the same one as that one other chart we talked about?

A Yes, sir

Q All right And so this shows a 41 minute and 11 second call from Ms McDonnell's office to Mr Williams on May 17th of 2011; is that right?

A That's right

Q All right

MR FALCONER: So now I'd like to -- now I'd like to go to RM-0178-0594 All right And if we could zoom in on the scheduled portion of that.

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Now, this is May 17th, 2011, Mr McDonnell's schedule, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Now, this looks like, according to the "from May 6th" that we have there for Asia Marketing Mission, this looks like the day that the schedule says Mr McDonnell was scheduled to get back, right? And at least it says "Asia Marketing Mission," and then to the far right, it has 1:15 p m , right?

A Yes, sir

Q All right

MR FALCONER: Now, if we could scroll down

BY MR FALCONER:

Q This shows a do not schedule, or DNS, Executive Mansion basically the rest of that day on Mr McDonnell's schedule, right?

A That's right

Q All right Now, what I'd like to now do is go a little bit further back, and I think we talked about those Outlook calendar entries being set on May 6th of 2011 Do you recall that?

A Yes

Q All right So now what I'd like to do is show Ms McDonnell's calendar, which is Government's Exhibit 83, Page 5 And this is her calendar for May of 2011, right?

A Yes, sir.

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 83, Page 5, into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

MR FALCONER: Now, if we could zoom in on the 5th and 6th of May, up there at the top

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Do you see there where it has events on Ms McDonnell's schedule for May 6th of 2011? It says appointment at Entourage, wedding stuff with Cailin There's some appointments there, right?

A Okay I couldn't see the 6 There it is Yes, sir, I do

Q And you're aware that Ms McDonnell didn't actually go on that Asia trip until later in that month, right? A couple of days later?

A I don't recall the exact date Yes, sir

Q But if we could zoom -- at least look at down below, it shows the Asia Marketing Mission there on the 12th, right?

MR FALCONER: If we could zoom out, Ms Taylor Sorry

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Do you see that if we go to the 8th and 9th --

MR FALCONER: Scroll over to the left

BY MR FALCONER:

Q That shows the Asia Marketing Mission starting there on her calendar on or about the 8th and 9th, right? The flights, and then the references to Shanghai there?

A Right Depart 5/8/2011 Yes, sir

Q All right

MR FALCONER: Now if we could go back up to May 5th

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Now, the calendar entries were set for that meeting at HDL on May 6th Can you tell us what's shown here on Ms McDonnell's calendar for 12 p m on May 5th?

A May 5th That's 12 p m It says, "Health Diagnostic Labs "

Q All right Now, I'd like to hand up to you a copy of what's been marked as Exhibit 853

MR FALCONER: Thank you, sir Just that one for now

A Thank you

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, that is Ms McDonnell's phone records going from May 2nd to approximately May 22nd, right?

A That's right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 853 into evidence.

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, if we could look at May 6th of 2011 Down towards the bottom of this one. And, sir, you would agree with me that there are two calls -- or three calls there between 8:41 and 9:09 a m between Ms McDonnell and Mary-Shea Sutherland, that 8927 number, right?

A That's right.

Q And then another one at 9:28 a m ?

A That's right

Q And then if we go to the next page, there are two more calls to Ms Sutherland at 9:45 and 10:15 a m , correct?

A That's correct

Q And then there's another one on May 6th at 2:32 p m ?

A Yes

Q And 3:23 p m ?

A That's right

Q And then 3:35 and 3:52 p m ?

A Yes That's right

Q Now, before those two, Mr Williams, his phone number comes up here at 3:31 p m ; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q And then later on that day at 4:23 and then 4:33, 4:38, there are more calls with Mr Williams, right?

A I just got the 4:23 I'm sorry

Q Got it And then there's -- Ms Sutherland again shows up on her, her cell phone, at 6:57 and 6:04, right? Sorry 5:57 and 6:04?

A Right. Yes

Q All right Now, one number that we haven't talked about that I'd like you to focus on is do you see there that there are calls at 4:31 p m and at 4:07 p m to a number ending in 2718?

A Yes

Q And one of those calls at 4:07 is 16 minutes, right?

A Sixteen, yes

Q And then again at 4:31 for a minute, right?

A One minute Yes, sir

Q Now, I'd like to show you what's been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 854 Now, this is an e-mail to Ms McDonnell It's an auto reply from somebody at Health Diagnostic Laboratory, right?

A Yes. That's right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 854 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Now, sir, the number we were just looking at for that 16-minute call was a number ending in 2718 You'd agree that that matches the phone number here for Health Diagnostic Laboratory on this e-mail, right?

A It ends in 2718 Yes, sir

Q Well, then what I'd like to do now is show you -- and that was May 6th, 2011, right? The phone calls that we were just looking at on Ms McDonnell's phone records?

A On the records, yes, sir

Q All right And that's the same day as the Outlook event was set, according to the Outlook metadata we looked at just a moment ago?

A Right

Q All right So what I'd like now to do is quickly show you RM-0304

MR FALCONER: I believe it is Page 12

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, this was the chart that we saw in your direct examination for May 1st and 2nd of 2012, right?

A That's right

Q And these two e-mails here on May 1st, 2011, those were on Special Agent Hulser's chart, right?

A Yes, sir

Q Now, what I'd like to do is show you what's been marked for identification -- keeping in mind May 1st, 2011, in that time frame -- what's been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 851

MR FALCONER: And zoom in on that

BY MR FALCONER:

Q This is an e-mail from Ms McDonnell to Mr Williams, right -- or sorry -- yes, to Mr Williams?

A That's right

Q And it's dated May 1st, 2011?

A Yes

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 851 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, the -- the subject of this e-mail is Dr Joseph McConnell, Health Diagnostic Laboratory, Inc , correct?

A That's right

Q And that's this HDL that we've been referring to a little bit, right?

A That's right

Q Well, I'd like to show you what's been marked as Government's Exhibit 852 This is an e-mail, at the top, from Mr Williams to Mr Williams, but below it's Ms. McDonnell to Mr Williams on May 1st of 2011, right?

A Yes, sir Right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 852 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR FALCONER:

Q And, sir, the specific time on this one is 4:53 p m , right?

A That's right

Q And, again, this refers to Health Diagnostic Laboratory?

A That's right

Q All right So what I'd like now like to do is show you -- now, you're aware of the testimony from Mr Williams about the conversation involving the first financial $50,000 with Maureen McDonnell that -- he testified that that occurred on May 2nd, right?

A Yes, sir

Q So what I'd like to do now is show you a couple of things that are in betw[illegible] those two days, in terms of in between May 2nd and May 6th, the day we've been talking about, to give us a little bit of context The first one I'd like to show you is Government's Exhibit 116, which has been admitted And if we -- this is an e-mail from Pam Watts to Bill Hazel, right?

A That's right

MR FALCONER: And if we could go to Page 2 If we could zoom in on the text there a little bit Sorry All right And if we could scroll down just a little bit

BY MR FALCONER:

Q The date of that e-mail we were just looking at was May 5th of 2011, right?

A Right

Q And do you see there -- it's a little bit grayed out in the middle, but the sentence that starts, "Elevated Blood Levels," it says, "of C-reactive protein," right?

A Thank you Yes, sir I see it

Q Now, this document here -- and we'll get to the C-reactive protein That links to something we'll get to in a second If I can show you what's been previously admitted as Government's Exhibit 107 Now, you're aware of this -- the testimony of this -- from Special Agent Hulser of this link here matching the article we were just looking at, right?

A Right

Q And this is a forward from Ms McDonnell to

Mr McDonnell on May 1st of 2011?

A That's right

Q All right So now what I'd like to do is show you an e-mail from this same time frame Government's Exhibit 861 And this is an e-mail from Ms -- or from Mr McDonnell to Ms McDonnell while he's on his Asia marketing trip, right? Or it's dated May 7th of 2011?

A Right Yes, sir

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 861 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q Now, sir, this is the day after -- or two days after -- the date of this e-mail, at least, is two days after Ms. McDonnell had that appointment on her calendar for HDL, right?

A Right

Q And one day after the meeting at HDL was scheduled for Mr Williams?

A Right

Q On Mary-Shea's calendar?

A Calendar Yep

Q And here Mr McDonnell writes, tell me if I read this correctly, "How did blood draw go? Hope we see good results in C-reactive protein," right?

A Right

Q And C-reactive protein, that was in that article we just looked at a second ago?

A Correct.

Q So now what I'd like to do is show you an e-mail from the next day, and this is Government's Exhibit 862 And, sir, this is an e-mail exchange the following day and then going over on -- or the following day, May 8th, between Ms McDonnell and Mr McDonnell, right?

A That's right

MR FALCONER: Your Honor, we'd offer Government's Exhibit 862 into evidence

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR FALCONER:

Q All right Now, sir, this follows the May 7th e-mail that we were just looking at, right?

A Right The day after Yes, sir

Q And Mr McDonnell writes to Ms McDonnell, "Call or e-mail me I love you Having fun here " And then some other details And then, "Have a safe flight," right?

A Right Yes, sir

Q And Ms McDonnell writes back, among other things, "Can't wait to be with you XOXO, exclamation point, exclamation point, exclamation point," right?

A Right

Q And then Mr. McDonnell writes back, "Thanks Love you too Please get rest on the plane," correct?

A Right

Q And then I think we looked at earlier, the day that they returned from this was the date of that May 17th, 2011, call between Ms McDonnell's office and Mr Williams, right?

A Right Yes, sir

MR FALCONER: One moment, Your Honor

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FALCONER: Thank you, Your Honor No further questions

THE COURT: All right Any redirect?

MR HAUSS: Very brief, Your Honor Thank you

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR HAUSS:

Q Hello again, Mr Ross

A Hello

Q So you've just been through about two hours of cross-examination During that time, was a single error in any of your charts pointed out to you?

A No, sir

MR HAUSS: Now, if we could bring up RM-0294

BY MR HAUSS:

Q And you recall Mr Faulconer asked you about this chart; is that correct?

A Yes

Q And he asked -- he pointed out to you that this does not include any landline calls, correct?

A That's correct

Q He also pointed out it doesn't include any in-person communications; is that fair?

A That is correct

MR HAUSS: If we could pull up Government's Exhibit 573

BY MR HAUSS:

Q And, now, looking at Government Exhibit 573, do you see any in-person communications reflected in the government exhibit?

A No, sir

Q Do you see any landline calls reflected in the government exhibit?

A No, sir

MR HAUSS: If we could pull up RM-0297

BY MR HAUSS:

Q And this is the exhibit that is comparing the number of phone calls for a 22-month period between Mr McDonnell and Jonnie Williams versus a one-month period for Ms McDonnell and Jonnie Williams; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q And Mr Faulconer pointed out to you that April 2011 is when the New York shopping trip took place, correct?

A That's right

Q Now, there were 81 phone calls and text messages in April 2011?

A Yes

MR HAUSS: Can we pull up Government Exhibit 570

BY MR HAUSS:

Q Now, this is the government's summary chart as to April 11th, 2011; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q And based on your review of Mr Williams' testimony, was that the day that the New York trip was being set up?

A Yes, sir.

Q And on that date, does that reflect five text messages between Jonnie Williams and Maureen McDonnell?

A It does

Q Does that reflect two phone calls between Jonnie Williams and Maureen McDonnell?

A Yes, sir, it does

Q So that's a total of seven communications?

A Yes

MR HAUSS: If we could look at RM-0301

BY MR HAUSS:

Q And this chart reflects the number of texts and calls between Ms McDonnell and Jonnie Williams on April 13th, 2011; is that correct?

A Yes, sir.

Q And from your review of the transcripts, is April 13th the day of the New York shopping trip itself?

A It was Yes, sir

Q So between April 11th and April 13th, the days planning and then the actual date of the shopping trip, that's a total of nine communications, correct?

A That's correct

Q Out of a total of 81 for the month of April?

A Yes

MR HAUSS: If we could pull up Government Exhibit 586

BY MR HAUSS:

Q Now, do you recall Mr Faulconer showing you this exhibit?

A Yes, sir

Q And this includes a lunch between Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell; is that correct?

A It does

Q Mr Faulconer then showed you RM-0326

MR HAUSS: Can we pull that up 326 Thank you

BY MR HAUSS:

Q And then Mr Faulconer pointed out to you, he asked why is the lunch not in that chart Do you remember him asking you that?

A Yes, sir

Q Now, the point of these defense slides is to add further context to the government's slides; is that correct?

A That is correct

Q And the defense slides are meant to be looked at in conjunction with the government's slides; is that --

A That's correct

Q In fact, on direct examination, I showed you the government slide first?

A Yes

MR HAUSS: If we could look at RM-0329

BY MR HAUSS:

Q And this shows the communications between Maureen McDonnell and Donnie Williams; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q Mr Faulconer referred you to the invoice on March 4th, 2013, and he pointed out that that was after the date of the interview with law enforcement on February 15th, 2013; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q Now, looking up at the second text message on December 14th, 2012, and what does that text message say?

A That's a text message from Ms McDonnell to Donnie Williams, and the text reads, "That's terrific Do I need to give you a credit card "

Q And December 14th, 2012, that's before Ms McDonnell's interview with law enforcement; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q And you reviewed Donnie Williams' testimony?

A Yes, sir

Q And do you recall Mr Williams' testimony that Ms McDonnell offered to pay on multiple occasions?

A Yes, sir

MR HAUSS: If we could look at Government Exhibit 843 Oh, I'm sorry We don't -- if we could use the government's side briefly Thank you

BY MR HAUSS:

Q And, Mr Ross, this was the phone records for Maureen McDonnell that Mr Faulconer showed you for the period September 2nd through September 8th; is that correct?

A Yes, sir

Q And when he showed you these, you and Mr Faulconer agreed that there were no phone calls between Mr and Ms McDonnell on September 5th, 2011; is that correct?

A That's right

Q And September 5th, that was the date of the e-mail that we saw that Mr McDonnell sent to his wife, correct?

A Correct

Q Mr Faulconer then went through --

MR HAUSS: And if we could scroll down a little bit

BY MR HAUSS:

Q -- and showed you some calls between Mr and Ms McDonnell, for example, at 6:11 p m on September 6th was one of the examples That was one minute in length, correct?

A Correct

Q Now, do you recall, from your review of the transcripts, that for Verizon records, the time period is actually rounded up?

A Rounded up to the nearest minute Yes, sir

Q So, for example, if a phone call lasted five seconds, that would be reflected as one minute; is that correct?

A That's correct

MR HAUSS: And still on the government side, could we show Government exhibit 845

BY MR HAUSS:

Q And, Mr Ross, this is the Verizon records for Ms McDonnell on August 13th through August 16th, 2011

And Mr Faulconer asked you about these in the context of the Rolex purchase Do you remember that?

A Yes, sir.

MR HAUSS: And if we could scroll down

BY MR HAUSS:

Q I believe Mr Faulconer identified some phone calls between Maureen McDonnell and Jonnie Williams on August 16th, 2011; is that correct?

A Yes, sir

Q And looking at the first one, it looks like it's at 9:51 a m ; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q And the next one he identified was at 10:22 a m ?

A Yes, sir

Q And finally, the last one was at 11:05 a m ; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q And, now, you recall from Mr Williams' testimony that he said that he called Ms McDonnell from the store where he purchased the Rolex?

A That's correct

Q And that's in California?

A That's correct

Q Now, the records we were looking at here, these are in Eastern time; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q So, for example, the call at 9:51 a m would have been 6:51 a m Pacific?

A Pacific

Q And the call at 10:12 a m would have been 7:12 a.m ; is that correct?

A Yes, sir

Q And finally, the 11:05 would have been 8:05 a m ; is that correct?

A That's right

Q Now, Mr Faulconer --

MR HAUSS: We can take that down Thank you

BY MR. HAUSS:

Q Mr Faulconer asked you about some phone records for May 6th and pointed out a call involving HDL Do you recall that?

A Yes, sir

Q Now, the problem with phone records is we don't know what happened on the -- I'm sorry Do you need a moment?

A No Thank you

Q The problem with phone records is we don't know what happened on the call; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q So you don't know what occurred on that phone call on May 6th?

A We don't have any content of the calls No, sir

Q So, for example, if that was a call for Ms McDonnell to get her blood results, you wouldn't know that one way or the other?

A That's correct

MR HAUSS: Finally, if we could pull up RM-0321

BY MR HAUSS:

Q We discussed this earlier This is showing the one phone call and 52 text messages between Maureen McDonnell and Jonnie Williams on December 4th, 2011; is that correct?

A Yes, sir

Q And do you recall that Mr Faulconer asked you some questions about December 8th, 2011?

A Yes, sir

Q Showed you some schedules from December 8th, 2011?

A Correct

Q He didn't really ask you any questions about December 4th, 2011?

A No, sir

Q Do you have any idea what he was talking about on December 8th?

MR FALCONER: Objection, Your Honor There were questions about --

THE COURT: Sustained

MR HAUSS: Fair enough

One moment, Your Honor

Thank you, Your Honor We have nothing further

THE COURT: All right

(Witness stood aside)

THE COURT: Mr Burck

MR BURCK: Your Honor, Maureen McDonnell rests

THE COURT: All right

Mr. Burck has rested on behalf of Ms. McDonnell And I've got a little legal thing I have to deal with here I'm going to send you all out It will be brief And then come back in, and we'll let you know what's left for today

THE COURT: You all can have a seat

All right Ms McDonnell, would you stand up where you are, please

Ms McDonnell, now that your lawyers have rested your case without you having been called, I have to ask you some questions Have you been advised by your lawyers that you have a right, if you so desire, to testify in this case?

MS MCDONNELL: Yes, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right Have you been advised by your lawyers that you have an absolute right to remain silent and not to testify and that no negative inference can be drawn against you for your selection not to testify?

MS MCDONNELL: Yes, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right Now, having received this advice, is it your knowing and voluntary decision not to testify in this case?

MS MCDONNELL: Yes, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right Thank you so much You can have a seat

All right Government, are you ready to proceed?

MS ABER: Yes, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right Let's bring them back in

MR SMALL: Your Honor, before we call in the jury, there's one minor matter on one of the two short witnesses, a hearsay issue, maybe we can resolve before we call the witness If we could approach

THE COURT: Come on up

(At Bench)

MR BURCK: Thank you, Your Honor

MR DRY: What's the issue?

MR SMALL: On Mr Hunter, are you going to ask him what Jonnie Williams said about why -- Matthew Hunter is being called He's the young man who drove the Ferrari up to Smith Mountain Lake

In one of his two interviews, not the other one, but in one of his two interviews, he said Jonnie Williams told him something about he was driving it up because the Governor was going to be there. And I just wanted to make sure that that wasn't going to be asked, because it's clearly hearsay

MR DRY: It's a prior inconsistent statement We should be able to ask that

THE COURT: No That's clearly hearsay

MR DRY: Just scheduling wise The government estimates that we've got three witresses that we're going to call First one is -- direct will be about 15 minutes

MS. ABER: Five I'm in charge of that one

MR DRY: Five for the next one And then the summary witness is literally probably going to be less than a half an hour on direct So we'll be done with our evidence fairly early tomorrow

I think the parties are trying to figure out what the plan is going forward We've talked amongst ourselves, and we would request from the Court that the jury be instructed before closing arguments, if at all possible, and that we try and figure out how we're going to get the closing arguments done on Friday

THE COURT: Well, the answer to your first question about the sequence of instruction and closing I always close

MR DRY: Okay

THE COURT: So the last word they hear is from me And that's the way it's going to be

MR DRY: Then our biggest concern, Judge, is since we're so wide apart on the jury instructions, we'd like the opportunity to know what the Court is going to instruct the jury in advance, more than an hour of us closing That's the problem that we're having

THE COURT: Okay Well, again, if we finish with your evidence tomorrow morning early, and that's a big if -- because every time you all say that, you get up there and cross-examine for -- you know, every document that's been mentioned So I don't know

If you -- if you finish tomorrow morning, then what we could do is this I would -- again, it depends on what time But if we're talking about like 11 or 12:00 we're finished, what I would do is, to help you all a little bit on this, is let the jury go home for the afternoon

MR DRY: Absolutely

THE COURT: Then I give you the package that I propose to give And you all can, you know, argue when the time comes, but you'd have a little bit of time

MR DRY: And then close on Friday

THE COURT: And then close on Friday

MR ASBILL: Are we going to do all the closings on Friday?

THE COURT: Absolutely. Everybody -- two hours a piece It can't take up a whole day So as I've said, you've shocked me I think -- every time I get hope that we're close, you snatch it away Okay

MR DRY: Would it be possible to start at 9:00 on Friday morning, just so that we know that we get all the closings in?

THE COURT: 9:00 is fine

MR BURCK: That's fine Great

THE COURT: Which is normally what I do, but we have a couple people who come from such a distance I don't like to --

MR DRY: I understand that

THE COURT: Let me take a look here

Kathy, on Friday, they just put them on?

MS HANCOCK: Yeah 9 and 9:15

THE COURT: Well, it looks like 9:30 is going to be the best that we can do on Friday

MR DRY: Okay Thank you

MR BURCK: Thank you very much, Your Honor

(In Open Court)

(The jury entered the courtroom.)

THE COURT: All right. The government has indicated that they are going to put on some rebuttal testimony We're going to take one witness, which they have sworn to me is a very brief witness And as long as the witness is not a lawyer, it may be true All right Government

MS ABER: The United States calls James Abel

ALLEN JAMES ABEL, JR ,

called as a witness by and on behalf of the government, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MS ABER:

Q Good afternoon, sir

A Hello

Q Please state your full name, and spell your last for the court reporter

A Allen James Abel, Jr A-B-E-L

Q And in what city and state do you currently reside?

A In New York City

Q What is your occupation?

A I'm an event planner

Q Do you know a person named Mary-Shea Sutherland?

A I do

Q And when did you meet her?

A I met Mary-Shea in either 2003 or 2004

Q Now, did you attend an event at the Union League Club in New York City back in April of 2011?

A I did Yes

Q And who invited you to that?

A Mary-Shea Sutherland

Q Now, when you got to the event, did you meet a man named Jonnie Williams?

A I did

Q Can you tell the jury a little bit about how you came to meet Mr Williams?

A So Mary-Shea invited me to attend the event, and I entered And she was standing there with the Governor's wife and Mr Williams, and she introduced me to the two of them

Q Okay And did Mary-Shea -- excuse me, Ms Sutherland remain with you all or did she walk away?

A She did not She then actually left with Ms McDonnell to go do work, and I stayed there and talked with Mr Williams for quite a while

Q And in general, what did you all discuss?

A Well, we talked a little bit about what he did We talked about what I did I met some other people as well But then ultimately, he was telling me that he was launching a new drug And I said, "Tell me about it," and he did And so I said, "Well, then you're going to need a launch party So I need to do that for you " And he -- he said, "Do you want to see it?" And I said, "Sure "

So he took out a container that looked sort of like a very modern, cool, hip Tic Tac container And I said, "So here's what we're going to do We're going take these and we're going to blow them up 20 feet tall, and we're going to get a big raw loft space and create almost like an art exhibit, and have people come to this event and be able to walk through them But because it will have your name and what it is all over it, it will just reinforce your branding, but it will be so cool they won't forget it "

Q So be clear, whose idea -- who raised the idea of a launch first?

A Me

Q Okay Was Ms Sutherland around during this conversation?

A She was not

Q Did she ultimately come back to join your conversation?

A She came back to tell us that the program was starting But she was not involved in a conversation with the two of us, no

Q Okay And what happened after Ms Sutherland came back?

A The program started And then when that was over, everybody went -- there was an organized dinner upstairs in the Union League When that -- when everyone sat down for that, she and I went out to dinner

Q Ms Sutherland and you?

A Correct

Q Now, did you follow up on your conversation with Mr Williams by sending him an e-mail?

A I did

Q All right I'd like to bring up what's been admitted already as Government Exhibit 101 And it will pop up on the screen there, sir

A Okay

Q Do you recognize this as the e-mail you sent to Mr Williams, copying Ms Sutherland after the event?

A I do Yes

Q And I'd like to direct your attention to the second line in which you said, I believe, "Mary-Shea and I had a wonderful dinner brainstorming about your launch event "

A Correct

Q Did -- how much of your conversation at dinner was devoted to discussing the launch event?

A Ten percent

Q Okay

A I mean, I've known Mary-Shea Sutherland for a long time So I'm sure we touched on this We talked about our families We talked about other things we have going in our lives This was certainly not the bulk of the conversation

Q During this conversation, was the idea of having the Governor's Mansion be the location for the launch --

A Absolutely not

Q -- discussed?

A Unless it's a big raw lofty warehouse space, which it's not, no. It was not anywhere on the radar

Q Is it fair to say that in your conversation at the Union League with Mr Williams, the notion of having a launch at the Governor's Mansion was also not addressed?

A Not even a -- no

Q Ms Sutherland never raised the possibility of using the Mansion as a location for the launch?

A Absolutely not

Q And after this e-mail and after that night, did Ms Sutherland ever raise the idea of the Anatabloc launch with you again?

A Absolutely not

Q Now, flipping through the exhibit very quickly, there are some pictures in the subsequent pages

MS ABER: And one more 2

BY MS ABER:

Q Are those the kinds of locations that you were referring to as a raw lofty space?

A Well, no These -- I mean, I think these spaces, in my opinion, are a little more -- a little nicer than I would have wanted I would have wanted something really barebones and, you know, a big raw warehouse, or something, that we could transform and create into something people would not ever have seen before and would remember

Q And, finally, sir, did you ever hear back from Mr Williams about the launch after sending him this e-mail?

A Absolutely not

Q Okay

MS ABER: One moment, please, Your Honor

No further questions

THE COURT: Any questions from Mr McDonnell?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MS JOCHUM:

Q Good afternoon, Mr Abel

A Hi

Q I'm Elizabeth Jochum I represent Bob McDonnell

A Yes We've spoken

Q So you mentioned that you briefly met Jonnie Williams in April of 2011, correct?

A Correct

Q Roughly, how long did you speak to him?

A Forty minutes, 30 minutes Not very long

Q Was that the only time you met him?

A It was the only time I met him

Q So after just that relatively brief conversation, it was clear to you that Mr Williams was a very rich man; is that correct?

A I would assume I would assume anyone that was in that industry would have money Yes

Q Is that a way that you had described him prior to meeting -- or sorry, after meeting him?

A Oh, I met a rich man? Is that what you're asking?

Q Is that something that you told the government?

A I don't think so No

Q Could I --

A I told government that, "I met a rich man " I probably said, "I met a man who looked like that he could afford to do a launch party " Yes

Q So how did you know or why did you think that he was rich?

MS ABER: Objection to relevance

THE COURT: Sustained It's not relevant

BY MS JOCHUM:

Q Is it something he bragged about?

A No.

Q Okay Did he brag about having invented several things during the time you talked to him?

A He did say that he had some other product before that that was successful, and now he was doing this new anti-inflammatory pill

Q And you testified that you had discussed a launch party for that product with Mr Williams and briefly Ms. Sutherland?

A Correct

Q And you had tried to call Mr Williams numerous times after the e-mail to discuss that launch?

A Correct Never reaching him

Q Right But at one point, he did call you, correct?

A I think one time I got him on the phone, and he said -- I started talking to him about this launch, and he was like, "Well, I don't really need to talk about that right now, but I'm looking to" -- "I need to find somebody that can help me acquire vintage bricks to repave my three-quarters-of-a-mile-long driveway "

And my response was, "I'm a party planner I don't really think I'm the person for that "

Q So that's not the type of thing you usually did for your clients?

A Correct

MS JOCHUM: No further questions, Your Honor

THE COURT: Mr. Burck?

MR BURCK: Your Honor, just one question

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR BURCK:

Q Just in the -- excuse me, sir My name is Bill Burck I represent Maureen McDonnell

Just in the summer of 2011, did you have any conversations with Mary-Shea Sutherland about her relationship with Jonnie Williams?

A I did not

MR BURCK: That's it, Your Honor Thank you

THE COURT: All right Anything else?

MS ABER: No, Your Honor

THE COURT: Thank you, sir You may stand down

(Witness stood aside)

MS ABER: Your Honor, at the risk of interjecting Our next witness is similarly short, or we can hold him until tomorrow

THE COURT: All right Let's -- let's take the next witness if it's similar

MS ABER: Thank you, Your Honor

Matthew Hunter

MATTHEW HUNTER,

called as a witness by and on behalf of the government, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MS ABER:

Q Good afternoon, sir

A Good afternoon

Q Please state your full name, and spell your last for the court reporter

A It's Matthew Forrest Hunter H-U-N-T-E-R

Q And in what city and state do you reside?

A Richmond, Virginia

Q Did you previously work for a company called Star Scientific?

A Yes, I did

Q And for how long did you do so?

A For 11 years

Q And when, roughly, did that conclude?

A The end of 2012

Q And in the course of that employment, did you know a man named Jonnie Williams?

A Yes, I did

Q And did there come a point in time in July of 2011 when Mr Williams asked you to drive his Ferrari to his home at Smith Mountain Lake?

A Yes, he did

Q Okay How did you get that Ferrari?

A I met him at a Cracker Barrel restaurant off Broad Street, out towards Innsbrook

Q And were you shown how to drive the vehicle?

A Yep He and his family were eating inside And I went in and said hello, and then we went out in the parking lot And I guess it was -- it's a little trickier than the car I'm used to driving But -- so we went through that a little bit, and then I took off

Q Immediately from the Cracker Barrel, you left for Smith Mountain Lake?

A That's correct

Q Okay And when you arrived at Mr Williams' Mansion, was anyone home?

A No

MS ABER: I'd like to bring up what's been admitted as Government Exhibit 181, please Page 1

BY MS ABER:

Q Do you recognize this photograph?

A Yes

Q And what is that?

A That's the driveway and entrance to Jonnie Williams' Smith Mountain Lake house

Q So when you pull up to this house, what do you do with the Ferrari?

A I kind of pulled around the loop And if you can see -- I guess where the picture cuts off, that makes a larger circle, and I kind of parked over on the side of the driveway that would not be pictured

Q Did you put it in the garage?

A I did not

Q Did you cover it up?

A I did not

Q Without telling us who told you -- well, let me back up Were you -- what was your -- were you trying to meet anyone there?

MR SMALL: Object, Your Honor Hearsay

THE COURT: No He can answer that

BY MS ABER:

Q Were you looking for someone when you came to the house?

A I was

Q And was anyone home?

A No

Q Who was the person you were looking for?

MR SMALL: Objection, Your Honor That's hearsay

THE COURT: No That's not what we talked about

Go ahead and answer

A Okay I was told that I was to --

BY MS. ABER:

Q What was your understanding of who you were there to meet?

A The Governor

Q And did you find him there?

A I did not

Q How long did you stick around looking for the Governor?

A I want to say I probably stuck around for about 30 minutes at the house And then -- he was not there, and so I was then -- then drove down the street to the country club

Q And while you're waiting around for the Governor, are you doing anything in particular?

A I'm texting and taking some phone calls from Jonnie Williams and Jerri Fulkerson, advising me to stick around

Q Hang on Stop Stop there So once the 30 minutes elapsed, where do you go?

A I then drive over to the Water's Edge Country Club, where the driver of the Town Car is going to meet me

Q Okay

MS ABER: I'd like to bring up what has been marked as Government Exhibit 869

BY MS ABER:

Q Sir, do you recognize this as a receipt for your car service back from Smith Mountain Lake?

A Yes, I do

Q Okay

MS ABER: Your Honor, the government moves in 869, please

THE COURT: It will be admitted

MS ABER: And zooming in on the top half there

BY MS ABER:

Q That's your name, sir, as passenger?

A Yes

Q And who is the arranger?

A Jerri Fulkerson

Q And the date on that is what?

A July 29th, 2011

Q Okay So is it fair to say this car service picked you up on that date?

A Yes

Q And from where?

A From Water's Edge Country Club But actually, he was having some trouble getting to the house, so I led him back to the house We parked the car there, and then we left from the lake house

Q And where did it take -- where did the car service take you?

A Back to Cracker Barrel

Q Okay

MS ABER: One moment, please, Your Honor

BY MS ABER:

Q I think in my poor phrasing, I got a little confused.

MS ABER: Can we bring up Government Exhibit 181 again, please?

BY MS ABER:

Q Mr Hunter, when you finally left the Ferrari, right before you hopped into the car service, where exactly did you park the vehicle?

A That's in the portion of the driveway that is not shown in the picture, where the loop goes back around The house kind of ends right where that picture ends, and -- so the car was parked over on that side, facing out towards the road

Q And what did you do with the keys, sir?

A I left it on the front seat

MS ABER: All right No further questions, Your Honor

Thank you, sir

THE COURT: Any questions?

MR SMALL: Just a couple, Your Honor

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR SMALL:

Q Good afternoon, Mr Hunter

A Good afternoon

Q My name is Dan Small I represent Bob McDonnell We met out in the hallway an hour or so ago?

A Yes

Q The good news is I'm losing my voice I'll be very brief

So you arrived mid-afternoon on Friday?

A I did

Q And -- you have to say yes or no for the court reporter here

A Yes

Q And there was no one there?

A Correct

Q There was no Land Rover in the driveway?

A There was not

Q No other cars in the driveway?

A No other cars in the driveway

Q And no State Police or black Suburban in the driveway either?

A No

Q And nobody around?

A No

Q Okay And you -- you didn't look in either of the garages we saw in the picture?

A I did not

Q Okay The -- but you know that Jonnie Williams has a lot of cars, right?

A I do

Q Okay And, in fact, were you aware that just a little while before -- this was July 29th, right, when you delivered the car?

A Yes

Q Just about two months before that, Jonnie Williams had bought a new Aston Martins with a very fancy cover to it, $1000 cover?

MS ABER: Objection to relevance

THE COURT: Sustained

MR SMALL: They asked a question about covers, Your Honor I'll move on

BY MR SMALL:

Q The -- all right Well, did you know that the Ferrari that you drove, that was about six months old? Were you aware of that?

A I had no idea

Q Okay Were you aware that the day before July 29th, your delivery, July 28th, Jonnie Williams bought another brand-new Ferrari? Were you aware of that, sir?

MS ABER: Objection to relevance

THE COURT: Sustained

BY MR SMALL:

Q Were you aware that the older car you were driving was going to be delivered to Jonnie Williams' daughter Rachel?

A I was not aware of that

MR SMALL: Okay Nothing further Thank you

THE COURT: Mr Burck?

MR BURCK: No questions, Your Honor

THE COURT: Wonderful

All right You don't have anything else, do you?

MS ABER: No, Your Honor. Thank you

THE COURT: Okay.

(Witness stood aside)

THE COURT: All right That's going to take us to the end of this day We will be meeting tomorrow at 9:45 again Please don't discuss the case with anyone or allow anyone to discuss it with you, and continue to avoid any media items relating to this case

And just so you know, what we have left, I believe the government has at least one more witness on rebuttal

Is that right?

MR DRY: That is correct, Your Honor

THE COURT: Okay And, of course, in this case, we have no idea how long one witness will be, but we have one witness And so when that is done, what will happen is that the lawyers and I have to have a charge conference; that is, the instructions that I will be giving you on the law in this case

I put together the instructions Then I give them to the lawyers and they look through it, and then we have a conference where they make objections, request other instructions, as the case may be And so that process normally takes a while, and so we'll see what -- how things go tomorrow in terms of time and this witness. But it is likely that if this witness is not a very lengthy witness, that you will have the afternoon off while we work through these things And then hopefully we can get in here on Friday and start the closing arguments That's -- that's plan A As you can see, sometimes it doesn't work out that way, but hopefully we can get there -- at least to closings on Friday So now you know

And, again, I appreciate that you all are hanging tough with us, and we will get through this We'll see you tomorrow at 9:45

(The trial adjourned at 5:21 p m)

Good morning Government?

MS ABER: The United States calls Special Agent Kathryn Weber

KATHRYN WEBER,

called as a witness by and on behalf of the government, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ABER:

Q Good morning

A Good morning

Q Please state and spell your full name for the record

A Kathryn Weber, K-A-T-H-R-Y-N, W-E-B-E-R.

Q What is your title, ma'am?

A Special Agent with the FBI

Q And are you a case agent in the case of United States versus Robert and Maureen McDonnell?

A Yes, I am.

Q Have you been here for the trial?

A Not in the courtroom.

Q Aside from eight pages of Mr McDonnell's direct testimony that you were provided with, have you read any of the transcripts?

A I have not

Q Tell the jury very briefly what was in those eight pages that you reviewed from Day 19?

A It was Mr McDonnell's testimony primarily related to his schedules

Q Now, as part of your work on this case, were you tasked with reviewing the defendants' schedules?

A Yes, I was

Q Is it fair to say that you have reviewed several different types of schedules that you are aware of?

A Yes, it is

Q Let's bring up Government Exhibit 344, please Did you review schedules like these?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And how did you obtain them?

A Those were provided to us pursuant to a federal grand jury subpoena that was served on VITA, the Virginia Technology Information Agency

Q As part of that response to the subpoena, did you receive the contents of the various schedulers's e-mail accounts?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And in your review. how often did these schedules come out?

A Consistently pretty daily

Q And who did they pertain to, which defendant?

A Mr McDonnell

Q I'd like to bring up, admitted, RM-0179-0060 Did you also review schedules like these?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q How did you obtain these?

A Those were provided to us by Mr McDonnell four days prior to the start of trial

Q And did you compare what we just saw in Government Exhibit 344, the daily e-mail schedules, to these here in the defense exhibit?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And how did they compare to one another?

A They were fairly consistent in terms of events shown But the e-mails that we received from VITA had a greater level of detail in terms of who traveled where

Q You can take that down Thanks Now, did Ms McDonnell have a comparable schedule e-mailed out to her staff every day?

A No

Q Did Ms McDonnell, to your knowledge, have a daily Outlook calendar like that that we have?

A Yes

Q Let's bring up Government Exhibit, admitted, 276-A. How about 276 Did you review schedules like this?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q What is this?

A It is a monthly schedule provided to us by Ms McDonnell pursuant to a federal grand jury subpoena containing events that she participated in.

Q How was the level of detail on Ms McDonnell's schedules like this compared to what we just saw in Mr McDonnell's schedules?

A Not as detailed as the schedules for Mr McDonnell

Q Okay You can take that down. Just for the jury's knowledge, is that the only type of schedule you have for Ms McDonnell?

A Yes

Q Did you also review phone records?

A Yes

Q We won't look at any phone records But from what company did you review?

A Verizon.

Q Did those belong to the defendants?

A Yes, for both Mr and Ms McDonnell

Q Do Verizon toll records list any sort of location information?

A They do They list the origination location

Q Origination of what?

A The calls

Q And did you cross-check, when necessary, the schedule information that we just saw with Verizon location information?

A Yes, I did.

Q And when necessary, did you also review a long-term schedule e-mail?

A Yes, I did.

Q I'd like to bring up, not admitted, Government Exhibit 863, please Is this the e-mail and attachments that you reviewed?

A Yes, it is

MS ABER: We move in Government Exhibit 863

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MS ABER:

Q Is it fair to say that this is an e-mail from scheduler Monica Block to Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell and various family members about an anticipated long-term schedule through the year of 2011?

A Yes, it is

Q Turning to Page 2 and then 3, please Did you compare the events on these calendars to the other schedules we have observed?

A Yes, I did

Q Okay You can take that down, please Now, to be clear, have you reviewed each and every schedule that we have for the defendants?

A I reviewed over a particular time frame, yes

Q And what was that particular time frame?

A It was from April 11th of 2011 through March 31st, 2013, which is the conspiracy charged in the indictment

Q Okay How many pages of schedules and supporting documentation in the list we have just described have you reviewed?

A In excess of 3,000

Q I'd like to bring up, not admitted, Government Exhibit 870 Are these demonstrative exhibits that you have helped prepare in anticipation of your testimony?

A Yes

Q Okay Just for the Court's benefit, how many pages of charts do you have here?

A Five

Q Okay, good.

MS ABER: Your Honor, I'd like to publish Government Exhibit 870 to the jury just for demonstration purposes

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MS ABER:

Q Can you tell the jury about your data review and what brought you to these charts?

A Essentially, I took all of the documents that we just discussed, reviewed them, compiled the information, and then took that and created these charts that sort of show an overview of the data; and then once the charts were created, conducted a thorough review

Q So you have verified all the numbers within these charts?

A Yes, I have

Q Now, starting on Page 1, you started to tell us the time period that you reviewed. Can you say that once more, please?

A It is April 11th of 2011, the first cellular communications between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams, through March 31st of 2013

Q Okay Now, were you able to count on the schedules how many nights Mr and Ms McDonnell, according to their schedules, slept outside of the Mansion?

A Yes

Q Let's turn to Page 2, please Is this a pie chart depicting your findings?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q How many total nights in this time period did you count existed?

A 721

Q And how many of those nights did you count, according to the schedules, in which Mr and Ms McDonnell were together in the Mansion?

A 489

Q Now, according to the schedules, how many nights in total was Mr McDonnell outside of the Mansion?

A 220

Q Of those 220, how many nights were you able to count on the schedules that Ms McDonnell was with Mr McDonnell?

A 155

Q Of the 220, according to the schedules, how many nights was Mr McDonnell gone outside of the Mansion without Ms McDonnell?

A 65

Q So of all the nights that Mr McDonnell spent outside of the Mansion, roughly, what percentage was he with Ms McDonnell?

A 70 percent.

Q Now, according to her schedule, how many nights was Ms McDonnell out of the Mansion when Mr McDonnell was left behind in the Mansion?

A Twelve nights

Q So out of a total of 720 nights during the charged conspiracy, how many nights do the schedules show that Mr and Ms McDonnell were together?

A That would be 644

Q And roughly what percentage of the total nights is that?

A Approximately 90 percent

Q Now, to be clear, you can only speak to what's on the schedules, right?

A Yes

Q You cannot testify to whether the schedules actually were effectuated, right?

A No.

Q Or if Mr and Ms McDonnell were home in the Mansion, what if anything happened, right?

A Correct

Q Let's talk next about those 220 nights Let's turn to Page 3, please How many of those 220 nights that Mr McDonnell spent outside of the Mansion were nights for work or political trips?

A 158 nights

Q And how many of those nights were personal trips?

A 62

Q Tell the jury, please, how you delineated between a personal trip and a work or political trip?

A Personal trips were trips that showed up on his schedule as either personal or family vacations or trips that were common sense personal, his anniversary weekend, or trips to the Homestead that he took on an annual basis with high school friends of his

Q So you are not talking about PAC events at the Homestead, are you?

A No

Q Personal are weekends, for example, that Mr McDonnell spent with Mr Damico at the Homestead

A Yes, that qualified as personal

Q Okay Now, to be fair, you don't know whether Mr McDonnell did some work on the personal trips, right?

A Correct That's fair

Q And during work trips, though, do Mr McDonnells' schedules ever have unscheduled or personal time listed on an event that you characterized as a work or political trip?

A Yes.

Q Let's turn to Page 4, please, of the exhibit Let's talk a little bit more about those particular nights out of the Mansion in those trips Can you talk the jury through what this chart depicts, please?

A Yes, ma'am. This chart, of the 220 nights that Mr McDonnell was out of the Mansion, 158 of those were characterized as work or political trips And of those 158, Ms McDonnell was with Mr McDonnell for 93, leaving 65 where Mr McDonnell was not with Ms McDonnell And then of the 62 nights for personal trips, Ms McDonnell was with Mr McDonnell for all 62

Q Turning to the next chart, please, let's talk about those 150 -- excuse me, 158 nights of work or political trips Were you able to identify how many of those nights were international trade trips?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q How did you make that determination?

A There were six trips identified on the schedules as either marketing missions or VEDP trips

Q That's the Virginia Economic Development Partnership?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q Okay Of those 41 nights of international trade trips, how many nights did Ms McDonnell accompany Mr McDonnell according to the schedules?

A 27

Q And how many nights was Mr McDonnell without Ms McDonnell on those trips?

A 14

Q All right Let's take this exhibit down, please A couple last things I'd like to talk about personal events on the schedules From April 11th of 2011 to March 31st of 2013, did you calculate the number of events on the calendar for what you would characterize as family time?

A Yes

Q And how did you characterize if something was family time?

A Family time was either listed for evenings or days as family time, and there were also lunches with family, dinner with family, and then weddings and like their anniversary luncheon Those qualified as family events

Q So what about daughter Cailin McDonnell's wedding, how did you characterize that?

A That was a family event

Q Wedding showers for Jeanine McDonnell Zubowsky?

A Those were family events

Q Are those including vacations, like Smith Mountain Lake, did you include that as family time?

A No.

Q And to be clear, you are talking about -- are you talking about hours or are you talking about events on the calendar?

A Events in, I guess, the broad sense I did not quantify the number of hours So it could be a lunch which was scheduled for an hour or it could be a day, which was, you know, it could be eight hours that was family time

Q Okay So the anniversary weekend counts as one, and lunch with a child counts as one, right?

A Correct Yes

Q During the nearly 22-month span, how many of those family time events on the calendar did you count?

A 100

Q Were there also times in this span that were scheduled just for Mr and Ms McDonnell?

A Yes

Q And tell the jury how you identified those

A Those were events, lunch, dinner, spa appointments, that specifically listed with Ms McDonnell or with FLOVA

Q Now, an event like the Chatham Bars vacation in which Mr and Ms McDonnell were joined by other couples, did you count that as a Mr and Ms McDonnell event?

A I did not I counted that under the personal nights

Q Did that include nights on the schedule when it just says, "Mr McDonnell, dinner, to the Executive Mansion"?

A No, it does not

Q Did it have to include Ms McDonnell by name on the schedule?

A Yes, it did.

Q During this nearly 22-month span, how many of those events scheduled just for Mr and Ms McDonnell were on the calendar?

A 41

Q Now, changing subjects: Are you aware of four instances in which Mr McDonnell played golf at Kinloch on Mr Williams' account?

A Yes, I am.

Q I'd like to bring up, not admitted, Government Exhibit 865 Is this the schedule for Mr McDonnell from May 28th through 31st of 2011?

A Yes, it is

MS ABER: I move to admit Government Exhibit 865

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MS ABER:

Q Scrolling to the bottom half, please, from one to four p.m., what is listed?

A "Golf with Bobby and Sean, Kinloch Golf Club "

Q Does it say anything about Mr Williams or who is paying for this?

A No, it does not

Q Let's bring up, admitted, RM-0178, Page 606. Did you also compare Mr McDonnell's daily calendars like this?

A Yes, I did.

Q I think 606? RM-0178-0606 Is this the same date, May 29th, 2011?

A Yes, it is.

Q If we could zoom in on the event on the calendar, please Is it fair to say that lists the same sort of information that was on the daily schedule?

A Yes, it does

Q Okay I'd like to talk about August 13th of 2011 Let's bring up, not admitted, Government Exhibit 866 Is this Mr McDonnell's schedule for August 13th and 14th of 2011?

A Yes, it is

MS ABER: I move to admit Government Exhibit 866

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MS ABER:

Q Let's please scroll to 12:45 to 1:45 p m. Right there Thank you. Are you aware that that is the time period in which it is alleged that Mr McDonnell played golf at Kinloch?

A Yes.

Q Does this say anything about golf or Kinloch?

A It does not

Q Have you compared this to Mr McDonnell's daily Outlook calendar?

A Yes, I have

Q How do they compare?

A That calendar also does not mention golf It is the "Do Not Schedule: Family Time "

Q Let's look, please, at Government Exhibit 867, not admitted Is this Mr McDonnell's schedule for January 7th of 2012?

A Yes, it is

MS ABER: Move to admit 867, please

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MS ABER:

Q Are you aware that this is also another day in which it is alleged that Mr McDonnell played golf at Kinloch?

A Yes, I am.

Q Looking at the top half, is there anything listed for the afternoon?

A No

Q Any mention of golf or Kinloch or Mr Williams?

A No

Q Have you compared this January 7th schedule to the Outlook calendar for Mr McDonnell?

A Yes, I have

Q Same information?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q All right Finally, I'd like to show, not admitted, Government Exhibit 868, please Is this Mr McDonnell's schedule for November 22nd through 25th of 2012?

A Yes, it is

MS ABER: Move to admit Government Exhibit 868

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MS. ABER:

Q Let's look at the day after Thanksgiving, November 23rd of 2012 Are you aware that this is another date on which Mr McDonnell is alleged to have played golf at Kinloch?

A Yes

Q All right What is shown from eight a.m. to 11:30 p m.?

A "Do Not Schedule: Family Time "

Q No golf, no Kinloch, no Mr Williams?

A No

Q Have you compared this November 23rd schedule to the one-page Outlook calendar schedule?

A Yes, I have

Q How do they compare?

A Again, "Do Not Schedule: Family Time "

MS ABER: No further questions Thank you, Your Honor

THE COURT: Any questions, Mr Brownlee?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR BROWNLEE:

Q Agent Weber, good morning

A Good morning

Q My name is John Brownlee and I represent Bob McDonnell and I have some questions for you today. Just a couple things with regard to your testimony I believe you testified that you counted 41 dinners that Mr McDonnell had with his wife over 22 months; is that correct?

A It was not just dinners It was dinners, lunches, spa appointments, and personal or private time with Ms McDonnell

Q Okay So all of those, not just dinners, but dinners, lunches, over 22 months, so that comes out to about twice a month, correct?

A Correct

Q And you also testified, I believe, that the trip that was taken to Chatham up in Massachusetts, I believe you said you classified that as a personal weekend; is that correct?

A Yes, there were two categories There was business and work, and there was personal

Q So you evaluated that weekend and you said it was personal

A It was listed on the schedule as being a personal private weekend with Ms McDonnell

Q Not business

A It did not say business.

Q Okay But for your charts, just so I'm clear, you listed this as personal weekend

A Yes, I did.

Q Okay Great If we could bring up Page 2, if we can, of their charts Agent Weber, you created this pie chart; is that correct?

A I assisted in the creation of all these charts, yes

Q Okay And fair to say that the point of a pie chart is to give the reader some sense of the proportionality between certain events; is that correct?

A Yes

Q Okay And I think you have 721 total nights that you counted? Or days? Is that right?

A Nights Yes

Q So just nights, not days?

A I did not -- this depicts just the nights Yes

Q Okay And you have, having Governor McDonnell having 489 nights with his wife together in the Mansion; is that right?

A Yes

Q Okay And that comes out to about 67, 68 percent; is that correct?

A I don't know the percentage of the 489 divided by 721 off the top of my head

Q I've done the math If you will trust me, it is about that.

A I will defer

Q All right So 68 percent, 67 percent It is about two-thirds; is that correct?

A Yes

Q So the remaining would be about a third; is that right?

A Yes

Q Now, if you just kind of eyeball your chart here, those other nights look about a quarter as opposed to a third; would you agree with me? Just eyeballing it

A Yes

Q Okay So why don't we pull up -- and so when you prepared these charts, is it fair to say you did not prepare them to scale?

A It would appear that way, yes

Q Okay

MR BROWNLEE: If we could pull up RM-0369 All right, if we could just blow that one up just by itself If we could take -- just for the witness at this time Just itself, if we could. Thank you There we go.

BY MR. BROWNLEE:

Q If you could look at this one, this one is actually to scale It is fair to say that this is a better representation of the nights based on the percentages?

A Yes, although having them side by side, the nights that Mr McDonnell was out with Ms McDonnell and the nights that Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell are together in the Mansion appeared the same If you take the red and the blue, that matched the red and the blue on the other, even though this blue is smaller

Q But you have acknowledged yours isn't to scale, and the one in front of you is; is that right?

A I didn't create this chart But they are different

MR BROWNLEE: We would move in RM-0369

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR. BROWNLEE:

Q If we could just show them side by side very quickly The one on the right -- oops, that's not correct The one on the left is more accurate just based on how it is scaled; is that correct?

A Yes

Q Okay. Good enough. Let's move on. We can take that down. Thank you If we could go to the government's charts and look at Page 4 And did you create this chart as well?

A I assisted in the creation of all the charts

Q If we look at just the right-hand column, you've got 65 trips, particular trips, defined, 93 particular trips defined, and then 62 particular trips defined; is that correct?

A It is the nights on the trips, yes

Q All right But this isn't to scale, either; is that correct?

A No, this is not to scale It wasn't ever intended to be to scale

Q So when you have 65 work/political trips without Ms McDonnell and you compare that to the size of the block down for the 62 trips of personal, the 65 should actually be bigger, correct, Agent?

A Yes

Q Okay We can take that down Thank you Now, you have testified, Agent Weber, that one of the things you looked at was Ms McDonnell's calendars And I think if we just pull up Government Exhibit 276, this is a representation of her calendar And you relied on these types of calendars to make your charts; is that correct?

A That was one type of document I relied on, yes

Q In part

A Yes

Q Let me pull up RM-0365

A Maybe it is -0178 or -0179 in the middle of that, depending on what date you are going for

Q Do we not have that number? Okay, we will move along Okay, now, if you look at your main chart, we can take that down, thank you, if we look at Page 2 of their charts, you defined these in the blue section there as RFM and MM together in the Mansion; is that correct?

A Yes

Q Let me pull up for you RM-0178-0727 0178-0727 There we go Now, this is a calendar date for Bob McDonnell, and you have looked at some of these types of calendars for Governor McDonnell to build your chart, is that correct?

A I've looked at all of them.

MR. BROWNLEE: We would move in RM 0178-0727

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR BROWNLEE:

Q If we look down at the bottom of this, you can see, and if we could publish it, and if you can see that, Mr McDonnell is up in Northern Virginia towards the end of the day, and then he leaves Northern Virginia after 8 o'clock and gets back to the Executive Mansion around ten; is that correct?

A Yes

Q Okay And fair to say that you treated this evening as one of these, what you referred to as nights together in the Mansion between the McDonnells; is that right?

A Yes

Q Okay. Now, if we look at RM-0505-0021, okay, this is Ms McDonnell's calendar And if we look at the 27th, so she is in, appears to be in Richmond that day; is that correct?

A Yes

Q Okay So based upon that analysis, you stated that the McDonnells were together that evening in the Mansion; is that right?

A Yes Although Ms McDonnell's calendars are not as detailed as Mr McDonnell's And so generally I deferred to his, and if hers did not explicitly say that she was elsewhere --

Q Okay But for the purposes of your chart, this is the one, you counted this one as one that they were together in the Mansion.

A That would have been one of them, yes

Q Let's pull up RM-1075-0063 Now, I think we've got an extra zero there, Victoria 1075-0063 These are Mansion logs that have been introduced in this case, and this is -- does this appear to be a Mansion log for that same date, September 27th, 2011?

A Yes, it is

Q And if we look down at the last entry for the evening --

MR. BROWNLEE: We move into evidence, I believe it already is, but RM-1075-0063

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR BROWNLEE:

Q Can you see there, Agent, who appears to have stopped by the Governor's Mansion at about 8 o'clock that evening?

A The log is signed "Jonnie "

Q "Jonnie " And who is he there to see?

A "Guest of 102," Ms McDonnell

Q Okay And so while Governor McDonnell is out, up in Northern Virginia, it appears here that Mr Williams or somebody named Jonnie stopped by to see Ms McDonnell; is that correct?

A Yes, for six minutes

Q Okay All right Now, let me ask you that -- that's a good point you raise, Agent Did you, as part of your work on the case, go and talk to any of the people who worked the gate at the Governor's Mansion to confirm that Jonnie here left at 7:55 p.m.?

A No

Q So when you say "six minutes," that's based only upon whatever these logs say

A Correct

Q Let me ask you this as well: When you reviewed Ms McDonnell's calendars, were you aware that they don't track Ms McDonnell's comings and goings from the Governor's Mansion?

A Yes, I was aware

Q So if Ms McDonnell were to have left the Governor's Mansion, that wouldn't be reflected here

A No, it would not be

Q And it is not reflected on her calendar

A No, it was not

Q Okay Thank you You can take that down. Let's look at, bring up RM-0505-0023 Again, this is a calendar for Ms McDonnell Let's look at the 7th of November She seems to have a very full day; is that right?

A There appeared to be five events scheduled, yes

Q Okay And fair to say that she is in Richmond at least as of 1 p.m. It says a "working lunch with group" and it is Martin, Janet, Jim, Kristen, Kathy, seems to be in Richmond that day?

A Yes

Q Let's pull up RM-0178-0768 This is Mr McDonnell's calendar for that day Let's pull that up. And if we go back towards the end of the day, evening, it appears he is departing, looks like he has been in Tazewell County, Virginia; do you know where Tazewell County is?

A No, I don't

Q All right It is far Southwest Virginia And it looks like he departed back towards Executive Mansion and arrived home at about 11:30 p.m. Is that correct?

A Yes

Q Okay And you had -- but you classified this night as a night that Mr and Ms McDonnell were together in the Mansion.

A Yes To be clear, when I say "night," I meant overnight I wasn't, the "night" does not mean from five p.m. through ten p m. they were together in the Mansion. Nights is overnights

Q Okay So according to this, he got home at about 11:30, but you classified that as a night there at home together

A I classified it as a night spent in the Mansion. Overnight spent in the Mansion So yes, he arrived home, according to the schedule, at 11:30 p.m. and spent the night in the Mansion.

Q Let's pull up I want to make sure we are right

A According to the schedule

Q Pull up Page 2 of the pie chart, if we can. This is your chart; is that correct?

A Yes

Q And I believe you have RFM and MM together in the Mansion And what I asked you is, on November 7th, he got home at 11:30 p.m., but you still classified that as these two being in the Mansion together I'm just asking; is that right?

A Yes Nights overnight in the Mansion together

Q Okay Your pie chart doesn't say overnight It just says "together "

A Let me be clear It means overnight together

Q Fair enough. Let's go back to November 7th and let's pull up RM-0366-0038 These are the Mansion logs for November 7th, 2011 Let's look at the last entry for the day Evening Now, we just looked at Mr McDonnell's calendar, and he was in Tazewell

MR BROWNLEE: If we could admit RM-0366-0038, Your Honor?

THE COURT: It will be admitted.

BY MR. BROWNLEE:

Q And if we look at the last entry of the evening, who is stopping by the Mansion?

A The log lists Jonnie Williams

Q Okay And this time it is about twenty minutes?

A Approximately

Q And who was he to see?

A 102, Ms. McDonnell.

Q And again, you don't know if Ms McDonnell left the Mansion because they don't keep track of that

A No, I don't know

Q Okay We can take that down. Let me just pull up very quickly RM-0505-0034 Now, this is Ms McDonnell's calendar for October of 2012 And if you look at October 9th, for example, it is blank; is that correct?

A Yes, it is

Q So fair to say that based upon a review of this record, you, me, none of us know where she was that day

A Correct

Q But you would kind of discount that and only look at his, Mr McDonnell's, calendar to determine if you were going to classify a night together in the Mansion; is that right?

A Yes

Q Okay But the reality is, on the 9th, the 10th, the 24th, the 30th, we just have no idea where Ms McDonnell was; is that correct?

A That is correct Although it is my understanding that they lived in the Executive Mansion during the course of his tenure as Governor

Q Were you aware they had a home in Glen Allen, Virginia?

A Yes

Q Okay Were you aware that sometimes she stayed out there?

A No

Q So again, the 9th, the 10th, the 24th, the 30th, we just have no idea where she was

A Not based on the schedule, no.

Q But despite that, these nights are all reflected here as nights together in the Mansion.

A Yes

Q Okay Let's pull up -- I think Ms Aber touched on this briefly, let's pull up RM-0111

MR. BROWNLEE: This has been admitted, Your Honor

BY MR. BROWNLEE:

Q Now, in September, you have from your chart September 5th, 2011, you have classified that evening as RFM --

MR. BROWNLEE: I'm sorry, Your Honor, can we -- well, we will come back to that Excuse me

BY MR BROWNLEE:

Q You have classified the evening of September 5th, 2011 as a night RFM and MM were together in the Mansion; is that correct?

A Without seeing the schedules for that date, I don't know off the top of my head

Q Okay

MR. BROWNLEE: May I approach the witness, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Go ahead

(Document proffered to witness)

BY MR. BROWNLEE:

Q Is that your schedule, Agent?

A These are my notes, yes

Q Okay If you would look on your notes, September 5th, 2011, how did you classify that evening?

A That would have been classified as a night together in the Mansion.

Q Okay And as Ms Aber discussed, you have no idea what was going on inside the Mansion at that time

A No

Q So the word "together" is kind of a broad term; is that fair to say?

A Yes, they are physically -- what I meant by "together" is, based on the schedules, physically located in the Mansion overnight

Q Okay You can take that down. Now, let me bring up RM-0391. And this has been admitted, Your Honor, if we could publish this Now, this is an e-mail from Mr McDonnell Mr McDonnell to Martin, Tucker, who works with him. And this is an e-mail that's time stamped about ten minutes until 9 p.m. And of course this is Valentine's Day, correct?

A Yes

Q Okay So fair to say, when looking at this chart, you again have this evening as Mr. and Ms. McDonnell together in the Mansion, but in reality, he is apparently working

MS ABER: Objection, Your Honor This e-mail isn't in evidence

MR. BROWNLEE: We will take it down We will move along

BY MR BROWNLEE:

Q Let me bring up RM-0398 All right, if you could see that, this is an e-mail from Martin, Tucker -- from Bob McDonnell to Martin, Tucker and Martin Kent discussing work that's to be done the following day Time stamp is 9:36 You have this classified, I believe, as a date in which the McDonnells are together in the Mansion, but from this e-mail, pretty clear that Governor McDonnell was working at that time

A Based on the e-mail, it would appear so

Q Okay We can take that down Can we pull up RM-0179-0049? This is Governor McDonnell's schedule, and this is in evidence, for this date It is a Saturday If you will go down to the bottom. First of all, do you have February 18th, 2012 classified as a night that the McDonnells are home together?

A I have it classified as a night that Mr McDonnell is in the Mansion. Without seeing Ms McDonnell's schedule, off the top of my head I could not tell you

Q If we look at this, it appears that Mr McDonnell is in Kansas City, Missouri, and he is departing there at 9:30 p.m. and arrives back into Richmond at about midnight Is that correct?

A Yes

Q Okay And according to your chart here, you've got them at home in the Mansion together that night

A Overnight, yes

Q But he is not even getting home until midnight; is that correct?

A Based on the schedule, that is correct

Q Okay, fair enough Let look at RM-0179-0298 If we look down at the bottom, this evening, Mr McDonnell is in Des Moines, Iowa And again, he arrives back into Richmond at about midnight But according to your schedule, he and Ms McDonnell are home together in the Mansion; is that correct?

A Overnight, yes

Q Okay. Let's look at RM-0178-0743. Here, he was in Mississippi and arrives back home at around 11 p.m. You still -- this evening, you have him classified as being home together in the Mansion with his wife, correct?

A Overnight, yes

Q Okay Let's look at RM-0178-0750

MR. BROWNLEE: We should be publishing these These are all in evidence, Your Honor, I'm sorry

THE COURT: It will be admitted

BY MR BROWNLEE:

Q Again, the Governor was in Mississippi and arrives back to the Executive Mansion about 11 p.m.; is that correct?

A Based on the schedule, yes

Q And once again, this is one of the evenings you had for your chart classified that Mr and Ms McDonnell were together in the Mansion?

A Overnight, yes

Q Let's pull up RM-0178-0768 This is November 7th, 2011 If we look at the schedule for Mr McDonnell, he is out in Southwest Virginia and arrives back home at about 11:30 p.m.; is that correct?

A Based on the schedule, yes

Q And again, you had him at home together with his wife in the Mansion, correct?

A Overnight, yes

Q Let's pull up RM-0178-0798, Mr McDonnell's schedule for December 7th, 2011 He is up in McLean, Virginia, and arrives back to the Executive Mansion, according to his schedule, at about ten minutes until midnight Is that correct?

A Based on the schedule, yes

Q And this is another night that you had listed on your chart as RFM and -- Mr and Ms McDonnell together in the Mansion

A Overnight, yes

Q Let's look at RM-0179-0051 Oops, 0051 It should be February 20th If we pull up the bottom of Mr McDonnell's schedule, he was in Grand Rapids, Michigan, arriving back at the Governor's Mansion about 11:25 p.m. on February 20th, 2012; is that correct, according to the schedule?

A Based on the schedule, yes

Q Again, that's an evening you classified on your chart as Mr and Ms McDonnell being together in the Mansion, right?

A Overnight, yes

Q Let's pull up 0579-0115 April 24th, 2012 Mr McDonnell is in Indiana, and arrives back to Richmond a little after 11 p.m.; is that correct? According to the schedule?

A Yes

Q And once again, this is an evening you had classified as Mr and Ms McDonnell together in the Mansion; is that correct?

A Overnight, yes

Q Let's look up RM-0179-0150 May 29th, 2012 Look down at the end of the page Again, Mr McDonnell here was in Wisconsin, arrives back to the Governor's Mansion at around 11:25 p.m.; is that correct?

A Based on the schedule, yes

Q And again, this is another evening you had classified for purposes of your chart that Mr and Ms McDonnell were home together in the Mansion; is that correct?

A Overnight, yes

MR. BROWNLEE: I'll end there Thanks, Judge

THE COURT: All right Mr Burck?

MR BURCK: No questions, Your Honor

THE COURT: Way to go Anything else from the government?

MS ABER: Yes, Your Honor

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MS ABER:

Q Special Agent Weber, I'd like to bring back up 870-2, please, the demonstrative for the jury Special Agent Weber, did you freehand draw this chart?

A No

Q Okay Did you participate in the use of Excel, Microsoft Excel to try to make this chart?

A Yes

Q Did you try to mislead the jury with the proportionality of this chart?

A No

Q To the best of your knowledge, based on your review of the schedules, are the numbers accurate?

A The numbers are accurate

Q Mr Brownlee went through, I don't know, 15, 20 nights in which Mr McDonnell, according to his schedule, retired to the Mansion late at night, right?

A Yes

Q If you subtract 20 from 489, generously, where does that take you?

A 469

Q Out of the total how many nights in that time period?

A 721

Q And previously, 480 nights in 700 -- excuse me, shouldn't do math on the fly -- I'll leave it at that

Okay Changing topics entirely: Let's bring up Government Exhibit 411, please, which has been admitted Do you recognize this schedule, ma'am, if we could scroll down?

A Yes, I do

Q What is it for?

A For the Chatham Bars Inn weekend.

Q If we could stop there Why did you characterize or categorize this weekend as personal as opposed to work or political trip?

A Because it says, "Private weekend with Ms McDonnell "

Q Finally, I'd like to bring up Government Exhibit 862, please, which has been admitted. If we zoom in on the top half, please. Special Agent, this is an e-mail chain between the defendants on May 8th, 2011 Do you know where Mr and Ms McDonnell were located on this date?

A Yes, I do

Q Where were they?

A Well, generally, Mr McDonnell was on the international marketing mission to Japan and China and Ms McDonnell was still in the United States, in Richmond.

Q So did you count them as together in the Mansion or did you count them as separate and apart?

A Separate and apart

Q If you had evidence that one defendant was staying elsewhere, like at the Leabrook house or down the street, would you have included that in your calculations?

A I would have If I had definitive evidence that they were not together, I did not count it

MS ABER: One moment, Your Honor Nothing further Thank you

THE COURT: All right Thank you, ma'am. You may stand down.

(Witness stood aside)

Anything else from the government?

MR. DRY: Your Honor, the United States rests

THE COURT: Okay. As I told you yesterday, what's going to happen today, I'm going to release you all now and have you come in tomorrow I'd like for you to come in at 9:30 We've got -- the arguments will start tomorrow, and that involves each of the parties have an argument, and the government has a rebuttal So there are four arguments coming from the parties Obviously, this case has been of some length, and there's a lot of material to cover, so these arguments will be a little bit longer than the norm. So I want to make sure that we get all of these arguments in tomorrow

So just a little bit earlier start might help us there, if you don't mind. I know some of you are coming from far, but it is just 15 minutes If you could get here at 9:30, and we are going to try to be ready I have a couple other things on my calendar I don't know where these things are coming from, but they just pop up But I'll try to get rid of those So at 9:30, if nobody has a real problem with that 9:30 Great We will see you tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. Have a good evening

Let me give you this warning once again And I want you to be specially vigilant now as we are getting toward the end. Please, do not review any media items relating to this case, and do not engage in social media, any of that kind of stuff, involving this case Please be very, very careful at this point We want to get this thing completed and in good order

Don't discuss the case with anyone or allow anyone to discuss it with you We are going to try to take care of this legal work today so that we will be ready for you tomorrow We will see you at 9:30

All right, defendants, you want to renew your motions on the record just to get that out of the way, and then I'll explain to you what our schedule will be for the rest of today

MR. BURNHAM: Yes, Your Honor, we would like to renew our motion for judgment of acquittal

THE COURT: All right

MR. NEWMAN: We have something that's ready to file, Your Honor, if you prefer to see anything in briefing

THE COURT: That would be what, Motion Number 39?

THE ATTORNEY: You are on track, Your Honor Yes, sir, it would be

THE COURT: There is no point in putting in that kind of time on it If you have something additional that you want to say, but it is basically just another standard here So if you want to make your motion and rely on what you have already said or if you had something new, I'd be glad to hear it

MR. NEWMAN: Yes, we are going rely on our official acts argument, which we have briefed at length repeatedly, so I know you are very familiar with that We are going to renew also our arguments that judgment of acquittal should be granted on the false statement charges, Counts Twelve and Thirteen We had argument on that a couple weeks ago, so you are familiar with those as well

We also, and this is an argument we raised in our initial motion to dismiss, we didn't raise it in our first motion for judgment of acquittal, but again we want to raise the argument that both the Hobbs Act and the honest services fraud statute are unconstitutionally vague on their face, and as applied in this case, given the government's position on what constitutes an official act, so we want to renew those arguments

And we will make one additional argument, Your Honor, and that is that the Hobbs Act charges, Counts Five through Eleven, should also be thrown out because the government has failed to satisfy its burden on the jurisdictional element The government has to put forward evidence showing a realistic probability that this alleged illicit scheme has affected interstate commerce, and there has been virtually no evidence on that in the record. The four counts, four of the counts pertain to loans and gifts from Mr Williams' trust, not from Star Scientific, but from the trust to Cailin, the $15,000 wedding gift, a $50,000 loan to Maureen, and $70,000 worth of loans to MoBo But there has been no evidence that establishes that this trust engages in any sort of interstate commercial activity, and it is more akin to a personal bank account

And the Fourth Circuit has held that extorting money to be devoted to personal use from an individual does not affect interstate commerce So at least those counts should be thrown out

On Counts Nine and Ten, this has to do with the Kinloch greens fees, but I'm not aware of any evidence that the greens fees affect interstate commerce in any way. The only thing that the government appears to have put forward on interstate commerce is the testimony of Mr Perito, who talked about Star Scientific and how it has offices, you know, in other states and manufacturing facilities in other states and it sells Anatabloc nationwide You know, he commented on how the Governor's, you know, endorsement might somehow affect their sales But when he did so, he said it would affect their sales in Virginia There was no real testimony, no evidence, really, that suggests that this scheme would affect interstate commerce So we would also ask for judgment of acquittal on Counts Five through Eleven as well

THE COURT: All right Thank you Mr Burck?

MR BURCK: We renew our motion

THE COURT: Thank you. Government?

MR. FAULCONER: Yes, Your Honor Just briefly on the interstate, I'll rely on our other arguments for everything but the interstate commerce point The only thing I'll raise on that one is that Mr Newman is incorrect about what the law is on that

If you look at our proposed Jury Instruction Number 55, our proposed jury instruction is that the effect on interstate need only be slight and it need not be adverse, proof that the extortion under color of official right would have affected interstate commerce, even if minimally, and even if positively, is sufficient And in one case in particular that I think is particularly on point for that is UNITED STATES v TAYLOR, 966 F 2d 830, opinion cite, 836 And essentially there, Your Honor, the point of all that is that what the law says clearly is that under the Hobbs Act, if the goal of the official acts that are to be performed as part of the agreement would affect interstate commerce, then that's enough

And what's pretty clear here is that Mr Williams was flying all over the country trying to promote this product and that, had he gotten those studies, he would have continued to do it So I think it is pretty clear on the record that there is enough evidence from which a reasonable jury could infer that the goal of this scheme would have affected interstate commerce And it doesn't have to be negative or anything like that If it was a positive effect on interstate commerce, that's enough for that element Thank you, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right. The motions will be denied.

This is what I am going to do I'm not quite finished -- I was in here early this morning -- but I made some changes But I want you all to wait around I'm going to get these things through within minutes, thirty minutes at the most, and then provide the proposed instructions to you. Why don't we do this: Let's come back together at 3 o'clock this afternoon That should be plenty of time for you all to go over it I'm sure it may not be enough time for you to rattle off more documents, but it is enough time for you to digest these instructions, make your objections

And the way I do this, just to make sure everybody understands it, I go through and try as best I can to put together the instructions I feel that will be appropriate Sometimes, and I'll tell you this when we get to them, it might be optional For instance, you know, the instruction on failure of defendant to testify Counsel will get that option. And there may be a couple of things that I might have some question about, and I just want to hear argument, and then I'll decide But for the most part, it is basically you are objecting to what I have proposed, and if your objection is a good one, then I may take it out, I may not But that's the process So it cuts down. And then the real meat of it is, if you have something that you want me to include, then you propose that and we discuss it

So 3 o'clock. That should give you plenty of time and that should give us plenty of time for this conference, the way I do it

MR. DRY: Would it be possible when we get the instructions for the Court to inform us about which specific instructions it wants to hear argument from the parties on?

THE COURT: No, no I'm not going to do that Just understand that the vast majority of these that I propose have already -- I've already vetted it, I've thought about it, I've read the cases If it is in there, more than likely I am married to it But again, I can be talked out of it That's why we have these discussions All right?

MR. ASBILL: Judge, will the jury get a copy of the written instructions?

THE COURT: They will get copies I usually give them four or five copies of these instructions so that they can have them to review if they like

MR. ASBILL: Thank you, sir

THE COURT: All right.

(Recess taken from 11:05 a.m. to 3:05 p.m.)

THE COURT: All right. I have a new 51

Okay All right. Before we get started, would counsel, just on the record, waive the appearance of their clients.

MR BURCK: Yes, Your Honor We waive Maureen McDonnell's appearance, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right

MR BROWNLEE: John Brownlee for Bob McDonnell We waive his appearance as well

THE COURT: All right

All right Let's get started with these instructions We'll do it this way Let's -- let me hear from the government

MR FAULCONER: Thank you, Your Honor

Your Honor, just for -- to make sure I go through this in the right order, do you just want me to go through any -- all of the things that we flagged?

THE COURT: Right Any -- any objections that you have, you make those known Any suggestions that you have, we'll follow

MR FAULCONER: Certainly And, Your Honor, I think -- just to give you a sense of what I'll go through, I think we have roughly in the range of six to seven substantive areas, three to four wording tweak issues, and then two of our instructions that weren't included that we wanted to talk about

MR. FAULCONER: The -- going through the Court's instructions first The first one that we wanted to just address was Instruction Number 8 And this is the instruction for character for untruthfulness, going to the credibility of a witness From our perspective, there was no such evidence offered at trial in terms of bad character evidence for any particular witness

There was certainly good character evidence for Mr McDonnell offered, but we don't think there was any appropriately foundation laid sort of evidence of that type So we'd ask that that one be removed Number 8

Going next to what is a very much minor wording tweak Instruction Number 17 This is the one involving expert witnesses There's a portion in brackets down towards the fourth line at the bottom where it says, "Including that of other nonexpert [or expert] witnesses " We'd just ask that the part in brackets be removed because there was only one expert witness in the case, and so that part is unnecessary, in our view

THE COURT: Right

MR FAULCONER: The next one, Your Honor, is Instruction Number 20 And this is the one about consideration of co-defendant's conduct in the absence of a conspiracy And I think this is mostly a wording tweak But just to clarify, we would suggest that there be some references to the counts entered into this instruction just to make it clear for the jury

Specifically, what we'd ask is that at the end of the sentence on the fourth line, that it be added to say -- sorry So that the sentence would read, "If you find Robert McDonnell not guilty of conspiracy to commit honest services fraud as charged in Count One " So add in, "As charged in Count One." And then comma, then go on to "consider" -- "then you cannot consider any of Maureen McDonnell's conduct in determining whether Robert McDonnell committed honest services fraud " And then insert, we'd ask, "In Counts Two through Four "

And then similarly, in the next sentence, we'd ask that the count references be added so that it reads, "Likewise, if you find Robert McDonnell not guilty of conspiracy to commit extortion under color of official right, as charged in Count Five, then you cannot consider," and go on as it's written To then add at the end, "In Counts Six through Eleven " So in our view, that's mostly just a clarification, but we thought that might aid the jury a bit there

The next one from us, Your Honor, is another wording tweak And we think this might have originated from something that we did not clarify in our request instructions, and that is in the fourth element in Instruction Number 29 for honest services wire fraud, the second line, it says, "The defendants transmitted " We would ask that that be changed to read, "The defendant you are considering transmitted or caused to be transmitted," given the two defendants in the separate counts

THE COURT: Okay Where are we now? Twenty-nine and --

MR FAULCONER: Yes This is Instruction Number 29, the fourth element where it refers to defendants in the plural, we'd ask that be changed to read, "The defendant you are considering " So, essentially, it will match the format of the first and the second element

THE COURT: Okay

MR FAULCONER: The next one, Your Honor, is Instruction Number 32 And this one is slightly more substantive, but I -- I think, in essence, what our concern here is is making sure that it's not confusing to the jury And the only sentence that we have any concern with is the second sentence in the first paragraph And that's the one that references the defendant in the proper sense, in terms of "that the defendant demanded" or "that the defendant was, at the time, a public official "

If we look at Instruction Number 31, which is the one right before it, which we agree is an accurate statement of the law, Instruction Number 31 clarifies, which is accurate, in the last paragraph that "a defendant need not be a fiduciary or public official to be guilty of this offense," and it goes on to say that a private citizen can if they participate in it

And so what we'd suggest, on Instruction Number 32 -- because, obviously, Jonnie Williams or Ms McDonnell could scheme with somebody or even on their own to commit bribery, we'd ask that Instruction Number 32 be changed to read, "Bribery means that a public official demanded, sought or received something of value as described in the indictment " And then change it to read, "That is, in return for being influenced in the performance of any official act "

MR FRANCISCO: Can you go over the change I'm sorry, Ryan

MR FAULCONER: Sure I guess the sentence that we'd ask replace the second sentence there would simply read, "Bribery means that a public official demanded, sought or received something of value as described in the indictment; that is, in return for being influenced in the performance of any official act "

I will note, obviously, that I did omit the word "corruptly" from what I just said We don't have a problem with corruptly being included there, but we do have an issue with the corruptly instruction that I'll get to in just a moment

So was I clear enough on that one?

THE COURT: No You were clear But I'd appreciate if you'd write that down

MR FAULCONER: Okay Certainly, Your Honor

MS ABER: Here Use my version

MR FAULCONER: Thank you

And, Your Honor, if I could hand this up, I think I probably should have just done this in the first place

And all it is, Noel, just so you have it, is simply, "Public official; that is "

MR FRANCISCO: May I just make a note before this is handed up, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Sure Sure

MR FAULCONER: Thank you, Your Honor

Your Honor, moving to the next instruction This is the corruptly instruction, Number 33 Our concern with this one is entirely the last sort of portion of the instruction where it says, "Accomplishing an unlawful end or unlawful result by any unlawful method or means " Our concern there is that that starts to sound like an awful lot like a willfully instruction in terms of requiring some sort of knowledge of the law

What we'd ask that Your Honor instruct instead is to use the instruction that was used in JEFFERSON with respect to corrupt intent, and that is, "To act corruptly, as used in these instructions, means to act knowingly and honestly for a wrongful purpose "

And I think on that one, what sort of drives that home, Your Honor, is that -- for example, in the obstruction count, we also have a corruptly element And, essentially, there what that ends up requiring is, as it's in the elements that we have later on in the instructions, is that you act to impede the official proceeding, that you do something wrongful And we think that that's a little bit more confined to requiring that it actually be for a wrongful purpose and not that there be some sort of knowledge of law specifically as it applies to the particular statute

Does Your Honor want a copy of that JEFFERSON instruction?

THE COURT: Yes

MR FAULCONER: I don't know if you guys want to write this down

And I have the transcript cite from JEFFERSON that I can give to opposing counsel when we need it.

MR TAYLOR: Ryan, can you give it to us now?

MR FAULCONER: Sure It's Docket No 684 in

JEFFERSON, Page 35 of 143, and lines 18 through 20

THE COURT: All right

MR FAULCONER: Your Honor, our next concern that we wanted to address is with Instruction Number 42 And with respect to Number 42, our concern here is similar to one that we raised earlier, and that is that this instruction would be in tension with the Instruction Number 31 And that is that -- again, Instruction 31, and the law is clear that you need not be a public official in order to be convicted of either conspiracy or of the substantive offense

We wouldn't -- it is correct that as First Lady of Virginia, Defendant Maureen G McDonnell was not a public official and did not have a duty of honest services to the citizens of Virginia But then it goes on to say, "As such, she cannot be guilty of the crime of honest services wire fraud in her own right "

In our view, that would be slightly inaccurate, and we would suggest that it -- if that sentence were to be given, it would read, "As such, she cannot be guilty of the crime of depriving the public of her honest services " Because she can be guilty of the crime of depriving the public of another's honest services; that is, Mr McDonnell's

I've been advised to slow down, Your Honor, and I will attempt to do that

In addition, Your Honor, when we go down to the second paragraph of that instruction, it indicates that she can only be found guilty of a substantive offense if you find that she conspired with Mr. McDonnell We would object to that paragraph being included And our reasoning is fairly straightforward, which is that she could scheme to deprive the public of honest services; that is, the three substantive counts, without having to scheme with anybody else It's a basic wire fraud count And somebody could, on their own, scheme to deprive the public of somebody else's honest services

In addition, the jury need not find that she conspired with Mr McDonnell, merely that she conspired with somebody, and that could be a finding of a conspiracy with Mr Williams even if it didn't include Mr. McDonnell in there And so, in essence, our issue with that one is that there's no requirement of a finding of guilt on a conspiracy to have a finding of guilt on a substantive wire fraud count, and so we'd ask that that paragraph not be included

And in -- at the end of the day, I think our recommendation would be that this instruction be simply omitted in its entirety, but we -- as I stated earlier, we have no problem with the first paragraph of the instruction if it's amended to clarify that, "As such, she cannot be guilty of the crime of depriving the public of her honest services "

And just to clarify slightly further, we don't have any problem with the third paragraph of this instruction in terms of -- it seems a bit out of place to us in terms of being in responsibility for the substantive offense But we do agree that that third paragraph is an accurate statement of the law

Our concern that we had with the second paragraph, though, translates over into the fourth paragraph in terms of requiring a conspiracy finding in order to have a substantive offense finding

And then that same concern would go on to the second page of that -- of that instruction So we would ask that that second page be removed as well

In addition, Your Honor, one last point on that one, which is that there is an aiding and abetting instruction included later on, and that's another theory of liability where she could be convicted of aiding and abetting the substantive offense without having to necessarily have conspired to commit the substantive offense

MR FAULCONER: The next one, Your Honor, goes all the way to Instruction Number 61 And our concern here is not with the existence of a good faith instruction We would simply ask that one sentence from the O'Malley pattern instruction be added to this instruction And that sentence reads, "A defendant does not act in, quote, good faith, end quote, if, even though he or she honestly holds a certain opinion or belief, that defendant also knowingly makes false or fraudulent pretenses, representations or promises to others." And that's the sentence that is the third paragraph of the pattern O'Malley Instruction 47:16 for good faith

THE COURT: All right

MR FAULCONER: The next one, Your Honor, is Instruction Number 64 And this is the -- the willfully instruction And our point here is, I think, fairly simple, which is that -- it says, "The term willfully is used in these instructions " There is no other willfully in the instructions anywhere It's not in any of the statutes It's not a required element So we'd simply ask that be removed Not for any inaccuracy in it, but simply because it's not applicable to this case

And then, Your Honor, with respect to Instruction Number 68, this is the last of the Court's instructions that we wanted to address And with respect to Instruction Number 68, we're not aware, based on the record as it stands, of any evidence that was admitted solely against one defendant Obviously, it's something that could have happened, but there were no requests for limiting instructions or evidence admitted solely against one defendant that we're aware of

So while we don't object to the legal principle in the second paragraph there, similar to a few of the others, we don't think it's necessary, given the record that we have

THE COURT: All right

MR FAULCONER: And then, Your Honor, we had two additions to the jury instructions that were in our requested instructions that we'd ask that the Court go ahead and include And we spent some time trying to make sure we went through to be judicious about which ones we're requesting here

The first is government's proposed Instruction Number 40 And this is the instruction on bribery being sufficient if you show a course of conduct This is, essentially, Your Honor, the "these for these" course of conduct as-needed basis instruction I have a copy here of the similar instruction that was given in JEFFERSON, and this is for opposing counsel's reference, same Docket No 684 And this is Pages 59 and 60 are where those are located

Your Honor, the proposed instruction that -- that we put in our jury instructions here is taken straight out of JEFFERSON and JENNINGS And the instruction that was given in JEFFERSON was based on JENNINGS, and I think in our motion to dismiss, we -- I think we did some sort of citation to about 15 or 20 cases in which this instruction has been given in situations where you do have -- and I think it's important in a case like this, where you do have a whole stream of things of value and then a whole stream of alleged official acts; that it's important that the jury understand you don't need to match up, okay, it's this check for this official act, or this Ferrari ride for this meeting, or this loan for this particular event at the Mansion But you can look at the whole course of conduct and say it's a stream of these for a stream of those

And I think two points worth making on this, Your Honor, that are really why I think, in many ways, what including this instruction does is make things clearer for the jury is that in Instruction Number 21 -- and this is -- that is the nature of the offense charged, and that is taken straight out of the indictment The last three lines in Instruction Number 21 have, essentially, that same language included [illegible] describing the purpose of the conspiracy; that it was "to perform official actions on an as-needed basis as opportunities arose to legitimize, promote, and obtain research studies for Star Scientific's products "

So that really is the theory that's alleged here, and we think that this instruction -- it's not long It's, again, straight out of the case law We didn't, you know, add anything or try to tweak anything And specifically, Your Honor, even if you were looking to potentially try and cut this down at all, the most important part is the second half of this, starting with "in other words," that it can be "these for these," not just "this for that " It doesn't need to be a set number

But we think this instruction really, of all the requests that we're making here today, is the most important from our perspective because it is something that we'll be arguing to the jury, and we don't want it to necessarily be in -- on any sort of light ground with the Court on that

Oh, and yes, Your Honor If I can hand up the JEFFERSON one We've highlighted the portion on the first page and the second page that has that on there

MR FRANCISCO: Can I just take a look?

MR FAULCONER: Sure

And, Your Honor, one thing worth confirming on that one is that that opportunities arose instruction wasn't just given by the District Court in JEFFERSON It was specifically reviewed by the Fourth Circuit in JEFFERSON and used as part of the reason for why the -- all of the other instructions were okay in terms of intent And so we think that it helps provide some additional support to the record in terms of making sure that there's no confusion about what was required

And, Your Honor, the cite on the Fourth Circuit opinion for the review of that instruction is 674 F 3d 332 at Page 359 And there's a block quote with that, with that instruction right there And it's also applicable to the -- to the extortion under color of official right statute But if it's included here, then it's sufficient

And one moment on that, Your Honor, just to make sure I addressed everything

THE COURT: Sure

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FAULCONER: Okay And then, Your Honor, the last issue that we wanted to raise affirmatively is that we'd also ask the Court to include our proposed Instruction Number 24, and that is the deliberate ignorance instruction

We -- we did a little bit of research on the good faith instruction, and it's our view that the good faith instruction isn't required We're fine with it in this case But we think that as a matter of fairness, given the record that if there's a good faith instruction included, that there should also be the deliberate ignorance instruction included, especially given Mr McDonnell's repeated statements during his direct and cross-examination that, you know, "Well, I didn't just" -- "I didn't ask about that I didn't probe about that I didn't look into that Well, I just didn't open that " We think that that's something that the jury needs to know; that deliberate ignorance is something that they can consider in terms of inferring the appropriate knowledge requirement

And so, Your Honor, those are the only two that, from our instructions that were not adopted by the Court, that we'd ask for, and then those -- the other ones that we addressed in the Court's instructions which, on the whole, we -- we do not have any significant legal issues with Mostly just clarifications

And if I may have one moment

THE COURT: Sure.

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FAULCONER: If Your Honor has any questions, I'm happy to address them Otherwise, that's all we have, at this point at least

THE COURT: I'm good Thank you

MR FAULCONER: Thank you, Your Honor

MR FRANCISCO: Good afternoon, Your Honor
Noel Francisco --

THE COURT: Good afternoon.

MR FRANCISCO: -- for Mr McDonnell

Boy, I haven't read that quickly in a long time, and I apologize in advance, but I may have a little bit more to talk about than the government had to talk about

I'll do the same thing and sort of take the Court's instructions seriatim and note where we have objections and suggestions And then at the end of that, I'll address the two new instructions that the government has asked you to include But let me bottom line it We think the Court got it right by not including those in the first place The government, in our view, got a lot of what it was asking for here and, in our view, doesn't really need those additional instructions, but I'll address them more specifically later

Then finally, I'll talk about a handful of instructions that we would ask the Court to add

So to begin with the Court's instructions, we'll have about 24 to go through Some will be more substantive than others Some I'll make a longer objection that will be applicable to a whole series of instructions, if that is okay with Your Honor

THE COURT: That's fine

MR FRANCISCO: The first objection goes to Instruction Number 4 and the definition of reasonable doubt We believe that this instruction is incomplete and, therefore, legally erroneous, particularly focusing on the first two sentences of the second paragraph "While the burden of proof is a strict or heavy burden, it is not necessary that the defendants be proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt It is only required that the proof by the United States exclude any reasonable doubt concerning defendant's guilt "

We think that if you're going to say what the government doesn't have to prove, you ought to also say what the government does have to prove And, therefore, we would ask that you add back into the model instruction the definition of what reasonable doubt actually is

And that is set forth in our defense Instruction Number 9 I can read that to the Court, or I can just refer it to the Court

THE COURT: No, you don't have to read it And, really, I think we can save some time You know, I appreciate you going through each one of these things, but if -- as in this case, if I have decided to provide this particular format, that means that I looked at what you --

MR FRANCISCO: Sure

THE COURT: -- provided, and I've rejected it

So you don't really have to make an objection. I know what you want And on this kind of thing, it's --

MR FRANCISCO: I under- --

THE COURT: -- just to save this time Because, obviously, we have a completely different opinion about that And this particular instruction has been tried, tested many times in the Fourth Circuit And so --

MR FRANCISCO: Understood, Your Honor With the Court's indulgence, at least on many of these, I probably will make my objection for the record

THE COURT: Just -- if you just want to do it for the record

MR FRANCISCO: Yeah Sure

THE COURT: But don't spend a whole lot of time on it because we know --

MR FRANCISCO: Got it

The one other thing I'd ask, then, is that if you're not going to include the definition, we would prefer to have those two sentences that I just read deleted from the instruction

THE COURT: All right

MR FRANCISCO: So moving along to Instruction Number 7, credibility of witnesses Here we believe this is incomplete, and object on that ground And in particular, there was language in our proposal that was also in the government's, at least similar language in the government's that we would like added back in And if you were to turn to our proposed Instruction Number 28, the third paragraph, it talks about "inconsistencies or discrepancies in the testimony of a witness or between the testimony of different witnesses may or may not cause you to disbelieve or discredit such testimony," and then there are several more sentences to that paragraph, which I won't read to the Court

As you know, here there was some evidence of where different witnesses had different recollections of the same meeting And so we think that paragraph should be added back in

Oh, the government asked that Instruction Number 8 be removed, credibility of witness, character for untruthfulness, on the ground that there has been no evidence put forward that any particular witness has bad character for truthfulness

We would strongly reject that assertion We think there's been substantial evidence on that score with respect to Mr Williams, the government's chief witness And, therefore, we think that this instruction is critical and would ask that be it maintained

THE COURT: All right Just a second

On your Number 28, you're referencing the third paragraph?

MR FRANCISCO: Yes, Your Honor, beginning with the words "inconsistencies or discrepancies," the third paragraph

THE COURT: Okay.

MR FRANCISCO: Instruction Number 12, immunized witness testimony We would object to this on, one ground, that we think that it's incomplete We would ask that a particular sentence be added in that's in the Sand model instructions but that was not in the government's proposed instruction And I'll read that sentence to the Court I think it could just be added to the very end of the first paragraph "For such a witness confronted with the realization that he can win his freedom by helping to convict anc her has a motive to falsify his testimony Such testimony should be received by you with suspicion, and you may give it such weight, if any, as you believe it deserves " So we would ask that that language be added back into this instruction, as set forth in the model instructions

May I consult with counsel for a moment?

THE COURT: Sure

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FRANCISCO: Your Honor, on Instruction Number 17, the government, I believe, recommended deleting the bracketed phrase "or expert " We're fine with that

May I have one more moment? I apologize

THE COURT: Sure Take your time

MR FRANCISCO: This was a rapid fire exercise for us

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FRANCISCO: Instruction Number 19, Your Honor We object to this instruction on the ground that it is irrelevant and, therefore, legally erroneous here We do not believe -- this is the instruction with regards to false exculpatory statements

THE COURT: Right

MR FRANCISCO: We don't believe there's any evidence that Mr McDonnell made any false exculpatory statements here and, therefore, object to this on that ground and request that it be excluded

THE COURT: Let me stop you there for a second, because this is one that I wanted some debate on

Let me hear from the government on 19

MR FAULCONER: One moment, Your Honor

Your Honor, we do think that this instruction is appropriate in this case for a couple of different reasons First off, with respect to Ms McDonnell, she did make some statements during the interview with law enforcement about having a written contract and making payments and those sorts of things

For Mr McDonnell, the PenFed application that was sent in listing out the loans on February 18th, after the interview with his wife by law enforcement, that was attempting to say, "Oh, yes I am disclosing these loans at this time," and that was -- we don't think -- we think it would apply to those

In addition -- one second

THE COURT: Uh-huh

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FAULCONER: And, Your Honor, I think, perhaps most importantly, are some of the false exculpatory statements that were made by Mr McDonnell to his staff after the investigation was revealed to the public in terms of some of the conversations that are in the record with, I believe, Tucker Martin and Martin Kent after the investigation broke in the media in terms of saying that, you know, the -- some of the reasons for some of the interactions with Mr McDonnell

I think with Martin Kent specifically, there was a statement about going to the Governor and saying, "Hey, did this" -- "did this loan have anything to do with credit card debt?" And he said something to the effect of, "No No It doesn't have to do with credit card debt," the $50,000 loan And as the evidence has come in, obviously, 20,000 of that went to credit card debt, and Mr McDonnell knew it

And I think there were a couple of similar statements to Tucker Martin. And so from that perspective, we think that this instruction would be appropriate

THE COURT: All right

MR FRANCISCO: Thank you, Your Honor. We continue to believe that this instruction is inappropriate The -- in order for this instruction to apply, the statement has to be clearly false The government has given two assertions with respect to Mr McDonnell, neither of which possibly satisfies that standard

The statements on the PedFed, they weren't false exculpatory statements We don't think they were false at all But at best, they were simply forms that he filled out They weren't exculpatory statements that he was trying to make in order to exculpate himself from any wrongdoing

Secondly, the statements to the staff -- and also on that one, they weren't clearly false I mean, our view is that they weren't required to be on the forms in the first place, as we heard testimony from So they don't satisfy that standard

As to the statements to staff, again, we don't think they were clearly false at all And, in fact, the staff members testified that they didn't believe that Mr McDonnell ever had lied to them

So, again, we don't think that these are -- these are -- could possibly be false exculpatory statements that would warrant the inclusion of this kind of instruction

I think the same principles would apply to Ms McDonnell, but I will allow her counsel to address that, if Your Honor would like

THE COURT: Sure

Mr Burck

MR BURCK: Thank you, Your Honor Just briefly. Your Honor, the statements in the interview that was -- that were -- I think the government is alleging as being false exculpatorie were that she had a written contract, that she was making periodic payments, and I think that Jonnie Williams was a long-time friend of her husband I may be forgetting one

But our view is that the charge here is that the loan itself, it's a loan payment, whatever it is If it's a written contract, oral contract, whatever it is, it's still a thing of value that is part of this conspiracy

So the fact that she's alleged to have said that it was a -- it was a written contract versus a contract or that there were periodic payments being made on it, we don't think that's material to the issue of whether or not it's a false exculpatory Because, again, it wouldn't actually be exculpatory from their view It would still be a crime. If it was a written contract, if all these things were actually true, it would still be the same thing of value that they are alleging

So that would be our view, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right

MR FAULCONER: And, Your Honor, one -- I will keep it to one sentence One thing that I did not mention for Ms McDonnell is the same conduct underlying the obstruction count could be considered also false exculpatory I know Mr Burck would have the same problem factually with our characterization there, but that's just one that I forgot to mention I apologize

THE COURT: All right

Thank you That was helpful

MR FRANCISCO: Your Honor, on Instruction Number 20, the government had a few tweaks We have no problem with those

THE COURT: All right

MR FRANCISCO: On Instruction Number 21, we believe that everything after the first paragraph is argumentative and object on that ground These are things the government can argue to the jury, but we don't see why this needs to be put in the jury charges, particularly given that the indictment is not evidence And they'll be getting the indictment in any event, as I understand the Court

Your Honor, next, Instruction Number 24, conspiracy, the existence of an agreement We would ask that the fourth paragraph be deleted as legally erroneous and confusing This focuses on what the government must not prove And we think in that sense, it's slanted against the defendant without any corresponding statement as to what the government is required to prove We, therefore, ask that it be replaced with defense Instruction 43

But if the Court were inclined to maintain this instruction, as it may well be, we would ask that a paragraph be added, a short paragraph, immediately after the one that we're asking to be stricken, which would read as follows "But a conspiracy cannot be inferred from ambiguous conduct that is consistent with both lawful and unlawful action To prove conspiracy" -- "a conspiracy, the government must present evidence that excludes, beyond reasonable doubt, the possibility of innocent action "

We think that's a clearly accurate statement of law and that it would balance out an instruction that we otherwise think is unfairly slanted in the government's favor

Your Honor, Instruction Number 25, membership in an agreement We again object to the second paragraph of that instruction as irrelevant and confusing and, therefore, legally erroneous It's not part of the model instruction, but instead is another extended discussion of what the government is not required to prove, which was put forward in the government's proposed instruction on this issue

We think that paragraph should be deleted and you should go back to something more akin to the model instruction, which didn't include that paragraph and, therefore, which didn't slant the instruction in the government's favor

Your Honor, Instruction Number 29, the elements of honest services wire fraud This one goes to -- partly goes to the government's request that the willfully definition be omitted And as I'll explain later, we think the willfully definition should be kept because willfully is actually an element of honest services wire fraud and, therefore, that the second element listed here should insert that It should say that "the defendant you are considering did so knowingly and willfully and with" -- and here's another insertion -- "specific intent to defraud "

It's a specific intent crime We think it requires willfully There's case law from the Fifth Circuit that supports that That was cited in our model instructions So we would ask that that language be added into the second element I can repeat that I know I kind of jumbled it a little, Your Honor

THE COURT: No I got it

MR FRANCISCO: The government recommended a tweak to the fourth element We were fine with the government's tweak to that element

THE COURT: All right

MR FRANCISCO: Instruction Number 30, scheme or artifice to defraud We object to this instruction on the ground that it is incomplete and legally erroneous and that it removes from the O'Malley model instruction language emphasizing the government's burden So, again, this is one where the instruction focuses on what the government doesn't have to prove instead of what the government does have to prove

So we, therefore, ask that it would be replaced with defense Instruction 52, which tracks the O'Malley proposed instruction in what we regard as a much more fair and balanced manner

Your Honor, Instruction Number 31, a public official's fiduciary duty to the public We object to this on the ground that it is irrelevant and, therefore, legally erroneous. Fiduciary duty is simply not an element of honest services fraud and, therefore, including this instruction is confusing to the jury It suggests, in our view, that the jury could convict the defendant solely on the basis of a violation of his fiduciary duties, which is directly contrary to the Supreme Court's decision in SKILLING

What SKILLING made quite clear is that not all bad conduct, not even all breaches of fiduciary duties, constitute bribery or prohibited bribery or kickbacks Instead, what the government needs to show is a bribery or a kickback, or the violation of the statutes, the elements of the statute There's nothing in the statutes that make breach of fiduciary duty an element of the crime And by including this, we think it invites the jury to reach a contrary conclusion to convict without actually finding the elements, but instead convict on the basis of what the jury perceives to be a violation of a fiduciary duty

We think the proper course would be to delete this instruction in its entirety and replace it with defense Instruction Number 53, which focuses -- which provides a definition of deprivation of honest services, which unlike this fiduciary duty instruction, is actually an element of this crime And that instruction makes quite clear -- and we pulled this -- we culled this from SKILLING that the honest services wire fraud statute does not encompass every instance of official misconduct that results in an official's personal gain. And that is the essential teaching of SKILLING, which, in our view, renders the instruction, as written, legally erroneous

Your Honor, I'd like to turn to Instruction Number 32 now And I'll talk for maybe just a slight bit longer on this because this is an objection that I would like to make that applies to a series of the Court's instructions And these are all of the Court's instructions that essentially touch upon bribery And under the honest services fraud instruction, it encompasses the Court's Instructions 32 through 39, which we believe should be replaced with the defense Instructions 55 through 61 And as to Hobbs Act extortion, it covers the Court's proposed Instructions 48 through 51, which we believe should be replaced with defense Instructions 72 through 79

Now, the arguments I'm going to make will be familiar to you so I will not make them at great length, but I will make them in order to preserve the record on what we consider to be the critical issue in this case

We think that the Court's instructions, as written, have two fundamental errors in it The first is that it relies on an impermissible and inappropriate definition of "official act" in that it would allow the jury to convict based on conduct that does not rise to the level of actual government power; that is, a promise to exercise the actual regulatory power of the state in exchange for payments

Instead, the instructions would allow the jury to convict solely on the basis of a settled practice, even if that settled practice did not otherwise rise to the level of an official act We think that's contrary to JEFFERSON, which made clear that not all settled practices are official acts, only some category of them are if they otherwise involve the exercise of government power

We think it also would allow the jury to convict based on things as innocuous as arranging a meeting, which, again, we do not believe involves an exercise of governmental power and, therefore, does not rise to the level of an official act

And under this instruction, Your Honor, we believe that the statute at issue here is unconstitutionally vague So that's the first objection to this set of instructions

The second is that we also think that it misunderstands, or misdefines at least, what it means to be in quid pro quo bribery

May I have one quick moment?

THE COURT: Uh-huh

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel.)

MR FRANCISCO: Your Honor, on this issue, we would refer the Court to the Fourth Circuit's decision in the JENNINGS case, which makes very clear that in order for there to be quid pro quo bribery, there has to be an exchange of payments -- a payment made in exchange for a promise to perform a specific official act

In the JENNINGS case, the Court actually found an instruction was invalid precisely because it did not require payment in exchange for a specific official act, but instead, erroneously would have permitted a conviction based on a promise to perform some unspecified act in the future And that is at 160 F 3d 1006, Page 1,022

And if I could just read from the Court's opinion very briefly where it found the bribery instruction erroneous because it failed to -- and here I'm quoting -- "state that Jennings must have given money to Morris in exchange for some specific official act or course of action" and allowed conviction based on -- that was the end of the quote, "specific course of action " And then it continues to say that it allowed conviction based on, quote, a vague expectation of some future benefit

We think that the instructions here suffer from the very same problem We think that those problems would be cured if you were to substitute in -- in the instructions we've proposed on these issues, particularly 55 through 61 on honest services fraud, and more specifically 58, which defines an official act for honest services fraud, and Instructions 37 and 59, which define corruptly for purposes of honest services fraud Those instructions contain the proper language that reflects JENNINGS, that reflects JEFFERSON, and the meaning of an official act

On the Hobbs Act extortion, we think that you ought to replace your instructions -- your instructions with our Instructions 72 through 79, and especially Instruction 76, which defines the misuse of official office, and instruction 77, which defines an official act

If Your Honor is not inclined to add our instructions, we would ask that you include, in the current instructions for both wire fraud and Hobbs Act extortion, the following language, and it's two short paragraphs that I will read into the record with Your Honor's permission

"To convict the defendant, the official must have received the payment in exchange for performing or promising to perform some specific official act A gift or payment given with the generalized hope of some unspecified future benefit is not a bribe You may convict the defendant only if you find that he received something of value in exchange for performing or promising to perform some specific official act.

And then there would be a second paragraph that reads, "And providing mere credibility or a reputational benefit to another is not an official act To find an official act, the questions you must decide are both whether the charged conduct constitutes a settled practice and whether that conduct was intended to or did, in fact, influence a specific official decision the government actually makes "

So we would -- we would request that the Court replace its instructions, its proposed instructions with our proposed instructions on these elements If the Court overrules that objection, then we would ask that this language be -- be included in order to render these instructions legally proper

Thank you, Your Honor, for your indulgence on that

Now, on other instructions, with the Court's permission, I will simply reference that argument rather than remake it again

THE COURT: All right

MR FRANCISCO: So sticking with Instruction Number 32, now I will move to more specific objections than the broad-based ones that I've made

We think this objection(sic) is legally erroneous because it suggests that the absence of an official act is irrelevant when it says that you can convict even if there was no official act actually performed. That is not true We think the absence of official act is clearly relevant to determine -- relevant and probative of whether there was a conspiracy -- whether there was a substantive offensive bribery in the first place

If no official act was ever committed, that is certainly something that the jury could consider in deciding whether or not to conclude that there was a corrupt scheme here We would, therefore, ask that -- ask that that language be stricken, the language -- and this is the one that the government edited But I think it's the second paragraph of that instruction that focuses on what the government is not required to do We think that language should be deleted as legally erroneous since it erroneously suggests that an official act is irrelevant

If, however, the Court believes that it ought to stick with that instruction, we'd ask that it add the following sentence to the very end of the instruction "If you find that no official action was taken by the official, then you may consider that as evidence that there was no quid pro quo "

Turning, Your Honor, to Instruction Number 33 We object to this instruction for the same reasons I just articulated And for those reasons, we think it's legally erroneous In addition, we think that it misdefines corrupt intent Another portion of the JENNINGS opinion that I just discussed specifically talks about corrupt intent and uses the same language to say that "corrupt intent requires an exchange of payment in exchange for specific official acts " Not some generalized hope of unspecified future acts Our instruction D-59 we believe correctly defines the corruptly element here and takes into account the JENNINGS case

We also strongly disagree with the government's proposed changes to this instruction. We think that the corruptly element does require the Court -- the jury to find the language at the end, "accomplishing an unlawful end or unlawful result by any unlawful method," or it means the language that the government seeks stricken This is a specific intent crime We think it's also a willful crime as part of specific intent, and that language is exactly correct and should be maintained

In all fairness, I haven't had a chance to review the JEFFERSON instruction I did review -- so I'm not sure what exactly it includes or doesn't include I would note that the one that I did review just a minute ago on a different one of their objections, I think, went a lot -- didn't go nearly as far as what the government was suggesting in that So we would ask that in lieu of this instruction, you use defense Instruction Number 59

Instruction Number 34, bribery need not be expressed Again, I'll reiterate all the previous -- the long previous objection that I just made, which applies here too In addition, we think this is legally erroneous because it suggests that the absence of an agreement is irrelevant to this crime when we think it is clearly relevant The absence of an agreement is probative of whether an agreement, in fact, existed It might not definitively establish that an agreement didn't exist, but if there was no expressed agreement, it's pretty good evidence that there was no agreement at all

We. therefore, ask that the language that -- we, therefore, ask that this entire instruction be deleted But at a minimum, if the Court includes it, we would ask that the following language be included at the end "If you find that there was no expressed agreement, then you may consider that as evidence that there was no quid pro quo agreement at all " We think that would give it much more balance Instead of just saying what the government doesn't have to show, also say what the government does have to show

Instruction Number 35, bribery, thing of value provided to another Again, it's subject to the general objection that I made at the beginning of these instructions In addition, we believe that it erroneously defines the thing of value element That is drawn from 18 U S C Section 201(b)(2) There's no model instruction on this We think it's relatively self-explanatory. But we don't think that this version, which was, I believe, adopted from the government's proposal, accurately states what 18 U S C Section 201(b)(2) requires

We, therefore, suggest that this instruction be omitted altogether because we think it's self-explanatory But if you do decide to include it, we would rephrase it along the following lines Quote, the thing of value need not be intended for the public official, but to be liable, the government must prove that the public official corruptly demanded, sought, received, accepted or agreed to receive or accept anything of value personally or from any other person or entity " That pretty much tracks the statutory language of 18 U S C 201(b)(2), unlike the proposed instruction here

Instruction Number 36, Your Honor, mixed motive is no defense The first thing I'd ask is that the phrase "because people rarely act for a single purpose," that if this instruction is retained, that phrase be deleted There -- I think it's -- that's a highly debatable proposition In many circumstances, people act in a single purpose And I think that almost presupposes for the jury that there were multiple purposes going on here when, in our view, there were not multiple purposes, and certainly no nefarious purpose So we'd ask that that language be stricken as confusing and legally erroneously

More generally, we object to this entire instruction, first of all, on the basis -- the broad basis that I've already discussed, which we reiterate, and applies to this instruction Secondly, because we are not presenting a mixed motive defense We are arguing that there was no corrupt intent here, and I think this will confuse the jury into thinking that we're doing something -- that we're arguing something that we're not, in fact, arguing

But if you are inclined to include this language, we would ask a few modifications, in addition to deleting that phrase that I mentioned in the first sentence First of all, we think that in order to balance it out, you should also include the following at the end of the instruction Quote, but if you find that the official had an honest motive for accepting a thing of value, then that is evidence to be given whatever weight you deem appropriate that the official did not act corruptly

So that makes clear that even though there might be mixed motives, it's still relevant The fact that there was a potentially honest motive is probative of whether or not there was there was innocent intent So that would make what we considered a relatively one-sided instruction a little bit more balanced

Beneficial -- Instruction Number 37, beneficial act is no defense And, again, it's subject to the same general objections that I've made We also think that this is irrelevant and incomplete and misstates the law because, again, like -- like some of these others, and this is a little bit of a pattern to some of our objections, we think it unfairly focuses on what the government is not required to prove instead of showing and instructing the jury on what the government is required to prove

Here we're not arguing that Mr McDonnell would have done the same thing regardless of whether or not there was a bribe What we're arguing is that Mr. McDonnell's promotion of Virginia businesses across the board generally shows that he had innocent intent Therefore, we would ask that this instruction be deleted altogether If the Court is inclined to conclude -- to include an instruction on these lines, we would make two proposals

First, we'd ask that this instruction be replaced with the O'Malley model instruction, which we think is much more balanced, and that's in O'Malley at Section 27:11, which reads, "It is not a defense to the crime of bribery that the thing of value was accepted by the public official to influence an official act which is actually lawful, desirable or even benefit to the public "

In addition, we'd ask that the following language be included "The government, however, still must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Mr McDonnell received the payment in exchange for performing or promising to perform some specific official act For example, if he performed the actions for other reasons because he was trying to assist Virginia business and not because of a bribe, then he committed no crime " We think that would balance out the instruction more than the current instruction

Instruction Number 38, the definition of an official act This was really at the core of the objection that I was raising earlier, and so we reiterate that objection to this definition and ask that it be replaced with defense Instruction Number 58 If the Court is inclined to include something along the lines of these instructions, we would ask that the last sentence be deleted We are aware of no basis for that last sentence It certainly doesn't come out of JEFFERSON and, I don't believe, is consistent with the JEFFERSON instruction, and including it is, in our view, legally erroneous

We'd also ask that the two sentences -- let me amend what I just said, Your Honor We'd ask that the last two sentences be deleted, particularly the very last sentence which has no basis in anything that we can find, but also the sentence that immediately precedes it Again, we think that erroneously states the law, and it tilts the instruction too heavily in favor of the government's position

But if the Court is inclined to include that instruction, along with the government's language, we would ask that you add to this instruction the two paragraphs that I read at the beginning when I started making the broad objection to this I could read it again, or I could -- would you like me to?

THE COURT: No There's no need

MR FRANCISCO: Thank you, Your Honor

Instruction Number 39, intent to defraud We believe that it's legally erroneous and argumentative It's legally erroneous because it omits the willfully language And so in the first sentence of the second paragraph, we'd ask that the word "willfully" be inserted so that it reads, "Intent to defraud means to act knowingly and willfully and with a specific intent to deceive " We think that's part of a specific intent defense and part of this offense

We'd also ask that the final sentence, beginning with the words, "for example," be deleted We think that language is unnecessary and the examples are just too similar to the conduct that the government has charged here and we think will unfairly prejudice the jury against us

We think that that's something the government can argue, and it be up to the jury to decide whether Mr McDonnell did or did not commit a crime But we think that that kind of language is something the government doesn't need and shouldn't get in the context of a jury instruction We'd ask that -- so -- that it be amended in the way that I just mentioned, or alternatively, that the Court replace it with defense Instruction Number 54

You've actually got two in a row that I have no objections to, Your Honor, 40 and 41

May I have one second?

THE COURT: Sure

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FRANCISCO: I'm going to pass over Instruction Number 42 in deference to Ms McDonnell's attorneys

Instruction Number 48, Your Honor We object This really is the broad objection that I raised earlier where I said that that objection applied not just to the honest services fraud instructions, but also to the Hobbs Act extortion Instructions 48 through 51 in the proposed instructions, which we believe should be replaced with defense Instructions 72 through 79. I won't reiterate that entire argument, unless the Court would like me to, but would rather incorporate it here

We have a more specific objection on this one, and it goes to the fourth element, the interstate commerce element We believe that that misstates the law In our view, an attempt to effect interstate commerce is not good enough There actually has to be an actual effect on interstate commerce That's the law in several circuits

The Fourth Circuit requires a reasonable probable effect on interstate commerce That comes from UNITED STATES v. SPAGNOLO case, 546 F 3d 1117 at Page 1119 We actually don't agree with the Fourth Circuit's language We think it's wrong and would like to preserve our objection to that

That being said, we think that the Court should either adopt our proposed instruction, which requires an actual effect, and that's Instruction Number 72, or it ought to adopt an instruction that reflects the SPAGNOLO case, which would read as follows "Fourth, that interstate commerce, or an item moving interstate commerce, was delayed, obstructed or effected or that there was a reasonable probability of delay, obstruction or effect on interstate commerce "

And, again, to be clear, we preserve our objection to the Fourth Circuit language but think that that would be an instruction that accurately reflected Fourth Circuit case law.

Instruction Number 49, Your Honor, property not due office, is subject to our general objection where we've asked for this set of the Court's instruction to be replaced with our proposed Instructions 72 through 79

Instruction Number 50, Your Honor This one essentially combines all of the different bribery instructions that we spent a fair amount of time talking through a few minutes ago into one, essentially, omnibus instruction that picks out certain sentences and phrases and cobbles them together into a single instruction, and we very much object to this instruction on the same grounds that I outlined for the previous instructions

If the Court is inclined to include this instruction, we ask -- we ask that the following changes to it be made First of all, we'd ask that you add language that makes clear that, quote, the government, however, still must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the official received the payment in exchange for performing or promising to perform some specific official act A gift or payment given with the generalized hope of some unspecified future benefit is not a bribe You may convict the defendant only if you find that he received something of value in exchange for performing or promising to perform some specific official act.

Secondly, we'd ask that Your Honor delete the sentence that begins with the words -- the last sentence of the first paragraph that begins with the words, "You do not have to determine" whether Mr McDonnell actually performed an official act We think it's legally erroneous because, again, it suggests that whether he performed an official act is irrelevant It's clearly relevant and so should be deleted But at a minimum, you ought to add immediately after that sentence the following, quote, but if you find that no official action was taken by the official, then you may consider that as evidence that there was no quid pro quo "

Third, Your Honor, we object to the immediately following sentence "As was the case with bribery, the exchange or quid pro quo need not be stated in expressed terms, and the intent to exchange can be inferred from all the surrounding circumstances " Again, in addition to our generalized objection, we believe that this is legally erroneous because it suggests that the absence of an agreement is irrelevant, and, therefore, that language should be deleted

But at a minimum, we would add immediately following that sentence the following Quote, but if you find that there was no expressed agreement, then you may consider that as evidence that there was no quid pro quo agreement at all

Fourth, Your Honor, we would ask that the -- we object to the sentence that immediately follows that one beginning with the word "furthermore " We think that this is legally erroneous because it erroneously suggests that the government need not prove that the specific type of official acts that the government agreed to perform -- it need not prove that there were specific official acts that were agreed to and should, therefore, be deleted

If the Court includes that language, we'd ask that the following sentence be added Quote, but even if the payments were made to retain the official's services on an as-needed basis, you must still find that the official accepted the payments in exchange for agreeing to perform a specific type of official acts

And finally, Your Honor, on this particular instruction, we object to the last two sentences of this instruction that begin, "As also was the case with bribery," through the end of this paragraph We believe that that is irrelevant and incomplete and, therefore, misstates the law since, again, we're not arguing that Mr McDonnell would have taken the same actions even without bribes What we're arguing is that

Mr McDonnell's promotion of Virginia businesses shows innocent intent and negates the government's allegations

At a minimum, if the Court includes that language, we'd ask that it follow the O'Malley instruction, which says, quote, it is not a defense to the crime of bribery that the thing of value was accepted by the public official to influence an official act which is actually lawful, desirable or even beneficial to the public

And then after that, we would add -- that's it We would ask for the O'Malley instruction there, Your Honor

Instruction Number 51, and I'm -- if you'll give me a minute just to look at Your Honor's revised version of this May I?

THE COURT: Sure

MR FAULCONER: And, Your Honor, that's one that I neglected to address But I'll address it when I get back up, because we do have one concern with the new 51 I apologize

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FRANCISCO: So, Your Honor, here we think that the words "attempted to perform" are actually inconsistent with the language you added at the end And I'm not sure if that was intentional or not But if there was no act actually performed, there could not have been an effect on -- any effect at all on interstate commerce

So we'd ask that the "attempted to perform" phrase be deleted And this is -- otherwise, I think -- I think we're okay with this

Yeah, we're okay with this otherwise

But if the "attempted to perform" is kept in there, it's subject to the same objection that I raised to the last interstate commerce instruction where we believe that it's inconsistent with the correct requirement for interstate commerce

And, again, I'd like to make clear, we preserve our objections to Fourth Circuit case law, but our -- for present purposes, will accede, subject to the preservation of the objection to an Instruction that complies with Fourth Circuit case law

So moving to the false statement to a bank instructions, Your Honor And in particular, beginning at Instruction 56, I'd like to make an objection that applies to both 56 and 57 We object to these instructions on the ground that in our view, they're legally erroneous and an incomplete statement of the elements

Our instructions, which are instructions -- they are found at -- our Instructions 82 through 85 and 87 through 91, which are really the same instructions, they are just broken out for each one of the counts, we think those accurately state the elements In particular, we think that the Court's instructions omit any description of the critical elements to this case, including whether the statement was false, whether it was knowingly made, whether it was made for an improper purpose, and whether the bank for which it was made was FDIC insured

Our instructions include explanations for each one of those elements Of particular importance is our Instruction 82 on what it means for there to be a false statement Our instruction makes clear that a statement is not false if -- if the defendant did not actually make an application to the bank, or anything that the bank would consider to be an application, because it was insufficiently primarily That's a critical part of our defense here; that Mr McDonnell actually made no false statement on anything that could be considered an application Yet there's no instruction at all on that first critical element of what it means to make a false statement on an application

Our instruction lays all this out and our instructions -- and in particular, Instructions 82 and 87, it states that, quote, the government must prove an application was made to the bank This requires that an application sufficient for the bank to act was made And it explains that at a little bit more length More generally, we think that our instructions properly instruct the jury on each one of the elements of false statement to a bank and that the Court's proposed instructions omit that language

Instead, Your Honor, the instruction -- and this is now -- I'm focusing more specifically on Instruction 56, focus on an issue that we believe is essentially irrelevant to this case and objectionable on that ground since materiality is not an issue We've never argued, and don't intend to argue, that any statements were immaterial And so by including this instruction and omitting all the others, it simply serves to confuse the jury as to what is and is not at issue Therefore, we'd ask that this instruction be deleted and that it replace -- it be replaced with our instructions setting forth the elements of this offense

And at a minimum, Your Honor, we'd ask that the last three sentences of this instruction be deleted beginning with, "The government need not show, however " Again, we think this unfairly focuses on what the government doesn't have to prove instead of what the government does have to prove We don't think a materiality instruction is necessary or relevant or proper at all, but if it is, we think you ought to just tell the jury what materiality means and that it has to be proven, as opposed to giving illustrative examples of what the government does or does not have to show for materiality purposes

Your Honor, while I'm on this, just because I think it will be a little clearer, we also have a new instruction that we'd like to propose

Ryan, could you hand up our packet of new proposed instructions?

And I'm only going to refer to one of them here for now, Your Honor, because it's directly relevant to this and essentially completes our position on this instruction. And it is Page 7 of this false statement to a bank, false statement by omission One of our principal defenses to this is that the omitted information was not required to be included in the application in the first place And if information wasn't required to be in the application, then the omission of that information from an application cannot constitute a false statement as a matter of law

Since that is one of our critical defenses to this, we believe that we're entitled to an instruction on that And I can't imagine that there's anything legally objectionable about what we have in this instruction So therefore, we'd ask that in addition to what I've talked about on false statements to a bank, this instruction be included as well

The one thing I'll add, Your Honor, is I talked about how we're not raising any mixed motive materiality defense here. We're also not raising a mixed motive defense, and that's why we think the last sentence is confusing to the jury, for all the reasons that I've explained, with regards to the mixed motive instruction on bribery.

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel.)

MR. FRANCISCO: The good faith defense. The government asked that the Court add a sentence to the end of the instruction. We think that sentence is completely unnecessary and that the Court's initial draft of this got it exactly right. We think that the language that they're adding is simply an effort to undercut what our critical defense is here; that Mr. McDonnell was acting in good faith throughout. We're entitled to a clean instruction on that defense.

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel.)

MR. FRANCISCO: And then if the Court is inclined to start editing this -- this instruction, Your Honor, we'd ask that it also include the following sentence at the end of the instruction. "Good faith is an absolute defense to all charges in this case."

Instruction Number 64, willfully defined. The government has asked that this instruction be omitted because, in its view, it's not relevant to this case. We obviously disagree with that. We think it's part of the specific intent crimes at issue here So we would ask that it be maintained

Oh, the government, on -- if I'm remembering this right, on Instruction Number 68, didn't think that this one was legally erroneous, but didn't think it was necessary here I'm not sure. It was unclear to me how strong their position on that was But we obviously think this is critically necessary There are two defendants in this case, and we think it's critical that the jury consider each defendant separately It's particularly dangerous in a case like this for the jury not to do that, given that the defendants are married, and that there is a tendency, on the part of people, to want to lump folks together in that way We, therefore, think this is a critical instruction that should be maintained, particularly where the government seems to agree that it is an absolutely correct statement of law

I'm going to do this one quickly, Your Honor Instruction Number 72, duty to deliberate We object on the grounds that it's not quite an accurate statement, in our view, of what jurors are required to do It's perfectly appropriate for a juror to walk out of the jury box, decide at the moment after he or she is charged, what his or her view is, and then refuse to change that view throughout and refuse to talk about it It might not be the best way to go about doing things, but we think that's appropriate, and the jurors can do that if they want But I'll say no more on that one

So the government proposed the addition of two more instructions One was bribery, course of conduct We think that this is legally erroneous for a number of the reason First of all, for the main omnibus reason that it just misstates the law of bribery, both what an official act is and what quid pro quo bribery is under the JENNINGS case This one in particular, "the erroneously suggest that the government need not prove that the specific type of official acts that the public official agreed to perform " Regardless of whether or not the government -- the official agreed to perform those acts on an as-needed basis, the government still has to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the official accepted payments in exchange for agreeing to perform specific official acts And this instruction omits that crucial part

There's no basis in any of the model rules for this instruction Instead, what it appears to be is the government's cherry-picking of its favorite sentences out of various different opinions into an instruction that, in our view, is intended to slant the playing field in its favor The government can certainly make these arguments to the jury, but we don't think it's an appropriate place for an instruction from this court to the jury

But if the Court were inclined to include an instruction along these lines, we think that additional language is vital in order to balance the instruction out And so we would ask that the Court include the following, if it were inclined to include this instruction, which, I should emphasize, we would vigorously oppose Quote, but if the payments were made to retain the official services on an as-needed basis, you must still find beyond a reasonable doubt that the official accepted the payments in exchange for agreeing to perform a specific type of official acts A gift or payment given with the generalized hope of some unspecified future benefit is not a bribe. You may convict the defendant only if you find that he received something of value in exchange for performing or promising to perform some specific official act

Not only would that somewhat balance out what we think is an erroneous instruction in any event, but in addition, what I just read is a clearly accurate statement of the principles set forth in the Fourth Circuit's JENNINGS decision

The government has also proposed a deliberate ignorance instruction And we would also vigorously oppose the inclusion of this instruction and think that the Court was absolutely right to not include it in its proposed instructions in the first place We think it would be legally erroneous to include this, first of all, because there's simply no factual basis in this record for a willful -- for a deliberate ignorance or willful blindness instruction

In order to show -- in order to lay the factual basis for that, the government would need to show that the defendant subjectively believed that a high probability of wrongdoing existed and that the defendant took deliberate actions to avoid learning a wrongdoing It's hard to imagine that the example of somebody not opening one of hundreds of e-mails that that person gets in any given day satisfies the standard for willful blindness or deliberate indifference

More importantly, Your Honor -- I shouldn't say more importantly But in addition, this instruction is simply incompatible with the mens rea requirements for these specific intent crimes, which require a corrupt intent That requires actual knowledge, not imputed knowledge, that knowledge of the underlying facts And the whole point of a willful blindness or deliberate ignorance instruction is to impute knowledge to a defendant That, however, is completely improper when it comes to crimes like those charged here

If the Court, however, is -- so we think that this -- you are completely right to include this instruction If you are inclined to include a deliberate ignorance or willful blindness instruction, we would recommend that it be the one adapted from O'Malley and one that accurately sets forth the elements of willful blindness

And I'll read it into the record because we have not proposed an instruction on this one that I can refer the Court to "The government may prove that a defendant, in certain circumstances, acted knowingly by proving beyond a reasonable doubt that this defendant deliberately closed his eyes to what would otherwise have been obvious to him. Stated another way, a person's knowledge of a particular fact may be shown from willful blindness to the existence of that fact But to prove willful blindness, the government must prove two things beyond a reasonable doubt First, the government must prove that the defendant subjectively believed that there was a high probability that the fact existed Second, the government must prove that the defendant took deliberate actions to avoid learning of the fact "

And then the second paragraph would read, "You may not conclude that the defendant had knowledge from proof of mistake, negligence, carelessness or a belief in an inaccurate proposition Instead, the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant purposely and deliberately contrived to avoid learning all the facts "

So just to be clear, we completely object to any instruction on this ground, but if there is an instruction, we think it should be the one that I just read, Your Honor

That is my march through the Court's instructions

If I could grab my notes, then I can turn to some additional instructions we would like included

THE COURT: All right

MR FRANCISCO: So in the packet that we handed you, those are new or amended instructions that we believe became necessary in light of developments at trial I should tell you, the first two we're withdrawing This was before -- we prepared this before we saw the Court's instructions, and we no longer think that the proposal on Court's comments to counsel and charts and summaries is necessary So those first two are withdrawn

Turning to the third one, the Virginia law instruction, defense proposed Instruction Number 39 It's an amendment of an instruction we originally proposed We originally proposed including a very fulsome proposal on this, but we no longer think it's necessary Rather, during pretrial proceedings, this court ruled, and I'm quoting from its ruling, "There is no suggestion, and there will be none at trial, that Mr McDonnell violated Virginia's ethics laws or reporting requirements " In this case, however, Your Honor, the governments elicited testimony suggesting that very thing In particular, testimony that suggested that Mr McDonnell's Statements of Economic Interest were somehow erroneous, in violation of Virginia law, or at least a jury could easily so conclude, given the testimony relating to this issue that was heard throughout the trial

We, therefore, think that this instruction is necessary to prevent the jury from drawing conclusions on this issue, particularly since initially we were looking to introduce evidence with respect to the legality of SOEIs, but we were not able to do that, in light of this Court's rulings So we think that this instruction is absolutely necessary to ensure that the jury doesn't draw an impermissible inference from the questions that were being put to Mr McDonnell and other witnesses during this trial

Our further proposed instruction is unanimity on official acts Here, Your Honor, it's not at all clear what the government believes the specific official acts charged in the indictment are It is, therefore, a very real possibility to that the jurors will not agree on this critical element, in which case Mr McDonnell could be convicted even though there was no unanimity on which official acts he allegedly promised to engage in in exchange for payments We, therefore, think that an instruction on the unanimity on official acts is necessary to ensure that the jury reaches unanimity on the central element of the offenses charged in this case We've cited the case law that we believe supports this and would ask that an unanimity on official acts instruction be included

The fifth one, Your Honor, is the one that I already discussed; false statement to a bank, false statement by omission Again, this is a critical and crucial part of our defense, the false statements act, and there's no false statement if the -- if the information omitted was never required to be included in the first place And so we think this instruction is crucial to one of our primary defenses to that charge

The next instruction, Your Honor, has to do with pre conspiracy conduct In this case, the government introduced evidence of conduct that predates the charged conspiracy; for example, the meeting with Dr Hazel and Mr McDonnell's attendance at the CigRx event That type of evidence is only limited -- only relevant to a very limited purpose; that is, to prove motive or intent We, therefore, think that this instruction is necessary to ensure that the jury doesn't erroneously and improperly consider these issues for bases that they're not permitted to consider them on

And on our new instructions, the final one -- and I'm not -- I don't want to suggest that I'm done yet I've got a little bit more to go But at least on this packet of new instructions, we'd ask that the Court include the seventh one; missing witness not equally available to defendant

In this case, the government has represented throughout that it intended to call Mr William Goodwin as a 404(b) witness to support the government's assertion that Mr McDonnell manipulated the personal friend exception for Statements of Economic Interest in order to conceal a vacation that Mr Goodwin allegedly paid for In fact, the government grilled Mr. McDonnell on this during cross-examination, strongly suggesting that Mr McDonnell was not being truthful when he -- when he said that they were personal friends

We very much believe that Mr Goodwin would have provided favorable testimony to us if called, and that he would have, in fact, confirmed that he and Mr McDonnell were personal friends The reason we didn't call him was the government has represented throughout these proceedings that it intended to call him The government, however, changed its position only after we rested in this case and, therefore, deprived us of the ability to call Mr Goodwin In light of that, we think that we're entitled to a missing witness instruction on this issue

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FRANCISCO: I'm going to try to move quickly now through these last ones These are instructions that we asked for that the Court didn't include And I understand Your Honor's original instruction to me, and so I'll move quickly and just make my objections for the record

We would ask that the Court include defense Instruction Number 21 regarding inference or participation from presence or association The urge to find guilt in a case like this based on the defendant's presence or proximity to illegal activity is obvious, given the marital relationship between the defendants We, therefore, think that's necessary

Defense Instruction Number 22, impermissible to infer participation from association Again, because the defendants were married here, we think that there's a natural inclination to draw impermissible inferences, and so we think that instruction is necessary

Defense Instructions Number 37 and 59, the definition of corruptly For the reasons I've explained at length here, we think that is crucial to a proper instruction on what it means to engage in quid pro quo bribery, and I won't repeat that argument here

Multiple conspiracies, Your Honor And this is in defense Instructions 48 and 69 We actually think that it's very important to include this instruction here There are different types of multiple conspiracies As Mr Faulconer explained, there could be conspiracy between Mr and Ms McDonnell. There can be a conspiracy between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams that doesn't involve Mr McDonnell And given that potential, we think it's very important that the jury be given this instruction on multiple conspiracies to prevent jury confusion and to ensure that the defendants are not convicted for an uncharged conspiracy in this case

Defense Instruction Number 76, extortion under color of official right, misuse of official position Again, for the reasons I've explained, we think this one is crucial for a proper understanding of the elements of bribery insofar as it pertains to Hobbs Act extortion

MR FRANCISCO: Your Honor, may I have a moment?

THE COURT: Go ahead

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR FRANCISCO: Your Honor, I know I've taken a long time Thank you for your patience

MR BURCK: I'll be very quick Just starting where we ended, we generally agree with Mr McDonnell's objections and will be more specific and not waste the Court's time in due course We do object to the multiple conspiracies instruction that they suggested. We don't agree with that And that goes to the Instruction Number 42 that you currently have, and we think that instruction should stay We think that is legally accurate We think it would be erroneous to take it out We don't think it should be altered in any way And as the Court said at the very beginning, we are mindful of the fact that you have considered all this, so we won't go any further than that We think Instruction Number 42 should stay in and the government's objection should be denied.

The only other instruction we would like to discuss very briefly is the one that goes to Count Fourteen. It is Instruction Number 59 This is on the obstruction of the official proceeding We have no problem with the instruction that is currently written The one thing we would ask that be added is a line at the very end that would just make it clear that Ms McDonnell, they would have to find, the jury would have to find that Ms McDonnell had intended to obstruct the grand jury in this case

And the reason why we think that's important in this particular case is because there has been evidence about two other investigations that were going on at the same time that she was interviewed on February 15th, 2013 There was the federal securities investigation of Mr Williams, and there was also a state inquiry going on at the same time. And so our concern is that the jury may essentially convict her for the wrong proceeding And so we just request a sentence at the very end that would say, "However, the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Maureen McDonnell intended to obstruct the grand jury in this case " And I think, Your Honor, with that, that is all we have.

THE COURT: All right Thank you

MR. BURCK: Thank you, Your Honor

THE COURT: Government?

MR. FAULCONER: Thank you, Your Honor Your Honor, may I have one moment to confer with counsel?

THE COURT: Sure, go ahead.

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR. BURCK: Your Honor, if I misspoke, we would like Number 42, Instruction Number 42 to stay in

THE COURT: All right

MR. FAULCONER: Thank you for Your Honor's patience As I guess an initial housekeeping matter, Your Honor, I guess I assume that Your Honor does not want me to go through instruction by instruction in response to the defendants' arguments

THE COURT: Absolutely not

MR. FAULCONER: I'll just focus on a couple where I think that there is actually potentially a little bit of agreement, and then respond to a couple of their newly proposed ones and then answer, I guess, any questions that Your Honor has based on what I previously argued. And I apologize if I'm flipping through a few pages while I try to get to these

The first one, Your Honor, is that on Instruction 31, this is the one about fiduciary duty, I think that there may be a way to avoid, at least in part, the issue that Mr Francisco raised for the defense that would narrow this and not really change the substance of it, but might narrow it a little bit And that is to essentially remove the reference to the word "fiduciary duty" and simply make it only "duty of honest services" where it says that I think the way that Your Honor could do that to sort of split the difference here would be to say, "Public officials such as governors owe a duty of honest services to the public " And then you could delete the next sentence, and then merely at the bottom in the second paragraph say additionally, "A defendant need not be a public official to be guilty of this offense," and then go on to say everything else That would remove the specific reference to fiduciary duty independent of the duty of honest services And we think the remainder of it would still be an accurate statement of the law And that may at least in part dodge an issue there that could be raised

MR. FRANCISCO: Would it be easier for me to give you a one or two-sentence response rather than get back up on whether the changes satisfy or don't satisfy the defense?

THE COURT: You told me what you wanted. You are on record.

MR. FAULCONER: Your Honor, to very briefly respond on just one very narrow portion of the official act argument, and I only raise this because it goes to the JENNINGS course of conduct instruction that we asked for And that is that Mr Francisco omitted a portion of what JENNINGS says that I think is crucial for both why we need the course of conduct instruction and why many of the instructions Your Honor has proposed are correct as they stand. That is that JENNINGS says not only "in exchange for an official specific act or a type of act," but it also says in at least two places the phrase, "specific course of action." And I think that's at Page 1014 of JENNINGS

And then also later on, where Mr Francisco cited from it, it also refers again to a course of action And we think that anything from JENNINGS that's included would need to have that But our instruction is clear It quotes from JENNINGS, and we have our supports cited there, so I won't belabor the point on official act any more than we already have

Your Honor, with respect to the statements about, or the discussion about the Counts Twelve and Thirteen instructions, and this is specifically on the issue of, I guess, for lack of a better term, the final application argument that's being raised, our interpretation is that the instruction that the defense is proposing here would add language into the statute that does not exist within the statute as it is written. And we do have a couple of citations for the Court in terms of why it need not necessarily be a final application.

And if I can turn to those briefly, specifically, Your Honor, one case is UNITED STATES v ZWEGO, and this is 657 F 2d 248 at 250, Tenth Circuit, 1981 In that case it says, quote, for purposes of Section 1014, it is not necessary that the application for the loan be formal And I think if I'm correct, the only case that at least I've seen that the defense has cited at times, I think, about this has been SORENSEN, a Ninth Circuit case In that case, the government actually conceded at oral argument that the bank lacked the power to grant a loan without a signed application, never funds a loan until after it receives a signed loan application Here we do have a signed loan application The only question is whether or not it was enough for the bank to go forward It was enough for the bank to go forward, the signed loan application The fact that the entire process wasn't final doesn't mean that it can't be a false statement in relation to an application as the statute requires So I won't belabor that point, but I did just want to give the Court that authority

Your Honor, with respect to a couple of the defense's proposed new jury instructions, just to walk through them, as I understand it, the first two have been withdrawn. The second one with respect to Virginia law, for reasons that we have already discussed with respect to the SOEI in prior briefing, Your Honor, we don't see this one as necessary

In the event that the Court were inclined to offer anything about Virginia law, the first sentence we wouldn't necessarily have a problem with of this proposed instruction. But we would object to the latter two sentences, and rather simply ask for something to the effect of, and we would defer to the Court, but something to the effect of "Mr McDonnell is not charged with violating Virginia law and you should only consider that evidence to whatever extent you find it relevant to the federal law as I've instructed you in this case," if the Court is inclined to give some sort of instruction on Virginia law But as we stated in our pleadings, we think the form is in plain English, it is fairly clear, the terminology is not sophisticated, and the jury can consider it as needed

We object to the pre-conspiracy conduct proposed additional jury instruction It is both confusing and legally inaccurate in our opinion Clearly, the jury can consider pre-conspiracy conduct in inferring what the parties' actions were once the conspiracy began.

With respect to the unanimity on official act, we would object to that instruction. Again, as it relates to the official action requirement as part of a quid pro quo, there doesn't need to be one specific official act It can be a course of action or a course of conduct that's agreed upon And so the unanimity needs to be on whether there is a quid pro quo agreement to perform official acts, but not on one specific one that was promised to perform or performed

Your Honor, we do not think that the proposed instruction on false statement by omission is necessary in this case. The indictment alleges and the elements include that it needs to be false We think the jury can understand what something false is. The way that it is charged in the indictment and included in the Court's description of the nature of the offense does say that this was the liabilities that were listed, and it did not include this dollar amount which was owed to Mr Williams We didn't charge it as simply a generalized omission. It was charged very carefully as a specific false statement So we think it is clear and don't think that that instruction is necessary

With respect to the missing witness instruction, we would assuredly object to this instruction. It is, in our opinion, completely inaccurate and would be misleading to the jury Your Honor, William Goodwin was available to the defense The mere fact that he was subpoenaed or we may have projected that we were likely to call him in our rebuttal case doesn't mean that he was not, as this instruction says, equally available to the defendant They made a strategic decision not to call him in their rebuttal case -- or to call him in their case; we made the choice not to call him in our case And the fact that the evidence from their case may have come in in such a way that we didn't think his testimony would be necessary does not mean that he was unavailable to them. And the hypotheticals about what his testimony would have been aren't really pertinent. That really isn't what that type of instruction is intended for, where the parties have the ability to subpoena

Otherwise, Your Honor, with respect to Mr Burck's arguments, we already discussed 42 and our desire to amend and/or remove that one With respect to the obstruction instruction, the additional line at the end, we would object to that as being misleading of what the law actually requires, because the defendant does not need to know that it is a federal grand jury, and if you were to say that she has to know that she was impeding the grand jury in this case, the portion of 1512, either (f) or (g), that says the defendant doesn't need to know that it is federal, would essentially take out that requirement That sort of higher nexus requirement or higher mens rea requirement really comes from 1503 prosecutions, and 1512 was expanded to address situations exactly like this one

If I may have one moment, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Go ahead.

(Counsel conferring with co-counsel)

MR. FAULCONER: I'm happy to answer any additional questions you have But otherwise, that's all I feel a need to put on the record.

THE COURT: I don't have any additional questions What I will do now is go out and revise the instructions in a manner that would be in sync with my rulings on this Obviously, this is going to take some time So you all have to sit and wait But I think turnabout is fair play I've been sitting here So I'm going to go in and, you know, try to get this done But I'll give you all the package when I get it ready Go ahead

MS ABER: Before you leave the Bench, could I ask three brief logistical questions for the folks doing the arguments tomorrow?

THE COURT: Sure

MS ABER: Number one: It is my understanding that the Court is willing to give the jury the indictment, but only the portion with the counts, Pages 33 through the end Does Your Honor want the forfeiture provision omitted?

THE COURT: I would take that out as well

MS ABER: Okay Number two: Jury instructions I understand that it is okay -- that Your Honor does not want them shown to the jury But is Your Honor amenable to talking about them?

THE COURT: It is perfectly fine to refer to what I've decided is the final package I just don't like the transcript popping up in front of the jurors You can refer to them.

MS ABER: Three: In reference to transcripts from the daily transcripts of this trial, I believe Your Honor has potentially said that it is okay to talk about them. If the Court is amenable or willing to let counsel actually show the transcript, the government would ask to be heard on that because we would object

THE COURT: Okay Let me hear you on that Go ahead

MS. ABER: Your Honor, this is an unusual situation in which we all have daily transcripts To date, I believe the jury has not seen a transcript, has heard they exist, has heard questions read. The Court was very clear at the beginning that they were taking notes for their own benefit, that their memory controlled, and so forth So to start showing transcripts sort of obviates that And secondly, I think it is fair to suggest that the first question from this jury would be, "Can we get the whole transcript?" if they are only seeing portions of it in closing So we would object to showing the actual transcript in any format to the jury during closings

MR. FRANCISCO: We very much want to be -- we don't plan to show excerpts of the transcript, but we do think it is perfectly appropriate for us to bring up excerpts of the testimony in our closing argument You can read it A demonstrative to help the jury is useful One last quick thing, Your Honor, on the jury charge, the government's proposed jury charge has "Guilty" first, "Not Guilty" second, and I think with the presumption of innocence, it ought to be "Not Guilty" first, "Guilty" second

THE COURT: You are talking about the verdict form?

MR. FRANCISCO: Yes

THE COURT: In terms of the transcript, you all can use the transcript, but in limited fashion I wouldn't want gigantic portions of the transcript That would just slow us down. And it is quite true, the jury may ask for the transcript, and I will tell them they are not going to get it It is that simple All right, let me get started with this

OFFICIAL COURT REPORTER

P-R-O-C-E-E-D-I-N-G-S

THE CLERK: Day twenty-five, Case Number 3:14CR12: United States of America versus Robert F McDonnell and Maureen G. McDonnell. The United States is represented by Michael Dry, David Harbach, Jessica Aber, and Ryan Faulconer Robert F McDonnell is represented by John Brownlee, Henry Asbill, Daniel Small, James Burnham, and Christopher Iaquinto Maureen G. McDonnell is represented by Heather Martin, William Burck, Stephen Hauss, and Daniel Koffmann Are counsel ready to proceed?

MR DRY: The United States is ready to proceed.

MR. BURCK: Maureen McDonnell is ready to proceed, Your Honor

MR ASBILL: Bob McDonnell ready

THE COURT: All right Let's bring in the jury, please

(The jury entered the courtroom.)

Good morning once again Government, are you prepared to close?

MR. HARBACH: Yes, Your Honor, thank you.

Good morning In opening statements, my colleague, Ms Aber, said that this is fundamentally a simple case, and she was right Now all of the evidence has come in, it really just boils down to one question: All those things that Jonnie Williams gave and that the defendants here accepted, the $120,000 in loans, the $15,000 wedding check, the thousands of dollars in golf, the vacations, and everything else, the single, simple question of this case is, "Why?" Why did he give them; why did they take them. Was it solely because of a friendship with the McDonnells based on shared interests, or was it part of a corrupt understanding in which Jonnie Williams would give things and, when opportunities arose, Mr McDonnell would take official action to help him?

The evidence in this case that you have heard and seen over the last five weeks, the government's case, the defense case, all of it, establishes beyond any reasonable doubt what Jonnie Williams wanted, and that they knew it; and what they wanted, and that Jonnie Williams knew it That's why they did what they did. That is bribery That is corruption. The real thing

And what seals that they knew what they were doing was a crime is the lengths that all of them, Jonnie Williams included, went to hide it

My job this morning is to summarize the evidence for you. And I won't be able to mention anywhere close to all of it, and I'm sure you are happy to hear that You all have been here a while You have focused on all the evidence for a long time, and it has been a lot of material The point of some of it was quite clear There are plenty of dead horses around the courtroom that have been beaten beyond recognition. There is no question about that But there also may be some things where you are saying to yourself, "What was the point of that? How does that fit into the story? Why did we hear all this testimony about X?" And I hope to be able to clear some of those things up for you along the way.

But first, a couple of preliminaries Number one: This case is not about campaign contributions or donations to a political action committee Not one penny of any of the graft alleged in the indictment, not one penny of all those things I rattled off a moment ago that Jonnie Williams gave to the McDonnells, was a campaign contribution None of it Not one penny of that stuff was a donation to a political action committee or to his campaign Among other things, there was no campaign once he got elected Governor in January of 2010

I don't know why Mr McDonnell spent twenty minutes out of the first forty minutes of his direct examination talking about campaign contributions But in the instructions you get from the Court, a phrase you won't see anywhere is campaign contribution. A phrase you won't see anywhere is donation to a political action committee And the reason is that none of that has anything to do with this case, period.

Second: I'm going to be crystal clear up front about something else The defendants have no burden at all in this case. 100 percent of that burden is on our shoulders. We are like Atlas It is all on us So you go right ahead, and you absolutely hold us to that burden That's what you have been sworn to do, and that's what we ask you to do

The defense has no burden here They didn't have to give an opening statement; they didn't have to cross-examine witnesses; they didn't have to put on a case; Mr McDonnell didn't have to testify But you know what? They did all of those things And you darn sure can think critically about them and test them. And we are going to do some of that along the way this morning, too

Now, let's set the stage before I get into the facts of the case And where I'd like to start is the financial picture for the McDonnells when he rolls into office in January of 2010 The slide on the screen right now is Exhibit 568 You all remember this one This is the McDonnell's credit card debt as of January, 2010, when he takes office It is nearly $75,000 It is no wonder that Mr McDonnell was so upset with his wife about the credit card debt You remember this e-mail, Exhibit 54, where his wife was complaining about that to Mr Eige

As for MoBo, take a look at Government Exhibit

51 You know that MoBo was in trouble, because his sister, Maureen McDonnell, sister Maureen, was talking about short sales and bankruptcy Now, this is the first point in the case where I'm going to suggest to you that you use your common sense. Take a look at the e-mail Sister Maureen said that she didn't really mean they were in trouble and that she didn't really mean they needed to act now And Mr McDonnell sat in the chair and said that she was exaggerating Look at the e-mail See what you think of it That tells you all you need to know

By the way, this date, December 4th, 2009, that's the same day that the McDonnells traveled to New York City and met Jonnie Williams at the Four Seasons and had dinner with him and the subject of the inauguration dress came up So that's the context for that encounter in New York

Ms Aber told you in opening statement that at the beginning of his Administration, Mr and Ms McDonnell were hurting financially, and that is exactly what the evidence showed. More stage setting You remember the flight in October of 2010 from California, the one where Jonnie Williams rode with Mr McDonnell for those six hours, talked all about Anatabloc, talked all about the studies that he wanted

And then November 4th of 2010 he got that meeting with Dr Hazel that we have heard some testimony about following the flight from California February of 2011, a few months later, is the CigRx event at The Jefferson. You remember the one where you saw the pictures of Mr McDonnell holding the microphone and the CigRx panels behind him. That was the one where it wasn't on the Governor's schedule at first, but Jonnie Williams texted Adam Zubowsky and just like that, the Governor shows up at the drop of a hat

Now, it is true, as the defense has noted, that there were no personal gifts or loans from Jonnie Williams up to this point That's true These events are background They are stage setting They show you that the defendants knew what Jonnie Williams wanted, and they set the stage for what is to come

The last piece of stage setting is that in the spring of 2011, things haven't gotten any better with MoBo. Mr Uncapher, Michael Uncapher, the former brother-in-law of Mr and Ms McDonnell, sends this e-mail saying that they owe or are going to owe a minimum of $11,500 each month going forward. Mr McDonnell and his sister are trying desperately to refinance some of the umpteen mortgages they had on their beach houses And Exhibit 91 is the e-mail about that, about all of their attempts to get financing

In the top e-mail, Mr McDonnell says that it is a predictable result And the reason he says that is because he was expecting them to say no He knew the properties were upside town, that what they owed on all their mortgages was far more than the houses were worth. They tried to sell them in 2009, you remember those e-mails That didn't work. And by late March of 2011, they are trying to get refinancing and they are not having any success

That's the stage That's what's happening when our story begins with the shopping spree, April, 2011, in New York City You remember all the money that Mr Williams spent on clothing for Ms McDonnell This is the first juncture in the case at which Mr McDonnell claims to not know what's really going on. He admitted during his testimony that he knew his wife and Mary-Shea Sutherland went shopping with Jonnie Williams that day He admitted he saw a shopping bag But he denied that he knew what was purchased or who paid for it. Now, you saw a lot of the merchandise that Ms McDonnell picked out over those couple of days And that was part of the reason that brought it in court to show it to you. Folks, how do you miss that? You don't miss that On cross-examination, Mr McDonnell was confronted with the facts that, number one, he knew that Maureen McDonnell had in the past made inappropriate requests for money from people It was a long time ago, but he knew it Second, he knew that Jonnie Williams was very wealthy, and took his wife shopping in New York City Third, Jonnie Williams sat next to him at an event that night at the Union League Club Fourth, Mr McDonnell stayed in the same hotel room with his wife that night And fifth, the last time they were in New York together, Mr Williams had offered to buy Ms McDonnell a fancy designer gown for the inauguration and she was furious that she didn't get it

Now, despite all of that, Mr McDonnell said he had no idea that Jonnie Williams had paid. You decide whether to believe that

Five days after Mr Williams spent 19 grand on clothing for Ms McDonnell, the McDonnells invited Mr Williams and his wife over to dinner at the Governor's Mansion Coincidence? We don't think so. And when Jonnie Williams gets that invite, Jonnie Williams knows what time it is It is what time it always is in Jonnie Williams' world: Time to talk about Anatabloc and how great it is, and how much he needs those studies That's what he spent the dinner doing His wife was chiming in along the way And at that dinner he also met the McDonnells' daughter, Cailin, for the very first time

Now, after spending an evening with the

McDonnells in the Mansion and talking about Anatabloc, talking about the studies, talking about all the potential for this product, the next 72 hours are very interesting They start with Government's 107 This is a May 1st, 2011 e-mail sent at 10:40 in the morning Mr Williams has somebody send an Internet article on Anatabloc for Mr. and Ms McDonnell At 12:17, Ms McDonnell forwards it to her husband

Now, what else happens that day? This is Government's 574 Mr McDonnell sends some texts to his sister about loan options, that's what's in the middle there, and selling their two beach properties Now, by the way, just as an aside, if as we heard at trial Mr McDonnell's and his sister's intention was to hold on to these properties for the long haul, if they were such a great long term investment, and if everything was going swimmingly, 40 grand in the hole every year, just like they planned, why were they trying so hard to sell them? It is just a thought

Let's go back to our story Back to 574, please About two hours or so after Mr McDonnell sends these texts to his sister, Ms McDonnell has a 40-minute phone call with Jonnie Williams Now, we don't know everything that was said, but we know this much: At least part of that conversation was about trying to unload those two properties, Sunseeker and East Coast Palace, at Virginia Beach And the reason we know that is because of what happens next. Right after hanging up with Jonnie Williams, Ms. McDonnell e-mails information on the houses, this is in Government's 108 and 109, and then she follows up with another phone call And what do you know? First thing the following morning, this is Exhibit 112, a meeting with Jonnie Williams is put on Ms McDonnell's calendar for later that day

Now, that morning, May 2nd, Mr Williams arrived at the Mansion at 9:24 and stayed until 11:25 Mr Williams testified that at that meeting with Ms McDonnell, she explained that they were in trouble financially He said that she mentioned a loan from a doctor in Virginia Beach -- he couldn't remember the doctor's name; that she said their credit card debt was high; that they had real estate at Virginia Beach that was renting poorly in the down economy; and then she said, "I have a background in nutritional supplements, and I can be helpful to you with this project with your company The Governor says it is okay for me to help, help you, but I need you to help me I need you to help me with this financial situation "

She said she needed to borrow $50,000 And Mr Williams agreed She said they didn't know how she was going to cover the reception expenses for Cailin's wedding, and Mr Williams agreed to give $15,000 for that Now, by the way, this is one of the few places in the case where, yes, we are relying on the testimony of Jonnie Williams for what Ms McDonnell said to him in that meeting We absolutely are But let's run through the things that Mr Williams said happened at the meeting that are verifiable First, the McDonnells were in trouble financially True They had a loan from a doctor in Virginia Beach. True. Their credit card debt was high. True. They had real estate in Virginia Beach that was renting poorly True Ms McDonnell had a background in nutritional supplements True They owed an outstanding balance to Cailin's wedding caterer True Folks, that's called corroboration.

Mr McDonnell says he had no idea that Mr Williams agreed to loan Ms McDonnell the $50,000 Let's focus on that for just a minute I want to start with a quick recap of what brings us to May 2nd. April 13th, Jonnie Williams spent $19,000 on clothes for Ms McDonnell, and that night, Mr Williams sat next to Mr McDonnell at the Union League Club event Five days later, the McDonnells invited Mr Williams to the Mansion for dinner April 29th is that dinner, and that's where Anatabloc was discussed at length May 1st, a couple days after that, Mr McDonnell is texting with his sister about how to get rid of the Virginia Beach money pits, and Ms. McDonnell is trying to convince Jonnie Williams to look into them. That's what brings us to May 2nd with Exhibit 575

During the meeting with Jonnie Williams, Ms McDonnell called or tried to call Mr Uncapher, sister Maureen, her husband, sister Maureen twice more, and then Michael Uncapher again. She is trying desperately to reach the MoBo people, including her husband. Anyway, finally, Mr Uncapher finally calls her back And that is the first of two conversations where Mr Uncapher is giving Jonnie Williams information about MoBo and the properties Her meeting with Mr Williams continues a good 40 minutes after that phone call

Mr Williams and Ms McDonnell talked a couple of times that afternoon But what happened that night? That night, Jonnie Williams and Maureen McDonnell talked for 48 minutes That call started at 9:34 So that means it ended at 10:22 And then 15 minutes after that, at 10:37, Mr McDonnell called his sister and they talked for 84 minutes

Now, we don't know all that was said on that call That's true But this is, again, what you call circumstantial evidence They can get up here a little bit later and talk about it like it is a four-letter word, but it powerfully contradicts Mr. McDonnell's claim that he had no idea

Let's talk about Roskamp for a minute You remember, this is the place in Florida that does the research for Star And Jonnie Williams invited Mr McDonnell to go He wanted him to go. Mr. McDonnell knew that Jonnie wanted him to go Mr McDonnell says that Jonnie Williams invited him at the April 29th dinner at the Mansion, and furthermore, that he, Mr McDonnell, immediately decided that it was not going to happen Here is how you know that's not true Let's start with the e-mail between Ms Fulkerson and Monica Block, the Governor's scheduler, where Ms Block doesn't know what Ms Fulkerson is talking about This is a long time ago you saw this e-mail That's when Jerri Fulkerson was on the stand. But you remember it, I hope That's the e-mail exchange on May 4th Mr McDonnell sent Dr Hazel information on Roskamp to get his thoughts And you know that because of this, Exhibit 117 In that same exhibit, the reason Ms Block is asking about this is because she and the staff are currently evaluating having the Governor go down to Florida and speak to this group. Now, that's May 9th, some ten days after the invite was extended Don't you know that the reason they were evaluating it is because Mr McDonnell had asked them to. That's how you know his first thought was not "No way am I doing this "

May 23rd, 2011: This was the day that Mr. Williams hand delivered the $50,000 check to Maureen McDonnell and the $15,000 check made out in blank for the wedding reception. Part of the reason Mr Williams went in person was because he wanted to make sure that Mr. McDonnell knew where the money was coming from. He testified that he thought he spoke to Mr. McDonnell that day, but he wasn't sure about the circumstances

Now, you may recall that when Mr McDonnell testified, he fixated on this as if Mr Williams had sworn up and down that he saw the Governor at the Mansion on the 23rd. And he suggested that Mr Williams said something about sneaking through the tunnel Mr Williams said no such thing On direct examination, he was asked, "Did you have a conversation with Mr McDonnell before you loaned the 50,000 and gave the 15,000? Answer: I did Question: Do you remember the exact date of that conversation? Answer: I don't I recall that it was on the day that I came there or somewhere, I just don't recall whether it was in person or whether I talked to him on the phone "

On cross-examination, he was asked: "Mr McDonnell was not present when you dropped the checks off, was he? Answer: I just don't remember I have a problem with that part I just don't know whether I talked to him on the phone or I met him briefly upstairs I just don't remember "

Now, did we, the prosecution, put in the schedule for that day and explain the existence of the tunnel to illustrate that it could have happened that day? Yes, we did But that's not what Jonnie Williams swore to What he swore to was, he wasn't sure about it What he was sure of was that he needed to talk to Mr. McDonnell This is also from his testimony "The only thing I cared to do before I gave her $65,000 in two checks is, I needed to make sure her husband knew about it Question: Why? Answer: He is the breadwinner in the house And I'm not writing his wife any checks, I'm not writing his wife checks without him knowing about it " Because Mr McDonnell is the breadwinner in the house What does that tell you about who the loan was really to and who was going to be paying Mr Williams back? That loan is not just to Maureen McDonnell

And another reason you know that, that it was really the both of them, is because of how the money was spent This is Exhibit 579 It shows you how they spent that $50,000 from Mr Williams You know that Ms McDonnell bought $31,000 worth of stock on June 1st

That's down there at the bottom. She wrote the check on June 4th. That's why it says that there And then you see all the credit cards that got paid off Remember, yellow is Mr. McDonnell And what that means here is those three credit cards, Citi Card, Bank of America, and PenFed Visa, which total altogether some $20,000, those are all credit cards in his name only. And if there is anything that's clear from this trial, it is that it is Mr McDonnell who runs the finances in the household. He is the one who is monitoring their credit card statements He is the one who knows the money is spent on them, not just her

Next, May 28th is this e-mail, Exhibit 134 This is one of the most powerful pieces of evidence in the case And the reason it is is because it shows the linkage in Mr McDonnell's mind between the gifts from Jonnie Williams and the needs of Jonnie Williams for his product Mr Williams said he took the first part of this e-mail as being a reference to the $50,000 check he dropped off five days prior The next day, May 29th, Mr McDonnell and his two sons played golf out at Kinloch and rang up $2,300 in golf, food, and gear Now, Kinloch is obviously an excl[illegible], nice place Mr McDonnell knows the golf there is on Jonnie's tab. He pays nothing He doesn't even try to pay You all saw the photo of the credit card machine, testimony that all the stuff in the gift shop had price tags on it

Next day, couple days later, June 1st, Roskamp: This is the event where Ms McDonnell, this is down in Florida now, this is the event where Ms McDonnell addressed the crowd. She raved about Star and Anatabloc, and to Mr Williams' surprise, she offers up the Mansion for the product launch. So said every witness who testified about what happened there, and so wrote one of the witnesses who testified, Dr. Faessel, right after the event That's Page 3 of Exhibit 154

A little bit later in June, June 23rd to the 26th to be exact, was the Homestead event This was the one to honor big donors to Mr McDonnell's PAC. Mr Williams flew a couple of the kids from Richmond on his private plane And, you know, I'm sure other things went on there, but what did definitely go on there was a bunch of golf And in the weeks following the Homestead event, a couple of golf bags rolled into the the Mansion. A UVA golf bag for Bobby, you all saw it, and the Notre Dame one for his dad. They were both from Jonnie Williams, and they knew it

This is the University of Virginia bag, by the way, that Jeanine McDonnell thought was overboard and inappropriate and that Mr McDonnell thought was excessive, and that Bobby should return to Jonnie Williams. Now, Bobby did not return that bag or the clubs. But to be fair to him, maybe he was just following his dad's lead, because Mr McDonnell didn't return the Notre Dame bag, either, at least not until three months after the investigation hit the papers Mr McDonnell can't have it both ways The bag can't be excessive for his son, who is not a public official, but just right for him.

July 23rd is Gibson Island. This was a key event and that there was a lot of testimony about, which was Star's overall strategy to pursue a grant from the Tobacco Commission You may recall that Mr Williams testified that Mr McDonnell was encouraging him to pursue it Now, I want to talk about that just for a minute, because this is important Mr Williams, Paul Perito, Jerry Kilgore, they all testified about this Remember, in order to get the grant from the Tobacco Commission, they needed the universities on board in the first place, up front And the reason is because Star, which was a for-profit company, couldn't apply for the Tobacco Commission grant The universities needed to do that themselves

So it is important to remember, we can't put the cart before the horse here They wanted the Tobacco

Commission funding to pay for the studies, but they needed the universities interested enough to apply themselves The event at Gibson Island was a critical piece of that strategy to get the researchers at UVA and VCU fired up about the science behind anatabine and all of its potential

Now, there were lots of doctors at the event, but the two key ones were Dr John Clore, who is the Associate Vice President of Clinical Research at VCU, and he testified here; and Dr Peggy Shupnick, who Dr Clore told you was his counterpart at UVA and was directing the research enterprise there

Mr Williams flew the two doctors and Mary-Shea Sutherland up to Gibson Island on his private jet And Exhibit 170 on the screen now is the agenda for that meeting By now, you all recognize all these names, Dr Ladenson, Dr Caturegli, Dr Mullan, that guy was from Roskamp, Dr Wright, he was Star's head doctor And at the end of the event, Star handed out a request for applications This was a request soliciting applications for the $25,000 seed grants that Mr Perito talked about and that got disbursed later

This plan that they had to excite and interest the researchers who were there worked. Because the very night the event ended, Dr Clore sent this e-mail to his bosses at VCU. This is Exhibit 173 Now, these people to whom he sent it, the names at the top, he testified about this, they are the Dean of the entire Medical School, the Vice President for Research, and the Vice President for Health Sciences These are bigwigs And to them, Dr Clore makes a point of mentioning the Governor's support, which he said he learned about at Gibson Island, and also, the $25,000 planning grants that I mentioned a moment ago Now, that's July 23rd, the same day as the event at Gibson Island, okay He sends that e-mail

The next morning, Dr. Clore sends another e-mail, and this is Exhibit 174 This is along the same lines about Gibson Island, this time to colleagues and other researchers at VCU, including another name you recognize by now, Dr George Vetrovec You all remember him. He testified here. He was the one who Jonnie gave the ride in the Ferrari to to get cookies and he couldn't open the door to get in it That's Dr Vetrovec

Okay, in the category of dead horses is Smith Mountain Lake But I have to talk about it for a minute July 28th to July 31st, 2011, the McDonnells get a lovely vacation at Mr Williams' home up at Smith Mountain Lake Jerri Fulkerson helps set it up. There is the beautiful house They had it to themselves There is the boat that Ms Fulkerson arranged for them to use on the weekend, and of course, there is this, the famous Ferrari Now, don't miss the point of the Ferrari evidence, okay? Yes, it is partly to show that even someone who basks in a reputation of walking around with holes in his shoes knows very well how to enjoy the finer things That's part of it, absolutely But the other part, and we think the more important part, is the lie that he tells about it later We will come back to that in a little while

Let's recall what happens on the ride home in the Ferrari This is Exhibit 581, Page 2 During the three hours there in the car together, Ms McDonnell texted Jonnie Williams twice, e-mails him this photo of Mr McDonnell driving, and has two phone calls, one of which is 14 minutes long And during one of them, Mr McDonnell says he spoke to Jonnie Williams himself And they are still in the car together a good hour-and-a-half after that

And later that night, after getting home, after spending three hours in the car with his wife, Mr McDonnell sends this directive to Dr Hazel, it is Exhibit 189, telling him to send someone to attend a short briefing at the Mansion about 10 a.m. with the First Lady on the Star Scientific Anatabloc trials planned in Virginia at VCU and UVA.

Now, let's note how Dr Hazel responds early the following morning "Will do " Now, remember now, Dr Hazel testified in this trial, too This is the same guy who thinks Jonnie Williams' product is junk And wants no part of sitting next to Mr. Williams at the Homestead But he doesn't say, "Hey, Governor, this guy is selling snake oil, why are we giving him a meeting?" And the reason he doesn't is the same reason he didn't complain back in May when he was asked to provide his thoughts on Roskamp The reason is because he does what the Governor directs him to do That's the reason

August 1st, 2011, the next day This is the date of the meeting at the Mansion. Summary for it is Exhibit 582 Ms Huffstetler came in here and testified, testified about the meeting with Jonnie Williams, we saw her notes and all that Remember this: She said she attended only because she was directed to do so You remember the e-mail exchange where it started with the e-mail we just saw, that makes its way to Ms Huffstetler, and she is the one who ends up going to the meeting And second, that this is the one and only meeting she ever attended in the Governor's Mansion We went through her notes in quite detailed fashion. Bottom line, Mr Williams is talking to her about the usual

And one of the things he mentions to her is Dr Clore, who you may recall works at MCV And the last thing that happens on August 1st of 2011 is that 11:44 a.m., shortly after Mr Clore leaves -- excuse me, my bad, back up a second After the meeting with Ms Huffstetler, she gets the meeting with Dr Clore in the First Lady's Office And as I mentioned to you a moment ago, he had already talked to Ms Huffstetler about Dr Clore earlier in the day Now, this is the last thing that happens on August 1st. At 11:44 a.m., shortly after Dr Clore leaves, the August 30th Mansion event we have heard so much about is put on the calendar Mary-Shea Sutherland told you that that date was picked because it was a day and a time that Mr McDonnell's calendar was clear And take a look at Exhibit 192 You will see that Ms McDonnell does this one herself Mary-Shea Sutherland doesn't, she does

August 13th, 2011, more golf This is Exhibit 200 Mr McDonnell and one of his sons played, this time to the tune of $850, with food and merchandise thrown in

And the lead-up to the Mansion event is next It starts with Exhibit 204 And this is the exchange between Mary-Shea Sutherland and Katherine Harris And the e-mail that's not on the screen here but is part of the same exhibit is the one where Mary-Shea Sutherland first mentions that there is a lunch event at the Mansion and that the First Lady wants the Governor to attend. The reply to that is the e-mail that's on the bottom screen right here where Ms Harris says, "Look, the Governor is going to be in D.C. that day doing the radio interview and he won't be able to attend it " Ms Sutherland says, "The First Lady is not going to be happy about that " Ms Harris says, "I'll check with Mr McDonnell in the morning and get back to you." That last e-mail is on August 15th at 8:15 in the evening The next day, August 16th, 207, this is an e-mail from Mr Zubowsky to Ms Sutherland saying, "Can you send me information on the event? I know he is going to ask for details."

One more thing on 207 Ms Sutherland responds and gives him the details he is asking for That's also on August 16th So we have the e-mail exchange between Ms Harris and Sutherland on the 15th and the e-mail exchange between Mr Zubowsky and Ms Sutherland on the 16th, and here is what happens in between. Exhibit 584 Several communications, phones and text messages, between Ms McDonnell and Mr Williams, plus a phone call from Ms McDonnell to Mr McDonnell right before Adam Zubowsky asks for information about the event That's the context

Now, speaking of contexts, what's happening around the state at this time, the date of the launch? There is an earthquake that's happened. There's recovery efforts with that going on. There is the Dismal Swamp fire There is the nuclear power plant problem up at Lake Anna There is Hurricane Irene that's bearing down on the metro area And despite all these disasters and tragedies around the state, Mr McDonnell says, "I'm not missing that event at the Mansion. Jonnie Williams is going to be there, and so am I " And he goes

Now, what about this? I thought it was just an event where they were going to hand out some checks. No, sir. Three pieces of evidence blow that out of the water One, Dr Clore testified he was surprised to be receiving a $25,000 check. He didn't even know about it Two: Dr Lazo testified, and this was important He said, "After the event was over, after the event was over, when I was leaving, Mr Williams shook my hand and gave me a check." Third and finally, there is the briefing sheet that Dr Scarbrough prepared the day before This is Exhibit 218 You won't see anything on there about handing out checks, folks

Now, what happened at the event? Let's talk about the testimony of some of the folks who were there First, Jonnie Williams He testified that it was an event to launch Anatabloc, that there was Anatabloc at every place setting, that both Mr and Ms McDonnell spoke, that studies and research were discussed, that he himself spoke and he used the tobacco leaf as a prop, that the Governor asked questions and was generally supportive That was what Mr. Williams said.

What about Dr Lazo, who also attended? He testified that there was Anatabloc at the place settings, that studies and research were discussed, that Mr Williams spoke and used a tobacco stalk as a prop, that the Governor asked questions, and that it was mentioned at the event that Anatabloc was being rolled out into stores

How about Dr Clore? He attended, too He said that the Governor engaged people there and made some topical remarks He said that Mr Williams may have had a tobacco leaf, but he didn't remember And he said that Jonnie Williams at the meeting described the Anatabloc was about to be released in drug stores in the greater Richmond area, and that the event, Dr Clore's words, was designed to make a big splash.

Dr Scarbrough, who was there at the beginning of the event, she testified that Ms McDonnell told her that the event was for Jonnie Williams to launch Anatabloc, and that Ms McDonnell and Jonnie Williams had placed Anatabloc at every place setting; that something like that had never happened before; and that the event seemed like a launch to her

Now, let's pause for a moment here, please

There has been lots of focus, some of it humorous, on this term "launch" or "lunch " Folks, the label for this thing matters not one bit You can call it a launch, you can call it a lunch. You can call it a manifestation, like Dr Caturegli did. It doesn't matter. What matters is whether the Governor and the First Lady hosting this event at the Executive Mansion, or quoting Dr Caturegli again, "the State of Virginia's home" -- you all remember that, remember that's what he called the Mansion -- the question is whether hosting that event at the Mansion is an official act Of course it was Dr Scarbrough and Mr Kent both told you that all Mansion events are ultimately approved by the Governor Not the staff, not the First Lady, the Governor

And this wasn't some ceremonial event without context or some event with no purpose Hosting this event at the Mansion and all that went with it is what mattered most to Jonnie Williams and Paul Perito and Star And what mattered most of all was that Mr McDonnell showed up He made time to attend. He arrived, he made remarks, he talked glowingly about Star He asked questions He was engaged. It was delightful And Jonnie Williams was on Cloud 9 This is exactly what he wanted This is exactly what he was paying for

He testified he wanted Mr McDonnell there because, quoting, "It sends a signal to those medical schools that this is important. The credibility associated with it." End quote. And if there is any question about what Mr Perito called the halo effect, or what Jonnie Williams called credibility, that comes from an event like this, let's pause for a moment and think about what it was like from the perspective of the people who mattered to Mr Williams, the UVA and VCU doctors who were there Both Dr Lazo and Dr Clore were state employees They were people way down the food chain from Mr McDonnell And they told you that when they saw that invitation with the name on it and the seal on it, it seemed official to them.

And then think about what they did after it was over Dr Clore promptly told his colleagues all about it when he got back to VCU And Dr Lazo, who was the one from UVA, he didn't even wait until he got back to Charlottesville He called his higher-ups at UVA from the car and told them that he had just met the Governor at the Mansion. And when he got back, he did the same thing, told the Dean of the School of Medicine, and later a panel of fellow researchers

You all detecting a pattern here? Dr Clore's reaction following the Gibson Island event, where the Governor's support is discussed; Dr Lazo's behavior following the event at the Mansion And it is not like Dr. Lazo's comments fell on deaf ears Remember Exhibit 267 from Sharon Krueger, one of the UVA officials who heard about the event from Dr Lazo, this is at the top here, as she thought through what the University of Virginia should do She wrote a Pro/Con list for herself, and that list really says it all The top of the Pros? "Perception to Governor " The top of the Cons? "Political pressure from Governor "

Now, folks, there has been a lot of back and forth about what Mr McDonnell said or didn't say at the launch event But his actions spoke louder than any words could have. He didn't have to say a single thing for that event to impact those state employees Ms Krueger wasn't even there, and she got the message

A word about this defense about Mary-Shea Sutherland, that the launch was a brainchild of hers and what happened here really had nothing to do with the McDonnells because it was all her secret plan to get official acts for Jonnie Williams in exchange for a job Now, this fits nicely with their general strategy of trying to make the case about anyone other than their clients But let's indulge it for just a moment What was the evidence on that? First, the idea of the event at the Mansion comes from one place only: Maureen McDonnell at the Roskamp event on June 1st Every person who testified about that said the same thing She offered up the Mansion in her remarks for the launch of Anatabloc This idea wasn't hatched at the Union League Club in New York by Mary-Shea Sutherland in a conversation with James Abel That's why we brought that guy in to testify That had nothing to do with it The Mansion wasn't on anybody's radar at that point It was on nobody's radar until it came out of the First Lady's mouth in Florida.

Second, Mary-Shea Sutherland, who according to them is so fired up to lay out the Mansion to do whatever Star wants, when Star sends over a press release shortly before the launch says, "No way " That's not a euphemism, folks That's actually what she said, Exhibit 224

Third, Ms Sutherland, who according to them is an architect of this two-year-long bribery scheme, she leaves the Mansion six months in October of 2011, she is gone. Everything that happens in 2012, she is gone She has nothing nothing to do with any of it

Fourth, how about the behavior of Jonnie Williams himself? When faced with the choice of being a client for Mary-Shea Sutherland or outing her to the First Lady to try and preserve that relationship, there is no hesitation "Forget Mary-Shea Sutherland," he tells the First Lady And why? He told you himself Question

Mr Dry put to him: "In your mind, what's more important, your relationship with Mary-Shea Sutherland or your relationship with the McDonnells? Answer: The McDonnells Question: Who could do more for you? Answer: The McDonnells That's not even close "

But you know what the best evidence is that this defense is a loser? It is the testimony of Mary-Shea Sutherland herself Among the instructions you are going to get from the Judge before you deliberate is some guidelines on how to evaluate the credibility of witnesses. Mary-Shea Sutherland got A's in spades on all of those categories She was direct, she was calm, she was patient, she had the same demeanor on direct examination and cross-examination And there was an air about her that you could tell when she worked for these people, she was the only adult in the room. Mary-Shea Sutherland's testimony and presence here in that chair were the last nails in the coffin for that defense

Now, they keep trying to resurrect it And you may remember a couple days ago Mr Ross' slides about all the communications between Mary-Shea Sutherland and Jonnie Williams in the last few days leading up to the launch. And we have seen at least a couple times Dr Scarbrough's e-mail where she refers to the event at the Mansion as "Mary-Shea's deal " Okay, let's talk about that The answer for this comes from the testimony of Dr Scarbrough herself She made it crystal clear what that was about And she backed up exactly what Mary-Shea Sutherland said. The only reason Ms Sutherland was as involved as she was in the days leading up to the event is because Dr. Scarbrough was on vacation. It is as simple as that No matter how hard they try to make this a criminal conspiracy between Mr Williams and Ms Sutherland, no matter how badly they want that to be what happened here, for all the reasons I've gone over just now, that doesn't make any sense It just doesn't

Moving on: Early 2012 Exhibit 285, January 7th of 2012, Mr McDonnell and his two sons came out again to Kinloch, and this time spent $1,300 of Jonnie Williams' money Less than two weeks later is January 19th, 2012 This is the day of the second call where Ms McDonnell hands Jonnie Williams the phone and he and Michael Uncapher talked about what's going on with MoBo. At the time that that happens, Mr Williams is with Ms McDonnell at the Mansion, and you can see that from Exhibit 586 In that same conversation, Ms McDonnell told Mr Williams that the Governor wanted to know how things were going with studies at UVA and VCU And Mr Williams said, "They are slow " And the reason he said they are slow is because of the November 29th of 2011, a couple months before, phone call between Star folks and UVA folks, Mr Perito told you about this call, you may remember "UVA was unprepared, my word, not his, and it was a disaster "

I want to take a minute and talk about Mr. Perito. You may remember that on cross-examination after Mr Asbill pointed out all the personal connections they had, for no apparent reason, he then came at him at 100 miles an hour for being only interested in money. And then Ms. McDonnell's counsel got up here and asked questions suggesting that all Jonnie Williams had to do was turn on the charm to brainwash this Harvard Law School graduate and former White House official into coming to Star

Now, neither one of those lines of cross-examination got anywhere But here is the question we would like you to focus on. Why were they trying so hard to discredit him? It is because he hurts them. He clarifies beyond any question that there was a plan to try to get Mr and Ms McDonnell to assist Star in promoting the product and in obtaining studies at UVA and VCU They were key pieces in the effort to pursue funding from the Tobacco Commission. He explained precisely how having that event at the Mansion helped Star, how the Governor's attendance added gravitas to their effort and could influence officials from UVA and VCU and how that would have a propitious impact, he said, on officials from Virginia. Not to mention he corroborates Jonnie Williams all over the place He corroborates that Jonnie Williams told Ms McDonnell about Mary-Shea Sutherland looking for a job to preserve that relationship at the expense of whatever one he had with Mary-Shea Sutherland. And the reason he corroborates that is because it was Mr. Perito who told him to do it He corroborates that Ms McDonnell wanted to be on Star's Board because of money He shut that down. And most important of all, he corroborates through the story of when Jonnie Williams finally came clean to him, that Mr Williams knew what he did was wrong

That was a moment in this trial if there ever was one He said Mr Williams, while telling his longtime friend and advisor what he had done, was sobbing Mr Williams, an undeniably proud man, I think we can agree on that, admitted what he did, and that he knew it was wrong He admitted it not to agents, but to his longtime friend. He admitted it before he had met a single prosecutor, and long before any immunity agreement

Paul Perito, the man who testified about the importance of the Governor's gravitas, added a bit of his own to this trial And they have no answer for him.

The day after the January 19th meeting between Mr Williams and Ms McDonnell at the Mansion, we talked about that a moment ago, the one where it was the second call between Mr Uncapher and Mr Williams about MoBo, the day after that meeting is January 20th. And that was the day that Mr. Williams and Ms. McDonnell flew down to South Carolina to meet the rest of the entourage, Mr McDonnell and the other staffers, for the Mitt Romney endorsement You all remember that story I'm not going to repeat that here

A week after that is this e-mail That's Exhibit 295 This is the one where Mr Uncapher is telling Mr McDonnell about the conversation he had had with Ms McDonnell the week before with "the guy who is helping us " And although Mr Uncapher doesn't mention any names, it is quite clear who Bob McDonnell thinks he is talking about And apparently, he and Ms McDonnell talked about it that evening

The other interesting thing that happens after the January 19th meeting at the Mansion is that Mr Williams gets the green light to invite a list of doctors and researchers of his choosing to be recognized as Healthcare Leaders in Virginia at a reception at the Mansion on February 29th Exhibit 299 is that list being sent along on February 3rd to the First Lady And we are going to come back to this in a minute, so just hold that thought, okay?

Before I do that, I want to point out that also on February 3rd, the same day that that list is forwarded to the First Lady, Mr McDonnell and Mr Williams have their first conversation about the second $50,000 that Mr McDonnell needed for MoBo, and about how to get it done

Now, there has been lots of testimony about what was going on with MoBo around this time; a whole lot of testimony, we acknowledge that, about whether they really needed the loan and all that stuff Let's talk about that for a minute Mr Kosowsky: The defense paid this guy $80,000 to review a bunch of documents and to walk into this courtroom and provide his opinions He opined that the McDonnells were financially sound That's what he said. You remember Mr Faulconer methodically dismantling that, brick by brick by brick Mr Kosowsky also said that part of the reason for his opinion was that Mr McDonnell's credit card capacity was a liquid resource He said Mr McDonnell had the ability to access credit

Now, there is a lot I could say about those two comments, but the upshot is this: It is just not right It is just not right

But let's talk about these so-called liquid resources of Mr McDonnell You may remember Mr Faulconer walking through some half-dozen credit card statements and pointing out the interest rates on those accounts. Why did we do that? It was a tedious exercise, yes. But here is the point: None of those other options could touch the deal Mr McDonnell was getting from Jonnie Williams Allen Kosowsky was a hired gun who was shooting blanks You shouldn't credit him.

How about sister Maureen? There has been plenty of testimony from sister Maureen about this She is loaded. Undisputed. What was the point of the testimony? The point appeared to be that Mr McDonnell could have just called her up and gotten whatever money he needed, so why would he hit up Jonnie Williams? We don't know the answer to that for sure But here's some possibilities that we came up with First, maybe he didn't want to hit up his little sister for more money Maybe he was too proud to do that Second: Maybe the money wasn't as available to him as the testimony indicated Because, as sister Maureen testified, it was better for her to invest the money and make more money than to plow her money into MoBo, the money pit You remember that? She wasn't even willing to pony up $20,000, preferring to invest it She said the 50 grand she had in her third 401(k) was not significant But she couldn't even bring herself to cough up 20 for MoBo So think about that when you are assessing just how freely available sister Maureen's money really was to her big brother, Bob

But you know what else? All this evidence about all the other options Mr McDonnell supposedly had, including those nonsense options like he could have spread out his $20,000 share of the annual shortfall over all that credit card capacity Or, he could have cashed out his retirement 20 months shy of when the penalties would go away All of these other piles of fantasy cash just sitting around, even if it were all true, even if it were true, whatever significance that stuff has fades to zero when you remember this: He asked Jonnie for it He asked for it Not his wife, not his sister, not Michael Uncapher He did. We don't have to prove that Jonnie Williams was the only option Mr McDonnell had. We have to prove that Jonnie Williams was the option Mr McDonnell chose That is exactly what we have proven, and that is exactly what he did.

The notes of that February 3rd conversation, you remember this: You have seen the notes of this first meeting on February 3rd. Among the subjects discussed was reportability This is Exhibit 2, the color version Mr McDonnell testified that this was just him taking detailed notes of everything Jonnie Williams was saying and that he didn't care about it He didn't care whether Jonnie Williams had to disclose who he sold the shares to And you may remember Mr Dry pressing Mr McDonnell on cross on this point But if reportability isn't a concern for you, if you really don't care about it, why are you taking these notes about it? Isn't that the whole point of taking notes, writing down the stuff that matters to you? Take a look at this page of notes, and ask yourselves: Is this someone who could care less about reportability, or is this someone to whom reportability is important? Don't overthink this one, folks Of course it was a concern Of course it was important to him. That's why he took the notes

Okay, let's go back to February 3rd with the invite list for the Healthcare Leaders Reception Started out with the e-mail that Ms Birgmann sent to Ms McDonnell on February 3rd. The next one is Exhibit 300 This one is Dr Scarbrough sending Dr Hazel's list to Ms McDonnell on a Saturday afternoon, February 4th, which she testified was most likely because Ms McDonnell had asked for it. That's at 3:21 p.m. About twenty minutes later, we have Exhibit 301, which is Ms McDonnell saying, "Hey, invite as many people as you want " And she says that not only to Ms Birgmann, but to Jonnie Williams himself Next is Government's 302, a few days later, this is February 7th, and Dr Ladenson is asking Dr Crantz to check his calendar for the evening of February 29th So you know Dr Ladenson has gotten the word Next is Exhibit 304, also February 7th, and at 10:46 p m.Ms McDonnell sends this directive to Dr Scarbrough to "Add these docs to the Healthcare Leaders event and mail invites today "

Now, this is the list that is attached. And where did this list come from? We may not know where it all came from, but we know where some of it came from. You know Dr Vetrovec and Mr Abadi came straight from Star, because they were on Jonnie Williams' original list They are from VCU As for the names typed at the end in the bigger font at the bottom of the screen here, those came from Government's 629 This was the stack of paper you heard testimony about that Mr McDonnell flipped through and reviewed and circled names and so forth On Page 3, all five of those names at the top made it on, along with the circled names, for example, on Page 5 And by the way, let's note that Mr McDonnell, among others, circles Dr Clore This is where the list that Ms McDonnell sends to Dr Scarbrough on February 7th, that was Exhibit 304, that's where this list comes from.

Now, Mr McDonnell claims that Ms McDonnell was the one who added the Star people, of course And not only did she add them; he had no idea that she had done so Never mind that the first page of the list that we looked at a minute ago, those five names at the top, all but screams Jonnie Williams and Star, and never mind that he circled Dr Clore's name Let's move on

When did all this circling and stuff happen? The answer for that comes from Exhibit 306. This is an e-mail on the morning of February 8th from Dr Scarbrough to Dr. Hazel's assistant, that's who Elaina Schramm is And she is saying, "The First Lady and the Governor were going over the list last night " So the answer is, Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell went over the list on the night of February 7th And by the way, looking at Mr McDonnell's schedule for that day, this wasn't one of those nights that Mr Brownlee was talking about with Special Agent Weber yesterday where Mr McDonnell was out of town until 11:30 or whatever He was there

Now, you may remember that Mr Williams testified that at some point after the January meeting with Ms McDonnell at the Mansion, that she called him back and said the Governor was furious and wanted contact information for the people that Mr Williams was dealing with at UVA. And on the afternoon of February 8th, the day after Mr and Ms McDonnell had added the names to the invite list for the Healthcare Leaders Reception, and by the way, five days after Mr McDonnell's first conversation with Mr Williams about the second 50 grand, Ms McDonnell received the names and the contact information from Jonnie, Jr That's Exhibit 312

Let's review what happens the next day. This is Exhibit 588 February 9th. Ms McDonnell has lunch with Mr McDonnell, and then she calls Jasen Eige You may remember that Mr Eige testified that he believed he had spoken with Ms McDonnell before receiving the e-mail she sent, and he was right At 3:13, Ms McDonnell sends the contact info to her husband and Jasen Eige, and says, "No one will return Jonnie's calls " That's Exhibit 312 Jasen Eige basically blew her off, this is what he testified to, he basically blew her off and he hoped this would all go away

That afternoon and early evening, Mr and Ms McDonnell traveled to Washington, D.C together The next morning, February 10th of 2012, at 9:27 a.m., Ms McDonnell e-mails Jasen Eige again. This is Exhibit 314 And she says, "The Governor wants to know why nothing has developed with the studies, and the Governor wants to get this going with VCU-MCV "

Now, they have made a big deal throughout the case about how Ms McDonnell from time to time would invoke the Governor's name when he really didn't know it But lest you think there is any chance of that happening here, consider the context. First, the preceding afternoon she had e-mailed Mr. McDonnell Then they traveled to Washington, D C together, attended a Romney event, and spent the evening together Second, the very next morning, Ms McDonnell sends the e-mail we just looked at to Jasen Eige And third, at the moment she types out that e-mail on her BlackBerry and sends it, or iPhone, whatever it was, and sends it, she is sitting in the back of a Suburban right next to her husband. Those circumstances alone should eliminate any doubt that Mr McDonnell was absolutely on board with the plan to kick start studies at UVA for Jonnie Williams' benefit Mr McDonnell denies knowing anything about it The evidence to this point shows clearly that he did, but what seals it beyond any doubt is the pair of e-mails Mr McDonnell sends a few days later This is Government's 318 and 320 You guys have seen these e-mails several times I don't need to read them to you. You want to know what Mr McDonnell knows, whether there is a corrupt agreement in his head, you want to know what he spends, and most importantly, why? Look no further Government's 318 is about the quid. Government's 320 is about the quo And what your common sense tells you about those six minutes in between, that instinct that you have in your gut when you hear that these e-mails were six minutes apart, that's what we call pro

Now, fortunately for Mr McDonnell, Jasen Eige shut this down This is also Government's 320 If there is anything you can tell from this short e-mail, it is that Jasen Eige, the Governor's legal counselor, didn't see this as basic constituent service, like Mr McDonnell tried to describe it on the stand. And before he even met with the Governor, Mr Eige called up his friend, Jerry Kilgore, who he knew was advising Star, and said, "I've been asked by the Governor to show support for this research. I don't think we should be pressuring UVA and VCU on this research And I just don't think we should be doing it " He shut it down

And by the way, if the Governor was really so powerless over UVA as they would have you believe, and if what he said had so little effect on them, and his influence over them was just a figment of Jonnie Williams' and Paul Perito's imagination, why does Jasen Eige bother intervening? Why does he have to step in? It is because he knows, he knows the power of that bully pulpit that Mr Kilgore talked about He knows that that is the same power that your common sense confirms That's why he intervenes

Now, I said a moment ago that Mr McDonnell was fortunate, and I say that because Mr Eige's intervention was the only thing that allows his lawyers to stand here and argue to you that he is not guilty because more wasn't done The polite no that we have heard so much about, that Dr Hazel gave, that Ms. Huffstetler gave, that Jasen Eige gave, that never came out of Bob McDonnell's mouth. And the reason it didn't is because he was on the Jonnie Williams' gravy train and he and Jonnie Williams had a deal "Do what you can when opportunities arise, and I'll keep paying."

As you will learn when you get the instructions from the Court before you start deliberating, bribery is bribery whether or not the payer actually provides the thing of value, and whether or not the public official ultimately performs the requested official action or intends to do so The corrupt deal is why he is guilty And he doesn't escape responsibility just because his staff, who didn't even know about the bribes, said no for him.

Healthcare Leaders, back to that Before we get to the actual event, there is more work going on on the stock front in the lead-up to the Healthcare Leaders Reception On February 21st, 2012, this exchange occurred. This is Government's 590 Two days later, on February 23rd, 2012, there is a conference call among Mr McDonnell, Ms McDonnell, and their stockbroker, Mr Piscitelli. He testified here And this was about the margin loans. You may remember Mr Piscitelli said that Ms. McDonnell never told him, "Hey, don't tell Mr McDonnell about any of that stock I purchased last year " Never said that to him. And indeed, the calls started with Mr McDonnell thanking Mr Piscitelli for helping Ms. McDonnell out And then during the call, Mr and Ms McDonnell made it clear that to do this deal, a separate account was going to be set up in Ms. McDonnell's name only, segregated from the initial one

Just think about that for a minute The best sign that this is a devastating piece of evidence for the McDonnells is how mightily Mr Piscitelli tried to avoid saying it You remember that? Mr Dry with the grand jury transcript, he basically had to use a winch to get this one out of him. He tried to say that on reflection, it may have been on a later call, only with Maureen, that he got that instruction That's what he tried to say And then he was confronted with three different excerpts of his grand jury testimony, some ten months ago, ten months closer in time to the events that occurred in this case, in which he swore not once, not twice, but three times that during the call with both Mr and Ms McDonnell on the line, they instructed him to set up a separate, segregated account in Maureen's name And the next day, February 24th, Ms McDonnell sent over an application to Davenport for that very thing

Now, according to Mr McDonnell's testimony, after that joint call, Ms McDonnell secretly sent over an account opening statement to Davenport, and he had no idea Don't buy it. In the face of the evidence, that denial is not credible

That brings us to February 29th. Plenty happened on this day First, Mr Williams and Mr McDonnell have a meeting at 1:30 where they discuss more details of the stock deal Also on February 29th, Mr McDonnell sends this e-mail, Exhibit 801, Page 2, in which he is asking that his wife, the woman he is supposedly in such poor communications with, be copied on all future e-mails with the realty manager at Sandbridge

Okay, let's go to the Virginia Healthcare Leaders Reception That's that evening, the evening of February 29th Now, you remember the list that Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell went over back on the night of February 7th There were lots of people from Mr Williams' list who got invited, including Dr Vetrovec, Dr Clore, they were the doctors at VCU that Mr Williams was trying to impress, Ladenson, Mullen, and

Caturegli Johns Hopkins was, last I checked, in Maryland. By the way, now you know why they elicited that Johns Hopkins has an emergency room campus at Arlington Of course, none of those guys who attended was an emergency room doctor, but whatever A Roskamp doctor got invited, too That was Dr. Mullan. I don't think Roskamp has a research facility in Virginia And not to mention, half of the front office of Star Scientific, Jonnie Williams, Jonnie, Jr , Ms Birgmann, and David Dean, who, you may remember, while he was there that day, stopped by to cold call Sara Wilson and pitch Anatabloc to her

Now, as for whether these people were appropriately recognized as Healthcare Leaders in Virginia, you need only remember the testimony of Dr Hazel, who, if nothing else, made it quite clear what his opinion was of the product, the company, and this list of outsiders, his word, who got added to the event We think it is fair to say he was disgusted, that's our word, not his, but we think it is a fair inference

These people had no business being there They got invited for one reason only: Jonnie Williams wanted them invited. Jonnie Williams also wanted Mr McDonnell to single out Dr Ladenson, and he got that, too

Oh, and remember what Dr Scarbrough said about how the Mansion had to pay for all the extra invites above and beyond the folks that Dr Hazel wanted to be there? Those are taxpayer dollars, folks So that line you heard in Mr Brownlee's opening statement about not one dollar of taxpayer money being spent on Mr. Williams? That was just a misstatement It is wrong.

Now, before we go on to illustrate how valuable it was to get invited to this event, let's take a brief look at who didn't get invited.

The Republican Governors Association, which Mr McDonnell pointed out no fewer than ten times he was on the Executive Committee of, is a nationwide fundraising outfit for Republican governors They have a list of 41 people that they want to have invited This is Exhibit 308 These are people who are affiliated with significant and important healthcare companies, companies like CIGNA and Amgen and other companies like that, and nearly all of which the doctors who testified here were familiar with Not one of these people got invited Zero Of course, to be fair, all these people's companies did was donate hundreds of thousands or millions of dollars to the RGA That's all they did They hadn't done what Jonnie Williams had done and, as we're about to see, did continue doing

Now, that separate segregated account that was just in Maureen's name, it never got used And because -- the reason is because, as we all know, the stock transfer never happened When Mr Williams gets those wiring instructions from Mr Piscitelli on March 2nd -- that's Exhibit 348 -- he realizes it can't be done without disclosures And so instead, on March 6th, he has Ms Fulkerson cut a $50,000 check This is the one -- I know you all remember this -- where Ms Fulkerson twice puts Maureen McDonnell's name on the memo line, before finally getting it right the third time

Now, was this a loan to MoBo? Let's start with, what is MoBo? MoBo is an LLC made up of Bob McDonnell and his sister Bob McDonnell is Bo in MoBo They have no employees, no assets to speak of other than the properties themselves, and they are mortgaged to the hilt It's cash negative to the tune of an average of $40,000, or so, every year during this time, and sister Maureen said that its bank account was no more than a pass-through

Jonnie Williams wasn't making a loan to MoBo Jonnie Williams was making a loan to Bob McDonnell But there is some important news about the law that you're going to get on this from the Court a little later, and it is that for the corruption charges, it doesn't matter. As we expect Judge Spencer to instruct you, the thing of value in a bribery exchange need not be provided directly or indirectly to the public official, but may be provided to another person or entity at the public official's request or with the public official's agreement

So for the corruption charges, the honest services fraud, and obtaining property under color of official right, it makes no difference whether the $70,000 in loans 2012 was to MoBo It's not a defense, period

Two weeks later, March 21st of '12, Mr McDonnell is in a meeting with his Secretary of Administration, Lisa

Hicks-Thomas, and one of her subordinates, Sara Wilson And they both testified here And the subject of their meeting is a consumer-driven healthcare plan for employees, which, among other things, specified which drugs could and could not be used as part of the plan During the meeting, in the midst of this discussion about the employee health plan, Mr McDonnell pulls out a bottle of Anatabloc, talks about how great it is, and how it would be good for State employees

Now, depending on whose memory is correct about this, either the Governor asked them to meet with Star personnel, that's what Ms Hicks-Thomas said, or gave Ms Hicks-Thomas the strong impression that he wanted to meet with Star That's what Ms Wilson said Either way, according to Sara Wilson, she had never seen anything like this before

Let's move to May Despite having a sister who makes $500,000, and at least one friend, Mr Damico, who's apparently willing to stroke a check for a million bucks at the drop of a hat, Mr McDonnell, nevertheless, decides to hit up Mr Williams for another 20 grand This is Exhibit 379 This is the Governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia asking Jonnie Williams for a $20,000 loan What it is is a $20,000 bribe

And Exhibit 80 -- excuse me, 380, 12 minutes later, what does Jonnie Williams say? "Done Tell me who to make it out to and the address " Four days after this, May 22nd, Jonnie Williams had his assistant, Jerri Fulkerson, transfer another $20,000 to MoBo, which is exactly what Mr McDonnell asked for

Another little detour here, please A brief word about all the things we keep hearing about that Mr McDonnell didn't do As I noted earlier, we don't even have to prove that he did any official acts so long as we prove the corrupt agreement Of course, Mr McDonnell did plenty, and you all have heard about all that We expect you'll hear from the Court in the instructions that official action includes actions that have been clearly established by settled practice as a part of a public official's position

Now, all of these things, the launch at the Mansion, directing Dr Hazel to send somebody to the meeting in August of 2011, the effort to pressure VCU and UVA on Star's behalf that Jasen Eige shut down, the Virginia Healthcare Leaders event at the Mansion, Mr McDonnell meeting with Lisa Hicks-Thomas and Sara Wilson, asking them to reach out to the Star people, or strongly suggesting as much, all of these are officials acts on the issue of Virginia business development, which everyone who testified about it said was a capital priority of Bob

McDonnell's administration

Mr. McDonnell's involvement with every single one of these things was in his official capacity as Governor, whether it was approving the Mansion event, which Dr Scarbrough and Mr Kent both said were ultimately approved by him, or directing conduct by a subordinate Whatever it was, it's all official action So the fact that Mr. McDonnell didn't order a dispensation from the Governor's Opportunity Fund or to Star, and he didn't put a line item in the budget for the studies that Mr Williams wanted, that's like saying a guy who steals a TV isn't guilty because he didn't steal two Not a defense

What separates the official action in this case from all the other times that Mr McDonnell had done similar things is what makes the defendants here guilty They got paid for them We've heard several times during this trial that no one had to pay Mr McDonnell to get anything The easiest thing to get out of Mr McDonnell was a kind word about Virginia business You've seen all those -- all the photos, 400-and-some photos the defense put in evidence of making comments at different ribbon cuttings and so forth I passed along the information to Dr Hazel just like I had done hundreds of times before

But as we expect you will hear from the Court's instructions on the law, the government need not prove that the bribe caused the public official to change his position We don't have to prove that He could have gotten -- he could have done exactly as he would have done anyway He could have done exactly as he had done hundreds of times before And if he takes official acts in exchange for money, it's a crime The question isn't whether Jonnie Williams had to pay Bob McDonnell to get anything. The question is whether Jonnie Williams did pay Bob McDonnell to get anything, and the evidence is overwhelming that he did

How about this one If he said it once, he said it ten times "Mr Williams never asked me for anything " Now, the point of this one was, "Since he never asked, I never had any idea that he wanted anything " At the very end of his direct examination, Mr Asbill asked Mr McDonnell straight away, "What do you think Jonnie Williams wanted from you?" This was his answer "He never told me People want different things I think he wanted to be friends with me He liked being with my wife He wanted to see his business grow "

First of all, Jonnie Williams did tell him He told him what he needed way back in October of 2010 on that long plane flight He told him, in no uncertain terms, in a June 2011 letter -- that's Exhibit 161 And not to mention, Mr McDonnell's wife already knew She offered to help Mr Williams' business in the May 2nd conversation

But more importantly, folks, common sense tells you it was clear Jonnie Williams wanted something Dr. Hazel knew it And he said that the treatment Jonnie Williams got -- about that treatment that Jonnie Williams got, that he had never seen anything quite like it Dr Vetrovec knew it after spending 20 minutes with the man Mr Cox knew it, and he said it to Mr McDonnell's face Do you know who else knew it? Jasen Eige He knew it That's why he told the Governor that they needed to be careful

And here's the kicker None of those people I just mentioned, not one, knew about the loans, the check for Cailin's wedding, the golf None of these people, not one, had received the June 16th letter from Jonnie Williams None of these people were on the six-hour plane ride back from California None of these people were at the private April 29th dinner at the Mansion The only one who did all of those things is sitting right there, and he's the only one who claims to have no idea that Jonnie Williams ever wanted anything from him Bob McDonnell knew exactly why Jonnie Williams was showering him and his family with gifts, and so do you

The better question is why doesn't he want to admit it? And that answer tells you all you need to know Now, of course, there's no explicit agreement Of course not We don't have to prove one It doesn't have to be expressed People's conduct, acts, and all the surrounding circumstances, can establish that there was an agreement That's the law, and it makes sense

Remember, we are in the real world now We're not on TV This is a real Governor who is very smart and wields tremendous power This is a real businessman who is very smart and pursues his agenda as aggressively as anyone anywhere These guys aren't long-time friends, and when the gifts start rolling in, they have barely known each other Why do you think a smart, savvy bribe payer and a smart, powerful politician would not make an explicit agreement? In the real world, these things aren't explicit, but they are agreements just the same They are deals just the same And some of the very best evidence in this case that there was a corrupt deal is the lengths that both sides went to hide it

First, Mr McDonnell told his staff nothing You've heard that umpteen times Second, the other side of this corrupt deal was no different Just like Mr McDonnell, Mr Williams didn't tell any of his close advisors, lawyers, or colleagues at Star Don't forget that Most importantly, Mr Perito, he didn't tell him either And the reason he didn't is because he knew the same thing you do; that Mr Perito, the former prosecutor, would have shut that down

So here's the starting premise Both sides to this corrupt agreement are hiding the facts underlying it from the people closest to them, the people whose job it was to keep them on the straight and narrow, the people they knew whose job it was to keep them on the straight and narrow Those people on the Governor's side and on Jonnie Williams' side they deliberately kept in the dark

Now, speaking of keeping people in the dark. Let's talk about the SOEIs Please don't miss the reasons that we offered the SOEI evidence There are two One is the gifts from Jonnie Williams that Mr McDonnell chose not to disclose, and the things that he and his wife did to avoid having to report the stock and the other loans in 2012 Those are the two reasons; gifts from Jonnie Williams, lengths they went to to avoid having to report the stock

Now, neither defendant is charged with filing a false SOEI That's not among the charges in the case That's an issue of Virginia law and is not an issue in this case, period

Let's talk about the gifts, the gifts from Jonnie Williams that Mr McDonnell deliberately kept off his form; the golf he played at Kinloch, and the check for

Cailin's wedding Let's start with the golf There was a lot of testimony about the SOEI process Mr Eige, Mr Conrad, Ms Watts, the Governor's confidential assistant, they all talked to you about the process You know, the drafts get done, meetings happen, edits get made There are lots of changes to it in the process and so forth, considering all these different gifts that get reported, and so forth, over the course of the year

But you know what's different about the golf with Jonnie Williams? The golf with Jonnie Williams isn't even up for discussion It's not even on the table because Mr McDonnell tells nobody These staffers, Pam Watts and Jasen Eige and Matt Conrad, whose job it is to assemble all the info and help the Governor fill the forms out, he tells them zip about golfing on Jonnie Williams' tab at Kinloch Nothing

Now, this is another one of the points where Mr McDonnell pretended to blame himself Said that it was his fault that the golf wasn't on the forms and then, in the same breath, said, "The system failed " Do you remember that?

Another one was when he said, "The golf should have been reported " And all the prosecutors' pens go up And then right after that, he said, "I never got any forms from Mr Williams " Oh On cross, he said he forgot

He golfed there nine days before he filed the final form for calendar 2011, in January of '12, and that was smack in the middle of the SOEI drafting process He claims he forgot that he golfed there twice in 2011 He claims he forgot about the golf with his future son-in-law a few days before his wedding I don't think so He didn't forget With all the other gifts, he was in the weeds, as he always is He made sure a $130 windbreaker made it on in realtime That's Exhibit 282 He didn't forget about that three grand in golf gear and food he rang up on Jonnie Williams' tab at Kinloch

The reason the system failed is because he made a choice to not tell anyone on his staff about the golf The reason he made that choice is because he didn't want them to know The reason he didn't want them to know is because he knew his deal with Jonnie was dirty

They say, "Well, look He disclosed $2,200 and change for Smith Mountain Lake, and he disclosed however many thousand dollars he disclosed for the Chatham Bars Inn trip He wasn't hiding anything " You all know the answer to this one What choice did he have? The staff knew about those Mr McDonnell didn't have the ability to control whether the staff knew about them He couldn't hide that stuff from the staff like he hid the golf and the loans He didn't forget about the golf

What about the check for Cailin's wedding? The point of all of the back and forth over who the $15,000 check was for, there was gobs of testimony about that The point of all of that, folks, is right here This is where it matters They want you to believe that it was a gift to Cailin and that that's the only reason Mr McDonnell didn't list it on his SOEI We say that it was a gift to Mr and Ms McDonnell Mr McDonnell knew it, and that he deliberately didn't disclose it on his SOEI because of who it was from And, folks, this one isn't close

Let's start with who was on the hook to pay Mr McDonnell, not his daughter, is the signatory on the contract Mr McDonnell, not his daughter, is the one who made the two down payments That's 79 and 85 Mr McDonnell is on the hook to pay, not Cailin

Now, let's talk a little bit about this Cailin and Chris intended to pay for the wedding themselves idea First, this was a while ago, but you may remember all the stuff Ms Aber got Cailin McDonnell to admit that she didn't pay for besides the catering: The rings, the jewelry for the bridesmaids, the silver frames for the guests, the use of the limousine Do you remember when she was asked if she paid for her wedding dress? She actually said, "Yes I paid $43 for it " It turns out that was the sales tax

Government's 111, dated May 1st of 2011 This is a month before the wedding, and Cailin McDonnell testified that she had no idea how much was due and owing on the catering contract Not to mention the testimony of Dr Scarbrough, one of Cailin's best friends, who, when shown this e-mail, Exhibit 147, testified that she was under the impression that Cailin's parents were paying and that that was based on conversations with Cailin Finally, there's Government's 626 This is the e-mail from Cailin asking about all the friends of dad's who want to help pay

Folks, this business of Cailin intending to pay for her own wedding as evidence that Jonnie Williams' gift was really for her and not her parents, it just isn't true Jonnie Williams knew Cailin McDonnell for a grand total of 15 minutes when he agreed to cut a check in blank for $15,000, and on the stand he could barely remember her name The evidence is overwhelming that this was a gift for Bob and Maureen McDonnell Mr McDonnell knew it He made a choice to keep it off his SOEI, and you know why

The stock transactions Let's move on to the second reason that the SOEIs are important Mr McDonnell's shenanigans with the stock Let's start with the form This is Schedule C, the securities one, and this is Page 8 of Government's 5 And it notes, among other things, that

Mr. McDonnell will be obligated to report stock held by a member of his immediate family, assuming that the value was in excess of $10,000

Let's take a look at Exhibit 606 This is a schedule of the Star stock transactions that Ms McDonnell did. And by the end of 2011, Ms McDonnell had sold her Star stock Now, the evidence on why she did this comes straight from the testimony of John Piscitelli As he reluctantly admitted, again, after being confronted with his grand jury testimony, Ms McDonnell told him that she needed the stock out of her name to avoid reporting requirements

She had that conversation with Mr Piscitelli sometime in August It made him uncomfortable, and so he wrote the letter that he had wrote to her dated September 9th That's Exhibit 240 And remember, these aren't Ms McDonnell's reporting requirements She doesn't have any The only reporting requirements are his, and she sold the stock to keep it off his form And then after he had already filed it, she bought the stock back in January

Now to 2012 and Christmas dinner Ms McDonnell told the kids over Christmas dinner, or after Christmas dinner, sometime when they're all together that day, that the kids would be getting stock I believe there was testimony that there was going to be a thousand shares each, which conveniently left her with less than $10,000 in her account. But putting that aside, not counting Mr McDonnell, there were two eyewitness accounts to what happened that day They were a little different Not necessarily inconsistent, but they were different And in either case, Ms McDonnell lied to the kids According to Bobby, after Christmas dinner, as dinner was wrapping up, Ms McDonnell said that she had bought Star stock with money from her father's estate Bobby says that Mr McDonnell was present and said nothing

Cailin McDonnell testified that Ms McDonnell told them that the tax laws were changing and that was the reason that the stock needed to be in the kids' names Now, Mr Piscitelli and Mr Cook, the broker and the accountant, both of them said that they had said nothing to her about any tax issues

Now, it's possible that Bobby and Cailin could both be right But even if only one is, in either case, Ms McDonnell lied to her family about the stock Whether it was saying that the money for the stock had come from her father, or that the reason for the transfer was because of tax consequences Either way, it wasn't true And according to his son, Bob McDonnell was there and said nothing

They say that the real reason Ms McDonnell decided to gift the 1000 shares to each of the kids at the end of the year was because it was Christmas But what knocks that out is the rush to get everyone's forms in by year-end That doesn't make any sense The reason that they needed to get the forms in by year-end is the reason that they unloaded the stock They needed it They needed to get rid of it so that they could have less than $10,000 in the account so that they wouldn't have to report it, and Ms McDonnell didn't want her husband to have to publicly report their connection to Jonnie Williams It's as simple as that That's what your common sense tells you That's what happened

Mr McDonnell's statements about all that he disclosed, let's talk about that for a minute During trial, Mr McDonnell made several statements when he testified, taking credit for all the things he claims to have disclosed related to Jonnie Williams Let's get down to brass tacks

The only gifts Mr McDonnell disclosed were the ones he had no choice but to disclose, the ones the staff already knew about That's it As for the loan, he makes a big deal about how he discloses that He mentioned it at least three times on the stand Well, all he actually disclosed on his SOEI was a loan from someone he said was in the medical services business

Now, the form doesn't require any more than that He filled out the form correctly Fine All the tax forms he filled out, he filled out correctly. Fine That's not the point. The point is don't sit in the chair and take credit for disclosing a connection to Jonnie Williams when you didn't That's the point

But the better question you can ask yourselves is this Whether he would have listed that loan if the form did require him to list Jonnie Williams' name, and based on the evidence of how he treated the golf and how he treated the check for the wedding caterer, don't you know the answer to that question is no way

Let's talk for a few minutes about the watch The principal defense here is, "I thought it was a fake " That's what he told his staffers That's what he sat on the stand and told you Let's start with this It's not a fake Jonnie Williams paid $6,500 for it So the real question is did Mr McDonnell actually think it was a fake? What's the evidence on that?

First, you all held the watch You looked at it Mr McDonnell's son got on the stand and said something about the secondhand ticking instead of sweeping You all saw it You saw that Bobby was just wrong about that I'm not saying he was lying He was just wrong

Exhibit 274, the photos There were two purposes that we offered these First is the obvious Who poses like this for seven photos with a watch that you think is a fake? Nobody There's no way he thought it was a fake. Mr Asbill actually asked him if he realized his photo was being taken Do you remember that?

The second purpose for these photos answers the second argument that they make; that even if he thought it was real, he didn't know who it was from One of those photos, and I think it's the last one shown here, is the same photo that Jonnie Williams testified the Governor sent him after he was joshing with the Governor about the chef Now, common sense tells you that that banter makes no sense if Mr McDonnell didn't know it was from Jonnie Williams Why else would he send Jonnie Williams that photo after getting ribbed by -- by Jonnie Williams about the chef?

Now, this is another of those few places where we're relying on Jonnie Williams' testimony Yes, we are But there are at least two reasons you should credit it First, remember this Dr Crantz's testimony was that at the La Grotta Restaurant in February, there was banter between Mr McDonnell and Jonnie Williams about the chef Second, ask yourselves this Isn't that an odd story to manufacture as a lie? I was teasing the Governor about the chef, and so he was teasing me back by texting the photo of the watch

If Jonnie Williams was going to lie about it, why not just say, "Hey, I talked to the Governor one time, and he thanked me for the watch " He could have done that, but that's not what he did He was careful, as he was throughout his testimony, to explain exactly what happened And what happened shows you how Mr McDonnell knew full well the watch was from Jonnie

The lies to the staff. Mr. McDonnell told a couple of lies to his staff during the scheme to help keep what was really going on here under wraps And the first one is in the conversation with Phil Cox about the invite to Chatham Bars Inn You may remember, Mr Cox testified that when he got the call, it was on speaker phone, and that's why he remembered that Mr and Ms McDonnell were both on the line and that they invited him up to the Chatham Bars Inn And he asked them, "How is this being paid for?" And they said that Jonnie Williams paid for it at a charity auction

Okay Now, now you know why we heard all that testimony about the Cure By Design event This is the reason It's because hearing that evidence, you know that the trip to Chatham Bars Inn had nothing to do with the auction at Cure By Design This is why Mr McDonnell tried to say from the stand that in their mind, it really was a substitute for the Cure By Design event No way You want proof? Look at Exhibit 397 This is a July 3rd, 2012, text from Mr Williams to Mr McDonnell where he invites them to Chatham Bars Inn It says nothing about, "Hey, since I wasn't able to go to New York to that fashion designer's place with you from Cure By Design, let's do this instead", or, "Here's a substitute for that charity auction Let's do" -- no He doesn't say any of that

And by the way, before we leave this exhibit, isn't that an interesting juxtaposition? "Johns Hopkins human clinical trials report on August 8 If you need cash, let me know "

Second lie Let's return to the Ferrari for a minute Mr Transparency, Mr Honesty out and out lied to his staff Let's take a look at Exhibit 618 This is Page 4 of that exhibit This is an excerpt from the Washington Post article "There was no recreational use of vehicles, Martin" -- that's Tucker Martin, the press guy -- "said The family was simply helping Mr Williams get one car to his Smith Mountain Lake house and return another to Richmond "

Folks, that's simply not true You remember Ms McDonnell asked Jonnie for it, so Jonnie Williams had an employee drive it up, and Ms Fulkerson hired a car service to take the guy back They weren't doing Jonnie Williams a favor Just the opposite The only reason the Ferrari was taken up there in the first place was for Bob to drive it

Now, Mr McDonnell has tried to put this off on Maureen, like everything else, and said that she told him that they were just doing a favor to Jonnie Williams Wrong answer Remember Trooper Walden's testimony When they showed up on the early evening of July the 28th, the Ferrari wasn't there The next day, July 29th, Mr Hunter, you heard him testify in here a couple days ago, he's the one who drove the Ferrari from a Cracker Barrel -- that's where he met Jonnie to pick up the Ferrari -- and drove it up to the Smith Mountain Lake house And you remember he said when he got there, there was no one there And he was looking for the Governor He was looking for the Governor, but nobody was there So he left the car and put the keys in the seat

The family shows up later that day, and there was a Ferrari in the driveway Not in the garage Not covered up In the driveway The Ferrari just showed up He knew it wasn't that Jonnie Williams had left his Ferrari at the lake and needed his good friend, Bob, to do him a solid and bring it back to Richmond And she never told him that He can try and blame Maureen on this one too, but it won't work

And, yes, Tucker Martin can be a good soldier and sit in that chair and say he never thought the Governor lied to him But unlike him, you know all the facts Mr McDonnell doesn't get to control what facts you get You get all of them And the facts show it was a lie

Okay Let's pause briefly for a moment now and run through the elements for the corruption offenses You're going to get these again from the Court, and there's going to be a whole lot more law on them -- on this later, but here are the elements I don't think there's going to be any daylight between what I say and what the Court gives you, but if there is, obviously, Judge Spencer's instructions are the ones that you should follow, not what I say But let's talk about them for a minute

Counts One and Five both charge conspiracy The two conspiracies all relate to the bribery scheme Okay Count One is a conspiracy to commit honest services fraud Count Five is a conspiracy to commit obtaining property under color of official right Those are a lot of words But both of those charges, and the counts following them, which we'll talk about in a minute, all that stuff relates to the corruption scheme Okay

The elements here for a conspiracy are pretty self-explanatory; that there was a conspiracy to commit the crime, whether it's honest services fraud or obtaining property under color of official right Whichever one belongs in that blank That there was a conspiracy that was formed, reached, or entered into by at least two people Second, that at sometime during the existence of the conspiracy, the defendant you're working on knew what the purpose of the agreement was And third, that with knowledge of the purpose of the conspiracy or agreement or understanding, the defendant you're working on actually joined it So remember, a conspiracy is an agreement to commit a crime, not committing the crime itself Those are the elements of conspiracy That's Count One and Count Five

Now, remember, I said a moment ago that the corruption charges are kind of in two groups There's the honest services fraud stuff, and then there's the obtaining property under color of official rights stuff So Count One is the conspiracy count for the honest services fraud piece, and Counts Two through Four are the specific honest services fraud crimes We call those -- the lawyers call those substantive offenses So this is Counts Two through Four

And the paperwork you get later will spell out exactly which transaction each one relates to You all will be able to figure that out, no problem, but each of them is a wire transaction that was alleged in this case -- or use of a wire to facilitate a transaction in this case

Briefly, the elements First, that the defendant knowingly devised or participated in a scheme to defraud the public of their right to honest services The honest services of a public official through bribery There's that That's why I've been talking about bribery all this time Second, that the defendant did so knowingly, knew what they were doing, and with an intent to defraud Third, that the scheme or artifice involved a material misrepresentation, false statement, false pretense, or concealment of a material fact I think we've got that one covered And fourth, that in advancing or carrying out the scheme, the defendant transmitted or caused to be transmitted that whole litany of stuff

And on this one, I would encourage you to take a look at the stipulation You remember that boring pair of exhibits that I had to read to you all that day with the stipulations in it In there, there's a stipulation about these wire transmissions and the fact that they went from one state to another So don't forget the stipulation on that one

Next, now we're moving over to obtaining property under color of official right That's the second group of corruption charges Okay Count Five is the conspiracy charge that governs all that stuff, and Counts Six through Eleven are the specific acts of obtaining property under color of official right that are alleged And again, the papers that you get, when you go back to deliberate, will make it crystal clear to you exactly which transaction goes with each count And I'm not going to walk through that here You all will be able to figure that out without any problems.

Here are the elements And, oh, I should also point out that these are different for Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell The honest services fraud instructions are the same for both of them But on this crime, the instruction -- the elements are a little different So let's start with Mr McDonnell

First, the defendant was a public official, of course Second, that the defendant obtained a thing of value not due him or his office I think you know what our view of that is Third, the defendant did so knowing that the thing of value was given in return for official action I've talked a lot about that today And fourth, that in so acting, the defendant attempted or did, blah, blah, blah, affect interstate commerce

Here's the upshot of that This is called a jurisdictional element You all have to find it in order for a federal court to have jurisdiction over the case So what that means is that you need to consider whether the scheme here affected interstate commerce in any way Judge Spencer's instruction, I think, will make it clear to you that the impact need only be minimal And the other thing that you need to remember is it doesn't have to be negative It doesn't have to negatively affect interstate commerce Even a positive effect on commerce satisfies the jurisdictional element You'll get all the instructions on that I'm just flagging it for you now

What you need to remember on this is Mr Perito's testimony about Star doing business all over the country, all the places that the company had, factories and offices and what not, to show that their operations affected interstate commerce And, obviously, had the scheme actually worked out a little better than it did for Star, then the effects on their business would have been positive and would have affected interstate commerce I've said far more than I had planned to, so I'm going to move on That's interstate commerce

Counts Six through Eleven still This is for Ms McDonnell Remember, these are the same crime, a little bit different elements First, to find her guilty on these, you have to find that Mr McDonnell committed each of the essential elements of committing the crime of obtaining property under official rights That's a threshold finding that you have to make to find Ms McDonnell guilty on these counts Second, you have to find that Ms. McDonnell knew that the crime of obtaining property under color of official right was going to happen; that she knew about it Third, that she knowingly did something for the purpose of aiding the commission of the crime She helped -- she tried to act in some way to make it happen She affirmatively did something And fourth, that she acted with the intention of causing the crime charged to be committed That's pretty self-explanatory

Okay Those are all of the corruption elements Now I want to transition to the bank stuff

Judge, I probably got about 10, 15 minutes more left

THE COURT: Go ahead

MR HARBACH: The loan applications to the banks These are Counts Twelve and Thirteen Let's talk about those elements briefly

You guys saw all sorts of financial statements, loan applications, faxes, e-mails, and all that stuff was thrown up, bits and pieces at a time And I'm going to try and distill this for you Counts Twelve and Thirteen, I want to talk about the law briefly The elements are that the charged defendant made a false report I should point out that on these, on Count Twelve, that's the false statement to TowneBank, and only Mr McDonnell is charged in that one Count Thirteen is the false statement and the loan application to PenFed, and both Mr and Ms. McDonnell are charged in that count

Here are the elements That a false report was made Second, that the person you're working on did so for the purpose of influencing in any way a federal credit union, or any of those other types of institutions there, on any of the things, a commitment, a loan, an application, a guarantee, or any of that And then third, the defendant did so knowingly

Now, I just mentioned to you that only Bob McDonnell is charged in Count Twelve The crime for that one is Exhibit 416, and that's faxing this form to TowneBank on October 23rd, 2012 This is simple Exhibit 416 This is the crime being committed And the reason it's false is because it doesn't list loans from Jonnie on there It's as simple as that

Now, as you will learn, as we expect you'll learn from the Court, all that matters here is that Mr McDonnell made a false statement when he failed to include the $50,000 loan in March 2012 from Mr Williams, and that he did it to influence the bank to try and make himself look better We anticipate Judge Spencer will tell you that it doesn't have to actually affect the bank All that matters is what Mr McDonnell intended

And how do we know what he was doing? How do we know what he was intending? Well, first of all, he couldn't get a loan anywhere else And second, he didn't just leave off Mr Williams' loan He left off Dr Davis' loan, which was nearly $13,000 at the time He left off the loan from his father, which was over $100,000 at the time These were things that he knew weren't on his credit report, and they were things that he knew he could hide

All those other loans being left off also tells you that he knew the application was false This is the personal guarantee stuff, and here's how it works He tried to say that the loan from Jonnie Williams wasn't personally guaranteed and that that's why he left it off his form You know that that's not the reason, because he also left off the Dr Davis loan, the one he had personally guaranteed via a promissory note

This conduct in Count Twelve is his conduct, his alone Nobody else's There are no staffers, there's no family, there's no in-laws to point the finger at here

Now, he says it was really a loan to MoBo and that it wasn't really a loan to him, and that's why he didn't include it And this is important I'm going to be clear on this If you believe that he didn't have to disclose loans to an LLC and that an LLC didn't count as a joint venture, then unlike what I said for corruption a minute ago, here it does matter that the loans were to MoBo Of course, for all the reasons we discussed before, we submit to you that it was not. It was a loan to him

Next, the PenFed loan application is Count Thirteen Remember, both Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell are charged in this one because they both signed the application. That is the crime That's Government's 480, the first page of which Ms. Watts is e-mailing to Nan Bolt, the PenFed person, on February 1st, 2013 The attachment, which is a bunch of paperwork related to the loans, including in that, by the way, is Page 4 where Mr and Ms McDonnell signed something saying that they have applied for a mortgage from Pentagon Federal Credit Union

On Page 10, this is the page -- I'm not going to blow this up You all have seen this up a million times This is the page that on the right-hand side says "Liabilities," and the loans from Jonnie Williams are not on there The $120,000 in loans from him do not appear And then finally on Page 11, it is signed by both Mr and Ms McDonnell

Now, the defense here appears to be that this was a draft That it was just part of a process It wasn't a real application Apparently, this is the latest in the special banking rules for Governor Bob McDonnell We've already heard about if you are Mr. McDonnell, the president of the bank calls you personally to tell you that your loan payment is overdue And now the new rule for Mr McDonnell is this A loan application that you submit, that you sign, and that you specifically represent is true and correct on pain of criminal penalty under the United States Code doesn't count because the loan hasn't closed yet Folks, I don't recommend trying that excuse with your mortgage lender if you lied on your signed application that you specifically represented was true and correct

We encourage you, when you get back there, to do what the old saying says and read the fine print This whole thing above the signature block here with the super tiny writing, read that when you get back there I bet the Court could supply a magnifying glass if you needed one Read it And ask yourselves whether it sounds like a draft to you For now, I want to point out Number 7 You can't -- you can't see it But that great big block of text is like 11 or 12 different sentences, and I'm going to point out to you Number 7 right now It says, quote, The lender and its agents, brokers, insurers, servicers, successors and assigns may continuously rely on the information contained in the application, and I am obligated to amend and/or supplement the information provided in this application if any of the material facts that I have represented herein should change prior to closing of the loan "Continuously rely "

What does the second part of that sentence mean? It means what it says It means if there was something that you list on there and it changes, you have to fix it before closing But that's not what happened here The loans were sitting there the whole time Nothing changed

The only thing that changed was Ms McDonnell got interviewed by some agents The only thing that changed was Mr McDonnell got wind that the authorities were looking into their relationship with Jonnie Williams and lo and behold, the next business day, or the day before the next business day, depending on whether you count President's Day, Mr McDonnell decided to send in a revised application with the loans from Jonnie Williams on there That's Exhibit 487

The next subject is the last count in the indictment, and it's Count Fourteen Here are the elements This is the obstruction of an official proceeding charge And this one is only alleged against Ms McDonnell The elements are that the defendant obstructed, influenced or impeded -- it should be an official proceeding or attempted to do so And second, that the defendant did so or attempted to do so corruptly And then there's a definition of corruptly there But it involves doing so on purpose in order to improperly obstruct, influence or impede an official proceeding all while either knowing about an official proceeding, or that the natural and probable effect of the conduct would interfere with an official proceeding

Now, I want to be clear about something so there's no confusion The obstructive conduct that is charged here is not the lies that she told the Virginia State Police when she was interviewed They inform her state of mind to be sure, and you definitely can and should consider those statements in assessing whether she was a participant with her husband and Jonnie Williams in the corruption scheme charged here because it is powerful evidence that she knew she and her husband had broken the law, but it is not the basis for the obstruction charge The basis for the obstruction charge is the note she sends to Jonnie Williams after being interviewed by the authorities

The official proceeding is the grand jury investigating the relationship between Jonnie Williams and the McDonnells It was not in effect at the time she sent the note But it also didn't need to be, as you will learn from the Court It also doesn't matter whether Ms McDonnell knew whether the proceeding in question was federal All that matters is that she know that the natural and probable effect of the conduct would interfere with an official proceeding And that is clearly so

Here are the facts December of 2009, Ms McDonnell first hears that Jonnie Williams is going to help her with a dress for the inaugural, and she's excited Phil Cox and Jasen Eige think it's a bad idea They tell Mr Williams it ain't happening Mr Eige and Mr Cox explore some alternatives, including giving the dress to charity Tell Ms McDonnell about that, but she's not happy with that because she doesn't get to keep the dress Mr Eige testified to that Mr Williams told you that Ms McDonnell said she wasn't happy because it would have to be given away if she bought it, and so she'd take a rain check

In April of 2011, she cashes it in Ms McDonnell calls Mr Williams and says it's okay to take her shopping now, and Mr Williams buys all those clothes, and he gets seated next to the Governor at the Union League event that night And then those clothes live in Ms McDonnell's closet

On February 15th, 2013, Ms McDonnell was interviewed by law enforcement about, among other things, her relationship with Jonnie Williams and the loans that Jonnie Williams had provided to her and her husband And not long after that, she put the clothes in a box She drove over to the house, her house, where Donnie Williams was working, and she gave them to Donnie to give to his brother, Jonnie And with the clothes was this note It's Exhibit 3 This has been on the screen a couple times during the trial.

Mr. Burck said in opening that he's not a grammatician, but we think that's exactly what he's asking you to be Try and parse the grammar of what's going on here and ignore your common sense What is being communicated by this note? There is a reason you don't check your common sense at the door when you walk in here, folks, and this is a great example What does your common sense tell you she was doing? She's trying to make it look like Jonnie Williams just gave her the dresses as a loan when, in fact, that was not true And she does it because she knows the authorities -- she thinks the FBI -- are looking into her relationship with Jonnie Williams It's as simple as that

There has been a mountain of evidence in this case, and I've been talking to you for a long time, and I'm about to sit down And I haven't, of course, covered anywhere near all of it But this evidence establishes beyond a reasonable doubt all the elements of all the charges in the case against both defendants And in the face of all that evidence stacked so powerfully against him, Mr McDonnell claims that he has no idea who paid for the clothes, that he didn't know who Maureen invited to the Healthcare Leaders Reception He was unaware that Jonnie Williams cut his wife a $50,000 check. He had no clue that Ms McDonnell bought her stock back in January of 2012 He was totally ignorant of Ms McDonnell e-mailing Jasen Eige about UVA and VCU in February of '12, and he had no idea that Jonnie Williams wanted anything from him

You may remember this quote right here from Janet Kelly's testimony She used this phrase That was her description of Maureen Who do you think of when you read that? Their strategy has been spend enough time talking about Jonnie Williams, maybe the jury will forget about the pile of evidence that had nothing to do with him Spend enough time trashing Mary-Shea Sutherland, maybe the jury will forget that she was long gone for much of the conspiracy Spend enough time talking about how the staff didn't like working for Ms McDonnell or the decibel level in the Ferrari or the number of times that Ms McDonnell texted Jonnie Williams after 11 p m , and maybe the jury will forget about how many of the government's witnesses, who don't know each other, corroborate each other

Spend enough time blaming Ms McDonnell, and maybe the jury will forget about all the things that Mr McDonnell undeniably did on his own, with no one else Spend enough time talking about Bob McDonnell's 38 years of public service, wrapping him in the flag of the Commonwealth, and maybe the jury will forget about how he stomped on it by selling out his office.

Not to mention all the attacks on the investigation They attacked the Virginia State Police for having the audacity to not tell the witness the subject matter of the interview in advance They attacked the government for all the people we interviewed They attacked us for those 3-and-a-half million documents we kept hearing about that we gathered from banks, lending institutions, stockbrokers All the e-mails, all the correspondence we got All the phone records we obtained

They suggest to you that because an executive protection unit officer chooses to make some reports to the State Police, that the State Police was some kind of puppet master, using him as a spy They make a big deal that the supervisors in the Virginia State Police were interested in how the investigation was going They attacked Charlie Hagan for having the novel idea that

Jonnie Williams might be a witness against the McDonnells

Let's cut right to it This investigation didn't happen just because he was the Governor This investigation happened because what he did is wrong This is not how governors behave So don't sit there and try and stand on the coattails of Thomas Jefferson or Patrick Henry. Don't mention all the other governors in our country and say that what happened here is politics as usual Not even close Not by a mile This is bribery. This is corruption The real thing. Don't let it stand Don't let this stand.

THE COURT: All right We're going to take 15 minutes and come back in

(Luncheon recess taken from 12:11 p m. to 1:15 p.m.)

THE COURT: All right, let's bring in the jury

(The jury entered the courtroom.)

All right, defendant?

MR BURCK: Thank you, Your Honor Good afternoon. "Question: Well, to be clear, she is saying that she is going to help you, but she is not promising you that the Governor is going to help you, right? Answer: No. Question: And she never tells you at this meeting, 'I'll get Bob to do X, Y, or Z if you give us the money'? Answer: No "

Ladies and gentlemen, this is Jonnie Williams' testimony It came in response to questions from the prosecutor himself And it demonstrates that Maureen McDonnell, my client, is not guilty of the charges against her in this case

Let me be clear from the get-go. Maureen McDonnell accepted gifts from Jonnie Williams He loaned her money We are not denying any of that We are not denying that Maureen McDonnell helped promote Anatabloc She did She did it enthusiastically She attended events where she spoke about her own passion for nutraceuticals and told the audiences how excited she was to support a Virginia company like Star Scientific. She invited Star doctors and employees, people who she saw as leaders in the healthcare world, to a reception at her home We do not dispute any of that And the government agrees with us that she was not a public official In fact, they have stipulated to that "As First Lady of Virginia, Defendant Maureen G McDonnell was not a public official " You heard that from Mr. Harbach early in this case

Now, even if Maureen McDonnell had agreed with Jonnie Williams to promote his company in exchange for loans and gifts, she would be guilty of no crime Even if what Jonnie Williams said were true, that she would help him if he helped her financially, Maureen McDonnell would be guilty of nothing And that's because Maureen McDonnell was a volunteer, nothing more As a volunteer, she was free to accept gifts or loans from anyone she wanted to, from Jonnie Williams, anyone else And she had no obligation to report any of it to anybody She was perfectly free to assist or advocate for Star Scientific or any other company She could have taken a paying job at Star Scientific if she wanted to

As you heard, in fact, she worked for another nutraceutical company called Nu Skin. She even had a paid Board position on a not-profit company

So why are the prosecutors going after Maureen McDonnell It is because they accuse her of conspiring with her husband to corrupt his office The government wants you to believe that Maureen and Jonnie's friendship was a farce; that Maureen's passion for nutraceuticals and her support for Anatabloc was an act; that the dresses, the shoes, the purses, the play dates at the Mansion, the 1,349 texts and phone calls, that all of it, all of it was really for the Governor According to the government, Maureen was a puppet and her husband was the puppet master pulling the strings

But after five weeks of trial, dozens of witnesses, and hundreds of exhibits, the government has not shown you a single piece of credible evidence, not one, that Bob and Maureen McDonnell conspired with each other They have not shown you an e-mail, a text, an audio recording, a video, not a single thing showing that Bob and Maureen agreed to sell out the Commonwealth for loans, a couple of weekend getaways, a ride in a Ferrari, a few rounds of golf, and ladieswear

So why did Maureen accept the gifts and loans that Jonnie Williams offered? The government tells you this is all about helping Jonnie get to Bob But the evidence shows you that to Maureen, it was about getting away from Bob. The gifts and dresses were things that Bob could not afford, and even if he could, he wouldn't have bought it for her The loans gave her a little bit of financial freedom. Now, you might think that's tacky, you might find it unbecoming, but it is not a crime

So why did Maureen help Jonnie? Again, the government wants you to believe that it was part of a scheme with her husband. But there is no evidence of that. None All of the evidence in this case is that she had her own reasons that had nothing to do with Bob McDonnell First, you heard from witness after witness, including the Government's own witnesses, that Maureen has a passion for nutraceuticals and has for decades You also heard again and again how Maureen felt about Jonnie Williams: That she considered him a very close friend; that she adored him; that she lit up when she talked about him or when he walked into a room; that she was, quote, gaga for Jonnie In short, you heard that Maureen helped Jonnie because she believed in his product and she believed in him.

Now, you might find all of this, the nutraceuticals, the mild obsession with Jonnie, you might find it all a little bit weird. You might be like Dr Hazel, who thinks nutraceuticals are a joke and that Jonnie is the Tic-Tac Man You might think it is inappropriate that Jonnie, a married man, and Maureen, a married woman, had such a close personal relationship that involved late-night phone calls, texts, and even visits

That Jonnie lavished her with trips, dresses, shoes, and purses But weird is not a crime And this is all about what was in Maureen McDonnell's head, what she believed and what she intended.

There is simply no denying the sincerity of her beliefs and her feelings And she can not be guilty if her motives were not corrupt

So let's talk about corrupt motives There is only one witness in this entire case, one, who testified that Maureen McDonnell was corrupt. The government's entire case against Maureen McDonnell rests on Jonnie Williams' word. The prosecutors are asking you to take the word of a man who came into this Court and admitted that he is a liar He came in here and told you that he has lied to just about everyone He has lied to his best friend in business, Paul Perito. He lied to his company, to his shareholders It is hard to find someone that he didn't lie to He says that he lied to the FBI and the State Police in his first interview with them in January of 2013 He lied to Mary-Shea Sutherland when he was recruiting her for a job, and he never planned to give her that job.

And you may recall in my opening statement that I told you all about the different versions of Jonnie I won't go into that again But right here in this courtroom, each of you had a front row seat to Versions 9, 10, and 11 In fact, there's so many versions of Jonnie's story that not even he could keep track of them.

"Question: Now, on Sunday, this past Sunday, July 27th, the day before the jury was picked, trial started, you met with the government again, right? Answer: I did. Question: And they asked you about the McKeon loans and the stock transfers to your kids' trusts, right? Answer: This past Sunday? Question: This past Sunday Answer: I don't recall if they did or not "

So why does Jonnie's story keep changing? Well, after his first interview with law enforcement and without his lawyers, Jonnie Williams had a big problem. He knew that investigators were looking into some of his financial transactions, including one where he gave John McKeon, his friend, stock in Star Scientific in exchange for Mr McKeon giving him $10 million As you heard from the McDonnells' former lawyer, Emmett Flood, just a couple days ago, Emmett was told by the prosecutors in this case that the federal government had an active investigation into Jonnie Williams for federal securities fraud If prosecutors convicted Jonnie Williams of secretly selling Star Scientific stock to John McKeon without properly disclosing it to shareholders, he could go to jail and he could lose $10 million

But Jonnie immediately saw a way out During the interview, the investigators had also asked him about his relationship with the McDonnells That very first interview in January of 2013 In that very interview, investigators asked if he would wear a wire against Bob McDonnell It was clear that the government saw Governor McDonnell as the bigger fish to fry. So Jonnie hatched a plan At first, Jonnie spun enough of a tale to the government to get him immunity from prosecution in this case That's the immunity deal which we talked about Then he waited until just a few months before trial, when he knew that the government desperately needed his testimony to convict Bob and Maureen McDonnell When it couldn't be more clear that the government cared more about convicting the former Governor of Virginia than it did about prosecuting Jonnie Williams for securities fraud, that's when Jonnie Williams seized his opportunity and he got full immunity for all of his crimes Jonnie's gambit worked, and he got immunity for everything This is that second immunity deal Securities fraud, stock transfers, everything

A case built on the word of Jonnie Williams is the very definition of reasonable doubt Jonnie Williams had 10 million reasons to lie, and we all know that a jail cell would not do great things for his lifestyle

Now, to get this remarkable deal, Jonnie had to give the government the story it wanted to hear So Jonnie spun the story of this relationship with Maureen 180 degrees to make her the aggressor and Jonnie the victim. But Jonnie's portrayal of himself as the victim does not match up with the evidence you have heard in this courtroom. Let's look first at the evening in the Four Seasons in December of 2009 Jonnie and the government want you to believe that it was essentially Maureen's idea for Jonnie to buy her a designer dress for the Governor's inauguration They also want you to believe that after the Governor's staff intervened and killed the dress idea, that it was Maureen who called Jonnie and said she wanted a, quote, rain check

But what does the evidence actually show? Well, Jonnie Williams is the one who testified that he went into that evening with an agenda Who showed up with the male fashion model and purchased the $5,000 bottle of Cognac that no one asked for? Who pulled out his phone and made a big show of calling his friend, Oscar de la Renta? Mind you, Jonnie Williams testified to you that he doesn't even know Oscar de la Renta But that's not, of course, what he told Phil Cox, Monica Block, Bob McDonnell, or Maureen, who all told you what he told them about Oscar de la Renta As you heard from the other people who were there that night, it was Jonnie who offered to buy the inaugural dress This is Phil Cox "Answer: Well, I mean, I think he was essentially offering the dress He had the relationship with Oscar de la Renta and was offering the dress to Maureen Question: And based on what you saw and heard, did you have an impression just speaking for yourself one way or the other about whether Mr Williams was offering to pay for the dress? Answer: Yes. That was my impression."

Now, Jasen Eige, you heard about him, he is the Governor's lawyer, Jasen Eige sent an e-mail in which he told about a conversation he had with Jonnie, and he told Jonnie that he could not buy Maureen a dress And this e-mail shows that it was Jonnie who wanted to, quote, convey to Maureen that after the Governor-elect's term is up he wants to still fly her up to get a dress That's from Jasen Eige While Jonnie claims that Maureen called and asked him for a rain check, the government could offer no record of a single call between Jonnie Williams and Maureen McDonnell from December, 2009 until April, 2011 That's because the rain check call Jonnie Williams came up with never happened.

Turning to April, 2011: The government and Jonnie say that the shopping trip in New York was all Maureen's doing But Monica Block, the Governor's scheduler, testified that it was Jonnie who planned everything. This is an e-mail from Monica Block to Ms. McDonnell and Mary-Shea Sutherland. It was Jonnie who proposed the stores they would go to, and it was Jonnie who said, "Let's have lunch at Bergdorf Goodman." It was Jonnie who said his friend from the Chanel counter could take them around to, quote, see all the dresses there at Bergdorf And it was Jonnie who would take Maureen to see Oscar de la Renta's store and possibly meet Oscar himself

Jonnie tried to tell you that this shopping trip, that this shopping trip, which he planned, was the most awkward moment in his life That's what he said. Apparently, buying Maureen a Louis Vuitton purse was so awkward and traumatizing for Jonnie that two weeks later, he bought her a matching wallet. Not even Jonnie claimed this was Maureen's idea

Now, how about the $15,000 check that Jonnie gave as a wedding gift for Cailin McDonnell The government's version is that Maureen told Jonnie that she did not know how she and Bob would cover the expenses of her daughter's wedding reception, and that she asked him to cover the costs The government conceded in its closing that they have only Jonnie's word for what was said in that conversation. But if Jonnie's story is true, if Maureen came to him asking for financial assistance, why couldn't she have just used some of the $50,000 loan that Jonnie gave her the same day, that he gave her the check, for the wedding? Or if the $50,000 loan wasn't enough, couldn't he have just given her the full amount, $65,000? But he didn't do that Instead, the memo line of the $15,000 check says "Wedding Gift."

The entry in Star's general ledger also describes the check as, quote, "Wedding gift for caterer and flowers for daughter " This is in evidence for you to review

Now, why is that? Because that's what the check was It was a wedding gift to Cailin McDonnell A gift that Jonnie Williams offered after he met Cailin at the Mansion on April 29th of 2011 That was the dinner hosted by the McDonnells for the Williamses Now, what type of person gives a $15,000 wedding gift? Jonnie Williams Jonnie testified on cross-examination about a wedding gift that he gave to his accountant's daughter "Answer: He is a friend of mine Question: I'm not suggesting he is not I'm just saying his kids were getting married and you gave them what, 20 grand worth of stock to help them get started? Answer: I think it was more than that Question: Okay Answer: I think it was much more than that "

So what about the $50,000 loan that Jonnie gave to Maureen in May of 2011? Again, the government's account is that it was Maureen who approached Jonnie and asked him for money Jonnie Williams testified that Maureen called him and asked if he would come see her on May 2nd of 2011; that she explained to him that she and the Governor were in financial trouble and were thinking about bankruptcy and that she asked Jonnie for help. This was Jonnie's testimony, again, as the government said, the only one we have, word we have for that is Jonnie's

But let's look at the evidence The purpose of this meeting was not for Maureen to unleash her financial woes on Jonnie or to solicit a loan That wasn't the purpose The evidence shows that the meeting on May 2nd, 2011, was to discuss the possibility of Jonnie buying or investing in one of the MoBo rental properties in Sandbridge This is an e-mail from Maureen McDonnell to Celeste Williams the day before that meeting "Hi Jonnie and Celeste Here is one of our beach rental properties that we own with Bob's sister and her husband, MoBo Realty " Here is another e-mail, same day, prior to the May 2nd meeting

Now, as you saw from the Mansion logs in this case, Jonnie arrived at the Mansion on May 2nd at 9:24 a.m. and left at 11:25 a.m. And Maureen's phone records show that at 10:44 a.m., right smack dab in the middle of her meeting with Jonnie, Maureen had a 13-minute phone call with her brother-in-law, Michael Uncapher Even before that call, Maureen made six attempts to reach the folks responsible for MoBo, sister Maureen, Bob McDonnell, and Michael Uncapher, from 9:57 to 10:02 a m. Now, pausing to take a call from her brother-in-law right in the middle of what is supposedly a desperate, heartfelt plea for financial assistance doesn't make a whole lot of sense And that's what Jonnie says happened Putting Jonnie on the phone with Michael Uncapher, the person who handled MoBo's finances, to discuss Jonnie's interest in buying or investing in MoBo property, on the other hand, makes some sense And that is just what Michael Uncapher, a witness the government called, testified in this case

He said that Maureen put Jonnie on the line to discuss his interest in buying or investing in the property, and that he told Jonnie what the MoBo partners owed on each property, and what the average expenses were for the mortgages So you do know something about what happened on that May 2nd meeting from someone other than Jonnie Williams You heard from Michael Uncapher

Critically, Michael Uncapher also told Jonnie Williams that the properties' annual deficit was between 50,000 and $60,000 per year As Michael Uncapher testified, Maureen was not on the phone during that conversation The phone was not on speaker There is no evidence that Maureen McDonnell had any knowledge of that $50,000 figure Rather, the number $50,000, the number that Jonnie ultimately used for the loan check, came from his discussion with Michael Uncapher, not from Maureen.

When Jonnie showed up a couple of weeks later with a check for $50,000, he claimed he was delivering what Maureen McDonnell had requested as a loan. But recall what Bob McDonnell testified that Maureen told him. Bob McDonnell said that Maureen said that Jonnie had shown up with a check for $50,000 that she had not actually asked for Now, make no mistake, she accepted it and she spent it on credit card debt and stock But what a coincidence, that the amount of the check matched what Michael Uncapher told Jonnie The only person who said it was Maureen who asked for the $50,000 is Jonnie Williams "Question: Did you tell him what the annual deficit was? Answer: Yes Question: What was that? Answer: Between 50 and $60,000 Question: The words 50, $60,000 came out of your mouth? Answer: Yes "

Now, why should you believe that the $50,000 was Jonnie's idea and not Maureen's? Again, we only have Jonnie's word for it That's because Jonnie Williams is not a victim. The gifts, the trips, the loans, all of it was just a page out of the well-worn Jonnie Williams playbook. From the start, Jonnie saw Maureen as a potential dupe He saw that she was vulnerable He saw someone he could manipulate and exploit to his own ends

If you want proof that Jonnie was the predator, not the prey, just look at what he did to Mary-Shea Sutherland. Jonnie Williams knew that Mary-Shea was miserable in her job. He saw that she desperately wanted to get out of the First Lady's Office and return to her previous career as an event planner Jonnie provided Mary-Shea with a shoulder to cry on He comforted her And he manipulated her, and he lied to her Jonnie made her believe that he valued her, and genuinely cared about getting her a new job. But all the while, Jonnie didn't really care about Mary-Shea Sutherland at all The only thing he cared about was promoting his own interests

Now, you don't need to take my word that Jonnie Williams misled Mary-Shea Sutherland You can hear it from Mary-Shea Sutherland herself Now, I'm going to read from key parts of this letter, this Dear Diary letter, as Mary-Shea described it in her testimony You will have the whole thing with you when you go back to deliberate This letter is dated January 20th, 2012 and it is addressed to Jonnie Williams

"I do believe that you owe me an explanation on the events that occurred last September The following outlines the months leading up to date Perhaps you could fill me in on the rest You called me to say that I was the type of person you wanted working for you and that you would pay me outside of my job with the state to help you We arranged to meet for breakfast, the first of several. At breakfast, we had a very honest conversation. You zeroed in on my unhappiness To paraphrase, you said, quote, you can't fool an old southern boy I explained that I was looking to leave, but in order to do so needed an anchor client to take me back to Benedetti & Farris in order to cover my salary Again, you reiterated that I was the type of person you wanted working for you, not just on Anatabloc but for you personally It was decided at that time that it would not work to have McGuireWoods hire me and that it made more sense for me to return to Benedetti & Farris, and you would be the anchor client We shook hands on that You and I had a final breakfast at The Jefferson and again confirmed that I would leave the First Lady's Office and you would be the anchor client for me You were insistent that I not tell the Governor's Office I was leaving until after the luncheon at the Mansion for the doctors You said to trust you and that I should only give them two weeks' notice instead of the one month I had suggested. You had asked that I stay until you got Anatabloc launched, and we agreed at that time that I would leave on October 1st You called me following this to say that because of company policies, you could not sign a consulting contract, but that we should invoice you each month for my services and you would pay it out of your marketing budget You said for me to have Tom Benedetti call you and that while you couldn't sign the agreement, your, quote, word was something to take to the bank It was after that phone call that everything changed. Somehow, the First Lady found out that I was leaving I have been told that you told her, but I have a hard time believing that In the end, I walked away with my dignity, and not much else And I left without having a job to go to or a source of income I have been able to pick up small projects here and there but continue to struggle to make ends meet Yes, it is true that I told you I wanted to leave, but I also told you that I could not leave until I had another job or a client to take to Benedetti & Farris Again, it was you that offered to be that client I never sought you out as a possible client It was only after your phone call in June that any of this started I understand that you don't now feel that you need my services But I do want to remind you that the event aspect of my working for you was a subpart to what you really wanted, which was my helping you with your, quote, life I feel that I am owed an explanation for what really happened And if you were the one that told the First Lady and started the avalanche, I want to know why I kept every confidence you ever shared with me I honestly don't know what to think."

That was Mary-Shea Sutherland in her own words to herself in a letter that she described as a personal diary, a few months after she left the First Lady's Office, a few months after Jonnie Williams betrayed her Like Maureen, Mary-Shea was taken by Jonnie Williams She became a cheerleader for him and his company She bought stock in Star Scientific and started taking Anatabloc herself And as Mary-Shea's Dear Diary letter makes clear, she, like Maureen, fell victim to Jonnie's manipulation. If you have any doubts about that, just look at what Mary-Shea said about the letter "Question: And in general, I mean, you are writing to Jonnie You are writing to Jonnie Williams; is that right? Answer: Yes Question: And -- Answer: No, like if you were writing to a boyfriend who wronged you You know, 'Dear mark. You hurt my heart ' You know, people write letters Question: Okay And am I accurate in thinking that -- that you felt wronged by Jonnie Williams? Answer: Yes "

And Mary-Shea also makes clear that Jonnie was the aggressor, writing, "I never sought you out as a possible client It was only after your phone call in June that any of this started."

Now, you have heard from the government, including today, that they seem to be under the impression that we are trying to paint Mary-Shea as a criminal, as Jonnie's co-conspirator But the government completely misses the point We are saying just the opposite Mary-Shea Sutherland did nothing wrong If Mary-Shea Sutherland did nothing wrong, then Maureen McDonnell certainly did not commit a crime Because as you have heard now many times, probably more than you would like, that Maureen was a private citizen who was free to accept a private sector job for private sector pay Mary-Shea was not She was a government employee receiving a government salary She worked for the Office of the Governor And she reported to the Governor's Chief of Staff, Martin Kent

In other words, unlike Maureen McDonnell, Mary-Shea Sutherland was a public official And while serving as a public official, Mary-Shea was doing two things at the same time First, she was taking actions to assist Jonnie Williams and Star Scientific This is an e-mail you have seen a few times, where it is described as "Mary-Shea's deal " Again, we are not saying it was only

Mary-Shea's deal Maureen McDonnell and Mary-Shea worked together on that Mansion lunch. But second, Mary-Shea was negotiating a contract for a job with Jonnie Williams And you have seen this document before This is the proposal Now, I want to reiterate, so that the government understands, I am not highlighting this to suggest that Mary-Shea committed a crime or that she did anything wrong She didn't And as we know, the government agrees, since they have not accused her of any crime, they have not accused her of anything, and they haven't given her immunity or anything else

The key point here is that if Mary-Shea's actions do not rise to the level of criminal conduct, where Mary-Shea was a state employee, where she was active in negotiating a written employment contract worth tens of thousands of dollars, where she wrote a very personal diary letter detailing the nature of her relationship with Jonnie Williams, then the actions of Maureen McDonnell, a private citizen and volunteer, certainly are not criminal, either Mary-Shea Sutherland did nothing wrong Her conduct is not criminal because she did not help Jonnie Williams in exchange for gifts or a job. Those things were separate in her mind. In other words, she was not corrupt

The same is true for Maureen McDonnell It is not enough for the government to show that Maureen McDonnell accepted gifts and a loan from Jonnie Williams and that she did things to help Anatabloc. As I said at the outset, we agree that she did both of those things The government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that she accepted the gifts because of an agreement with her husband to sell his office

So what does the evidence show about why Maureen McDonnell did things to promote Anatabloc? What was her motivation for attending Roskamp or meeting with doctors, speaking at events? Her true motivation is clear Maureen McDonnell was and is and has always been a true believer, a fanaticfor nutraceuticals You heard this from witness after witness after witness You heard this from her daughter "My mother had a breast tumor when she was 17 It was very, very scary for her to go through that, and she had surgery, and ever since then, she became very involved in nutritional healthcare and vitamins and being healthy and all of that kind of stuff And so she's always taught that to us and wanted all of her children to be healthy and have certain vitamins and things "

Jonnie Williams: "Question: Ms McDonnell did share your enthusiasm; isn't that fair to say? Answer: Yes, she did. Question: And you genuinely believed that she did. Answer: I believe that she thought it was -- I believed that she believed in the product Question: Okay, and that was from the very beginning of what she learned about Anatabloc Answer: I believed it was very early on, yes "

Mary-Shea Sutherland: "Question: And Maureen also, you knew, really cared about the about nutraceuticals, right? Answer: Very much so. Question: I think you said that Maureen was all in on Anatabloc, right? Answer: Yes Question: And you said that she believed, this is what you told the prosecutors, that she believed in the product, she believed in the company, and she believed in Jonnie Williams Answer: Yes "

Tucker Martin said the same thing Move to the next slide Mr Piscitelli said the same thing Move on to the next slide Janet Kelly said the same thing Move on to the next slide Sister Maureen said the same thing Move on to the next slide.

Bob McDonnell: "But from the very first time I met her she was interested in it because of the health event she had when she was 17 with a breast tumor This was the thing that she really enjoyed, that she was passionate about She was good at it She really believed deeply that these, and told me, that these nutraceutical products were good I took them regularly I have for some 30 years or so."

Jeanine, her daughter: "Sure, what did your mother say about Anatabloc when she talked about it? Answer: She said she believed in it And I think that she believed in it because she has always been passionate about the nutraceuticals "

Dr Clore said the same thing. Move on to the next slide Dr Hazel, who you saw testify You have heard a lot about Dr Hazel Not a true believer in nutraceuticals "Question: You talked about nutraceuticals? Answer: We did Question: You thought she was a true believer in nutraceuticals? Answer: I did."

The evidence is overwhelming that everything Maureen McDonnell did to help Jonnie Williams comes in part from her passion for nutraceuticals This passion is undisputed. Maureen attended the Star event at the Roskamp Institute in Florida because she was interested in seeing first hand the company's clinical trials The government wants you to believe that the August 30th, 2011 event at the Mansion was nothing more than a product launch. But Jasen Eige, the Governor's own lawyer, made clear to you on the stand that while Star Scientific may have wanted to have a product rollout at the Mansion, that wasn't going to happen under his watch. The luncheon event that occurred at the Mansion was to give out grant money to research heirs from public universities so that they could research anatabine Maureen's remarks at that event extolled the virtues of a life, a health philosophy connected to nutraceuticals

This is from Dr Lazo, who attended that event "Question: Would you say that the gist of her remarks was less about a product needing a supplier and more about a philosophy or a way of life? Answer: Yeah. I mean, I thought it -- it -- the introductory remarks were really a philosophical statement of this is a good way to live And that was the impression I got "

As for the Healthcare Leaders Reception, the government argues that it was criminal to merely invite people to an event at the Mansion because Dr Bill Hazel did not consider the people she invited to be healthcare leaders Now, Bill Hazel is definitely better qualified than Maureen McDonnell to make that determination There is no question about it But what was in his mind doesn't tell us anything about what was in hers There is no doubt that Bill Hazel thought Anatabloc was a joke There is equally no doubt that Maureen felt quite the opposite And there was nothing unusual or improper about the First Lady inviting some guests to a reception at the Executive Mansion, her home, after all, especially when the event overlapped with her own interests in her own initiatives

There is also nothing objectionable or illegal about the people who she invited. Yes, a number of them were affiliated with Star Scientific But unlike Bill Hazel, who thinks the nutraceuticals generally are a phony science and a waste of time, we know that Maureen McDonnell strongly believed in their potential And again, there is really no dispute about that

Maureen thought the Star Scientific and Anatabloc were going to completely revolutionize healthcare in Virginia and possibly beyond. You heard this from witness after witness after witness after witness

So to her, these Star employees and doctors were, in fact, healthcare leaders in Virginia What's more, an important part of Maureen McDonnell's role as First Lady of Virginia was to support Virginia companies For example, you heard that as a part of her FLITE initiative, Maureen promoted Virginia wine companies and other industries as well Star Scientific allowed Maureen to combine these two things that she deeply cared about, nutraceuticals and supporting Virginia businesses

But let's turn to the other reason that Maureen McDonnell helped Jonnie Williams And the evidence on this is no less overwhelming Now, the government has devoted a large portion of its case to fighting the idea that Maureen and Jonnie had some kind of affair It is not clear why We have never said that there was anything physical or sexual about their relationship. What we said in opening and what the evidence has shown is that Maureen deeply cared about Jonnie, that she had a crush on Jonnie We never said that Jonnie reciprocated In fact, all of the evidence has been that Jonnie is a liar He misleads Jonnie dupes people

But don't take my word for it that Maureen had a crush on Jonnie Williams This is Monica Block: "Question: You have described Jonnie Williams and Maureen McDonnell as being close? Answer: Yes Question: You believe they were? Answer: Yes "

Tucker Martin: "Question: And did they seem familiar with each other? Answer: Yeah They seemed like buddies Question: And, again, they seemed like they were friends? Answer: Yeah Seemed like buddies "

April Niamtu: "Question: And did you specifically see the dynamic between the First Lady and Jonnie Williams? Answer: Oh, yeah They were best buddies They were just chatting away like they had known each other forever "

Phil Cox: "Question, was there anything that -- did anything about their relationship strike you as unusual from your perspective? Answer: I think just the amount of time that he was around and -- and, frankly, the amount of time she spent talking about him. It was constantly -- constantly talking about Jonnie Question: Was it always about business? Answer: No Question: It was about Jonnie Williams the person? Answer: Yeah. Question: How would you describe Maureen McDonnell's demeanor around Mr Williams? Answer: She adored him. She would light up when he would walk in the room. Question: She adored him. She would light up when he walked into the room. Is that what you said? Answer: Yeah. Question: And what was Mr Williams' demeanor around Maureen McDonnell? Answer: I think, you know, very -- very friendly I think he returned -- returned those feelings "

Mary-Shea Sutherland: "Question: You characterized Maureen's meetings with Mr Williams as play dates Do you remember telling the prosecutors that? Answer: She would enjoy his company Question: Now, I'm going to ask you a question again Do you recall telling prosecutors that Maureen's meetings with Williams were play dates? Answer: Yes, now having read it. Question: And you also described Jonnie Williams as Maureen McDonnell's favorite playmate Do you remember telling them that? Answer: I'm not denying I did I just don't recall that specifically Question: Do you remember telling the FBI and the prosecutors that Jonnie Williams was Maureen McDonnell's favorite playmate? Answer: That's my testimony there."

Ms Scarbrough: Question: Did you think that it was inappropriate? Answer: Yes " In response to "a married man giving a married woman gifts "

Janet Kelly: "How did they interact with each other? Answer: It was -- it was kind of flirty It was very, very friendly I was a very relaxed environment "

Kathy Scott: "Question: And you had previously described her as being gaga over him when you spoke with the prosecutors last September; is that right? Answer: Probably She seemed enamored with him, infatuated I think he made her feel special "

Jeanine says the same things She described a mild obsession that her mother had Moving to the next slide

Bob McDonnell: "Question: Do you think she had a strong emotional attachment to Mr Williams? Answer: Yeah Probably Probably so Yes "

Jonnie Williams: "Question: You were much closer to Maureen McDonnell than you were to Bob McDonnell? Answer: Much. Question: You spent a lot more time with Maureen McDonnell than you did with Bob McDonnell, right? Answer: Yes "

What Jonnie Williams really felt for Maureen is beside the point What really matters is what was in Maureen's head And the evidence makes clear that she was gaga for Jonnie Maureen did not promote Anatabloc for corrupt reasons She did not seek to sell her husband's office. Very simply, she promoted Anatabloc because she truly believed in its potential, and because she genuinely cared about Jonnie Williams

Now, the government argues that you should ignore all of this evidence, witness after witness after witness after witness, versus one witness, Jonnie Williams You should ignore all of that evidence because they claim she tried to hide her relationship with Jonnie But the evidence is that the only person she tried to hide anything from was Bob McDonnell

Now, you have seen e-mails in this case about Maureen talking openly about the financial difficulties of the family In fact, Mr Harbach actually showed you this e-mail This is an e-mail in which Maureen talks about the "unconscionable amount in credit card debt already, and this inaugural is killing us " She is concealing their financial difficulties while she is telling the Governor's own lawyer about their financial difficulties

Maureen was open about wanting an inaugural dress She said it right in front of Phil Cox, Adam

Zubowsky, her own husband, and even Brad Kroenig, the male model All of those people were present when she said, "Yes, I'd like to have that inaugural dress "

Now, in his closing argument, the prosecutor painted or pointed to Jasen Eige and others on the Governor's staff and he pointed to Paul Perito at Star Scientific and he described all of these people as the people who were supposed to keep you on the straight and narrow He complained that no one told them about the gifts and loans, that Bob didn't tell them about the gifts and loans, et cetera But let's talk about Maureen Whose job was it to keep Maureen on the straight and narrow? Mr Harbach didn't mention that The person whose job it was was her Chief of Staff, Mary-Shea Sutherland And guess what? Mary-Shea Sutherland was told about just about everything from Maureen McDonnell Mary-Shea went on the New York shopping trip and knew about the dresses Mary-Shea knew about the $15,000 wedding gift to Cailin. In fact, Maureen gave the check to Mary-Shea to deliver to the catering company, and told her it was from Jonnie Williams

Mary-Shea Sutherland said that she told Martin Kent about the $15,000 check. That's the Governor's Chief of Staff "Question: Now, did you tell anyone about that check from Mr Williams, the $15,000 check? Answer: I told Martin Kent about it "

Mary-Shea told Janet Kelly about the $15,000 gift "Question: But you did know about the $15,000 that Mr Williams had given Cailin McDonnell for her wedding; is that right? Answer: In quasi realtime Question: That's because Mary-Shea Sutherland told you, right? Answer: It is Mary-Shea told Martin Kent about Jonnie paying $20,000 in credit card debt Question: Now, before, at some point before the press stories broke, do you recall Mary-Shea Sutherland saying something about credit card debt to you as it related to Mr. Williams? Answer: She did. It was, it had to be sometime before she had left, during a general conversation that we had And there was some reference to credit card debt Question: And did she tell you anything in that conversation about what amount of credit card debt she was talking about? Answer: I recall her mentioning, I believe, $20,000 That sounds right "

That's exactly the amount within some dollars of how much Maureen used of that loan to pay off credit card debt Mary-Shea Sutherland told Martin Kent about that Where did Mary-Shea Sutherland learn about that? From Maureen McDonnell

Mary-Shea accompanied Maureen to Roskamp. Maureen told Mary-Shea about purchasing stock in Star

Scientific Mary-Shea knew about the Smith Mountain Lake trip Mary-Shea knew about, and in fact scheduled the August 1st, 2011 meeting with Jonnie at the Mansion. Mary-Shea knew about the Huffstetler meeting. "Question: And it was also Ms Sutherland who escorted you into the meeting? Answer: That's correct." That's Molly Huffstetler

Mary-Shea attended the Clore meeting, the Dr Clore meeting right after that same morning "Question: And you testified at that meeting, Mary-Shea Sutherland and Maureen McDonnell were present? Answer: Right Question: You know that for sure? Answer: I know that "

Mary-Shea took charge of planning the August 30th luncheon event in the Mansion. Again, Maureen McDonnell, we have never asserted that Maureen McDonnell had nothing to do with the Mansion lunch or launch or whatever you want to call it Maureen McDonnell worked with Mary-Shea on that lunch. There is no question about it But the key point is that Mary-Shea Sutherland knew about pretty much everything, all the gifts and loans, to Maureen McDonnell while she was Chief of Staff And she knew about the things that Maureen was doing to help Jonnie Did Mary-Shea try to intervene, try to put a stop to it? No, she didn't

Mary-Shea helped Maureen plan the August 30th luncheon event Mary-Shea attended the August 1st meeting with Dr Clore Mary-Shea went to Roskamp. Mary-Shea went to Gibson Island. So what's going on? Is Mary-Shea trying to help Maureen conceal corruption? Well, you heard from Mr Harbach earlier today that Mary-Shea has credibility in spades If Mary-Shea knew about the gifts and loans to Maureen, and also knew about the efforts to help Jonnie, and if Mary-Shea not only did not intervene, but actually joined Maureen in helping Jonnie, then I guess the government agrees with us that it was okay

You heard Mary-Shea Sutherland testify in this case And you didn't hear her say a single solitary time, despite everything she knew, that Maureen was corrupt or that she sold out Bob's office Not one time

Now, what else is Maureen McDonnell supposed to have concealed? Let's talk about the stock, the sale and the repurchase and the transfer Well, we already know that Mary-Shea Sutherland knew about the stock And Maureen told her stockbroker, Mr Piscitelli, about the stock. He bought it for her And guess what? She also told him about, quote, reporting requirements Now, you heard from Bob McDonnell that it was Bob who mentioned reporting requirements to his wife And you heard that Bob mentioned it to her three times The first time when she bought it in June, 2011 The second time when he told her to sell it in November of 2011 And then the third time when he found out that she repurchased the stock and wanted to transfer it to the kids at Christmas of 2012.

Now, focusing on November, 2011, when Bob told her to sell it, this was the question and answer between myself and Mr McDonnell "Question: Now, it was clear to you at this point -- this is November, 2011 -- that she had absolutely zero interest in selling the stock, right? Answer: That's probably fair, yes " And then in December, 2012, same thing Now, Maureen McDonnell had no reporting requirements She had no SOEI or any other forms to fill out This was about Bob's reporting requirements You heard what Bob had to say about that Maureen McDonnell never wanted to sell the stock. And what kind of criminal mastermind goes to her stockbroker and tells him, "Sell the stock because of reporting requirements " It doesn't make any sense She told Piscitelli what she had heard from her husband. She told Piscitelli what she understood the situation to be But it wasn't because of corrupt intent It was because she was telling him something she had heard. She never wanted to sell the stock. There is really no dispute on that

In closing, the government said the only reason Maureen McDonnell transferred the stock into her kids' names in December of 2012 was to help her husband avoid these reporting requirements. Now, it seems they have forgotten the undisputed evidence from multiple witnesses, including, again, Mary-Shea Sutherland and others, and Piscitelli, that Maureen told everyone from the very first time she bought the stock in June, 2011, that she wanted to give it to the kids Cailin McDonnell testified about that

Now, the government wants you to dislike Maureen for telling her kids in the Christmas of 2012 that the money came from her father's inheritance They said that was a lie But remember what Bob said about how Maureen described that money Bob said from June of 2011 that it was in her mind a replacement for the inheritance money that he had forced her to use on credit card debt, the inheritance money from her father That's what she thought of from the get-go

I'm not sure if the government is still alleging that Maureen was trying to hide her relationship with Jonnie when it comes to the Rock Creek Pharmaceutical events, but let's talk about them briefly Those are events, public events, hundreds of doctors Maureen McDonnell, hiding her relationship from Jonnie and her association with Star Scientific, gets up in front of hundreds of doctors and says, "Hi, I'm Maureen McDonnell I'm the First Lady of Virginia I think that Anatabloc is a great product, and I think it is a great Virginia company " Now, does that sound like someone who is trying to hide her relationship with Jonnie Williams from you? She didn't hide herself, she didn't hide anything relating to Jonnie Williams from these hundreds of doctors. She embraced Jonnie Williams She could not have been more clear about her passion for Anatabloc at those meetings

It is true, you heard about one meeting in California in which she didn't realize she would have to speak and she was pushed into it by Jonnie Williams You heard about that from April Niamtu, her friend But once again, there is no evidence that she did anything to try to hide her relationship from Jonnie Williams

Let's talk about MoBo and Maureen McDonnell's involvement Now, you heard testimony that Maureen got involved in MoBo in January of 2012 It is the second time she has gotten involved with MoBo The first time was in advance of the May 2nd meeting in 2011, and now again in January of 2012 Maureen, as you heard from many witnesses, and you saw it in texts and e-mails, she had the initial discussions with Jonnie about a loan for MoBo She once again put Michael Uncapher on the phone to talk about what MoBo needed

Now, the government seems to imply that, once again, this was evidence of some kind of concealment But let's take a look at what Maureen McDonnell said to sister Maureen about this loan This is on March 11th, right before the loan was finalized. She said to sister Maureen: "I left you messages because I worked on this loan for a year, not Bob."

And if you recall, there were other texts which clearly indicated she was upset about not getting enough attention for this loan. You also heard from sister Maureen, I don't think that -- I think you would agree with me that they are probably not the closest of friends So for Maureen McDonnell to tell sister Maureen that "This was my idea, I'm the one who worked out this loan," what does that tell you about Maureen's mindset about trying to conceal MoBo? Was she trying to conceal MoBo? Of course not She had no reason to conceal it.

Let's turn to the February 15th, 2013 interview This is the interview you heard testimony from Bob McDonnell that his wife was, in his words, ambushed by the Virginia State Police The Virginia Police told her the interview was just about the Chef Todd case This is the e-mail in which Colonel Flaherty informs Martin Kent that this is about Chef Todd. It doesn't mention anything about Jonnie Williams Now, you recall that Martin Kent was not allowed to go to that interview No counsel was present She was not read her Miranda rights She was, in Bob McDonnell's words, ambushed, and they asked her about Jonnie Williams' transactions

Now, Agent Hagan's description one-and-a-half years after that interview of what he claims she said during the interview is different than what's in his handwritten notes that were taken contemporaneously with the interview

The notes say nothing about Maureen saying there were periodic payments on this loan, nothing about Maureen having a written or signed agreement

But putting that aside, let's assume for the moment that she even did say that What happened right after that interview, right after the February 15th interview? Bob McDonnell told you himself on cross-examination from me "Question: And do you recall that Ms McDonnell said she needed to call the investigators to tell them there were no documents memorializing the loan? Answer: Yes question: And do you recall that you told her not to call and not to have any further contact with the investigators until you figured out what was going on? Answer: Yes. That's exactly what I told her "

And if you recall, Mr McDonnell testified that Maureen asked him after this interview, are there any documents memorializing this loan, and Bob McDonnell said no

The other person that Maureen deliberately hid anything from was her husband This is from sister Maureen "I've known her for over 40 years, and I think through the course of that, those experiences I have just witnessed -- heard, witnessed, there were just a number of examples or situations where I've seen her hide things from Bob, you know, conceal things from Bob "

Her daughter, Jeanine "Question: Did you ever observe either your mom or your dad hide things from each other? Answer: Yes I would say there were, especially when it came to purchases, my mom They were hidden until the bill came, and then it would turn into an argument "

Maureen hid the source of the Rolex She didn't tell Bob McDonnell that the Rolex came from Jonnie Williams You heard Bob McDonnell say that himself, and you heard from multiple witnesses who said that Bob told them that it was a gift from Maureen

Now, recall that Jonnie had a colorful story about how all of this Rolex supposedly happened, and it included that he supposedly called Maureen, with his wife, from a fancy store in Malibu, California, to ask her about -- or to ask her what to engrave on the watch But you saw Jonnie Williams' cell phone statements -- or excuse me, his credit card statement, which shows that the transaction happened on August 14, 2011 But there's no record at all of any phone call between Jonnie and Maureen on that day There was no call on August 13th, the day before, or the day after

The government's agent, Agent Hulser, testified, "Well, maybe it was on a different day than reflected on the credit card bill " That's not evidence That's just speculation The credit card bill says it was bought on the 14th Jonnie says he called Maureen on that day that he bought the watch, and there's no record of any such phone call Remind you of the December 2009 call, the rain check call, for which there is no record of any such call

Maureen hid the dresses that Jonnie bought for her in New York in April 2011 You've heard testimony about that Maureen did not tell Bob about the $50,000 loan until after she had spent the money You heard that from Bob She hid the initial stock purchases in June 2011 and then the stock repurchased in January 2012 She hid it from Bob She didn't hide it from Mr. Piscitelli She hid this from Bob She didn't hide anything from Mary-Shea Sutherland, John Piscitelli, from the world The only person she had an obligation to tell was Bob But that's not a crime

The government's conspiracy theory relies on the fact that Bob and Maureen are married Now, you've heard from multiple witnesses You've seen documents that these two are not people who were in a conspiracy

I'm not going to linger on this e-mail You'll have it when you return to deliberate I'd like to turn to Bob's testimony Here's what Bob said about their communication, about their marriage "We just were not able to communicate We were not able to talk about anything of any substance And she was yelling at me, and she had almost uncontrollable anger I had seen it before, but this weekend was particularly pronounced And I was -- I was upset with her I was feeling heartbroken that, you know, maybe this was the end of my marriage. Maybe we were done because I couldn't talk to her "

"Question: Was she able to explain to you or did she explain to you the source of her anger and her hate? Answer: Not really, not that I could understand Question: So it didn't make any sense to you; is that what you are saying? Answer: Yes "

Her own daughter "Question: And how much one-on-one time did he and your mother spend together, if you saw? Answer: Pretty much none And this stood out to me because this is not frequent that he would ever confide, but he actually did open up and said, quote, I don't know what to do anymore I can't make her happy She is always angry, and I just wish there was something I could do And he just felt like helpless, like it was a new low they had reached Behind closed doors, as I've said, there was tension There was anger There were arguments But anytime they went into a public setting, it was like a switch flipped and they could turn it on "

In response to all of this, the e-mail on September 5th of 2011, five days after the August lunch, the testimony you heard, in response to all of this, the best the government could come up with was this e-mail on May 8th, 2011 About as generic an e-mail that you could possibly find between a husband and wife where he says, "Love you." She says, "love you. Miss you." That's it That's their response to the September 5th e-mail The breakdown in Bob and Maureen's relationship left a void for Jonnie Williams to fill Jonnie saw this, and he took advantage of it

You've seen a lot of charts in this case, and I'm not going to spend a lot of time on many more, but this one brings it home Bob and Jonnie had 53 calls and texts during the life of this conspiracy Fifty-three Maureen and Jonnie had 1,349 Do you really think, does it make any sense to you that all those calls, or even most of them, were about business? That's what Maureen McDonnell was talking to Jonnie Williams about, business? Does that make any sense, from everything you've heard in this case?

I'm going to turn to two charges beyond the corruption charges that we've been talking about Bank fraud and obstruction

Now, the bank fraud charge, only one of those is Maureen McDonnell accused of a crime The PenFed Now, the government needs to show more than just a false statement was made to a bank They need to show that it was done knowingly and for the purpose of influencing the bank

Now, what has the evidence shown about that? Maureen had nothing to do with preparing the loan application to PenFed The testimony is clear that Bob handled that without Maureen's involvement Bob handled the family's finances There's no evidence that Maureen even reviewed the application before signing it

This is Nanette Bolt "Question: Okay Now, the -- you've testified about a number of conversations and e-mails you had with Governor McDonnell today And do you recall having any specific conversations with Ms McDonnell, Maureen McDonnell, the wife, about this application? Answer Not very much Question: And getting information during the various iterations of the application, that information came from Governor McDonnell, right? Answer: Correct Bob said many times that he managed the family's finances Question Did you ever ask her to review the drafts?"

These are the draft applications for PenFed

"Answer: No Question: Did you ever see her review the drafts? Answer: No Question: Did you ever provide -- did she ever provide you with any comments or edits to the drafts circulated prior to February 18th of 2013? Answer: No Question: Fair to say that as far as you were concerned, filling out those drafts was your job, not hers? Answer: Yes "

So the evidence in this case is that Maureen had nothing to do with preparing the application There is no evidence that she reviewed the application And according to Mr Harbach, you can't even read the application without a magnifying glass And they want to send Maureen McDonnell to prison for that

The last charge against Maureen McDonnell is obstruction Now, as Mr Harbach made very clear, this is not about the statements she made to Special Agent Hagan on the February 15, 2013 interview This is about the letter she wrote a couple months later to Jonnie Williams, a handwritten note to Jonnie Williams that she sent with the gifts, the dresses that he had bought for her The return of the dresses is also not charged It's the letter The letter itself is what is supposed to be the obstruction Now, the note that accompanied the dresses is actually factually true "If not, I'm sure there are many exemplary charitable organizations like we talked about who would welcome the opportunity to auction them for a wonderful cause, having been worn only once by the First Lady of Virginia " And there's a sentence before that about Jonnie could provide it to his daughter Nothing in this letter -- and you'll be able to read it for yourself Nothing in this letter says that she had a prior agreement with Jonnie Williams.

Now, Mr. Harbach said that I'm not a grammatician, and he's right And that you shouldn't have to be grammaticians either But let's -- let's use our common sense for a moment The one thing that she says that she talked about with Jonnie Williams are charitable organizations Now, this is a photo from the Cure By Design event that Jonnie and Maureen and Bob and Brad Kroenig attended in September of 2011. And they did -- they went to -- Bob and Maureen went to this charity event together

And what was this event about? It was a fashion event to auction dresses to raise money for cancer research The only evidence in this case that that note was false comes from one person; Jonnie Williams But Jonnie couldn't even explain to me why it was false All he could say is that it was a fabrication, without any explanation as to what was, in fact, fabricated I tried I asked many questions, and he couldn't say

Maureen could not possibly have intended to obstruct the grand jury in this case since she had been told that there was no grand jury in this case by her own lawyers You heard from Mr Flood "Question: Okay Did the prosecutors tell you on that second phone call that there was no federal investigation of public corruption of Governor McDonnell or his wife? Answer: Yes, they told me that What I had been told was, quote, there was no federal public corruption investigation of your clients "

Now, the government does not allege that Maureen delivered the note to a witness who had been subpoenaed to testify in the grand jury No The government's theory is that she gave the note to the brother of Donnie -- of Jonnie Williams, to Donnie Williams, hoping that Donnie would get it to Jonnie, who she apparently hoped would get a grand jury subpoena so that he could turn over the note to the grand jury subpoena -- to the grand jury, excuse me, and that grand jury didn't exist, but it might one day, so that Maureen could then trick that nonexistent hypothetical grand jury with an entirely true note That's the government's common sense

Think about what Mr Harbach said about this note He told you that it doesn't really matter what the note says You don't have to be a grammatician Instead, he told you to just use your common sense Does convicting someone of a crime for writing a letter without reading what she wrote sound like common sense to you?

Now, at the beginning of this case, in my opening statement, I told you Maureen was here as collateral damage Well, I think it's fair to say that Maureen has taken a lot of incoming fire in this case You didn't see a whole lot of people getting up on the stand to say nice things about her But consider this. How many witnesses got up there and said she was a criminal mastermind or even capable of strong arming a guy like Jonnie Williams? Do you remember what April Niamtu said about her She's gullible, trusting. The only person who said that she could strong arm Jonnie Williams was Jonnie Williams

Maureen was called a lot of names. Some maybe were even justified under the circumstances The secrets of her marriage were laid bare in all their embarrassing and sometimes sad detail Even there was testimony about mental health issues and treatment that she received I listened to the government's closing very closely, as I'm sure you did, and Mr Harbach did mention Maureen quite a bit But tellingly, he focused most of his effort on Mr McDonnell; 80 percent, 90 percent What Bob knew, what Bob did

In the end, Maureen McDonnell isn't even collateral damage She's less than that She's an afterthought Maureen McDonnell stands accused before you Her fate rests in your hands Maureen McDonnell is confident that you will give the evidence more attention than the government has And when you do so, we are confident that you will return the only verdict supported by the evidence in this case, and that is that Maureen McDonnell is not guilty of all these charges

Now, usually this is where I would stop and I would hand it over to the Governor's counsel, but I have just one last thing to say You heard the prosecutor, in his closing, accuse that man, Bob McDonnell -- I want to make sure I got it right -- of selling out his office, selling out his beliefs, selling the citizens -- selling out the citizens of this state, selling out his family, selling out everything he holds dear The only other person to walk into this courtroom and say that was Jonnie Williams So I ask you to consider the source Thank you

THE COURT: All right We're going to take a break before we get started with the -- 15 minutes

(Recess taken from 2:36 p m until 2:53 p m)

THE COURT: All right Let's bring them out

(The jury entered the courtroom)

THE COURT: All right Mr Asbill

MR ASBILL: Thank you, sir

Good afternoon

THE JURY: Good afternoon

MR ASBILL: Mr Dry finished his cross-examination of my client a couple of days ago by quoting from my client's inaugural address in which Bob quoted from the book of Luke, and the quote that Bob said, "To whom much is given, much will be required "

Mr Dry suggested in his cross-examination, at least as I understood his question, that this quotation meant that Bob knew Jonnie's gifts were really bribes and Jonnie expected something in return If I understood Mr Dry's question, I couldn't more strongly disagree Those words, the words that Bob used in his inaugural address, are not about bribery They were about service The principles that have motivated my client every single day for his entire adult life

If you are given a great opportunity, and he was, to be sure, as the Governor of Virginia, you have a duty, a solemn duty, to improve the lot of your fellow man, and Bob tried his best to do that That's who he is From his years in the Army, from his time as a local prosecutor, from his work as a legislator, from his term as Attorney General, and finally, during his term as the Governor, Bob's commitment to serving others has dominated his life

And sometimes it's been a tremendous personal sacrifice and a tremendous personal expense He's not a perfect man, but he never denied the people of this Commonwealth their right to his honest, his dedicated, and his tireless service And he was good, by all accounts, at his job

Interestingly, very interestingly, the rest of the passage from scripture that Bob didn't quote and Mr Dry didn't ask about tells us that "from him to whom they entrust in much, they will demand more " You might want to think about that as you evaluate the government's case presentation here Our system is justice entrusts tremendous power to federal prosecutors. The power to investigate, the power to accuse, the power to bring the Governor of Virginia, the former Governor of Virginia into this courtroom and ask his peers to judge him, to evaluate him, to decide whether or not he committed crimes while he was in office And you, as jurors, have a right, have a right, to demand a great deal from those prosecutors

But my opponents, I submit, have made clear in their questions They made clear through the witnesses that they have brought in And they have made clear through their arguments to you in this case that they don't want to make this a case about the law They want to make it a referendum on my client's morality, on how Virginia chooses to police its own political system

This case isn't about whether my client exercised poor judgment He did, and he has apologized, and he has apologized repeatedly for that He's deeply sorry for the mistakes that he made as Governor He's sorry for the mistakes he made as a husband And he is sorry for the mistakes that he made as a father But you're being asked to render a legal verdict, not a moral verdict, and don't be distracted from that real task

This case should never have come to trial Five weeks of evidence, over 50 witnesses, dozens of charts and summaries of countless other records, nearly 800 exhibits, texts, e-mails, all moved into evidence The federal government has not produced any evidence showing that anyone, least of all Bob McDonnell, committed bribery or defrauded a bank Your decision, I submit, is simple It doesn't require fine sifting of complicated facts Despite all you've heard, all you've read, all you've seen, there are three major gaps in the prosecution's case that they can't fill Three basic issues that Mr Dry hardly even asked Bob about, despite being on that stand for five days and 27 hours

The first hole is that Jonnie didn't get anything Nothing Bribery requires both a quid and a quo It requires both that Bob -- excuse me, that Jonnie gave Bob something and that Bob promised -- or provided official acts in return That didn't happen here Never Bob never gave Jonnie anvthing special Jonnie never directly asked Bob to do anything special Jonnie doesn't even claim otherwise This case is all quid No pro No quo

And in Virginia, as you've learned, taking gifts, trips, golf, low interest loans, whatever, it is perfectly legal under Virginia law as long as you disclose those items You can't find Bob guilty just for taking gifts This is a bribery case It's not an election

The second gap is the fact that Bob and Maureen are married does not prove that they were conspiring. As you surely know from your collective life experience, long-term marriages are often very complicated The idea that every married person knows everything that his or her spouse is doing, everything that his or her spouse is feeling, everything that his or her spouse is thinking is absurd The idea that in a long-term marriage spouses always share their financial dealings with each other all the time is ridiculous And that is especially true here Unfortunately, the charges have tragically forced my client and his wife to reveal the most personal details of their marriage, and that humiliation has been severe, and it has been nationwide Details that should have never had to leave their home In this instance, the semiprivate quarters upstairs in the Mansion I say "semiprivate" because there really was no ultimate privacy there either

They have had to reveal these details because they have had to defend against the charges in this case, and as those details make very clear, make very plain, this was a troubled, dysfunctional marriage, one that was so fractured that another man, Jonnie Williams, was able to insert himself into the relationship for his own selfish purposes

And the third gap that the prosecutors haven't filled is that Bob didn't hide anything because he didn't have to hide anything He did not engage in any secretive, furtive conduct We're talking about family vacations We're talking about group dinners We're talking about scheduled events We're talking about written calendars and written logs Golf games with public greetings by the manager of the golf club, a wedding gift to Cailin McDonnell, paid through a check that was passed from Jonnie to Maureen, to Mary-Shea, to Chef Schneider, to his partner Ryan Greer, to a bank and loans that MoBo and my client memorialized in handwritten notes he saved and he produced to the prosecutors

Loans that were handled by checks and wire transfers that my client revealed to everyone that logically should know about them A group that included my client's sister, Mo; his sister's former husband, Michael Uncapher; a bookkeeper my client had never met, Brenda Chamberlain; his accountant, Daniel Cook; and even the Internal Revenue Service Each creating a paper trail that has been brought into this courtroom for you to observe It's not just me telling you about these documents or the testimony that show this You heard these things from my client himself Bob looked his accusers and he looked each of you in the eye on that stand and answered every single question that Judge Spencer permitted to be asked just as Mr Brownlee told you he would five weeks ago during his opening statement He answered them honestly He answered them truthfully, and to our collective delight, he answered most of them quickly Unlike Jonnie Williams, Bob didn't try to dodge questions or ask to be shown documents he knew he was going to be asked about, but didn't bother to review so he had to have his recollection refreshed

And not one time did Bob waiver on the issues at the heart of this case He was resolute in denying that he did anything wrong for Jonnie Williams He promised nothing to him in return for gifts or loans And he was firm in denying that he ever lied to any bank He faced the charges against him with courage and with guts He did it because for him, it was the right thing to do And now the truth should set him free Because if you believe Bob McDonnell, that's all there is to it Your decision is easy and it's quick

I'll talk in greater detail later about all the different reasonable doubts that exist in this case, and there are many, but those three basic points Jonnie got nothing, the marriage was dysfunctional, and Bob didn't hide anything Those three fundamental facts in this case are all you need to know to reach the only just verdict in this case the evidence supports Not guilty on all charges There was no quo, and there was no plan

As you retire to consider the evidence in the case, I ask you to think, first and foremost, where is the actual public corruption? It's not the gifts It's not the loans And don't be fooled into thinking that it is Don't let the prosecutors play into your prejudices or tempt you to ignore the law because you don't like Bob driving a Ferrari You don't like the fancy vacations You don't like the Rolex that Bob thought Maureen bought that Bob didn't want or like Ignore their attempts to assassinate Bob's character with the quid Resist their attempts to inflame you with irrelevancies, like the Kiawah Island vacation that Bob accepted from his friend Bill Goodwin Those things are not the basis to convict my client Judge Spencer's instructions will make that clear

Bribery involves the exchange of things -- of a thing or things of value for official action by a public official In other words, a quid pro quo A Latin phrase meaning "this for that" or "these for those " Not one witness in this case identified a single thing that Bob McDonnell did for Jonnie Williams in return for gifts or loans over the two years of the alleged criminal conspiracy And nothing Mr Dry cross-examined my client about changed that basic fact. Rather than ask my client precisely what did you do in exchange for Jonnie's generosity, he interrogated him about Dr Davis, Bill Goodwin, and stock transactions Jonnie proposed that never happened The quo, any trading of official actions for cash or gifts or loans? The prosecutors, they avoided that They want to focus on the quid

Remember back to the government's summary witness at the end of their main case, Bill Burck, Maureen's lawyer, asked Agent Hulser, "Where is the chart for all the things that Jonnie Williams got from Bob McDonnell? And the answer was, "There is no chart for that " There was no chart for that then There's no chart for that now Why? Because Jonnie got nothing from Bob

These prosecutors and their eight agents have spent two-and-a-half years working this case They have put all five of Bob's children in the grand jury, the spouses of two of his children in the grand jury, his sister in the grand jury They have interviewed about 200 witnesses, many of whom have never met Jonnie Williams They have torn my client's life apart They scoured his affairs for any evidence of criminality They had a senior member of his security detail sending back reports on his activity Another agent spent time tailing Chris Young, a young man whose only crime was to marry Bob's daughter Cailin They have searched diligently and they have searched tirelessly for quo, but they haven't found a thing They are still looking as I speak, and they still can't find it Not because they haven't tried, not because they haven't looked hard, but because no quo exists It never did

Jonnie didn't get any contracts He didn't get any legislation He didn't get any favorable tax treatment He didn't get a budget appropriation He didn't get any grants He didn't get a business license He didn't get appointed to any boards or commissions He did not get the Governor's support at the Tobacco Commission He did get a phone call to his father on his father's 80th birthday That's all Jonnie ever directly asked Bob to do And that's all Bob ever gave to Jonnie Williams during the conspiratorial time frame

Nor did Bob try or promise to give anything for Jonnie in return for gifts or loans You've heard from all of Bob's senior staff and many of his Cabinet secretaries They are depicted on the screen Not one of them said Bob ever pressured him or her to do anything for

Jonnie Williams or Star Not only that, they made really clear to you, each one who testified, that Bob had countless tools at his disposal if he had wanted to help Jonnie Williams. Budget line items, the boards and commissions I've discussed, discretionary funds that Bob McDonnell could direct on his own, or heavily influence if he wanted to The list goes on But he never did any of those things for Jonnie Williams He never told anyone to make it happen He never directed someone to give Jonnie something And that's not because Bob didn't know how to get things done

Numerous people have testified and made clear, all of these folks have made clear, that Bob McDonnell accomplished what he wanted to accomplish as a Governor If Bob had promised to do something for Jonnie Williams over two years, you can be sure that he would have made it and could have made it happen The opportunities that Mr Harbach talks about, waiting, work in progress, we're waiting for the opportunity to do something for Williams, the opportunity to do something for Williams always existed

Jonnie even claims that the only time Bob said anything to him suggesting something he would do in the future was at the time of the Healthcare Leaders Reception in February 2012, when supposedly Bob said on the phone to Jonnie that he, Bob, was following up with the situation at UVA But there's no record of that call, and my client has made it very clear that the call never happened

But even if it had, even if it had, that's not enough to convict Nobody knows what that statement means Certainly Bob can't interpret something he didn't say And, of course, Bob never actually followed up with anyone at UVA, like he supposedly said he would, and the issue never came up again, even though Mr Harbach claims my client was conspiring with Jonnie Williams for a full year, a full year after Bob supposedly made that statement on the phone

What did Jonnie want? What was he trying to get from Bob? It's unclear to us because Jonnie never personally and directly told Bob Mr Harbach says that Jonnie wanted studies at UVA and VCU and he wanted Tobacco Commission money to fund those studies, but that evidence doesn't add up It doesn't prove that theory Let's talk about the Virginia study letter, because I know Mr Dry will talk about it in rebuttal, even though Mr Harbach didn't address it

This is the letter that Bob received sometime in June of 2011 I think it's dated June 16th Jonnie testified he had the letter drafted because either Maureen or

Mary-Shea asked him to put it in writing Put in writing what it is that he wanted So Jonnie, on that letter, wrote the first sentence and only the first sentence of the letter, which was something Jonnie had learned in grade school He testified about that

The rest of the letter is put together by some doctor at Roskamp And there's, I don't know, 18 or 20 pages of attachments to it that are pretty obscure That's why Jonnie could barely begin to explain in his testimony what the letter and the attachments meant

But in any event, he sends his ghost-written letter either to Mary-Shea or to Maureen But as far as Jonnie knows, the letter dies there with them He does not know what they did with it He does not know whether Bob got it or ever saw it He doesn't know whether Bob, if he got it, read it He never asked Bob about it once Jonnie does not know what happened to the letter But he does know what happened in terms of what he asked in the letter And that was nothing

Unbeknownst to Jonnie, Mary-Shea sent it to Maureen, and then one of the two of them somehow got it inserted in Bob's read folder that you've heard about After that, Bob quickly scanned the letter A fact that nobody but my client knows and a fact that he candidly admitted when he testified He said, "I saw the cover letter and I skimmed it " He didn't say, "I never saw it I didn't receive it It just got lost in the shuffle." He didn't understand it either

So after glancing at the cover sheet, he sent it to Dr Hazel with an FYI to him Hazel doesn't remember seeing the letter He never read it, and he certainly never acted on it Look at the last sentence of the cover letter "Once you have had a chance to review this, please have someone on your staff contact me "

There was no reply And the trail ends there This is Jonnie's big plan, Jonnie's major ask, some big criminal scheme If Jonnie were bribing Bob and if this letter was something that Jonnie actually wanted, then Jonnie would have actually asked Bob at some point in time about it over the next two years of their supposed conspiracy But he never said a word He never followed up

And if this was some kind of subtle ask, whatever this letter says, it went over Bob's head because all Bob did with it is to send it to Bill Hazel, who you've learned in this case is Bob's Dr No You remember Bill Hazel, the one who loves Jonnie Williams, the one who calls him a Tic Tac man

The idea that my client sent this letter to Bill Hazel in order to help Jonnie Williams, in order to further some plan that Jonnie wanted to accomplish is absurd If Bob wanted to make stuff happen for Jonnie, Dr Hazel is last person Bob would have included That was the same as throwing the thing in the trash can That's why Jonnie never heard back He did not even get a polite no with respect to this letter

Jonnie also claims, when he testified, that this letter was in sum or substance, or whatever, some of the stuff he talked to Bob about on the plane trip from California back to Richmond in November of 2010 But that, too, clearly is false Jonnie had his meeting with Dr Hazel shortly after that flight in early November 2010 The flight was in October, long before the government claims any criminal conspiracy of any kind existed

In that meeting, Jonnie never asked Bill Hazel for anything, and he didn't say a word about some Virginia study Or, as Dr Hazel put it, "I missed the punch line of the meeting because I never got the ask at that point " There's no way that Jonnie told Bob about his grand plans, but then hid them from Dr Hazel at the big meeting Jonnie wanted Beyond this confusing letter, there really isn't much evidence that Jonnie tried to get the Tobacco Commission funded studies or that Bob ever lifted a finger to help Jonnie out The prosecutors haven't brought you a single person from UVA, a single person at VCU, or a single person from the Tobacco Commission who will say that Bob, or anyone from his staff at his direction, said a single, solitary word, encouraging that person to do anything on behalf of Jonnie or Star Bob didn't do anything to assist Jonnie with this supposed goal

To the contrary, Neal Noyes came in here and testified He's the Chair of the Tobacco Commission -- or former Executive Director, excuse me, of the Tobacco Commission He told you that Bob knew how to lobby the Commission if he wanted He's done it before in other situations, but he never did it for Jonnie

Bob's Secretary of Education Now, this is the VCU UVA Linda Fornash -- excuse me, Laura Fornash, the person who oversees those universities, told you that Bob never uttered the name Jonnie Williams or Star Scientific to her Bob's Secretary of Agriculture, Todd Haymore; Commerce and Trade, James Cheng; and Finance, Rick Brown, three designees of Bob McDonnell on the Tobacco Commission, told you the same thing No request from Bob at any time No pressure from Bob at any time to do anything for Jonnie Williams or Star He never pressured the universities He never lobbied the Tobacco Commission Not for Jonnie Not once in any way, in any shape, in any form

The only evidence -- other evidence the prosecutors have offered to support their theory is an 11-word e-mail that Bob sent to Jasen Eige in mid-February 2012 asking Jasen to see him about Anatabloc issues at UVA and VCU But that short e-mail, as I will explain, was not designed or intended to help Jonnie at all Jasen testified that after he got the e-mail, he called Jonnie's lawyer, lobbyist, Jerry Kilgore and told him, told Kilgore, that the Governor would not help Jonnie and would not do anything to assist Jonnie with whatever Jonnie was trying to accomplish at UVA or VCU That's a phone call to Kilgore that Jasen made instinctively, knowing that he had Bob's full support and authority to do that Bob never did anything else, and the issue went away

Now, Mr Harbach, this morning, made a big deal about the "be careful" e-mail Let's see what Jasen answered in response to the "we have to be careful about this" e-mail that he sends my client This is transcript Page 1667 Mr Harbach asked, on direct examination, Jasen about this "What, in your view, do we need to be careful" -- "what, in your view, did we need to be careful with this issue? Well, as I mentioned before," and it goes on, "It wasn't something we really had, frankly, the authority to do, and it just was not a matter that we should be involved with as far as trying to broker some type of understanding or compliance with the universities who had received this grant money" -- that's grant money from Star -- "and a company This was a matter between them and not something I felt was an appropriate use of our time or our authority "

And Mr Harbach's suggestion that the timing of Bob's e-mails to Jasen in this regard, which is the middle of February, I think it's the late night of the 16th of February, the early morning hours of the 17th of February, demonstrate a pro part of a quid pro quo I submit is nonsense

Bob explained to you during his testimony, during his direct examination, that at that night, at that time, in realtime, he was getting ready to travel out of the state for seven of the next ten days And he had a to-do list He had a miscellaneous to-do list of personal and business things that he needed to attend to before he left And in 30 minutes, over the 16th, into the early morning hours of the 17th, he e-mailed Jasen Eige on a number of outstanding issues and topics, many of which were important And he e-mailed his family about a number of personal issues, et cetera You can look at those e-mails if you want and you can put them into context, and you can see what he is doing in terms of not thinking about Jonnie Williams and some quid pro quo These are just things that I've got to get out of the way before I travel

Now, there also isn't credible evidence showing that Star really wanted studies at UVA or VCU Just like Jonnie never followed up on his letter, the folks at Star never followed up with the universities Recall what happened after Star ordered $200,000 in grants to the researchers at UVA and VCU Nothing There was one conference call between the universities and the people from Star Scientific in November of 2011 The ball was in Star's court, but as Sharon Krueger, who came in here and testified, told you, the folks at UVA never heard back

Why would Jonnie pay bribes to my client to get his assistance with studies at UVA and VCU, and then not follow up with those universities where he supposedly wanted the studies done? One explanation that makes a little more sense is that Jonnie wasn't actually bribing anyone, that Jonnie was never serious about the studies to begin with, like so much else in this man's life, in Jonnie's life

Perhaps all Jonnie really wanted was the ability to brag, to tell people, including potential investors in his company, about the big studies that were planned Did he really want them actually performed? What if they showed that Anatabloc didn't work as advertised? If you are still not sure, consider this There is zero evidence that Jonnie ever believed Bob would do anything to help him

Super lawyer lobbyist, Jerry Kilgore, working for Jonnie, told him to focus on the Governor's budget, not the Tobacco Commission. Kilgore told Jonnie that even though his brother, Jerri's brother, is the head of the Tobacco Commission, he told him, "Focus on something else " And that is an interesting fact that Jonnie Williams denied knowing when he was cross-examined "Oh, yeah, I hired Kilgore Didn't really know that his brother was the chair of the Tobacco Commission "

And as Paul Perito, Jonnie's good friend, and as he's very fond of telling us, former federal prosecutor, said when he heard, supposedly, Bob talk about the Commission at this Mansion lunch, Bob said he couldn't help Star Neither Bob, nor Jasen, by the way, remember the Tobacco Commission coming up with Perito at all, but if it did, Jonnie got another polite no

About bragging Maybe just -- you know, I want to be a big-shot I want to continue to be the big-shot that I've tried to be all along This is Jonnie Remember the $5,000 bottle of Louis XIII Cognac that he bought and nobody else really wanted The same Cognac he later dumped into the fire, part of, at least, dumped into the fire at Chatham Bars because he was curious what it would do You know, was it going to burn or flame? Or Jonnie, the one who gratuitously upgrades Dr Vetrovec to first class on a flight at the Atlanta Airport Jonnie likes to show off his wealth. He likes to give money away Like Jonnie did when he outbid himself at the Cure By Design auction, or when he gave $20,000 worth of stock to the daughter of his friend, B J Haynes, as a gift for her wedding Or when he gave another $200,000 to that same friend Or when Jonnie gave Jerri Fulkerson a $60,000 bonus because she found misplaced shares, misplaced stock certificates that Jonnie couldn't readily locate

Ms Fulkerson perhaps put it best when she testified Jonnie just gives gifts, and she doesn't know why Right out of the blue, that's what Jonnie does But he never asked Bob for anything Maybe he didn't want anything except some of Bob's time or Maureen's companionship or attention In any event, we'll probably never know

That would explain why Jonnie kept on being generous with Bob's family, despite Bob promising him nothing and despite Bob giving him nothing You can see the timeline here And it's not like Jonnie didn't know how to ask for something he wanted He's very good at asking for things that he wants He did, after all, ask the prosecutors in this case for two immunity agreements, the second of which got him off the hook for securities fraud, tax fraud, insider trading, and whatever else

Let's talk about what the prosecutors claim are the quos in this case They don't add up But there's a lot invested in trying to get my client here, so we've got to have some kind of quo So what do they do when they can't find any official actions Bob takes on Jonnie's behalf? They conjure some up Routine, mundane, innocuous, irrelevant, non-special interactions that Jonnie Williams had with anybody in the McDonnell administration Now those become quos.

But look at Judge Spencer's instructions, and you will see they are not If they were, there are politicians all over the country who would be being prosecuted The judge will instruct you that the term "official action" means any decision or action on any question, matter, cause, suit, proceeding, or controversy which may at any time be pending or which may, by law, be brought before any public official in that official's official capacity

You'll have a copy of the instructions if you want to refer to them, but keep that instruction in mind Because you will see that when you review each thing the prosecutors claim is an official action, none of them rise to that level And even if you believe Jonnie had a real plan to get studies at the Tobacco Commission, to get money from them first so he could fund studies at the universities, you still can't convict my client without finding that he took -- or promised to take official actions that satisfy Judge Spencer's instruction

Let's talk first about the August 1 Huffstetler meeting That's one of their supposed quos At the beginning of the case, Ms Aber, in her opening, made a big deal out of this meeting She told you in the opening that this was an extraordinary benefit for Jonnie Williams Something that Bob arranged, amazingly, in less than 12 hours' notice

But now you know the real reason that Bob got Ms Huffstetler to attend It didn't have anything to do with helping Jonnie Williams As Bob told you himself, when he learned about a meeting between Mary-Shea and Maureen, that -- with Jonnie Williams the next morning on the drive back from Smith Mountain Lake, when he got home that night, he e-mailed -- he, Bob, e-mailed Hazel and said, "Would you please send someone over to the meeting because I understand these people, Jonnie, Mary-Shea, Maureen, are going to talk about clinical trials " And Bob wanted some expert from Hazel's staff to attend the meeting and supervise it He e-mails Hazel, who sends Ms Huffstetler

And what did she do? She listens politely at the meeting She takes down all the things that Jonnie said She just writes them down as verbatim as she can She sends Jonnie a blow-off e-mail that same day, that same day Bob didn't want anything more from Ms Huffstetler or Dr Hazel He did not, as the law requires, make any decision or take any action on a question or a matter that was pending before him He did completely the opposite He sent someone to a meeting at the First Lady's office to ensure that no improper decisions or commitments were made

Let's go to the Mansion lunch That's the next attempt at a quo In her opening, Ms Aber called it a launch Now it shifted. It's a launch, or whatever But in any event, it wasn't a launch Many witnesses have explained that Jonnie wanted to do launch at the Mansion, and Bob's staff said no The event -- the event was a lunch only It was closed to the press It was closed to any more than 29 total people That's all the table would fit

And as for Bob, he had nothing to do with planning, organizing, or initiating this event And his lawyer -- as his lawyer Jasen Eige said, Mary-Shea simply informed Bob's staff that there was going to be an event at the Mansion for Virginia researchers receiving, getting, $200,000 in grant money from Star to conduct clinical trials, and asked his staff to secure Bob's brief appearance

All Bob knew was what he read in his briefing book "Participants researchers" -- "lunch with researchers and doctors" -- "researchers and doctors participants to discuss the latest information on the anatabine, a by-product of the tobacco plant, and two studies that UVA and VCU will conduct " That's what he knows about it when he goes to the meeting -- when he goes to the lunch

Bob had no idea that Star was trying to use this as a product launch and no idea that his staff had kept that from happening And as Jim Cheng and Janet Kelly told you, Bob rarely knows the details about his next event until he reads the briefing sheet right before Oh, and by the way, the Commonwealth didn't pay for that event It didn't cost the taxpayers a penny

And Mr Harbach today, you heard his pitch that Bob ignored his earth, wind and fire duties to attend this lunch But Bob's calendars for the entire week are in evidence, and you can look at the calendars from August 23rd to August 30th, and you can see that every single day he dealt with those emergencies

Now, you've also heard extensive testimony from multiple witnesses about similar events, like the Sabra, or hummus company, event, that they had at the Mansion

That was a single company and it was a single product That event was filled with people from Sabra, and there were Virginia researchers there too People from Virginia State University Folks that were going to develop a chickpea that could be grown in Virginia

Not only that, but at the Sabra event, unlike Star's event, Virginia gave money to Sabra instead of receiving money from Sabra This event, like many others, show that there was nothing about the Star loans that would make Bob think it was wrong or inappropriate for him to be there.

And Jasen Eige, who attended the event, explained it to you He said he went with Bob. Bob made generic remarks about the history of the Mansion, and was generally supportive of donating money to Virginia universities

Mr Harbach says Bob spoke at this lunch glowingly about Star Well, I don't know where he gets that from But as Dr Lazo explained, Bob asked a few probing questions Lazo was present Harbach was not Bob never endorsed the research, and he certainly didn't pressure anybody from UVA or VCU about doing anything for Star or on Star's behalf He was, as Dr Lazo put it, interrogative about whether the research was a good idea So once again, Bob didn't make any decision or take any action on any issues that were pending before him and following this event

Neither Bob, nor anyone else that worked for Bob, contacted anyone at UVA or VCU to do anything to pressure those schools, or their employees, to do anything for Star Scientific or Jonnie Williams Not a single call Not a single e-mail Not a single letter or text

Okay What's the next quo? Well, fast-forward six months Zero happens in the next six months And then we go to February 29th, the Healthcare Leaders event For this one, the prosecutors are trying to turn a party invitation into a federal felony, literally They have not shown that Bob had anything do with inviting anyone from Star To the contrary, as was his prerogative, as was his right as the Governor at his house, Bob added some doctors that he knew personally and the heads of various Virginia hospitals. People that had nothing to do with Jonnie Williams That's all Bob did

The First Lady's Office added Williams, an action that Bob never reviewed or ratified And when Bob found out that Jonnie had been invited, it seemed reasonable to him, since Jonnie was the CEO of a publicly traded Virginia healthcare company And nobody told Bob that they objected That includes Dr Hazel, who didn't want to pay out of his Cabinet's budget the small per-person charge for attendees that he didn't personally choose

Okay But, you know, people like Dr Vetrovec, who were not invited by Bill Hazel, was actually a healthcare leader in Virginia

Once again, the prosecution's evidence does not prove that Bob made any decisions or took any actions on any issues that were pending before him in his official capacity To the contrary, Bob didn't make any decisions at all He didn't decide to invite Williams, and he didn't decide to promote Williams at it He introduced Ladenson, Dr Ladenson, because he was a very prominent, out-of-town doctor from Johns Hopkins. But Bob said nothing about Star at that event. Once again, no official act

If you're still not sure about that, think back to how the prosecutors described this event in their opening statement They called it an exclusive reception Give me a break There were hundreds of Mansion events like this while Bob was Governor, with tens of thousands of invitations Getting one wasn't that hard Janet Kelly said she could have added her own personal doctor if she wanted to After all, there were 300 invitations extended, and only 125 people showed up

Finally, we have the use -- or Bob's use of Anatabloc before March 19th, or at a March 19th meeting with Lisa Hicks-Thomas and Sara Wilson, two of his staffers This is a real grasp The final attempt to conjure a quo out of thin air, and I submit, the biggest stretch in this case But it also represents some of the most telling evidence in the case

The prosecutors brought both of those women in here to talk about taking Anatabloc in their presence Here are the two of them. Sara Wilson remembers nothing more than saying he used Anatabloc, which he did Lisa Hicks-Thomas thinks Bob implied or suggested they should meet with the Anatabloc people Bob couldn't remember it completely, but he thinks he might have said one or both of those things So there is considerable confusion about what happened

But there is zero confusion about what happened next Nothing Sarah and Lisa left the meeting, they talked about their different recollections and whether they should reach out to Star, decided they shouldn't do it, and that was that

Bob said that he was taking Anatabloc several times a day, and it was time during the meeting for him to take some again Taking a pill, which Sara Wilson compared to taking Advil You like it, and you ask your staff to see whether it is worth meeting with the pill maker If you do that, it is not an action or a decision on any matter pending before Bob.

This meeting, however, captures an essential problem with the prosecution's case It was a long time ago It was not that special It was not that important, at least with respect to the Anatabloc issue, then or now

Three people Three different recollections Each person telling the truth.

That happened on other occasions, too, in this case Like the Piscitelli phone call with Bob and Maureen A call that Bob understood to be hypothetical and about what if there is this stock transaction with Jonnie Williams, and Piscitelli apparently thought he was asking him or directing him to open an account and move forward Ships passing in the night occasionally It happens It happens in real life

Finally, the prosecutors spent some time talking about the meeting that Bob arranged with Hazel on October, 2011 and the stop-by for the CigRx event February 3rd at The Jefferson hotel But those are not allegations, even of official acts Those are pre-conspiracy, way pre-conspiracy in terms of the charges in this case And in any event, those were things that Bob had done, a referral to Hazel, "Stop by for a few minutes at the CigRx event," before Jonnie gave any gift, any loan, anything to anyone in the McDonnell family Those actions cannot be quo If anything, they prove that no Virginia business had to bribe Bob McDonnell to get some time from him or his staff for anything potentially related to creating jobs in Virginia

That's really it That's the prosecutors' whole case They think Bob is a felon because he didn't stop his wife from inviting Jonnie to a party or because he attended a lunch at his house It is his house. It is the citizens's house as well as his house. But when he is living in it, it is his house, too.

Just because Jonnie thinks something is important, "Oh, I get to go to the Mansion," or whatever, "I got to go to the Healthcare Leaders event," that doesn't make it a quo. Bob is on trial for selling official actions He didn't do that He wouldn't do that He didn't promise to do that And they didn't prove that

And as far as Mary-Shea Sutherland goes, and I wrote a note to myself because I heard the statements by Mr Harbach, and he and I must have been at different trials I cross-examined her on Bob McDonnell's behalf And never once did I in my cross-examination or did Bob McDonnell in his direct examination or cross-examination or redirect examination say one unkind word about Mary-Shea Sutherland. Not one Not one And she told you, and he told you, about them hugging at that event They were passing each other in the hallway and he is begging her, "Please help me, I need you to stay and help deal with the situation at the Mansion " And she said, "I'm out of gas I don't have any more energy left "

Jonnie: If there are no official actions or promised official actions, what are we doing here? Why are we here? Well, we've got Jonnie to thank for that Throughout the relationship, apparently, as he now claims, he was pretending, pretending to be Bob's friend. He was pretending to be young Bobby's mentor We talked about Bob calling Albert Williams, Jonnie's dad, on his birthday And this is what Jonnie said at the time "You are a wonderful man I'm proud to know It has been a highlight of my life. You made an old man very happy Anything I can do for you or your family, I will " I'm sure that meant something to Jonnie It would mean something to anybody Bob made Jonnie's father happy And he gave Jonnie some basic bragging rights with his dad.

As far as Bob knew, that's what this relationship was about It is like Jonnie said in his first interview on January 23rd, 2013, down in Florida, no lawyer FBI and Virginia State Police knock on his door one night Jonnie dodged the questions about his tax problems He dodged the questions about his securities problems He claimed he didn't even know who the three people were that were the acronym for one of his companies

But he told the investigators that he never asked Bob for anything, never got anything, never expected anything He told them he likes Bob, he thinks he is a great Governor, greatest in the recent history of Virginia, et cetera, a friend and a golf buddy Mr Harbach argued that Jonnie was sobbing after that interview, when Jonnie gets on the phone with his friend, former federal prosecutor Perito You can be sure that Jonnie wasn't the only one sobbing during that call They were not sobbing about a nonexistent political corruption bribery case that Jonnie had been involved in They were sobbing about very real securities fraud and tax fraud problems that Jonnie was involved in And you remember, I asked Mr Perito if he knew a Board member named Leo Tonkin, and did he know anything about Tonkin being asked to wear a wire against Perito

So why is Jonnie saying something different now? Why is he claiming this was all business? Remember Jonnie's first rule of business That's to stay in business And I asked him, "Well, how about the second rule of business? Is that to stay out of jail?" He said, "Well, yeah, you know, you can't run your business, you can't stay in business if you are in prison "

He wants to keep flying around on his jet, keep driving around in his Ferrari or the Toyota Camry that he now tells us he likes better And he wants to keep doing whatever business he has left to do in his new $1 a year job at Rock Creek, the successor to Star Not in Virginia anymore, now in Florida The name has been changed to protect the guilty

Jonnie's been selling things to people his entire life He is really good at it But this is his greatest con Look at him. Look at the evolution from generous wannabe friend to supposed bribe payer That first interview tells it all He knows that he is in serious trouble His money, his freedom, are all at risk But the FBI tells him something else, too Not so subtle hint that, "Oh, you know, what we are really interested in is going after McDonnell " Not so concerned about the frauds that he may have committed. The real target is Bob He is the big fish "So Jonnie, please, for us, wear a wire against the Governor Get Bob McDonnell on tape saying something incriminating Help us help you "

But Jonnie refused. He wouldn't do it, even though tape-recorded conversations will eliminate the need for him to actually testify, to be cross-examined, to be investigated by the defense It would eliminate any questions about his credibility Because "Hey, here is Bob McDonnell saying it himself on the tape " It would protect Jonnie's reputation if he were able to do that Just play the tape, you got the Governor in his own words admitting crime

And by the way, Maureen had just invited Jonnie at that time, January, 2013, to spend some private time with Bob at one of the MoBo beach houses, a perfect opportunity for Jonnie to record something and get real solid proof that would eliminate him from the equation Why didn't he wear the wire? Because he is such a good guy? Because Jonnie knew, Jonnie had zero doubt that it would never produce anything There would be nothing to record. There was no corrupt bargain; there was no illegal agreement There was no criminal understanding with my client Wearing a wire would end this case, because nobody would believe Jonnie's fabricated story of nods and winks and knowing glances after a wire attempt failed.

So what does he do? What does Jonnie do? He lawyers up after sobbing with Perito, and then he starts spinning his ever-improving tale And now, he decides to meet with the prosecutors and his half-dozen lawyers and see what they are interested in and find out what they want to hear Despite them telling Jonnie at every single meeting, "We just want the truth." But the truth won't help Jonnie The truth will keep the investigation focused squarely and exclusively on Jonnie Williams On Star On Jonnie's mysterious friend, McKeon. And on

Starwood Trust, where the Trustee, Donnie Williams, does whatever Jonnie tells him to do A sham trust where Jonnie plays his little stock and tax games

But what the investigators want to hear is that Bob McDonnell is dirty That's what they already believed in early 2012 before they ever spoke to Williams That's what they thought might be the case Remember Agent Hagan's testimony "Let's use Williams to go after McDonnell, question mark." That's a thought The only thing they didn't know was how eager and how desperate Jonnie would be to help them out So Jonnie does what Jonnie does best He starts telling people what they want to hear Bob is corrupt. A story they want to buy He plays the same game with Maureen, the same game he played with Mary-Shea, the same game he has been playing his entire career He pumps up his latest invention. And that invention is that my client is corrupt

Jonnie invents a story in which his gifts to Maureen, his loans to MoBo, and everything else he did for the McDonnell family, these are all bribes, bribes that he paid to get Bob McDonnell to perform official acts on his behalf He became the Jonnie Williams you sometimes saw in this courtroom. The top Mercedes salesman when he was in his twenties, the Star Scientific stock promoter who convinced lots of people to sink their hard-earned dollars into his company And it works He pitches the government this story better than he ever sold anyone Anatabloc And what does he get in return? Complete transactional immunity And he plays this con perfectly

At the beginning, with his first immunity deal, what he gets is immunity for potential public corruption-related offenses He doesn't care about that, because he knows there was no public corruption here There is nothing besides legal gifts and loans and friendship But Jonnie also knows that this worthless initial immunity is a deal that doesn't require him to admit that he committed any crimes He is supposedly some sort of a victim. But this is only the first step in his plan. He has willing buyers for his story The quid looks ugly, Bob is indicted, a media circus is unleashed in this case

And then two months before this trial, June of 2014, that's when Jonnie gets what he really wants He wants immunity from tax fraud, he wants immunity from securities fraud. He wants to get away with any obstruction or lies that he may have said in his seven or eight interviews He knows he is going to sit on that stand and he is going to be cross-examined about anything that he may have done wrong And he needs a total pass on the potential things that he is going to have to testify to under oath He needs that protection And he got it He got it from the prosecutors in this case

And that's not all they gave him. No prosecution, no convictions, no criminal fines, no criminal asset forfeitures What else does he get aside from that? He gets stays, pauses in two federal civil shareholder suits against him here in Virginia Those save him money, at least in the short term, and his company money, at least in the short term, and they save Jonnie and his Star cohorts from having to respond to civil discovery possibly before this case gets through trial

It allows Jonnie, allows his stock, it allows his company to live to fight another day After all, the first rule is to stay in business So Jonnie just keeps getting richer He testified so himself "As far as my ability to operate and move forward in business, I don't believe me testifying here has impaired that " That's despite the tax problems, the securities problems, the lying to his closest friends at Star, the lying to the agents He is doing fine He hasn't been hurt in his ability to operate and move forward No consequences for Jonnie

And don't kid yourself: Would the prosecutors have been willing to look the other way, would the agents have been willing to look the other way at Jonnie's own problems if he didn't have something to trade that they wanted more?

Jonnie still wouldn't say on the stand that he was trying to bribe the Governor He was cute about it Mr Dry had to pound on the table during his direct examination All Jonnie says is, well, what he might have done is wrong He hasn't admitted "I'm a criminal " He hasn't admitted "I committed crimes here and I'm taking the hit for it " Is he hedging his bet for civil litigation? You can be sure beyond a reasonable doubt that the prosecutors's own doubly-immunized so-called bribe payer has kept open his options by his testimony in this trial

And by the way, the temptation of Jonnie to get federal immunity, you know, that's not the first time he has lied about Bob He has exaggerated his relationship with him much as he exaggerated to you A real clear example of that in this case is the meeting with Molly Huffstetler Jonnie lied to her face She wrote it down. And you can see it in front of you. Jonnie told her the Tobacco Commission was paying $3 million for studies he wanted performed by the request of the Governor That is a bald-faced lie from Jonnie Williams to Molly Huffstetler on August 1st He made that up He was lying about Bob then. Why would you trust what he says about Bob now?

I'm sure that Mr Dry, when he gets up to rebut my arguments, will say you don't have to believe Jonnie Williams, basically, to find my client guilty They will claim that the evidence is so compelling you can ignore him and still convict Bob But that's cheap talk. They paid a tremendous price for his testimony They wouldn't pay that price unless they needed his testimony to make their case They wouldn't call him as their key witness unless they needed him. You would never put him on the stand if you didn't have to Because without his falsehoods, there is no evidence at all They can't convict Bob McDonnell on faulty inferences, from incomplete charts, or by guessing what was said in unrecorded phone calls or unrecorded meetings or cryptic interpretations of texts or e-mails

If you have any reasonable doubt about whether Jonnie Williams was lying to you, I suggest to you you must acquit And as Judge Spencer will instruct you, the testimony of an immunized witness, and there is only one here in this trial, must be examined and weighed by the jury with greater care than the testimony of someone who is appearing in Court without the need for such an agreement with the government

Well, we know there is no quo, and that the prosecution's witness doesn't really claim otherwise But there is another aspect of the case, at least a reasonable doubt, and that's that there is no conspiracy between Bob and Maureen.

The Judge will instruct you on what a conspiracy is And essentially, it is an agreement or mutual understanding knowingly -- that's not by mistake or accident -- knowingly made or knowingly entered into by at least two people to violate the law by some joint or common plan or course of action. In a very true sense, a partnership in crime

And that allegation that Bob and Maureen entered into a partnership in crime is a terrible tragedy at the heart of this misguided prosecution. But it has forced, it has forced both Bob and Maureen to reveal the most painful, intimate, and private parts of their marriage to the 13 of you and a much broader public They experienced some of the most difficult years in their 38 years of marriage during Bob's term as Governor They weren't scheming together with Jonnie or for Jonnie They were barely speaking Jonnie sensed this fissure in the marriage "You can't fool me, I'm a good old southern boy," just like he told Mary-Shea From December, 2009 when the inaugural dress issue arose, Jonnie knew he could take advantage of Maureen's loneliness, of her insecurity, of her interest in his product, of her depression or other issues, of her desire for things that Bob couldn't afford on his Governor's salary, and he took advantage of Bob's crazy schedule

Jonnie insinuated himself into another man's complicated marriage to benefit himself. By his own admission, he never even talked to Bob before, during, or after the New York shopping spree Never talked to Bob about whether it was okay with him if he goes out and spends 19 grand on clothing for his wife. And he never spoke with Bob about the $15,000 gift to Cailin or the $50,000 loan to Maureen before he gave Maureen those checks, regardless of whether he says otherwise. And when Jonnie was done using Maureen, and using Bob for whatever selfish purposes he had back then, he used them again to benefit himself, to get the real thing that Jonnie wanted from this relationship, federal immunity for crimes, including $12 million worth of securities fraud, insider trading, tax fraud, et cetera, trust fraud. The trust for his children that he used to benefit himself and play his little games And the U S Government gave all that to Jonnie in order to go after the McDonnells for a quid pro quo bribery case that has no quo

This case has invaded, as I said, the most personal relationship in Bob's life, his strained but still, after 38 years, sacred marriage with his wife Everybody knew the marriage was troubled when this case was brought The government knew Jonnie was a dicey witness And they knew, I submit, that there was no quo

So here we are now and it is up to you You have to evaluate the charges. You must evaluate the accused. You must judge them. And it may be unpleasant, it may be uncomfortable, as it has been for us to bring out this private information in this public forum. But you now have to evaluate that relationship. You have learned the marriage was broken. You have read the e-mail that Bob sent to Maureen in the middle of the supposed conspiracy, the middle of the supposed conspiracy September 5th, 2011, one week after the researchers lunch at the Mansion.

"The lowest point, one of the lowest points in my life I don't understand the fiery anger and the hate that have become more and more frequent I admit that I stay away from you at times and don't talk to you about important things to avoid confrontation. But I love you and I want to get back to where we were when he were first married." It is a message of sadness It is a message of distance It is a message of great pain Bob sat by himself and painstakingly typed that message on his BlackBerry as he struggled to keep his 35-year marriage alive in a period when he didn't have the time or the strength or the emotional bandwidth, or the skillset, frankly, to curb Maureen's abiding anger He couldn't talk to her He had to write And there was no reply There was no reply

They put on a good public face as so many unhappy couples do, especially couples living in the glare of the public spotlight Politics, sports, entertainment, you have seen it before But when others are gone, when the cameras disappear, when the gala is over, Bob and Maureen never communicated about the interpersonal things that mattered the most Logistics, kids, family celebrations, events, all fair game, all fair game But resurrecting the happy feelings they once shared when they were first married is out of bounds In private, they were arguing In private, they were distant In private, they were silent In private, they certainly were not conspiring And the government hasn't given you anything aside from the public facade to conclude otherwise, some XOXO letter that Mr Burck showed a few minutes ago on May 8th.

They want you to assume that because these two were married, that they know what the other is feeling at all times You know from your own life experience, from the experience of your friends and relatives, that the idea of every married couple collaborating on all fronts simply because they are married is pure fantasy And that's very true here, even though Bob tried to keep it private Bob was always busy; Maureen was often bored; and Jonnie was frequently bad. Bob was focused on trying to save Virginia from a terrible recession And being the husband his wife wanted took second chair He was tired when and if he got home at night He still had more work to do, and he was not up for the battle on the home front So he avoided it It was a vicious cycle

What does he try to do to help? Does he just ignore it? Well, Maureen shoots the messenger when he tries to deal with it directly, so he tries to bring in the staff to see if he can help with it that way He brings in the management consultants, Dr Burke, the clinical psychologist, to try to help with things He coped by taking on more and more outside responsibilities, by having less time available to spend with her Chairman of the RGA, the Romney campaign, his dad's estate, his sister MoBo's duties because she was having problems in her marriage The workload was absolutely staggering And some of it was a volunteered effort Maureen sought the emotional comfort in someone else, Jonnie Williams, who sensed her weakness and pounced.

That was the perfect storm. Jonnie was rich, charming, he was interested in Maureen's passion for nutraceuticals He had a great new product that was going to revolutionize healthcare Bob didn't want to talk to Maureen about vitamins. That discussion was gone a long time ago. But Jonnie Williams does He always does To the tune of 1,300 phone calls and texts over a year-and-a-half More time on the phone with Jonnie than Maureen spent with Bob She lights up when he is around, as Bill Burck described. She gets carried away with Jonnie Jeanine, the oldest daughter, said she was mildly obsessed. She became emotionally invested in the man Much of that relationship was private, even from Bob.

Maureen's relationship with Jonnie permeated every part of their lives In the weekend before the Labor Day weekend of 2011, when my client sent that e-mail, a weekend in which she fought constantly with Jonnie, she was texting and calling Jonnie On that terrible day, Labor Day, 2011, when the e-mail was written, Maureen went right back to texting with Jonnie He was there before September 5th and he was there after September 5th in Maureen's life Not in Bob's life, just Maureen's, driving them further and further apart Jonnie knew the game he was playing He knew how to target Maureen and draw her in.

You all heard that he did the exact same thing with Mary-Shea He bought her an expensive dress He flattered her about her professional competence He engaged in secret communications with her about "I know how hard your job is at the Mansion basically, but I'd like you to come work for me," et cetera He seduced her, Mary-Shea, into an inappropriate relationship with him and he persuaded her to hide that relationship from others, just like he did with Maureen.

And when the secret relationship that Jonnie and Mary-Shea were developing, Mary-Shea, when that was about to be exposed, Jonnie betrayed her and front-end ran to Maureen and said, "Oh, I want to tell you that she is trying to solicit a job from me " He knows exactly what he is doing You have seen the Dear Diary letter from Mary-Shea talking about her understanding with Jonnie Williams that he breached. That is evidence of an agreement between Mary-Shea and Jonnie It was broken eventually by Jonnie, but they had an agreement

You have seen Jonnie Williams' second immunity agreement where he gets all of the immunity that he really wants That is a deal between Jonnie and the government That is an agreement And you have seen the September 5th e-mail that we have talked about a moment ago That is not an agreement between Maureen and Bob

Let's talk about these loans, Jonnie's loans, which further demonstrate that my client and his wife are not conspiring The first is to Maureen alone Again, without talking to Bob. Just like he gave her the clothes in New York And Jonnie's claims to the contrary are fabricated. Bob explained it, the phone and the visitor logs confirm it And when Bob found out about the money, he fought with Maureen She was insistent it was the substitute for her father's inheritance that Bob made her use to pay bills Maureen won the argument and got to keep the money But this was hardly a happy or cooperative moment for the McDonnell marriage

What about the first loan to MoBo? Maureen made that loan happen. It was her loan, not Bob's Not Mo's Not sister Mo's Maureen told everyone as much in her text message to Mo She wanted the loans, she wanted to prove to Bob, Mo, and prove to herself, she was a breadwinner, too You heard Mo talk about that first loan to MoBo, the corporation that controlled the properties Remember that Maureen was furious that Mo wasn't giving Maureen -- excuse me, that Maureen wasn't giving Mo full credit for getting the money from Jonnie Williams

And where was Bob? He has no idea what's going on He didn't know why Michael Uncapher was e-mailing him. He was totally in the dark. "Maureen, who are we talking about that is helping us and talking to Mike?

Jonnie?"

Bob was trying to figure out loan terms with Jonnie Williams on March 12th after Williams had already sent the check March 6th straight to Mo, who was coming back from the vacation, apparently at Maureen's request Bob could never get ahead of this in the midst of the legislative session and whatever else he was working on And that's because Maureen and Bob never talked about it It is obvious that they didn't talk about it She talked to Jonnie She did things with Jonnie She took things from Jonnie. She asked for things occasionally from Jonnie, all without Bob's knowledge and consent She did what she wanted to do, from the shopping spree forward. As Janet Kelly said, she was defiant, and she was difficult.

Logical or not, Maureen misled Bob, or didn't tell Bob things relating to Jonnie Williams and money And by the way, the stock loan transaction that Jonnie proposed and that Dry had a lot of questions about, it never happened. Why? Because my client got Piscitelli involved. Because my client wanted to get lawyers involved. Jonnie told you that himself, that Bob wanted to get Piscitelli and lawyers involved in the transaction That's what scuttled the transaction. And the plan to transfer paper stock certificates failed because Piscitelli sent Jonnie electronic transfer instructions In order to respond to those, now Piscitelli is going to have a record.

And as for Dry's suggestions when he was questioning my client that it was Bob's disclosure obligations that Bob and Jonnie were worried about, the notes, the contemporaneous notes totally refute that The only person with disclosure concerns was Jonnie, for securities problems Bob would have to report the loan whether it is stock, whether it is cash, just the same if it was to him or to Maureen His disclosure obligations were constant Just like Jonnie's first loan to Maureen that Bob disclosed. This transaction was no different in terms of Bob's obligations Didn't matter how it happened Nowhere on those notes is there anything about Bob trying to hide anything And he is considering Jonnie's proposal, he is just writing down what Jonnie is saying, because Jonnie promised him that it would be fully vetted in addition to by Bob's lawyers, by his world-class securities lawyers at Latham & Watkins in Washington.

In any event, in terms of all of this, should Bob have been more attentive to Maureen, should he have tried to supervise her behavior or been more caring for her needs? Absolutely Absolutely he should have. Should he have been more forceful or creative or clever in trying to correct mistakes or temper her anger? Unquestionably he should have He was a strong Governor He was a weak husband at this time The latter failure was a serious mistake, and Bob has apologized for it and paid a terrible price

We talked to some extent about whether Bob was hiding anything And they talked about Bob did not report gifts to his family or loans to MoBo on forms that did not require the disclosures of those items With Bob's SOEI forms and the two bank loan documents to which I will return in a minute, Mr. Dry repeatedly attacked my client for not reporting what the forms don't ask for or require It is pretty frightening The federal prosecutors come after you because you don't put information on a form that the form doesn't ask for How is that fair? The reality is that Bob didn't hide anything from anyone who logically should have known.

Each point the prosecutors have made proves this fact First of all, Bob disclosed over $100,000 in flights from Jonnie that Star donated to his campaign and the RGA Association. He disclosed the vacations, Smith Mountain Lake, Chatham Bars He failed to disclose some golf outings and the Notre Dame golf bag that showed up in the Mansion, and a couple of dinners where there is no evidence that Bob's portion of the dinner was substantial, however much fancy wine or Cognac or whatever else Jonnie drank or Jonnie bought

As for the missing golf items, Bob won't let Monica Block or his staff take that hit The form is his responsibility, and he told you that if something isn't on it, it is his bad, his mistake It wasn't intentional concealment, because there was no bribery to conceal And as Judge Spencer will explain to you, in his written instructions and oral instructions, there has been no suggestion in this case that Mr McDonnell violated Virginia law I'm not so sure that my opponents have read that instruction yet But that is the law that Judge Spencer is going to give you

The prosecutors also, perhaps on accident, proved to you that Bob wasn't trying trying to hide his relationship with Jonnie at all Remember Bill Goodwin, all the testimony about Bill Goodwin and whether his Kiawah Island vacation was a gift that should have been reported or whether something that Bob could legitimately take off his disclosure statement because Goodwin was a personal friend? Goodwin didn't testify in this case Bob did testify about that event Bob did testify about his relationship with Mr Goodwin and why he thought Mr Goodwin was a personal friend. Maybe it made sense even to the prosecution. In any event, you do know that

Bob never removed from his statement anything relating to Jonnie Williams using the personal friend exception. Not one time Jonnie or Star. That simple fact destroys the claim of hiding things because there was a corrupt relationship. It was a ready-made tool for Bob, it was a ready-made available tool "I don't have to report anything from Star or Jonnie Williams because I'll just claim he was a personal friend." That isn't what Bob did because Bob wasn't hiding anything

Let's talk about the Rolex I'm sure you are as tired of hearing about it as I am of talking about it. But this is another big deal now in the closing argument Look at the evidence in the case You have the Rolex and you have looked at that This is the Movado box that Bob got the gift in at Christmas of 2011 It is not a Rolex box, it is a Movado box. And apparently it has some links from a Movado band. And it has some Movado paperwork, like the dealer's information, et cetera So when Bob gets the Rolex in this box, why wouldn't he think it is used? Why wouldn't he think it might not be real? It is not something he wanted. It is not something he liked. He wore it to please her for a little while His staff said, "It doesn't look good politically," and he stopped wearing it And this is resurrected a year later Bob thought it was worth several thousand dollars And he also thought that Maureen could afford it at the time because she had just gotten an $18,000 check in early December for her work on the McGlothlin Foundation, and if she wants to give him a present, he is not going to give her a hard time about doing something that she obviously thinks might be pleasing to him, particularly in the context of this marriage

What about the photo of the Rolex that Jonnie claimed Bob sent, the one that Mr Harbach doubled down on today in his argument? Another lie by Jonnie The photo, as it may be obvious to you all by now, came from Maureen's phone It came from Maureen's document production, not from Bob. There is no evidence that Bob sent the picture If you look at the photo, obviously someone else took it The prosecution brought in their metadata expert to testify They never asked him to prove to you that Bob had anything to do with taking or sending this photo to Jonnie Williams But the desperation to support Jonnie never ends You know, the easy thing to do would be to suggest that Maureen took the photo and sent it to Jonnie But no, they want you to buy this nonsense that my client obviously didn't take it, but that he sends it to Jonnie with some cryptic message, you know, "I've got yours, you've got mine," whatever

On the forms, Bob is not required to report gifts to family members His staff looked into that issue, they analyzed it, and they determined that Virginia law did not require disclosure of gifts to Maureen or to the children who were not residing in the house And as Judge Spencer will instruct you, as I've said, there is no allegation here that he violated Virginia law. The prosecutors just don't like these forms

You are fully entitled to conclude, as many others have, that Virginia's gift laws are much too lax, far too permissive, and they have been changed But the gift laws are not on trial The government has also focused a lot open Cailin's wedding They brought her into the trial on the first day and interrogated her about something that before she thought was the happiest day of her life And their goal was to prove that Bob was going to pay for their wedding instead of Cailin. So I guess that means that Jonnie giving Cailin the gift of catering was actually a gift to Bob. But that's just wrong Bob was planning to pay for the wedding He put $8,000 down on it That doesn't turn a gift to Cailin into a gift to Bob It was not Bob's wedding It was Cailin's wedding And when Jonnie gave Cailin the gift of catering, everyone obviously understood that gift as being a gift to her Everyone apparently but Jonnie, so he claims Just as Bob's thank you note to Jonnie at the time said

And that gift wasn't hidden at all As Janet Kelly told you, Mary-Shea knew about the gift, told Janet about the gift. Janet told Martin Kent, Bob's Chief of Staff, about the gift And not one of those people, not one, ever suggested to Bob that there was anything inappropriate about it My client gets trashed throughout this trial for not telling every person on his staff that Jonnie loaned his wife money, or when they were having serious problems upstairs at the Mansion But you know what the prosecutors have never shown you in this case? They have never shown you anything that demonstrates Bob should have told his staff members about Jonnie loaning money to Maureen or helping out MoBo In fact, the staff told you the opposite

Look at what Jim Cheng said. "I don't know that I would want to know about that because, you know, we don't care We are money blind We do the right things for Virginia for the right reason, not because someone has loaned or given money or given a gift to somebody That's not how we make decisions in this Administration."

Mr Dry raised his voice when he cross-examined Mr Cheng about this and asked him whether he would want to know this Obviously, Mr Cheng says no, as the slide demonstrates Other folks from the staff told you the same thing People like Janet Kelly, who said she and Bob didn't discuss personal finances, either

Further demonstrating the lack of concealment here is the issue of Maureen's stock. To the extent Bob knew about it, which wasn't much, or very frequent, Bob didn't try to hide it at all The first time Maureen told him about it, Bob told his accountant, Dan Cook, about it and Dan reported it to the IRS. There it is What about Jonnie's loan to Maureen? That loan, like everything else Jonnie did, was handled by Jerri Fulkerson, who wrote a paper check. Jonnie gives it to Maureen on May 23rd Once Bob found out about it on June 5th he reported it publicly on the next disclosure form that needed to be filed Every year that loan existed, Bob reported it The prosecutors claim that Bob hid the loan because his disclosure form didn't say "Jonnie Williams." But they ignore that the form doesn't ask for the name of the person loaning the money Instead, it asks for the principal business or occupation for each creditor, not their name

Same is true for Jonnie's loans to MoBo Bob told every person that had a logical reason to know about those loans about them. His sister, his brother-in-law, former brother-in-law, et cetera, who managed MoBo's account He gave, as I said, Brenda Chamberlain and others full access to his bank accounts "Here is the passwords for my bank account You can go in and look at the checks and figure out whatever you want " And what did Ms Chamberlain do? She passed it on to Cook, et cetera, it goes to the IRS And the tax return goes to PenFed, too Bob wasn't secretive or furtive about anything. He is not taking bags of cash, meeting in back alleys

And Jonnie, he is not refusing to communicate by text or e-mail Bob discussed the MoBo loan with Jonnie in the Governor's conference room during a scheduled meeting on his calendar that we have here And Jonnie eventually wrote a check to MoBo that was deposited into a checking account for everybody at the bank and for now you to see That's not how criminal conspiracies work They don't send each other e-mails and write checks They don't do business through stockbrokers They don't report activity to the IRS And they certainly don't run things past judges like Jonnie did talking about whether it was okay to lend money to the Governor of Virginia when he said that he had a discussion about that very issue with Judge Farrance, his friend who was a judge in Florida You know, but again, to my opponents, the real problem is this form. "Bob, what's the purpose of the form?" as opposed to "What's required on the form?" And condemning him for not disclosing more than is required. He wasn't trying to hide anything

The Goodwin example of cross-examination in this case brings up another point that I want to raise with you. Because it really demonstrates fundamentally what Bob is all about. Rich man, very successful businessman, very big donor to Bob's campaigns Previously had been on the Board of the University of Virginia for a long time And he asked Bob, and you have the letter, to appoint his son-in-law to the board right before he gives the gift of the trip to Kiawah Island. But Bob said no, because he didn't think the son-in-law at that time, at that moment, was the right person for that job As Janet Kelly testified, "Bob has always known and always taught that if you can't take somebody's money, a donor's money one day and say no to that person about something they want from the government the next day, you should not be in politics You should not be in this job "

What about the lies to the bank, supposed lies to the bank? They can't prove he accepted bribes so they have cast about for an alternative fallback crime they can accuse him of committing Two totally frivolous bank charges based on Bob's failing to put the Starwood loans to MoBo on loan applications that didn't require them to be listed in the first place No bank has complained about Bob lying To the contrary, both banks approved the loans and closed on the loans PenFed approved the loan after Bob made sure they knew all about Jonnie's loans, even though that was gratuitous on Bob's part after his wife gets ambushed by the investigators on the 15th of February And that's because the only people that have alleged Bob did anything wrong with TowneBank or PenFed are the people sitting over here

Don't take my word for it Look at what the witnesses said. The President of TowneBank, Bill Sessoms, testified that Bob's personal financial statement, this is the Heritage Bank statement, did not need to include loans to Maureen or loans to an LLC like MoBo The Dr Davis loan had been paid off, or at least Bob's full share of it had been paid off at the time he filled out the form. So because he had some hypothetical potential joint and several obligation if his sister failed to pay her share before the end of the year, you know, that's what they want to nail him on now "You were jointly and severally liable for this Dr Davis loan where there was a personal guarantee and you didn't put it on this form." That's not the way Bob looked at it

Creekmore, Jeffrey Creekmore, Senior Vice President at Heritage, told you the same thing Loans to Maureen and loans to MoBo did not need to be on the form. Nan Bolt, who came in here, testified to the same effect

She said about PenFed that even though -- she said that even though PenFed knew all about Jonnie's loans to Maureen and Jonnie's loans to MoBo, even though Bob told the bank about them before his final application, none of those loans ended up on the closing application. Why not? Because they didn't need to be there in the first place That's because, as she explained, there were no immediate payments due for Maureen's loan It was a balloon payable in the distance, in the future, and loans to an LLC or a corporation didn't need to be included.

Bob didn't make any false statements, he didn't knowingly make false statements to the bank It is just like the SOEIs The prosecutors are accusing my client of crimes because he doesn't include information that is not required. And imagine the implications of this for your lives, like Mr Harbach suggested that you do You know, there is something wrong on a draft There is something wrong on a draft, and now you are being investigated by federal agents and federal prosecutors Well, what's their response to this? "Well, the loans were really to Bob, they weren't to MoBo " But there is no proof of that The monies go to MoBo. The monies go to MoBo's account "Well, here is the reason it is not to MoBo, it is to Bob What does MoBo have in the way of assets? Why would Jonnie, the smart financial business guy he is, lend money to MoBo when MoBo is an operating account and doesn't have much money in the bank?"

Well, guess what? Jonnie wanted the loan to be paid back, with interest, and it has been paid back, with interest, and there is no evidence in this case that MoBo ever failed to pay any debt it owed to anyone in the life of that corporation So I guess it was a good investment It was a good investment for Jonnie. And he got exactly what he bargained for in terms of the two percent interest and he got early repayment of the loan

The Judge will instruct you that there is a concept in the law called good faith And that a statement made in the good faith belief that it is accurate does not amount to a false statement and is not a crime This is so even if the statement is in fact erroneous

This draft process, so I mean, the first draft that obviously has mistakes in it, the second drafts going back and forth that have mistakes in them on both sides, et cetera, there is a long process of PenFed getting the final paperwork together and there are mistakes made on both sides in that process And this was a drafting process that Bob had gone through in other loans with PenFed historically that have nothing to do with this case. Nobody in these transactions, not the bank or Bob, are accusing each other of trying to deceive each other when there are mistakes on a draft

The notion that Bob intentionally lied to Bill Sessoms at TowneBank, Bill Sessoms, who is one of his closest friends from Virginia Beach, is really offensive The notion that Bob lied on purpose, lied to PenFed, a bank that he had been doing business with for 35 years, is offensive, too

Well now, okay, let's look at the February 18th update. As soon as the agents jump on Ms McDonnell and scare her and, frankly, scare him, he updates one of the applications, something that he had planned to do that weekend anyway when he could attend to his personal affairs Between February 11th and February 15th, Bob got multiple sets of documents from PenFed that were riddled with errors, as I've described. One of them on February 11th had no assets and no liabilities on it And like any normal person would do after what happened with the State Police, and the deception and the betrayal Bob felt relating to that, he wanted to make sure that if they are looking at Jonnie Williams and they've got some reason to look at Jonnie Williams, "Aside from whatever I know about Jonnie Williams, I want to be sure, I, Bob, want to be sure that anything on record relating to me and Jonnie Williams is 100 percent accurate, 100 percent exposed, 100 percent open." That's what he did and he took the time and the care to try to make sure his update was comprehensive

And confirming the absurdity of these charges is the simple fact that Bob disclosed his wife's sale of stock, Star stock, long before he submitted any of these forms If he is going to lie to the bank in 2013 to conceal his relationship with Jonnie, why would he tell the IRS before then about his wife's connections to Jonnie six months earlier?

Mr. Harbach's suggestion that you on your mortgage applications should get out the magnifying glass and look at the boilerplate, because if you don't, when you sign a draft, when you sign a loan form, the Feds might come after you for a federal felony, is chilling, is really a chilling thought And the microscope idea is also significant There is a mountain of documentary evidence in this case But even with a microscope, they can't find a crime

Why would Bob do these things? Why would somebody in his position, who is finishing out his term, who has, you know, whatever future potentially available to him, that other governors have when they leave office, why is he selling his office for these loans or gifts from Jonnie Williams? Bob knew about 25 or $30,000 of it total, the vacations, some dinners, some golf You know, given the interest on the loans, these loans are not gifts 120 grand is not a gift, it is a loan. Why would he do this? Give him the whole $170,000 Every bit of it is his, it is all his responsibility, and pretend he knew about it in realtime Every single thing that Jonnie Williams gave in the way of quid in this case and multiply that number by ten, make it 1.7 million. Why would Bob do that?

They suggest my client was broke because his wife says, "Oh, we are near bankruptcy and Bob is screaming about the bills," et cetera But as the evidence has shown and as Mr Kosowsky and others have explained, well, the money was tight There is no question about it being tight at some points during the life of this case Bob was not without access to resources

Now, look, nobody likes racking up credit card debt Even if it is at two percent rather than the 20 percent they often try to charge you. Nobody likes doing that It is not a good financial plan to borrow on credit cards to pay bills But a lot of people do it if they have to to get through a personal rough patch, a personal financial rough patch. And Bob's stellar credit rating, which you have seen in this case, proves, proves that he has managed over the years to deal with his personal finances very well He doesn't leave people he owes money hanging One way or another, without resorting to crime, he finds a way to get it done and to get it done on time

And by the way, the evidence in the case shows that Bob paid down his credit card debt, which was at a high of $90,000 at one point while he was the Governor, right as he became Governor, by $60,000 by the time Maureen deposited her loan from Jonnie Williams at the end of May He had managed to pay down $60,000 without any help from Jonnie Williams.

You heard about him having some cash in the bank and cash from other sources and $70,000, at least Maureen had that cash at the time of the first MoBo loan. And she said, "I would be glad to lend Bob money " She doesn't want to cash stocks or she doesn't want to incur extra fees or anything like that if she doesn't have to If you can get a loan from somebody at a good interest rate, and that is a better deal than cashing in an IRA, fine That makes prudent financial sense Bob could have called his longtime friend, Joe Damico. He told you that he would write him a seven-figure check, no questions asked. Those things, Maureen's resources, other resources for Bob, other potential resources, access to additional borrowing or credit through the convenience checks, that's why the whole theory of Bob being financially desperate has gone out the window, that Bob's only options were to take bribes from Jonnie or go into bankruptcy

So now there is another theory Now it is Bob didn't want to pay a few $400 fees on balance transfers and convenience checks. That's what Mr Dry asked Bob during his cross-examination. Same for sister Mo The best they could do is show that Mo was financially desperate, tried to show she was financially desperate despite a million bucks in liquid assets in her accounts, retirement accounts, and half a million dollars in salary, was to claim that she might incur extra taxes or some additional fees But for the $70,000 bonus she got, they don't have a ready answer for why she couldn't have just used that to lend Bob money if Bob needed money And by the way, Bob fronted money for her on MoBo as well

Now, there is no question that Jonnie's loans were helpful I'm not going to try to gainsay that There is no doubt that Bob and Mo and Michael appreciated the money and it made it easier for them to operate their business without losing money elsewhere. But that's far from proving that Bob McDonnell was a desperate man whose only option was to sell his office to Jonnie in return for official acts

I want to move on and talk about something Mr Harbach said about Tucker Martin Tucker Martin, the Communications Director for my client, who came in here and took the stand and, under oath, told you that Bob had never lied to him during the entire time that he's worked with Bob This guy has got to talk with the press based on what someone else tells him, and his reputation is destroyed if it's garbage in and garbage out

Mr Harbach says, "Well, he's just a good soldier He's just a good soldier " And he came into court and said that Bob never lied to him When Tucker told the press there was no recreational use of the Ferrari, well, where is the evidence that Bob knew how the car got there and why it was there at Smith Mountain Lake? They accused Maureen -- or they say that Maureen must have told Bob she had arranged it But there's no evidence of that You know, they assumed Jonnie's story is true when he says that Maureen asked that it be brought there for Bob Neither assumption is correct

And now let me get on to the silliness of the charts I want to make a few very brief comments about how you evaluate or are looking at these things in this case In the government's rebuttal case, the first guy they called is this Matthew Hunter, the guy who delivers the Ferrari And he never looks in the garage

Who's next? This Abel person from New York who talks about party planning and antique bricks in Jonnie's driveway And then they have Agent Weber to explain Bob's marriage to you with pie charts. Charts that count 152 nights when Bob wasn't scheduled to be home for the night until after 9 p.m., sometimes much later These are nights that Bob and Maureen spent together

Well, is that together when Bob is working alone in his home office? Is that together when Maureen is watching soap operas and ignoring Bob? Is that together when they are not talking to each other because they can't anymore? Is that together when they are arguing with each other and she refuses to speak?

Those charts don't tell you anything about my client's marriage They tell you something that we have never contested in this case These two are married Did they ever have the physical opportunity or ability to interact with each other? Of course, they did Of course, they did If they wanted to conspire and they were so inclined at engaging in criminal conspiracies together, they had opportunities to do it No one has ever denied that But the opportunity to be in each other's proximity does not mean that they are engaging in a criminal conspiracy That pie chart just captures my opponent's refusal to see any complexity, any gray in marriage or in life

Bob's e-mail proves the state of the marriage Jeanine's testimony proves it Mo's testimony proves it Janet's testimony proves it Bob's testimony proves it. That is evidence The pie chart is not. And to be fair, the pie chart, you know, illustrates some of the general problems with charts in this case Some of theirs, some of ours Basically, it's about speculation You know, we don't know what was said You know, we're not sure why these calls happened after each other Whether that's a coincidence, whether that is not a coincidence, whether there's some other reason, all we know is that they occurred at the time All we know is that these are the numbers, et cetera All we know is how long the calls lasted and that sort of thing But we don't have any real insight into what truly happened We just got to try to piece it all together because we don't have any real evidence of what occurred here

But if you assume my client is guilty, if you start from that -- from that assumption, as opposed to presuming that he is innocent, then you can look at everything through that filter If you think he's guilty and then you see the phone records, well, you're going to find a way to connect those dots and try to make them further prove that somebody is guilty But if you are open-minded about whether or not he's guilty and do these things really, really prove anything, it's a much different story

They tried to say my client is a liar and a cheater, but nobody came into the courtroom and said that Not a single unkind word about Bob from anyone, with a possible exception of Jonnie Nobody on the staff Nobody from Star None of the doctors or researchers, bankers, financial folks that have paraded through here None of the 200 people that were interviewed, et cetera, have come into this courtroom and said anything bad about Bob McDonnell or that Bob is dishonest. No one even believes that

The witnesses who know Bob well proved -- the government's witnesses, through what they said through their tongue, through their body language, that they don't believe these false accusations Everyone on his staff would work for him again These with people that know this case is going on They know what the press has been They are saying that right now, despite the bad press, despite the accusations, despite the indictment These witnesses for the prosecutions, they lived the events that we've spent a month talking about They were with there with Bob all hours of the day, day in, day out, watching how he behaved, watching how he interacted with people who wanted things from the government

And what did they do? They stuck with him, until the end, until the last day The man, the Governor they believed in They do believe in. The man whose integrity they trusted before they ever heard of these agents or these prosecutors The man whose integrity and honesty they trust now as I speak

The prosecution's Bob McDonnell is not the Bob McDonnell his staff knows and admires. They know his heart They know he would never sell his office They know he would never cheat his banks And those people are not alone. In the defense case, we brought in four separate people who came in here to support Bob in the most difficult time and experience of his life Witnesses who know his character well, and they also know about his marriage and other relevant facts

Each of those people swore that Bob was an honest, truthful, a caring man with unparalleled integrity, who would never do what he's accused of doing Each testified that Bob was known for those same traits by many other people they knew who knew Bob So they not only gave you their personal opinion, but they told you what his reputation was in various communities They not only spoke for themselves, but they spoke for thousands, literally thousands of other people who know Bob They didn't have to come in here and talk about Bob's character They came here because they wanted to come in here They choose to. They wanted to make sure that you understood what kind of person my client is You heard from Janet Kelly, his longest serving aide, who's known him for 20 years Seen him at his busiest, his most tired, his most stressed At times when his true and fundamental character comes through

And what did she say? She knows his heart And he is one of the most honest people she knows You believe his statements, without question He is totally trustworthy She knows thousands of people that know him They would say he is Mr. Honest, the Boy Scout of the year Never, in his lengthy career of serving the public, has he departed from that path of honesty and integrity That's what she said

Sister Mo said the same thing "Bob is my best friend Not only because he's my brother, but because I admire him and respect him, because he has great character and great demeanor, like our mom had " Mo talked about Bob's commitment to family and his dedication to public service S.e told you about his integrity, doing the right thing even in private, that Bob believes that to his core She also told you that he doesn't care at all about material goods, much like her mother He doesn't care about Rolexes He doesn't care about fancy stuff You know, is he willing to take a vacation at someone's nice house? Yeah, he is But does he aspire to that? Is that what motivates Bob McDonnell? Absolutely not

And then you heard from Tim Scully, Father Tim Scully, one of Bob's roommates at Notre Dame Forty-two years One of his closest friends in life. He flew here from South Bend, Indiana, just to talk with you for a few minutes about his lifelong friend He told you he knows Bob's heart, his fundamental character Bob has never erred from the truth, to his knowledge Ever. He has never heard Bob say anything that would resemble a falsity Bob is law-abiding He is someone who would never even suggest becoming involved in anything that would be considered illegal or unlawful He's an honest, virtuous, graceful man One of the watched Somebody other people look at and admire Not one of the watch, the Rolex watch

Father Scully explained his understanding of virtue to mean you create habits in your life, like saying the truth and doing the right thing, and those create dispositions that make you a virtuous person And he said Bob has great moral character, and great strength of character And he knows a lot of other folks who think the same of Bob and would echo his description

And then you heard from Joe Damico, a man who has known Bob for 45 years He flew in from Chicago A very successful business executive You heard his resume At the highest levels of major companies and boards Someone who's known Bob virtually his entire life, since he was in high school, and he knows him as well as anyone he knows in life And he's positive Bob is truthful. He's positive he's law-abiding, and he's positive in his heart and in his mind that Bob is honest

And he told you what integrity meant to him, what it meant to Joe Doing the right thing the right way for the right reasons, even when no one is looking Not for political expediency Not for a photo shoot Not for the PR But because it is the right thing to do Joe's bottom line was that Bob McDonnell is one of the best human beings he knows And that's not something that he says lightly It's about doing the thousand little things right each day The sum of a person's habits that are predictors of future behavior

Joe recognizes, as Bob recognizes, that Bob exhibited some poor judgment and that those judgments -- misjudgments are something that he is and should be sorry for But there is absolutely no chance, according to Joe Damico that Bob did something illegal

Now, Mr Dry is going to get up in rebuttal, and he's going to suggest to you, I suspect, I haven't seen what he's going to say, that it's really great that these people came in here and they told you these positive things about Bob But it's really irrelevant because all these people are all friends of Bob and so they are biased in his favor Well, you are absolutely right that they are friends of Bob But they are not friends of Bob for any reason other than the fact that Bob has earned that from them

Well, Mr. Dry might say, Well, it was all irrelevant anyway. I mean, they weren't there in Richmond, or whatever, in realtime They weren't in the car They weren't in the room They weren't on the phone when all this kind of stuff went on They weren't copied in on the e-mails, et cetera So they're really -- they're not eyewitnesses They're not earwitnesses, and you should ignore what they had to say about my client

Mr Dry might also argue that sometimes even good people do bad things But if he does argue these positions, he's wrong He's really, really wrong Judge Spencer will instruct you that the law, the law, not what I say, is that evidence of good character alone, alone, by itself, may create reasonable doubt in your minds That's why the law is why we were allowed to bring in these folks to talk with you about Bob's character

This man doesn't sometimes commit federal crimes He never commits federal crimes Why else should we care about the character? Because the law of character evidence makes common sense And each of you is called upon to apply the full wisdom of your experience as you deliberate

Think about how people develop character, and it's a lot like Joe Damico said Mature people develop character traits over their entire lifetime Not instantaneously And these traits that you develop define you as a human being It is not about your job It is about who you are as a person You build up these traits and your reputation for these traits over the course of your life, many different circumstances, always doing the right thing on a regular basis, even when it's hard, even when it's difficult

And what else do we know about this character evidence theory? Well, as Joe said, in his view, people generally act in conformity with their character, consistent with their character, because it's become habitual It's become a habit, an ingrained habit And if you solidly, repeatedly, historically are a person of honesty and truthfulness and integrity and a person who is trusted and who trusts others, a person who follows rules, obeys the law, knows right from wrong, then you do the right thing in the Governor's Office in 2010, 2011, 2012, and 2013, and you tell the truth about it, when asked, from then until now

So these character witnesses, to my way of thinking, are eyewitnesses They are eyewitnesses to my client's soul, to his good faith, to his heart, to his lack of criminal intent. And they prove not only that he wouldn't commit the crimes that he's accused of, but they prove that if he did do anything wrong, he would admit it

You've heard the old adage, virtue is its own reward Well, that may be But you are also entitled to have a lifetime's worth of hard work in building good character shield you from false accusations in suspicious circumstances like the ones thrown at Bob McDonnell here These character witnesses, on their own, create reasonable doubt, and if you believe that, that is enough to acquit

What about this reasonable doubt concept? And I am getting close to finishing There are two very important thoughts, reasonable doubt Two important concepts That and presumption of innocence I want to talk a little bit about, and Mr Burck and I agreed that I would explain these for both of us

We know about this presumption of innocence and the government always having the burden of proof We don't have to prove we're not guilty They are to prove they are. And if they have to prove it beyond a reasonable doubt. Because right this second, they are innocent, and they are always innocent until and unless you unanimously conclude differently in your deliberations

But you don't have any obligation to do the prosecutors' job for them back there. You don't have to sift the evidence. You don't have to strain the evidence You don't have to look for alternative explanations that might incriminate somebody It's their job to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt It's their job to give you the case on a silver platter No assembly required It's their obligation to make it really easy for you to convict because they proved their case beyond a reasonable doubt You are judges Judges of the facts in this case You are not detectives The detective work was supposed to have been done before the trial started, and you don't have to struggle to buy what the prosecution is selling

What about this reasonable doubt concept? It's the standard, it's the matrix, it's the benchmark by which you must judge the evidence, or the lack of evidence, in this case Because either can create reasonable doubt, evidence or lack of evidence

What do those words mean? You will define what those words mean Is it some defense lawyer's trick? Is it some technicality that I dreamed up to thwart justice in this case, or is it the bedrock of our system, designed to ensure, to the maximum extent possible, that an innocent person is never convicted?

And remember that a single, solitary reasonable doubt on any element of any offense for either defendant on any count means that you must acquit the defendant on that count Nobody here is going to try to tell you, in percentage terms, what reasonable doubt means If you want to think of it that way, you can That's your choice

It's not beyond all possible doubt It's not preponderance of the evidence, a civil standard. You set the bar That's your call That's your decision But you know it's the highest standard in American law It's higher even than the standard of clear and compelling evidence, which is an intermediate standard between civil and criminal cases Clear and compelling evidence is what is required to terminate your parental rights, to take a child from a parent Reasonable doubt is more than that

And suspicion isn't enough Conjecture isn't enough Theories aren't enough If you think somebody might be guilty, if you think they're probably guilty, if you think they're likely guilty, even if you think they're guilty by clear and convincing evidence, that is not enough

And I'd ask you to embrace reasonable doubt not only for the McDonnells, but for yourself, and everybody else as well Because if you apply that high standard to the facts you find, no one can ever legitimately question your verdicts Holding firm to reasonable doubt will let you be certain that you've made the right decision that everyone in this case, even my opponents can live with Because when the law of reasonable doubt is upheld, when the law is upheld, everybody wins

And when you consider these charges and whether or not there's reasonable doubt, I ask you not to compromise on your verdict Don't convict Bob of some things and acquit him of others just to give the prosecutors something for their effort Bob is innocent of every crime charged in this case Everybody wins when complete justice is done

So search your hearts and search your minds and your consciences as you deliberate about whether the prosecution has proven guilt beyond a reasonable doubt in this case And remember that you are the sole and final judges of the facts And if you, in your deliberations, are debating in good faith with each other about important things, I ask you to think at that moment about whether the reason that you are debating or arguing with your fellow reasonable jurors is because a reasonable doubt exits And if you come to that conclusion, you can put a quick end to this humiliating ordeal that's played out with you -- played out before you for the last five weeks

In conclusion, some thoughts about reasonable doubts here Jonnie got nothing, and Bob promised nothing Jonnie never directly asked Bob for anything If Bob had promised Jonnie something, Bob could have made it happen

Jonnie's other crimes give him a reason to lie The marriage was too dysfunctional to support a conspiratorial plan Bob's long-time friends, his character witnesses, talked to you about those traits If Bob had done something wrong, he would not lie about it He didn't hide anything from anybody who should have known about it Filling out forms by providing information they required is not a false statement And when Bob was Governor, taking unlimited gifts or loans was completely legal in Virginia

And then we have the concept of good faith, the overarching concept of good faith Even if you do something and you are mistaken and even if others are injured, if you operated in good faith, there is no crime So even if you believed Jonnie Williams in this case, there are many reasonable doubts that would still merit acquitting my client for

I'm going to sit down, and it will be the very last time you hear from me, or anyone else speaking about --

speaking for Bob McDonnell Mr Dry will give you his final rebuttal I haven't heard it I'm sure it will be good, and I don't get to respond to it. So I ask you to please do this as you listen to Mr Dry

Brace Bob McDonnell with your memory Brace Bob McDonnell with your common sense with his presumption of innocence Ask yourself, What would Bob say? What would his lawyers say if we got the last word? And if you hold the prosecution to its burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt, if you weigh the evidence fairly and impartially, then I trust you will return the only just verdict this evidence can possibly support, and that is not guilty on all charges

I am very glad to have this opportunity to speak with you all personally The first time for me in this case I thank you for everything you've done, and I thank you for everything you still have to do

THE COURT: All right We're going to take a ten-minute break and come back in

You all hang with us because we are going a little late tonight probably, but we need to get this in All right

(Recess taken from 4:08 p m until 4:20 p m)

(The jury entered the courtroom)

THE COURT: All right   Government

MR DRY: Thank you, Your Honor

Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen

THE JURY: Good afternoon

MR DRY: At the end of the day, the evidence and your common sense makes it clear that Mr and Ms McDonnell accepted bribes from Jonnie Williams   This is a serious case   Every federal criminal case is a serious case   While it might be serious, like other cases, some are just not close, and this case is not even close   Mr Asbill suggested that it's our responsibility to put this case on a silver platter, and that's exactly what Mr Harbach described to you earlier this morning

Now, there's not enough time for me to respond to every point that both defense counsel made over four hours of closings   I'm not going to subject you to that   But I would like to talk about some of the highlights

First of all, let's talk about the quid pro quo for a second   Mr Burck got it right in his opening statement five weeks ago   He basically said, "Well, quid pro quo, that's Latin for I scratch your back   You scratch mine " That's exactly what happened in this case, ladies and gentlemen   Mr Williams gave the defendants and their children more than $177,000 of gifts and loans

Now, let's give Mr McDonnell the benefit of every doubt

Let's bring up Government's Exhibit 60, please

This is that chart Now, Mr McDonnell claims that he didn't know about the $20,000 for the New York shopping trip and that he didn't know about the $6,500 engraved Rolex I don't know why we're still talking about the Movado box. But setting that aside, that still leaves $150,000 in quid

Now, Mr McDonnell claims that he didn't learn about the first $50,000 payment to Ms McDonnell until two weeks later. Who cares? Within two weeks of the check coming in, he knows Now, the question was posed, why would he do this? Why would he corrupt his office for 177,000 or $150,000? The answer is simple He didn't think he was going to get caught.

Mr Asbill talked about, "Well, he could use credit cards to get over a rough patch " Ladies and gentlemen, this rough patch lasted two years He had been using credit cards for two years Convenience checks

Now, if the argument is he didn't really need the money, that doesn't make this better That makes it worse If he had other options, that makes what he did worse At the end of the day, both defendants knew that they received $150,000 of Mr Williams' largesse And in return, Mr Williams got his back scratched

Now, Mr Asbill talked about defining quo Okay And what he didn't do is talk about the full definition that you're going to receive He talked about any question, matter, cause, suit, proceeding, or controversy. He talked about bills and board appointments and all of this But what he failed to mention is that official action, as the judge is going to instruct you, includes those actions that have been clearly established by settled practice as part of a public official's position even if the action was not taken pursuant to responsibilities explicitly assigned by law

In other words, official actions may include acts that a public official customarily performs, even if those actions are not described in any law, rule or job description In addition, action can be include actions taken in furtherance of longer term goals, and an official action is no less official because it is one in a series of steps to exercise, influence, or achieve an end

Mr Asbill argues there is no quo But ladies and gentlemen, if you apply the law to what happened in this case, there is more than sufficient quo Even though the government doesn't have to prove there was any quo, we just have to prove the corrupt agreement But let's -- let's go down some of these things for a moment

First of all, directing Dr Hazel to send someone to the meeting in August of 2011 Now, when he was on that witness stand, Mr McDonnell said, "Well, I did that because I was concerned and I didn't want any decisions made without having a subject matter expert " We've been talking for five weeks, ladies and gentlemen, and one fact is perfectly clear Ms McDonnell is not a public official She has no decision-making authority Well, if she doesn't have any decision-making authority, why are you sending government officials to sit in on a meeting between Mr Williams and Ms McDonnell? That's not what was going on, ladies and gentlemen. Jonnie Williams wanted to meet with somebody from the Health and Human Resources, and he got that meeting

Now let's go to the August 30th launch at the Mansion Mr Asbill said that Mr McDonnell just didn't know what this was about. But ladies and gentlemen, that briefing sheet he got the day before, that made it clear what this was about It's got Star Scientific people there It's got the UVA and VCU researchers there Mr Williams made it clear what he wanted That's the June 16th letter Mr Asbill said, "Well, he got no response " He got a response It was that August 30th Mansion event launch

Now, the third, the Governor's attempt to get involved with the VCU and UVA sites This is the six-minute e-mail exchange I'm not going to beat that to death But at the end of the day, ladies and gentlemen, it's clear that Mr McDonnell was e-mailing his policy director after receiving e-mails from Ms McDonnell talking about what, UVA, VCU, Anatabloc studies What did Mr Williams want? That And what is Mr McDonnell doing at the same time, they are negotiating another $50,000? He's e-mailing He's doing something

Now, let's go to the Virginia Healthcare Leaders event at the Mansion Ladies and gentlemen, you saw the handwritten notes You saw what was going on There is no way that Mr. McDonnell didn't know, when he was going to that event, that Ms McDonnell had basically blessed Mr Williams inviting who he wanted

Now, in the closing statements, they made it sound like Ms McDonnell was choosing who she thought was the healthcare leader of Virginia That wasn't Ms McDonnell Jonnie Williams got carte blanche to make those decisions And don't forget Mr Ladenson got directed there

When you go back into that jury room, you pick up those pictures And you can just kind of flip through them, and you see exactly what happened there You see Jonnie Williams next to the pillar He's got that look on his face like a cat just ate the canary And then you see Mr and Ms McDonnell next to each other And the next picture, you see everybody looking at Mr Ladenson because Mr McDonnell had singled him out

Now, as far as the meeting with Lisa Hicks-Thomas and Sara Wilson, I think that Mr Asbill said it happened on March 19th I think it's actually March 21st But setting that aside, he said that nothing came out of it But, ladies and gentlemen, that's not the point. The Governor of Virginia is pulling out a product and talking to his senior advisors in a meeting about lowering healthcare costs in Virginia. He's saying, "You should meet with them " Now, the fact that that meeting didn't occur, like pretty much everything else in this case, that wasn't because of Mr McDonnell That was in spite of Mr McDonnell

You know, we don't have to prove any one of those, but any one of those is sufficient They keep on talking about no one was pressured When you get these jury instructions, ladies and gentlemen, you look for the word pressure It doesn't appear anywhere But ladies and gentlemen, when your boss is telling you to do something, when the man who is the ultimate boss for 110,000 people tells you to do something, he doesn't need to yell He doesn't need to scream. No Absolutely not

Now, there's been a lot of discussion about things that Mr McDonnell didn't do for Mr Williams And, in fact, Mr Asbill, he had that chart up there of all those Cabinet secretaries I hope you remember that You know, there was one that was missing Do you know who that was? Bill Hazel

Now, why is Bill Hazel missing? Well, ladies and gentlemen, at the end of the day, Mr Hazel is a devastating witness in this case If you remember back to his testimony, he was asked, "As you sit there today, can you recall any other group other than Mr Williams that had" -- "that was unique for the level of support from the McDonnells? Answer: I can't recall that there was ever a situation quite like this one Please explain that Well, you know, the Governor, in doing his job, would go out and meet with all kinds of people and come back with all kinds of ideas Let me give you an example If I had a dollar for everything that these technology firms were going to have to save us by using their product, we would be giving the taxpayers money back But our job was to sort through them and figure out whether it applied to Virginia or not But looking from sitting here now, four years into this, there was never anything quite like this that I saw I don't think I was ever looking at a product like this I don't think there was the involvement that we had in terms of just the repeated contacts The Mansion event was unique That was the only time that happened."

Now, they also talked about, well, Mr McDonnell could have got a line item in the budget He could have got VEDP funding He could have done all sorts of things Well, the problem with those is Mr Williams never asked for those What did Mr Williams always want? He wanted the studies at UVA and VCU He wanted the prestige of Mr McDonnell's office He wanted them -- him there at meetings All of those things were what he got

Now, as far as Mr McDonnell didn't lobby the Tobacco Commission Well, ladies and gentlemen, you can't lobby the Tobacco Commission for a grant proposal until the application is actually in Now, why wasn't the application in? It was because VCU and UVA didn't agree to submit the application And Star couldn't It was a for-profit entity Another situation where it's not Mr McDonnell pushing back He's not saying, "No " You never heard the polite no from Mr McDonnell or Ms McDonnell

Ladies and gentlemen, there is no doubt about the quid in this case There's no doubt about the quo in this case And I'd like to talk a little bit about the pro

Well, first of all, on that Hazel point I just said I said that Mr Hazel proved there was something special Under the law, if Star got exactly what every other company got and Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell took bribe payments for that, that's still illegal Do you remember all 400 of those pictures that they put in towards the end of the case that showed Mr McDonnell up at function after function after function? Well, there's nothing wrong with that, ladies and gentlemen That's his job He just can't pocket money, personal money, for doing his job. The law doesn't allow him to do that

As far as the pro We've been very up-front with you from day one, ladies and gentlemen There is no express agreement in this case There is no videotape of it There's no e-mail that says, "Hey, you give me this, $50,000, and I'll set up this meeting " That just didn't happen But the Court is going to instruct you that the agreement does not need to be express And it's going to tell you that the reason for that is that otherwise, quote, the law could be frustrated by knowing winks and nods, end quote

Ladies and gentlemen, nobody has accused the defendants or Jonnie Williams of being stupid Nobody And we all know that those kinds of explicit agreements just don't happen in the real world The Court is going to instruct you that the agreement can be established based on the defendant's words, conduct, acts, and all the surrounding circumstances, as well as the logical inferences that may be drawn from them

Ladies and gentlemen, Mr Williams was sitting in that Mansion at the events and getting those meetings because he was paying for it He was paying for it And if you have any doubt about that, the timing of the events makes it absolutely clear that the defendants and Mr Williams had a corrupt agreement You don't need to take Mr Williams' word for it

Now, if you remember back to Mr Asbill's direct of Mr McDonnell, how it seemed to jump around a little bit, didn't go chronologically, like Mr Harbach's did And then even in the closing arguments, that really wasn't chronological either Now, it was a little bit confusing, but that's not Mr Asbill's fault He's a smart lawyer He knows that if you lay out these facts chronologically, it does no good for his client None And that's because the timing in this case establishes the pro in the quid pro quo agreement

All right First of all, the Governor's e-mail to Dr Hazel an hour after driving Mr Williams' Ferrari back from Smith Mountain Lake Does anybody really believe that as Mr McDonnell is driving the Ferrari and Ms McDonnell is sitting next to him and they are talking to Jonnie Williams on the phone as she is texting a picture -- or e-mailing a picture of the Governor driving the Ferrari, that they didn't know what time it was? Come on, now. The fact that the launch event gets scheduled on Ms McDonnell's calendar the day after the Smith Mountain Lake trip

Think about this The same day that Mr McDonnell calls Mr Williams to negotiate another $50,000 loan, Star representatives are e-mailing Ms McDonnell with a list of guests for the Healthcare Leaders Reception The best evidence in the case is the six-minute e-mail exchange Mr McDonnell's attorneys have suggested, well, he just sends a lot of e-mails at night But his own testimony makes it clear that he sent these late-night e-mails for things -- can we show up Government's Exhibit 901, please

This was the question that Mr Asbill asked on direct "Okay And would you typically send a lot of e-mails late at night? Yes Very often That was my time to think about things for the next day and think about things that I wanted to have done " That's right, ladies and gentlemen That e-mail to Mr Eige That was about something that Mr McDonnell wanted to have done

The Healthcare Leaders Reception itself occurs five hours after Mr Williams and Mr McDonnell have a private meeting about the loan Now, one of the things that I spent some time on in cross, and I apologize for that, was those handwritten notes of that meeting And the defense has suggested repeatedly, well, that just proves that Mr McDonnell knew he didn't do anything wrong because otherwise, why he would keep those notes and turn them over Really? That's where we're at? The fact he didn't obstruct justice proves that he must be innocent? Well, here's an alternative for you Who knew that Mr McDonnell had handwritten notes? Who else? Jonnie Williams You want to know how you know that? Because his handwriting is on some of the notes

Now, Mr Asbill, nobody is bringing up those notes You see a lot of things on that screen Those notes aren't there When you go back into that jury room, you pull up those notes It talks about reportability It talks about transactions in which Mr Williams is going to give $150,000 worth of stock, and four years later, Mr McDonnell has the option of paying 90,000 back or giving the stock back There's no risk for him

The explanations didn't make sense when he's on the stand He's saying, "Well, Mr Williams is just telling me this, but I don't understand it " Ladies and gentlemen, we didn't listen to it You read the notes It's pretty clear what's going on in those notes

The March 21st meeting, the Lisa Hicks-Thomas, Sara Wilson, that happened nine days, nine days, ladies and gentlemen, after Mr McDonnell had the $50,000 check deposited Think about that March 12th When he was on that witness stand, he told you he wanted to talk to Mr Williams, and the reason being is, "I need to figure out those loan terms I really need to know those loan terms I didn't know what was going on with the check " Well, does that make any sense? The check is already deposited He had already authorized Michael Uncapher to spend it So he's accepting a check, spending the money, but then after the fact, he's really concerned about the loan terms? That's when he's going to talk to Mr Williams about it? Just like the 30 to 45 days he waited to figure out what was going on with the first $50,000 to Ms McDonnell

That Lisa Hicks-Thomas meeting -- or Lisa Hicks-Thomas meeting with Sara Wilson, that occurs three days after Mr McDonnell and Ms McDonnell fly back from their Florida vacation with Mr Williams on the jet, on Mr Williams' jet No Ladies and gentlemen, the timing, the timing in this case is devastating

But it's not only the timing that establishes what happened here It's also the concealment If you're not doing anything wrong, why are you hiding it? First of all, the staff knew nothing about any of this Not one of Mr McDonnell's most trusted advisors was ever informed by him what was going on Now, the excuse for this is he's a private person who kept his financial dealings private He also claimed, "Well, I'm talking to Mr Eige. I'm consulting my lawyer That's why I sent the e-mail." Think about that for a second, ladies and gentlemen He admitted on the stand, as a lawyer, you can't advise your client unless you have facts And regardless of what Mr Cheng testified about, if you're advising Mr McDonnell about whether it's appropriate for the Governor's Office to get involved with UVA and VCU, it's a pretty important fact that Mr McDonnell is trying to negotiate $50,000 more into his pocket at the same exact time That's just not slipping somebody's mind, ladies and gentlemen

And think back Martin Kent -- can we pull up 903, please

They kept asking each staff member, "Well, did you ever talk about your personal financial dealings?" And they'd all say no

But if you look at Page 2, he was asked, "Correspondingly" -- "with respect to his marriage or any issues between himself and his wife, are those things that he discussed with you? Answer: No, sir Correspondingly, are these the types of things that you ever brought up or raised with him and discussed with him? Only if I felt like it somehow spilled over into state government "

Ladies and gentlemen, personal financial dealings between the Governor and his wife at the same time that Jonnie Williams is trying to get his studies, that's spilling over into state government Mr McDonnell knows it should have been disclosed, but he didn't want it disclosed His staff is already pushing back on what's going on They are already asking questions. Mr Cox is saying, "Hey, what does Jonnie want? What's going on?" Well, they know half the story

Now, the SOEIs I'm not going to go into a lot of this It's late It's before a three-day weekend But at the end of the day, this isn't about whether he violated Virginia law or not It's about whether Mr McDonnell, as a former Virginia Attorney General, someone who's been filing these disclosures for more than 20 years, knew every single loophole and opportunities to avoid disclosure, within the law even

Do you remember, he kept asking his lawyers for advice on how to fill out the form, the definition of a personal friend Why does he keep asking every year? It's because he wasn't getting the answers that he wanted

Mr Eige testified that he told Mr McDonnell that they should track gifts from family members so that they can make a determination on whether the gift was really to the family member or really because of his position The purpose of those SOEI forms, as even he agreed to on the stand, was so that the citizens of Virginia could assess for themselves the financial interest between their elected officials and donors and gift givers Mr McDonnell was not disclosing on the SOEI

The idea that Mr Williams gift a $15,000 was a wedding gift to Cailin, no Who signed the contract? Who made the payments? Who always intended to pay? And the last minute, Mr. Williams comes up and says, "Oh, well, there's a $15,000 check " And Mr McDonnell says, "Well, that's got to be a gift to my daughter I don't need to disclose anything "

I'd like to spend a little bit of time about Mr Burck's argument about Ms McDonnell's mixed motives He spent a lot of time talking about how she liked nutraceuticals It was a long-term interest All of that is true He also talked -- well, one thing on that If you'll notice No matter how much she might have liked vitamins, selling Nu Skin, how many Nu Skin events were at the Mansion? Zero

He also talked about how Ms McDonnell liked and supported Jonnie Williams, that she was infatuated with him, all this other stuff Look, there's zero evidence that there was any kind of sexual relationship between these two people Now, admittedly, they had a lot of texts and a lot of calls She very well could be lonely and wanting attention But Mr Burck suggested to you, "Well, if Ms McDonnell is helping Mr Williams for those reasons, then she can't be guilty of bribery " But, ladies and gentlemen, we all know that people very rarely act for a single purpose And the Court is going to instruct you that if you find that either defendant, quote, received a thing of value at least in part in exchange for the performance of official action, then it doesn't matter if they also acted in part for other reasons

The evidence makes clear that the defendants knew what Mr Williams wanted, and he was giving them things in exchange for that Did Ms McDonnell like Mr Williams? Sure Did she believe in his product? Sure But at the end of the day, ladies and gentlemen, she's getting the shopping spree She's the one asking for the Rolex She's the one vacationing at Smith Mountain Lake She's the one getting the Ferrari for her husband It's not all about the vitamins, ladies and gentlemen It's not all about Mr Williams If it was all about Mr Williams, why is she asking for a Rolex watch engraved to her husband? Why is ask she asking for a Ferrari for her husband's use?

I want to talk about Mr Williams for a second They spent an inordinate amount of time attacking Mr Williams From the outset, they have desperately tried to make this a credibility battle between Mr McDonnell and Mr Williams In fact, Mr Brownlee, from his opening statement, said, quote, the government's case begins and ends with the word of Jonnie Williams Mr Burck's first slide in his closing statement was a picture of Mr Williams that he left up there for ten minutes

But as you sit there today, you know that this case doesn't rise or fall on Mr Williams. No Think about all the text messages, the e-mails Think about all the witnesses that hit that stand and gave damaging testimony, even though they were some of the defendants' closest friends and confidants

You could take Mr Williams -- Mr Asbill is right about this You could take and discount everything, every single word uttered by Mr Williams on that stand, and there is more evidence than necessary to go beyond -- above a reasonable doubt

But let's take a look at this Let's -- if you're going to assess Mr Williams' credibility versus Mr McDonnell, who has the bigger incentive not to tell the truth? Mr Williams' immunity agreements make it clear that the only way he goes to jail is if he lies to you He can't get prosecuted for anything Lots of arguments about his incentives to lie But at the end of the day, ladies and gentlemen, he has nothing to gain and everything to lose by lying to you That first immunity agreement, he was implicating the Governor and Ms McDonnell with no immunity on anything else He had no upside to get the defendants convicted When he hit that stand, it was over He got the get-out-of-jail-free card

Now, let's talk about that for a second Why? Well, at the end of the day, ladies and gentlemen, if Mr Williams hadn't gotten that second immunity agreement, do you know what the argument would be? The defense counsel would have sat up here for a half an hour saying that Mr Williams was willing to say anything because if he didn't, he was in fear of being prosecuted by us They can't make that argument now No

Now, if Mr Williams was truly a government puppet, willing to say anything to please the government, if he was really trying to trade his freedom for those of the defendants, why didn't he just say there was an explicit quid pro quo agreement? There's lots of private conversations between him and Ms McDonnell Heck, there's private conversations between him and Mr McDonnell The easiest thing for him to do would be able to say, "Hey, yeah Mr McDonnell told me that if I gave him that $50,000, then he was going to make sure I got this He promised me Tobacco Commission funding He promised me that he was going to call UVA and VCU " He didn't ever testify to that

Now, ladies and gentlemen, one thing. If you look back on Jeanine Zubowsky's testimony when she blurted out that Mr. Williams is a criminal, he is. Absolutely He's a criminal because he bribed the defendants Now, Mr Burck said, "Mr Williams is no victim " He's right too Mr Williams knew what he was doing That's why he was hiding it You don't have to like Mr Williams You shouldn't like Mr Williams He bribed the Governor of Virginia

Now, Mr Asbill made a big point of saying, well, Mr Williams is the star witness in this case No When Mr McDonnell hit that witness stand, he became the star witness And the Court is going to instruct you when you consider the credibility of witnesses, you should assess their interest in the case Of all the witnesses, more than 50, that you heard testify in this case, none of them have a bigger interest in the outcome than Mr McDonnell

You heard that testimony You can assess it for yourself But the striking thing was that when it came to the critical moments, the critical meetings, what was said, it was, "I don't remember I don't recall " It was evasiveness It was, "Well, that was just Mr Williams talking I didn't really understand it " Now, compare his recall on those issues to his amazing recall on his legislative votes or his political accomplishment As far as Mr McDonnell being on the stand for 53 hours, that was not the government's fault The first two-and-a-half days of that were his attorney Heck, we spent a day on his background of legislative accomplishments It's just too convenient, ladies and gentlemen Too convenient

But when you're assessing that, when you go back into that room, I want you to look at the e-mails, the text messages I want you to think about the testimony from his closest advisors, his best friends, the godfather of his children, Mr Piscitelli You consider all of that They had no incentive to shade their testimony to fit the government's case, but it was devastating testimony, nonetheless

You know, perhaps the most striking thing about Mr McDonnell's testimony was his willingness to blame others while at the same time trying to claim that he was accepting responsibility Michael Uncapher was to blame because he didn't pay MoBo's bills on time No explanation of why Mr McDonnell didn't just put the bills on auto pay But you know why that was, right? Because they didn't have enough money to pay their bills on time

They had to pay for umpteen mortgages, the lines of credits, the bedbug infestations, every other unexpected expense on owning a pair -- pair of million-dollar beachfront residences

At one point, I think Jonnie Williams was to blame for not sending the donation forms for the thousands of Kinloch expenses and the Notre Dame bag. The staff was to blame for not tracking the golf and dinners from the schedules that showed nothing about what Mr McDonnell was doing or who was paying

Jasen Eige and Martin Kent didn't inform the Governor about the concerns they had regarding Jonnie Williams, even though they know virtually nothing about all of the quid that's rolling over

Nan Bolt, from PenFed, didn't help Mr. McDonnell enough with his loan application in disclosing loans that wouldn't show up anywhere

Now we've got the prosecutors The prosecutors are to blame for bringing the case Do you remember on cross-examination Mr McDonnell said that he had been preparing ever since I indicted him? Well, look, ladies and gentlemen, I didn't indict him A grand jury indicted him

Most sad of all, his wife getting blamed for supposedly hiding the shopping spree, the Rolex, and her

Star Scientific stock transactions Oh, yeah, and she was mean to the staff I have no idea what that means about anything

You know, Father Scully when he testified, he said part of character is the ability to remove one's self from morally questionable situations The ability to say no

Defense counsel makes it sound like Mr Williams is holding a gun to their head and forcing them to accept this stuff You're not hearing no from Ms McDonnell You're not hearing no from Mr McDonnell

Now we're going to move on to the marriage Let's be clear about one thing The government never made an issue of the defendants' marriage They did They spent a lot of time talking about the September 5th, 2011, e-mail Let's be clear No one can read that e-mail and not feel sympathy for what was going on in that time, in that moment Anybody that's been married for a while, it's a bumpy ride Ups and downs

But let's bring up Government's Exhibit 862

I think Mr Burck defined this e-mail as generic, and didn't really -- and then I think Mr Asbill discounted it as XOXO Bob McDonnell, May 8th, 2011 Think about that timing It says, "I love you Having fun here Have a safe flight " She responds back, "I can't wait to be with you XOXO " He responds back, "Love you too Please get rest on the plane Miss you "

You can't read that e-mail without feeling that's amazing after 35 years But the simple fact of the matter is that no one, absolutely no one knows the happiness level of that marriage other than two people, and they are sitting over there

But we do know one thing It doesn't matter Whether this marriage was happy or sad, whether they liked each other or hated each other simply doesn't matter Anytime the government presented any evidence regarding the defendants' marriage, it was simply to rebut the argument that they weren't around or couldn't communicate with one another

You go back You get these jury instructions You look at conspiracy You look whether you need to like your co-conspirator Not there But, ladies and gentlemen, the one question is were they communicating together about Jonnie Williams and Star Scientific in particular?

By his own admission, Mr McDonnell talked to his wife before e-mailing Dr Hazel on August 1st at least about the subject of the Huffstetler meeting By his own admission, Mr McDonnell knew that Ms McDonnell was inviting Star Scientific people to the launch at the Mansion and the Healthcare Leaders Reception And the evidence shows there are e-mails between the two discussing how Jonnie needs the Governor's Office's assistance with UVA and VCU Go back and look at that February 8th e-mail of 2012

Ladies and gentlemen, you don't need to be married to be in a conspiracy You know, Jeanine Zubowsky, their daughter, testified -- she didn't say they never communicated Let's take a look at what she actually said

Government's Exhibit 904, please

"Did they talk at all? Yes It was never more than just logistics about children and necessities It wasn't what I observe in my own marriage as a normal conversation "

Ladies and gentlemen, you know what Jonnie Williams was? Logistics and necessities They were talking about him While all this discussion of the defendants' marriage is salacious and sad, at the end of the day, it just doesn't matter

You know, when he got on that witness stand, he said that discussing his marriage was going to be difficult But it seemed like at every opportunity he could, he blamed his wife His wife hid the New York shopping spree from him, even though she was wearing the dresses to their daughter's wedding and at the anniversary party His wife hid the $50,000 for two weeks that she used to pay their credit card bills His wife hid the Star Scientific purchase for the same two weeks, but then lied about buying more stock Then lied to him about not selling the stock But then followed his instruction right in the nick of time so it didn't have to be reported Then again lied to him about repurchasing the stock Then he happened to find out again right in the nick of time that she had repurchased it, which was right in the time to gift the shares to the children His wife lied to him about the Rolex But he claimed that he learned about all of these at very convenient times, ladies and gentlemen

Think about this Despite the fact he's telling you that his wife is repeatedly lying to him, despite the fact that the bank statements and the Davenport statements are going to their home address, despite the fact he admits that he was seeing those envelopes, he would have you believe that he never opened them

You know, what makes more sense is that Mr McDonnell is willing to throw his wife under the bus, and she's willing to let him, in order to avoid criminal convictions One of the most troubling parts of this trial was when Mr Asbill asked Mr McDonnell if he got separate counsel after learning that Ms McDonnell had returned the dresses with the letter, and he said yes

And the clear suggestion from that question and answer, ladies and gentlemen, was that Mr McDonnell got separate counsel because of what she had done there Distancing himself from that.

Now, it wasn't until Ms McDonnell's counsel got up on cross-examination, basically saying enough is enough, and made Mr McDonnell admit that his decision to have separate counsel had nothing to do with any of that.

Ladies and gentlemen, that one moment, sadly, sadly, made it clear that Mr. McDonnell's bumper sticker, it should not have been Bob's For Jobs It should have been Bob's For Bob

Mr McDonnell -- let me go to the TowneBank personal financial statement He claims he's not guilty of false statements to TowneBank because the loans from Mr Williams were not personally guaranteed You heard Mr Sessoms testify, his long-time friend They never discussed that Absolutely no discussions of that

Now, it's true that there was no written personal guarantee from Mr Williams -- or for Mr Williams, but given the bribery scheme here, that's not exactly surprising, is it?

But how do you know that Mr McDonnell's excuse on the false statement to TowneBank doesn't hold water? Remember back to cross-examination, I was trying to get him to explain why the loan to Dr Davis wasn't disclosed on that same application? Do you remember, that's the one that was personally guaranteed That was the one he was jointly and severally liable for. That was the one that had $13,000 outstanding on it. He had no good explanation for that

The simple fact of the matter is that none of the personal loans were disclosed on the application. $110,000 from his father wasn't disclosed. Outstanding balance on the Dr Davis loan wasn't disclosed. And the $50,000 from Mr Williams in March of 2012, that was definitely not disclosed Bottom line, ladies and gentlemen, all of that, that is just an after-the-fact justification from a lawyer You are smarter than that

Moving to the PenFed application: There is no dispute that on February 1st of 2013, the $120,000 of loans from Jonnie Williams are nowhere to be found. But now the justification is that $70,000 was to MoBo I'm not going to beat that dead horse. You know better than that But on the $50,000 to Ms McDonnell, that wasn't simply an oversight, because that was -- that was simply an oversight because Mr McDonnell was busy, quote, busy and this was a, quote, iterative process It was a, quote, draft

The whole oversight excuse on the loan applications and Statements of Economic Interests just doesn't make sense, ladies and gentlemen This is the same man who during the period he claimed was the busiest of his life, what's he doing? He is picking out the exact model of the bocce balls for his rental properties This man is the definition of attention to detail As far as drafts and iterative processes, nowhere on those loan applications Those loans were supposed to close February 28th.

But the best -- oh, and I will, one aside on this: There was a lot of discussion about that magnifying glass thing and how scary that was Ladies and gentlemen, rest assured, Mr McDonnell himself admitted as a former prosecutor he knew it was a federal crime to lie on a bank loan application. He didn't need a magnifying glass But the best evidence that Mr McDonnell knew that these should have been disclosed was his February 18th, 2013 correction. Go back and look on the front of that fax sheet "Just happened to be reviewing these " Now, the excuses that he over-disclosed because he knew law enforcement was looking, right, that was the excuse, but to be clear, he is right on that His wife had been asked about the loans from Williams But make no mistake, this is not an over-disclosure This is not him saying, "I just got to make sure everything is on there " You want to know how you know that? Where are the $110,000 of outstanding loans from his parents or from his dad? Again, these are all after-the-fact justifications from a guy with a law degree

I want to talk about the obstruction count Mr Burck made two main arguments on that First, there was no literal false statement Can we pull up Government Exhibit 3, please? And then second, Ms McDonnell had been told that there was no federal grand jury investigation at the time she sent the letter Regarding the first point, nowhere in the jury instruction that you are going to receive is there anything that there has to be a false statement Okay? You just have to corruptly impede a grand jury investigation that might happen, basically You don't have to know whether it is federal or state

But Mr Burck said nothing is false on this note Really? Ms McDonnell truly hopes that Jonnie Williams' daughter is going to wear the dresses? Ladies and gentlemen, that doesn't hold water Mr Williams' daughter was a model The other one was a teacher They are both size zeros These dresses were never intended for them. They are not being given back for them. She knew that the daughters were never going to wear those dresses, just like she knew that the plan was never for them to be returned

If they were a loan all along, why did Ms McDonnell wait until March of 2013 to return them? That's almost two years Like a lot of things in this case, ladies and gentlemen, it is not a coincidence Use your common sense She has been interviewed by law enforcement They are asking about Mr Williams She knows what's coming down the pike And she is trying to make it appear that she didn't intend to keep these And the reason being was she had been told about the inaugural dress that, well, it would be okay as long as they were just loaners

Now, going to the second of Mr Burck's arguments, the fact is that Ms McDonnell was informed that she wasn't currently under federal grand jury investigation. But that doesn't matter The Court's instructions are going to make clear that we don't have to prove that it was a federal grand jury investigation that existed at the time that she sent the letter She doesn't need to know whether it is state or federal And if you remember back to Mr Flood's testimony, he was told by prosecutors to contact the Commonwealth's Attorney, Mr Herring, and he said that he was passing on information to his clients She knew something was coming down the pike

I want to talk briefly, and I'm almost done, ladies and gentlemen, I want to talk briefly about reasonable doubt The Judge is going to instruct you about your duties Mr Asbill somehow suggested that if there is any discussion in jury deliberations, well, that mean that reasonable doubt must exist When you go back there, you listen to the jury instructions You actually have a duty to deliberate That's how our system works The fact that one person can have a different recollection of a witness's testimony than another person, you hash that out That doesn't mean reasonable doubt

Ladies and gentlemen, on good faith: Good faith means that you are not hiding things You can't have innocent explanations if you are hiding things If you don't think you are doing anything wrong, you don't have to hide it But ladies and gentlemen, throughout all the evidence, it is obvious that's exactly what was going on. You go back there, you look at those handwritten notes You look at those loan applications You look at those SOEIs The concealment evidence in this case is overwhelming

Now, in conclusion, this is a sad case Make no mistake about it It is sad for the McDonnell family, and it is sad for the State of Virginia. Regardless of what your verdict is, there are going to be no true winners in this case Absolutely none

But I want you to think back to that first day that you came into this courtroom. Each of you took an oath to render your verdict based on the evidence and the law, not on emotion or sympathy Your oath means it doesn't matter if you are Republican, or Democrat, or anything in between. The only things that matter is the evidence and the law Don't be distracted. Don't be distracted by what kind of Governor you thought Mr McDonnell was, what kind of marriage they had, sympathy for Ms McDonnell, or anything else None of that, none of that matters under the law

The defendants have had a fair trial Now it is your duty to deliberate and decide If you apply your common sense to all the evidence in this case, there is only one just verdict, and that's guilty on each and every count Thank you

THE COURT: All right Ladies and gentlemen, let me -- first of all, normally, obviously, I wouldn't keep you this late And I apologize for that But let me provide this explanation to you: Obviously, if we stop in the middle of arguments and go through this long weekend, when we get here on Tuesday, say I had Mr Dry do his rebuttal on Tuesday, would that be fair? No, it wouldn't be fair Because you would have heard their arguments today, three days to forget them, and now Mr Dry gets the last word So I wasn't going to let that happen. And I apologize to you, but we had to do this I hope you can understand.

All right, I'm going to have you come in on Tuesday, have your Labor Day like everybody else Please don't discuss the case with anyone or allow anyone to discuss it with you And please don't review any media items relating to this case I'm sure there will be plenty over the weekend. But continue to abide by your oath and avoid any media items

What we have left, I, of course, have to instruct you on the law I would like you to come in at 9:30 again on Tuesday, and then I'll get into these instructions, and within a couple of hours you all will have the case and begin your deliberations Again, be vigilant, be careful, and be safe Absolutely And we are holding onto one alternate over here, and my prayers are with you. But you all be very, very safe and we will see you on Tuesday morning at 9:30 Enjoy your holiday

OFFICIAL COURT REPORTER

P-R-O-C-E-E-D-I-N-G-S

THE CLERK: Day twenty-six, Case Number 3:14-CR12: United States of America versus Robert F McDonnell and Maureen G McDonnell The United States is represented by Michael Dry, David Harbach, Jessica Aber, and Ryan Faulconer Robert F McDonnell is represented by John Brownlee, Henry Asbill, Daniel Small, James Burnham, and Christopher Iaquinto Maureen G McDonnell is represented by Heather Martin, William Burck, Stephen Hauss, and Daniel Koffmann. Are counsel ready to proceed?

MR. DRY: The United States is ready to proceed

MR. BURCK: Maureen McDonnell is ready to proceed.

MR. ASBILL: Robert McDonnell is ready to proceed.

THE COURT: All right I understood we had some preliminaries on some exhibits

MR. NEWMAN: Yes, Your Honor There are two that have been apparently partially admitted, but we want to make clear that RM-0178 is admitted in full, and that RM-0505-0001 through RM-0505-0039 are admitted as well

THE COURT: All right Thank you

MR. NEWMAN: If I can have a moment, Your Honor, there's two other things -- actually, one other thing I'd like to bring up I would just like to renew our objections to the jury instructions just for the record, both with respect to the instructions we opposed and with respect to our instructions that the Court rejected That's it

THE COURT: Sure I don't know how many times you can object to them.

MR. NEWMAN: I'll sit down.

THE COURT: I don't think there is any question. You had two hours' worth of objections, and now, fine, your objection is noted Anything else over here? Okay Government?

MS ABER: Yes, Your Honor As to the matter of forfeiture, I have been instructed to put on the record, please, that the government notes that Rule 32 2(b)(5)(A) directs the Court to determine before the jury begins deliberating whether either party wants the jury to make a determination as to the forfeitability of specific property if the jury returns a guilty verdict The government is not seeking forfeiture of tangible items, and thus, there is no jury determination of forfeiture that is required or permitted under the rules In the event of a conviction, though, the United States would file a motion for a forfeiture of money judgment after trial in accordance with Rule 32 2(b)(1)(A) Thank you.

THE COURT: All right Do you all want to respond to that?

MR. NEWMAN: Your Honor, we think that the jury should decide that if Mr McDonnell is convicted. It shouldn't up for you to decide There could be an APPRENDI problem, so we just note our objection and would ask that the jury make that determination if Mr McDonnell is convicted.

THE COURT: All right

MR. BURCK: We join in that

THE COURT: Okay

THE COURT: All right If indeed the jury returns a verdict that allows forfeiture --

MS ABER: Your Honor, the United States was not aware of the defendants' belief on this point until ten seconds ago. We will happily file jury instructions as to forfeiture But I think under Rule 32 2(b)(1)(A), it says that the Court makes the determination as to the amount of money that the defendant will be ordered to pay in the event of a personal money judgment

THE COURT: All right

MS ABER: We will do whatever the Court wants on that front

THE COURT: What the Court wants to do now is get to instructing this jury And so what I will do is, if this comes to pass, I will, if I deem it appropriate, allow the jury to go back and make determinations on the forfeiture issue That's something we may have to deal with, and maybe not So we will see. All right Let's bring in the jury

(The jury entered the courtroom.)

Good morning Glad to see everybody made it back.

All right, I'm going to instruct you on the law this morning And I'll move through this swiftly at some points, deliberately at others, but I want you to know that we will be providing you copies of exactly what I am going to be reading to you right now so that you will have those available So I want you to pay attention and listen as I provide these instructions to you.

They are rather lengthy I will probably take one break I'll see how I'm feeling, but at least one break to get through these All right

Members of the jury: You have now heard all of the evidence in the case as well as the final arguments of the lawyers It becomes my duty, therefore, to instruct you on the rules of law that you must follow and apply in arriving at your decision in this case

In any jury trial there are, in effect, two judges I am one of the judges, and the other is the jury It is my duty to preside over the trial and to decide what testimony and evidence is relevant under the law for your consideration It is also my duty at the end of the trial to explain to you the rules of law that you must follow and apply in arriving at your verdict

Now, you as jurors are judges of the facts But in determining what actually happened in this case, that is, in reaching your decision as to the facts, it is your sworn duty to follow the law I am now in the process of defining for you. You must follow all my instructions as a whole You have no right to disregard or give special attention to any one instruction or to question the wisdom or correctness of any rule I may state to you That is, you must not substitute or follow your own notion or opinion as to what the law is or ought to be It is your duty to apply the law as I give it to you, regardless of the consequences

By the same token, it is also your duty to base your verdict solely upon the testimony and evidence in the case without prejudice or sympathy That was the promise you made and the oath you took before being accepted by the parties as jurors in this case They have the right to expect nothing less

Now, counsel have quite properly referred to some of the applicable rules of law in their closing arguments to you If, however, any difference appears to you between the law as stated by counsel and that stated by the Court in these instructions, you, of course, are to be governed by the instructions given to you by the Court

I instruct you that you must presume the defendants to be innocent of the crimes charged Thus, the defendants, although accused of crimes in the indictment, began the trial with a clean slate, with no evidence against them. The law permits nothing but legal evidence presented before the jury in Court to be considered in support of any charge against the defendants The presumption of innocence alone is sufficient to acquit the defendants

The indictment, or formal charge against the defendant, is not evidence of guilt Indeed, the defendant is presumed by law to be innocent The law does not require a defendant to prove his or her innocence or to produce any evidence at all And no inference whatever may be drawn from the election of a defendant not to testify

The United States has the burden of proving him or her guilty beyond a reasonable doubt And if it fails to do so, you must acquit him or her

While the burden of proof is a strict or heavy burden, it is not necessary that the defendant's guilt be proved beyond all possible doubt It is only required that the proof by the United States exclude any reasonable doubt concerning the defendant's guilt If you find that the United States has met this burden, then you must convict the defendant

Now, as stated earlier, it is your duty to determine the facts. And in so doing, you must consider only the evidence I have admitted in the case The term "evidence" includes the sworn testimony of witnesses and the exhibits admitted into the record, as well as anything stipulated to by the parties

Remember that any statements, objections, or arguments made by the lawyers are not evidence in the case The function of the lawyers is to point out those things that are most significant or most helpful to their side of the case, and in so doing, to call your attention to certain facts or inferences that might otherwise escape your notice

In the final analysis, however, it is your own recollection and interpretation of the evidence that controls in the case. What the lawyers say is not binding upon you.

Also, during the course of the trial, I occasionally made comments to the lawyers or asked questions of a witness or admonished a witness concerning the manner in which he or she should respond to the questions of counsel Do not assume from anything I may have said that

I have any opinion concerning any of the issues in this case Except for my instructions to you on the law, you should disregard anything I may have said during the trial in arriving at your own findings as to the facts

While you should consider only the evidence in the case, you are permitted to draw such reasonable inferences from the testimony and exhibits as you feel are justified in the light of common experience In other words, you may make deductions and reach conclusions which reason and common sense lead you to draw from the facts which have been established by the testimony and evidence in the case

You may consider either direct or circumstantial evidence Direct evidence is the testimony of one who asserts actual knowledge of a fact, such as an eyewitness Circumstantial evidence is proof of a chain of facts and circumstances indicating either the guilt or innocence of the defendant The law makes no distinction between the weight to be given to either direct or circumstantial evidence It requires only that you weigh all of the evidence and be convinced of the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt before he or she can be convicted.

Now, I often use this example to bring home the difference between direct and circumstantial evidence Let's suppose for a moment that you were standing in your home, in your bedroom, at 11 p.m. about to retire for the evening And it is a cold winter night And just before you go to bed, you stand at your window and look outside, and there is nothing out of order It is a clear, cold night And you go to bed. And you wake up the next morning at 6 a.m. or 7 a.m., whatever your preference, and you get up and you look out the same window. Again, it is clear and cold, with one difference: There's six inches of snow on the ground. Right? Now, you cannot give direct testimony that it snowed during the night You didn't see it You didn't see the snow drifting down to the ground. But the fact that there's six inches of snow on the ground is circumstantial evidence that it snowed during the night We get to the same place The evidence is just as meaningful, direct or circumstantial

You must during your deliberations decide what weight shall be given to the evidence To do this, you must determine the credibility or truthfulness of the witnesses who have testified before you You are not required to believe the testimony of any witness simply because he or she was under oath You may believe the testimony given by any witness in whole, in part, or not at all

In testing the credibility of witnesses, you may consider any relationship a witness may have to either side of the case, and his or her interest, if any, in the verdict to be rendered. You may consider the behavior of the witness upon the witness stand, what we refer to as demeanor; their manner of testifying; the reasonableness and the probability of their testimony being true or not true; the opportunity they had to see, hear, and know the things about which they testified; the accuracy of their memories; their candor or lack of candor; and their intelligence, interest, and bias, if any You may consider the extent to which, if at all, the testimony given by any witness is supported or contradicted by other evidence in the case You should consider, in sum, all of the circumstances surrounding the testimony of a given witness You may apply the tests of truthfulness I have mentioned as well as any such tests you are accustomed to applying in your own daily lives to weigh and determine the value and credibility of the statements made by each witness

The credibility of a witness may be discredited or impeached by evidence showing that the general reputation of the witness for truthfulness is bad, or by testimony in the form of an opinion that the witness's character for truthfulness is bad If you believe a witness has been so impeached, and thus discredited during this trial, it is your exclusive right to give the testimony of that impeached witness such weight, if any, you think it deserves You may consider this evidence of a witness's bad character for truthfulness as one of the circumstances you assess in determining whether or not to believe the testimony of that witness.

You should judge the testimony of defendant, Robert McDonnell, in the same manner as you judge the testimony of any other witness in this case.

A defendant in a criminal case has an absolute right under our Constitution not to testify The fact that a defendant did not testify must not be discussed or considered in any way when deliberating and arriving at your verdict in this case No inference of any kind may be drawn from the fact that a defendant decided to exercise her privilege under the Constitution and did not testify As stated before, the law never imposes upon a defendant in a criminal case the burden or duty of calling any witness or producing any evidence

A witness may be discredited, or impeached, by contradictory evidence by showing that he or she testified falsely concerning a material matter, or by evidence that at some other time the witness has said or done something, or has failed to say or do something, that is inconsistent with the witness's present testimony If you believe that any witness has been so impeached, then it is your exclusive province to give the testimony of that witness such credibility or weight, if any, as you may think it deserves

The testimony of an immunized witness, someone who has been told either that his or her crimes will go unpunished in return for testimony, or that his testimony will not be used against him in return for his cooperation, must be examined and weighed by the jury with greater care than the testimony of someone who is appearing in Court without the need for such an agreement with the government. Jonnie Williams is an immunized witness in this case The jury must determine whether the testimony of an immunized witness has been affected by self interest or by the agreement he has with the government, or by his own interest in the outcome of this case, or by prejudice against the defendant

You have heard the testimony of several law enforcement officials The fact that a witness may be employed by the federal government as a law enforcement official, or by the state government as a law enforcement official, does not mean that his testimony is necessarily deserving of more or less consideration or greater or lesser weight than that of an ordinary witness

At the same time, it is quite legitimate for defense counsel to try to attack the credibility of a law enforcement witness on the grounds that his testimony may be colored by a personal or professional interest in the outcome of the case It is your decision, after reviewing all the evidence, whether to accept the testimony of the law enforcement witness and to give that testimony whatever weight, if any, you find it deserves

The fact that one party called more witnesses and introduced more evidence than the other does not mean that you should necessarily find the facts in favor of the side offering the most witnesses By the same token, you do not have to accept the testimony of any witness who has not been contradicted or impeached if you find the witness not to be credible You also have to decide which witnesses to believe and which facts are true To do this, you must look at all the evidence, drawing upon your own common sense and personal experience After examining all the evidence, you may decide that the party calling the most witnesses has not persuaded you because you do not believe its witnesses or because you do not believe -- or because you do believe the fewer witnesses called by the other side

Testimony and exhibits can be admitted into evidence during a trial only if it meets certain criteria or standards It is the sworn duty of the attorney on each side of a case to object when the other side offers testimony or an exhibit which that attorney believes is not properly admissible under the rules of law Only by raising an objection can a lawyer request and obtain a ruling from the Court on the admissibility of the evidence being offered by the other side. You should not be influenced against an attorney or his or her client because the attorney made objections Do not attempt, moreover, to interpret my rulings on objections as somehow indicating how I think you should decide this case I am simply making a ruling on a legal question regarding that particular piece of testimony or exhibit

Now, the questions asked by lawyers for any party to this case are not evidence If a lawyer asks a question of a witness which contains an assertion of fact, you may not consider the assertion by the lawyer as any evidence of that fact Only the answers are evidence

The Rules of Evidence ordinarily do not permit witnesses to testify as to their own opinions or their own conclusions about important questions in a trial An exception to this rule exists as to those witnesses who are described as expert witnesses An expert witness is someone who, by education or experience, may have become knowledgeable in some technical, scientific, or very specialized area If such knowledge or experience may assist you in understanding some of the evidence or in determining a fact, an expert witness in that area may state an opinion as to a matter in which he or she claims to be an expert And in this case, as I recall, there was only one witness accepted as an expert, and that was Mr. Kosowsky, the CPA. He was the financial expert

You should consider each expert opinion received in evidence in this case and give it such weight as you may think it deserves You should consider the testimony of the expert witness just as you consider other evidence in this case If you should decide that the opinion of an expert witness is not based upon sufficient education or experience, or if you should conclude that the reasons given in support of the opinion are not sound, or if you should conclude that the opinion is outweighed by other evidence, including that of other non-expert witnesses, documentary evidence, or your common sense, you may disregard the opinion in part or in its entirety You, the jury, are the sole judges of the facts of this case

Some charts and summaries have been admitted into evidence from both sides and have been shown to you during the trial for the purpose of explaining facts that are contained in books, records, or other documents or other testimony that are also in evidence in the case or that have not been admitted into evidence because they are voluminous You may consider the charts and summaries as you would any other evidence admitted during the trial and give them such weight or importance, if any, as you feel they deserve

Now, Robert McDonnell and Maureen McDonnell have been charged with one count of conspiracy to commit honest services fraud and one count of conspiracy to commit extortion under color of official right And I will instruct you on these charges shortly If you find Robert McDonnell not guilty of conspiracy to commit honest services fraud, as charged in Count One of this indictment, then you cannot consider any of Maureen McDonnell's conduct in determining whether Robert McDonnell committed honest services fraud as charged in Counts Two through Four Likewise, if you find Robert McDonnell not guilty of conspiracy to commit extortion under color of official right, as charged in Count Five, then you cannot consider any of Maureen McDonnell's conduct in determining whether Robert McDonnell committed extortion under color of official right as charged in Counts Six through Eleven

Now, we come to the offense instructions Count One charges conspiracy to commit honest services wire fraud Count One of the indictment charges that from in or about April, 2011 through in or about March, 2013, in the Eastern District of Virginia and elsewhere, defendants, Robert F McDonnell and Maureen G. McDonnell, did knowingly and intentionally conspire with each other and with others, both known and unknown to the grand jury, to commit wire fraud; that is, having devised and intending to devise a scheme and artifice to defraud the citizens of Virginia of their right to the honest services of the Governor of Virginia through bribery, to transmit and cause to be transmitted by means of wire communication in interstate commerce writings, signs, signals, pictures, and sounds for the purpose of executing such scheme and artifice in violation of Title 18 United States Code Section 1343

Count One of the indictment further charges that a purpose of the conspiracy was for the defendants to secretly use Robert McDonnell's official position as Governor of Virginia to enrich the defendants and their family members by soliciting and accepting payments, loans, gifts, and other things of value from Jonnie Williams, Sr and Star Scientific in exchange for Robert McDonnell and the Office of the Governor of Virginia performing official actions on an as-needed basis as opportunities arose to legitimize, promote, and obtain research studies for Star Scientific products

Count One also charges that the manner and means by which the defendants would and did carry out the conspiracy included, but were not limited to, the following:

A: The defendants soliciting and obtaining, both directly and indirectly, for themselves and their family members, financial payments, loans, gifts, and other things of value from Jonnie Williams, Sr and Star Scientific.

B: The defendants taking steps to conceal from the citizens of Virginia the things of value received from Jonnie Williams, Sr and Star Scientific in order to hide the nature and scope of their dealings with Jonnie Williams, Sr , including by routing things of value through family members and corporate entities controlled by the Governor in an effort to avoid annual disclosure requirements on the Governor's Statement of Economic Interests

C: Robert McDonnell and the office of the Governor of Virginia providing favorable action on behalf of Jonnie Williams, Sr , and Star Scientific as opportunities arose, including the official actions set forth in five paragraphs which read as follows:

First: Arranging meetings for Jonnie Williams, Sr with Virginia government officials who were subordinates of the Governor to discuss and promote Anatabloc;

Second: Hosting and the defendants attending events at the Governor's Mansion designed to encourage Virginia university researchers to initiate studies of anatabine and to promote Star Scientific products to doctors for referral to their patients;

Third: Contacting other government officials in the Office of the Governor of Virginia as part of an effort to encourage Virginia state research universities to initiate studies of anatabine;

Fourth: Promoting Star Scientific's products and facilitating its relationships with Virginia government officials by allowing Jonnie Williams, Sr to invite individuals important to Star Scientific's business to exclusive events at the Governor's Mansion;

Fifth: Recommending that senior government officials in the Office of the Governor of Virginia meet with Star Scientific executives to discuss ways that the company's products could lower healthcare costs

All in violation of Title 18 U S Code Section 1349

Now, the statute that undergirds the charge in Count One, conspiracy to commit honest services fraud, reads as follows: Title 18 U S Code Chapter 63, Section 1349, provides in pertinent part: Any person who conspires to commit any offense under this Chapter shall be subject to the same penalties as those prescribed for the offense, the commission of which was the object of the conspiracy In turn, Title 18 U S Code Chapter 63, Section 1343, provides in pertinent part: Whoever, having devised or intending to devise any scheme or artifice to defraud, transmits or causes to be transmitted by means of wire communication in interstate commerce any writings, signs, signals, pictures, or sounds for the purpose of executing such scheme or artifice shall be guilty of an offense against the United States

In turn, Title 18 U S Code Chapter 63, Section 1346, provides in pertinent part: For the purpose of this Chapter, the term "scheme or artifice to defraud" includes a scheme or artifice to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services

Now, the elements of the offense as charged in Count One, conspiracy to commit honest services wire fraud, are as follows, and the government must prove these elements beyond a reasonable doubt. And there are three essential elements

First: That the conspiracy, agreement, or understanding to commit honest services wire fraud as charged in the indictment was formed, reached, or entered into by two or more persons

Second: That at some time during the existence or life of the conspiracy, agreement, or understanding, the defendant you are considering knew the purpose of the agreement

Third: That with knowledge of the purpose of the conspiracy, agreement, or understanding, the defendant you are considering then deliberately joined the conspiracy, agreement, or understanding

A criminal conspiracy is an agreement or mutual understanding knowingly made or knowingly entered into by at least two people to violate the law by some joint or common plan or course of action. A conspiracy is, in a very true sense, a partnership in crime

A conspiracy or agreement to violate the law, like any other kind of agreement or understanding, need not be formal, written, or even expressed directly in every detail. The government must prove that the defendant you are considering, and at least one other person, knowingly and deliberately arrived at an agreement or understanding that they, and perhaps others, would violate some laws by means of some common plan or course of action as alleged in the indictment It is proof of this conscious understanding and deliberate agreement by the alleged members that should be central to your consideration of the charge of conspiracy

To prove the existence of a conspiracy or an illegal agreement, the government is not required to produce a written contract between the parties, or even produce evidence of an express oral agreement spelling out all of the details of the understanding To prove that a conspiracy existed, moreover, the government is not required to show that all of the people named in the indictment as members of the conspiracy were in fact parties to the agreement, or that all of the members of the alleged conspiracy were named or charged, or that all of the people whom the evidence shows were actually members of the conspiracy agreed to all of the means or methods set out in the indictment

Unless the government proves beyond a reasonable doubt that a conspiracy as I've just explained actually existed, then you must acquit the defendants

Before the jury may find that a defendant or any other person became a member of the conspiracy charged in Count One of the indictment, the evidence in the case must show beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant you are considering knew the purpose or goal of the agreement or understanding, and deliberately entered into the agreement intending in some way to accomplish the goal or purpose by this common plan or joint action.

If the evidence establishes beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant you are considering knowingly and deliberately entered into an agreement to commit the offense alleged in Count One of the indictment, the fact that the defendant did not join the agreement at its beginning, or did not know all of the details of the agreement, or did not know all of his or her co-conspirators, or did not participate in each act of the agreement, or did not play a major role in accomplishing the unlawful goal, or had only a slight connection with the conspiracy, is not important to your decision regarding membership in the conspiracy

Merely associating with others and discussing common goals, mere similarity of conduct between or among such persons, merely being present at the place where a crime takes place or is discussed, or even knowing about criminal conduct, does not of itself make someone a member of the conspiracy or a conspirator

The government is not required to prove that the parties to or members of the alleged agreement or conspiracy were successful in achieving any or all of the objects of the agreement or conspiracy

Now we come to the substantive counts, Two through Four Number One was the conspiracy count, and it was conspiracy to commit honest services wire fraud Counts Two through Four are actual honest services wire fraud counts

Counts Two through Four of the indictment charge that on or about the respective dates shown below, each such date constituting a separate count of this indictment, within the Eastern District of Virginia and elsewhere, defendants, Robert F McDonnell and Maureen G. McDonnell, and others known and unknown to the grand jury, knowingly and intentionally, having devised and intended to devise a scheme and artifice to defraud the citizens of Virginia of their right to the honest services of the Governor of Virginia through bribery for purposes of executing such scheme and artifice, transmitted and caused to be transmitted by means of wire communication in interstate commerce writings, signs, signals, pictures, and sounds that is the following Count Two: The date, 5-26-2011, May 26th, 2011, wire communication from BB&T Bank, in the Eastern District of Virginia, to a location outside the Commonwealth of Virginia to cause the transfer of funds from $15,000 check from Jonnie Williams, Sr via Starwood Trust to wedding catering company account with BB&T

The third count: The date, March 12th of the year 2012, a wire communication from TowneBank, in the Eastern District of Virginia, to a location outside the Commonwealth of Virginia, to cause the transfer of funds from a $50,000 check from Jonnie Williams, Sr via Starwood Trust to MoBo Realty account with TowneBank

The fourth count: The date, May 22nd of the year 2012, a wire communication from the Eastern District of Virginia to BB&T Bank, a BB&T Bank location outside the Commonwealth of Virginia, caused the transfer of $20,000 from Jonnie Williams, Sr via Starwood Trust to MoBo Realty account with TowneBank.

All in violation of Title 18 U S Code Sections 1343 and Section 2

Now, the statute which undergirds Counts Two through Four, honest services wire fraud Title 18 U S Code Chapter 63 Section 1343 provides in pertinent part: Whoever having devised or intended to devise any scheme or artifice to defraud transmits or causes to be transmitted by means of wire communication in interstate commerce any writings, signs, signals, pictures, or sounds for the purpose of executing such scheme or artifice, shall be guilty of an offense against the United States And Title 18 U S Code Chapter 63 Section 1346 provides in pertinent part: For purposes of this chapter, the term "scheme or artifice to defraud" includes a scheme or artifice to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services

Now, the elements of the offense of honest services wire fraud To prove honest services wire fraud as charged in Counts Two through Four, the government must prove four essential elements beyond a reasonable doubt First: That the defendant you are considering knowingly devised or participated in a scheme to defraud the public of its right to the honest services of a public official through bribery as charged in each count Second: That the defendant you are considering did knowingly and with an intent to defraud did so knowingly and with an intent to defraud The second element: That the defendant you are considering did knowingly -- did so knowingly and with an intent to defraud The third element: That the scheme and artifice to defraud involved a material misrepresentation, false statement, false pretense or concealment of a material fact And the fourth element: That in advancing or furthering or carrying out the scheme to defraud, the defendant you are considering transmitted or caused to be transmitted the writing, sign, signal, picture or sound alleged by means of a wire communication in interstate commerce as charged in each count

Now, the first element of honest services wire fraud is that the defendant you are considering knowingly devised or participated in the scheme or artifice to defraud the public of its right to a public official's honest services through bribery

A scheme is a plan or course of action formed with the intent to accomplish some purpose. Thus, the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant you are considering devised or participated in a plan or course of action involving bribes given or offered to a public official or solicited or accepted by a public official

It is not necessary to find that the defendant was actually successful in defrauding anyone, nor is it necessary to find that anyone was actually deprived of the right to a public official's honest services through bribery An unsuccessful scheme or plan is as illegal as a scheme or plan that is ultimately successful

Public officials, such as governors, owe a duty to the public When a public official devises or participates in a bribery scheme, that official violates the public's right to that public official's honest services This is because although the public official is outwardly purporting to be exercising independent judgment in passing on official matters, in fact, the official has been paid for his official actions The public is defrauded because the public is not receiving what it expects and is entitled to; namely, the public official's honest services

Additionally, a defendant need not be a public official to be guilty of this offense. A private citizen, for instance, does not owe a duty of honest services to the public, but can be found guilty of honest services fraud if that defendant devises or participates in a bribery scheme intended to deprive the public of its right to a public official's honest services

Now, a definition of this term bribery that you've heard a number of times Bribery involves the exchange of a thing or things of value for official action by a public official In other words, a quid pro quo You've heard that phrase, the Latin phrase, meaning "this for that" or "these for those " Bribery means that a public official demanded, sought or received something of value as described in the indictment and that the public official demanded, sought or received the item of value corruptly in return for being influenced in the performance of any official act Bribery also includes a public official's solicitation or agreement to accept a thing of value in exchange for official action whether or not the payor actually provides the thing of value and whether or not the public official ultimately performs the requested official action or intends to do so Thus, it is not necessary that the scheme actually succeeded or that any official action was taken by the public official in the course of the scheme What the government must prove is that the defendant you are considering knowingly devised and participated in a scheme or artifice to defraud the public and the government of their right to a public official's honest services through bribery

Corruptly means having an improper motive or purpose An act is done corruptly if it is performed knowingly and dishonestly for a wrongful purpose

The public official and the payor need not state the quid pro quo in express terms Otherwise, the law's effects -- or effect could be frustrated by knowing winks and nods Rather, the intent to exchange may be established by circumstantial evidence, based on the defendant's words, conduct, acts, and all the surrounding circumstances disclosed by the evidence and the rational or logical inferences that may be drawn from them

The thing of value in a bribery exchange need not be provided directly or indirectly to the public official, but may be provided to another person or entity at the public official's request or with the public official's agreement

A public official need not have solicited or accepted the thing of value only in exchange for the performance of official action If you find beyond a reasonable doubt that a public official solicited or received a thing of value at least in part in exchange for the performance of official action, then it makes no difference that the public official may also have had another lawful motive for soliciting or accepting the thing of value.

The government need not prove that the thing of value caused the public official to change his position In other words, it is not a defense to claim that a public official would have lawfully performed the official action in question anyway, regardless of the bribe It is also not a defense that the official action was actually lawful, desirable, or even beneficial to the public. The offense of honest services fraud is not concerned with the wisdom or results of the public official's decisions or actions, but rather with the manner in which the public official makes his or her decisions or takes his or her actions

Now, you've heard this term official action several times, and I will define it for you The term official action means any decision or action on any question, matter, cause, suit, proceeding, or controversy, which may at any time be pending, or which may by law be brought before any public official, in such public official's official capacity Official action as I just defined it includes those actions that have been clearly established by settled practice as part of a public official's position, even if the action was not taken pursuant to responsibilities explicitly assigned by law In other words, official actions may include acts that a public official customarily performs, even if those actions are not described in any law, rule, or job description. And a public official need not have actual or final authority over the end result sought by a bribe payor so long as the alleged bribe payor reasonably believes that the public official had influence, power or authority over a means to the end sought by the bribe payor In addition, official action can include actions taken in furtherance of longer-term goals, and an official action is no less official because it is one in a series of steps to exercise influence or achieve an end

The second element of honest services wire fraud as charged in Counts Two through Four is that the defendant you are considering devised or participated in the scheme knowingly and with the specific intent to defraud

Intent to defraud means to act knowingly and with the specific intent to deceive, for the purpose of depriving the public and government of their right to a public official's honest services

The third element of honest services wire fraud as charged in Counts Two through Four is that the scheme or artifice to defraud involved a material misrepresentation, false statement, false pretense, or concealment of a fact A statement, representation, claim, or document is false if it is untrue when made and was then known to be untrue by the person making it or causing it to be made A representation, statement, false pretense, or omission is material if it has a natural tendency to influence or is capable of influencing a decision or action by the public official or the government office or agency that employed the public official

The phrase "transmit -- transmits or causes to be transmitted by means of wire communication in interstate commerce" means to send or cause to be sent from one state to another by means of telephone or telegraph lines The phrase "transmits or caused to be transmitted by means of wire communication in interstate commerce" includes causing a telephone conversation by a person in one state with a person in another state It also means causing e-mail communication or other communication through servers connected to the Internet from a person or server in one state to a person or server in another

The use of a wire communication facility in interstate commerce is an essential element of the offense of wire fraud charged in Counts Two through 4 of the indictment The wire communication need not contain a fraudulent representation or purpose or request for money

It must, however, further or assist in the carrying out of the scheme to defraud It is not necessary for the defendants to be directly or personally involved in a communication, as long as the communication was reasonably foreseeable in the execution of the alleged scheme to defraud in which you find that the defendants agreed to have participated

Evidence that the defendant you are considering agreed to cause a communication by others is sufficient This does not mean that the defendant you are considering must specifically have authorized others to do the communication When one does an act with knowledge that the use of a wire communication will follow in the ordinary course of business or where such use of a communication can reasonably be foreseen, even though not actually intended, then one causes the interstate wire communication to be used It is not necessary that the defendant you are considering know that a wire communication will be between states

Now, as First Lady of Virginia, defendant Maureen G McDonnell was not a public official and did not owe a duty of honest services to the citizens of Virginia As such, she cannot be guilty of depriving the public of her honest services

Rather, as alleged by the government in this case, Maureen McDonnell can be guilty of the substantive offense of honest services wire fraud only if you find that she conspired with Robert McDonnell at the time he was Governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia to deprive the citizens of Virginia of their right to the Governor's honest service

This is based on the legal rule that a member of a conspiracy who commits another crime during the existence or life of a conspiracy and commits this other crime in order to further or somehow advance the goals or objectives of the conspiracy, may be found by you to be acting as the agent of the other members of the conspiracy. The illegal actions of this person in committing this other crime may be attributed to other individuals who are then members of the conspiracy. Under certain conditions, therefore, a defendant may be found guilty of this other crime even though he or she did not participate directly in the acts constituting the offense

If you find that the government has proven Maureen McDonnell guilty of conspiracy beyond a reasonable doubt, as charged in Count One of the indictment, you may also find Maureen McDonnell guilty of the substantive offense of honest services wire fraud as alleged in Counts Two through Four of the indictment, provided you find that the essential elements of these counts as defined in these instructions has been established beyond a reasonable doubt, and further -- and provided further, that you also find beyond a reasonable doubt that one: The substantive offense of honest service wire fraud as described in Counts Two through Four of the indictment was committed by Robert McDonnell Two: That Robert McDonnell committed the substantive crime of honest services wire fraud during the existence or life of and in furtherance of the goals or objectives of the conspiracy detailed in Count One of the indictment. And three: At the time that this offense was committed, Maureen McDonnell was a member of the conspiracy as detailed in Count One of the indictment

However, if the government has not proved beyond a reasonable doubt that the conspiracy as detailed in Count One of the indictment existed or if the government has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Robert McDonnell committed the crime of honest services fraud, then you must acquit Maureen McDonnell of Counts Two through Four

We come now to Count Five, the nature of the offense charged In Count Five, conspiracy to obtain property under color of official right Count Five of the indictment charges that from in or about April 2011 through in or about March 2013, in the Eastern District of Virginia and elsewhere, defendants Robert F McDonnell and Maureen G McDonnell did knowingly and intentionally conspire with each other and with others, both known and unknown to the grand jury, to obstruct, delay, and affect in any way and degree commerce, and the movement of articles and commodities in commerce, by extortion, as those terms are defined in Title 18 U S Code, Section 1951, that is to obtain property, not due Robert McDonnell or his office and to which Robert McDonnell was not entitled, from Jonnie Williams, Sr and Star Scientific, with their consent, under color of official right All in violation of Title 18, U S Code, Section 1951

The statutes Title 18, U S Code, Section 1951(a) provides in pertinent part that whoever conspires to in any way or degree obstruct, delay, or affect commerce or the movement of any article or commodity in commerce by extortion is guilty of an offense against the United States

In turn, Title 18, U S Code, Section 1951(b)(2) provides in pertinent part the term "extortion" means obtaining of property from another, with his consent, under color of official right In addition, Title 18, U S Code, Section 1951(b)(3) provides in pertinent part the term "commerce" means all commerce between any point in any state, territory, possession, or the District of Columbia and any point out outside thereof; all commerce between points within the same state through any place outside such state; and all other commerce over which the United States has jurisdiction

Now, to prove a conspiracy as charged in Count Five, the government must prove the same three elements beyond a reasonable doubt that they have to prove for Count One I've already explained to you the elements of the conspiracy I'll go through these elements again

First: That the conspiracy, agreement, or understanding to obtain property under color of official right, as charged in the indictment, was formed, reached, and entered into by two or more persons Second: That at some time during the existence or life of the conspiracy, agreement, or understanding, the defendant you are considering knew the purpose of the agreement And third: With knowledge of the purpose of the conspiracy, agreement, or understanding, the defendant you are considering then deliberately joined the conspiracy, agreement, or understanding

The other conspiracy instructions which I gave you earlier with respect to Count One apply acknowledgment ally to this conspiracy count as alleged in Count Five

All right We've been sitting for an hour We're going to take a break Let's make it 15 minutes

(Recess taken from 10:52 a m until 11:13 a m)

(The jury entered the courtroom)

THE COURT: All right We'll now discuss Counts Six through Eleven These are substantive counts of obtaining property under color of official right Counts Six through Eleven of the indictment charge that on or about the respective dates shown below, each such date constituting a separate count of this indictment, within the Eastern District of Virginia and elsewhere, defendants Robert F McDonnell and Maureen G McDonnell and others known and unknown to the grand jury, knowingly and intentionally attempted to, did, and cause each other and others to obstruct, delay, and effect in any way and degree commerce, the movement of articles and commodities in commerce, by extortion, as those terms are defined in Title 18, U S Code, Section 1951, that is the defendants attempted to obtain, did obtain, and cause each other and others to obtain the property listed below not, due Robert McDonnell or his office and to which Robert McDonnell was not entitled, from Jonnie Williams, Sr and Star Scientific, with their consent, under color of official right: Count Six, the date May 23rd, 2011, a $50,000 check from Starwood Trust Count Seven, May 23rd, 2011, a $15,000 check from Starwood Trust Count Eight, May 29th, 2011, $2,390 in green fees, caddie fees, merchandise, and dining expenses at Kinloch Golf Club Count Nine, January 7th, 2012, $1,424 in green fees, caddie fees, merchandise, and dining expenses as Kinloch Golf Club March -- Count Ten, March 6, 2012, $50,000 check from Starwood Trust Count Eleven, May 22nd, 2012, a $20,000 wire transfer from Starwood Trust. All in violation of Title 18, U S Code, Section 1951 and Section 2

The statute Title 18, U S Code, Section 9151(a) provides in pertinent part whoever, in any way or degree obstructs, delays, or affects commerce or the movement of any article or commodity in commerce, by extortion or attempts so to do is guilty of an offense against the United States

Title 18, U S Code, Section 1951(b)(2) provides in pertinent part the term "extortion" means the obtaining of property from another, with his consent, under color of official right

In addition, Title 18, U S Code, Section 1951(b)(3) provides in pertinent part the term "commerce" means all commerce between any point in any state, territory, possession, or the District of Columbia and any point outside thereof; all commerce between points within the same state through any place outside such state; and all other commerce over which the United States has jurisdiction

The elements of the offense of obtaining property under color of official right are as follows To prove the crime of obtaining property under color of official right against defendant Robert F McDonnell as charged in Counts Six through Eleven, the government must prove each of the following elements beyond a reasonable doubt First: That the defendant was a public official Second: That the defendant obtained a thing of value not due him or his offense Third: The defendant did so knowing that the thing of value was given in return for official action And fourth: That in so acting, the defendant did or attempted in any way or degree to delay, obstruct, or affect interstate commerce, or an item moving in interstate commerce

The second element, that defendant Robert McDonnell obtained a thing of value not due him or his office, means that defendant Robert McDonnell obtained a thing of value that was not legitimately owed to the office the defendant represented The government does not have to prove that the thing of value given was of personal benefit to the defendant Robert McDonnell Nor does the government have to prove that the thing of value was given to defendant Robert McDonnell directly; if the defendant knows that the thing of value was given in return for Robert McDonnell's official actions, it does not matter that they were given to a third party

The government does have to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the thing of value obtained was not due or owing the office which defendant Robert McDonnell represented

To satisfy the third element, the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant Robert McDonnell obtained a thing of value to which he was not entitled, knowing that the thing of value was given in return for official action Defendant Robert McDonnell need not have affirmatively induced the provision of the thing of value by his actions, but he must have known that the thing of value was given in exchange for official action You do not have to determine whether defendant Robert McDonnell could or did actually perform the official action in return for which the thing of value was given, or whether he actually had a duty to do so

As was the case with bribery, the exchange, or quid pro quo, need not be stated in expressed terms, and the intent to exchange can be inferred from all the surrounding circumstances

Furthermore, as also was the case with bribery, given -- a given thing of value need not be correlated with a specific official action, and a thing or things of value may be given with the intent to retain a public official's services on an as-needed basis, so that as opportunities arise the public official would take specific official action on the payor's behalf As also was the case with bribery, the government need not prove that the thing of value caused defendant Robert McDonnell to change his position If defendant Robert McDonnell obtained a thing of value to which he was not entitled, knowing the thing of value was given in return for official actions, it is not a defense that he would have lawfully performed the official action anyway, regardless of the thing of value

Finally, the instructions I gave with respect to the definition of "official action" for the purposes of honest services fraud charges apply equally to the definition of official action for the purposes of Counts Five through Eleven

To find the interstate commerce element satisfied, it is not necessary to find that a defendant actually intended to obstruct, delay, or affect commerce Rather, the government need not only prove that the defendant you are considering deliberately performed or attempted to perform an act, the ordinary and natural consequences of which would be to obstruct, delay, or affect commerce The effect on interstate commerce need only be slight, and it need not be adverse Proof that the extortion under color of official right would have affected interstate commerce, even if minimally and even if positively, is sufficient However, if you determine that there has been no effect on interstate commerce, or that there could not have been any effect on interstate commerce, then you cannot find the defendant guilty

To prove the crime of obtaining property under color of official right against defendant Maureen G McDonnell as charged in Counts Six through Eleven, the government must prove each the following elements beyond a reasonable doubt First: That the defendant Robert McDonnell committed each of the essential elements of the crime of obtaining property under color of official right Second: That the defendant Maureen McDonnell knew that the crime of obtaining property under color of official right was to be committed or was being committed. Third: That the defendant Maureen McDonnell knowingly did some act for the purpose of aiding the commission of that crime Fourth: That the defendant Maureen McDonnell acted with the intention of causing the crime charged to be committed

It is not sufficient for the government to prove that defendant Maureen McDonnell was merely present at the scene of the crime or merely knew that a crime was being committed or about to be committed The government must prove that defendant Maureen McDonnell knowingly and intentionally associated herself with the crime in some way as a participant, someone who wanted the crime to be committed, not as a mere spectator

Counts Twelve and Thirteen Count Twelve of the indictment charges that on or about October 3rd, 2012, within the Eastern District of Virginia and elsewhere, the defendant Robert F McDonnell knowingly made a false statement and report for the purpose of influencing the action of TowneBank, the accounts of which were insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, upon an application, commitment, and loan, and any change and extension of any of the same, by renewal, deferment of action, and otherwise, in that on Robert McDonnell's personal financial statement submitted to TowneBank, he stated that his liabilities totaled $2,075,000, when in truth and in fact, as the defendant well knew, Robert McDonnell owed as least $50,000 to Jonnie Williams, Sr that was not reflected on his personal financial statement and was not included in the total liabilities listed

Count Thirteen Count Thirteen of the indictment charges that on or about February 1st, 2013, within the Eastern District of Virginia and elsewhere, defendants Robert F McDonnell and Maureen G McDonnell knowingly made a false statement and report for the purpose of influencing the action of Pentagon Federal Credit Union, a federal credit union, upon an application, commitment, and loan, and any change and extension of any of the same, by renewal, deferment of action, and otherwise, in that on the joint Uniform Residential Loan Application submitted to Pentagon Federal Credit Union, the defendants listed total liabilities of $2,837,226 and listed no loans from or liabilities to Jonnie Williams, Sr. when in truth and in fact, as the defendants well knew, defendants had received at least $120,000 in loans from Jonnie Williams, Sr that were not reflected on their joint Uniform Residential Loan Application and were not included in the total liabilities listed All in violation of Title 18, U S Code, Sections 1014 and 1014 and 2 These are the charges as it relates to Counts Twelve and Thirteen

Now the statute in regards to these charges Title 18, U S Code, Section 1014 provides in pertinent part whoever knowingly makes any false statement or report for the purpose of influencing in any way the action of a federal credit union or any institution the accounts of which are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, upon any application, commitment, loan, or a guarantee, or any change or extension of any of the same, by renewal, deferment of action or otherwise, is guilty of an offense against the United States

To prove the false statements charged in Counts Twelve and Thirteen, the government must prove three essential elements beyond a reasonable doubt First:

That the charged defendant or defendants made a false statement or report Second: That the charged defendant or defendants did so for the purpose of influencing in any way the action of a federal credit or any bank whose deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, as charged in Counts Twelve and Thirteen, upon any application, commitment, loan, guarantee, or any change or extension of any of the same, by renewal, deferment of action, or otherwise And third: That the charged defendant or defendants did so knowingly

To satisfy the second element charged in Counts Twelve and Thirteen, the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the charged defendant or defendants made the false statement alleged for the purpose of influencing the institution The government need not show, however, that the statement in fact would have affected the institution's process or that the outcome of the application or renewal would have been different What the government has to show is that the defendant or defendants made the false statement alleged for the purpose of trying to influence the lender in any way In addition, it is not a defense that the defendant you are considering may have had additional motives for making the false statement alleged so long as you find that one such motive was to influence the institution

Count Fourteen of the indictment charges that in or about March 2013, within the Eastern District of Virginia and elsewhere, the defendant Maureen G McDonnell attempted to and did corruptly obstruct, influence, and impede an official proceeding of the grand jury; that is, Maureen McDonnell wrote and caused to be delivered a handwritten note to Jonnie Williams, Sr in which she falsely attempted to make it appear that she and Jonnie Williams, Sr had previously discussed and agreed that the defendant would return certain designer luxury goods rather than keep them permanently All in violation of Title 18, U S Code, Sections 1512(c)(2) and Section 2

The statute which allows Count Fourteen, Title 18, U S Code, Section 1512(c) provides in pertinent part whoever corruptly obstructs, influences, or impedes any official proceeding or attempts to do so is guilty of an offense against the United States In turn, Title 18, U S Code, Section 1515(a)(1) defines an official proceeding for the purposes of 1512 to include a proceeding before a federal grand jury

In addition, Title 18, U S Code, Section 1512(f)(1) provides in pertinent part an official proceeding need not be pending or about to be instituted at the time of the offense

In addition Title 18, U S Code, Section 1512(g) provides in pertinent part in a prosecution for an offense under this section, no state of mind need be proved with respect to the circumstance that the official proceeding before a grand jury or government agency is before a federal grand jury or a federal government agency.

To prove the obstruction of an official proceeding charged in Count Twelve, the government must prove three essential elements beyond a reasonable doubt First: That the defendant obstructed, influenced, or impeded an official proceeding, or attempted to do so Second: That the defendant did so or attempted to do so corruptly; that is, voluntarily, deliberately, and for the purpose of improperly obstructing, influencing, or impeding an official proceeding And third: That the defendant either knew about an official proceeding or that the natural and probable effect of the conduct would interfere with an official proceeding

With respect to the elements above, the term "official proceeding" includes a proceeding before a federal grand jury

I also mentioned the word "attempt" with respect to both elements To find that the defendant attempted to commit the offense charged, the government must prove that the defendant did act constituting a substantial step toward the commission of the crime charged

Moreover, the government need not prove that the official proceeding at issue was pending or about to be instituted at the time of the charged offense The government also does not need to prove that the defendant Maureen McDonnell knew that the official proceeding was or would be before a grand jury that was federal in nature

You may have noted when I outlined the statutes involved in this case, I would also say Section 2 That is an aiding and abetting section I will now explain to you what aiding and abetting is about Aiding and abetting liability reflects the principle that a person may violate the law even though he or she does not personally do each and every act constituting the offense if that person aided and abetted the commission of the offense Aiding and abetting applies only to Counts Two through Four, Six through Eleven and Thirteen of the indictment in this case

Section 2(a) of Title 18 of the United States Code provides whatever commits an offense against the United States or aids, abets, counsels, commands, induces or procures its commission, is punishable as a principal

Before a defendant may be held responsible for aiding and abetting others in the commission of a crime, it is necessary that the government prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant knowingly and deliberately associated himself or herself in some way with the crime charged and participated in it with the intent to commit the crime

In order to be found guilty of aiding and abetting the commission of the crimes charged in charged in Count Two through Four, Six through Eleven, or Thirteen of the indictment, the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant you are considering knew that the crime charged was to be committed or was being committed Second: Knowingly did some act or the purpose of aiding the commission of that crime And third: Acted with the intention of causing the crime to be committed

Before the defendant you are considering may be found guilty as an aider or an abettor to the crime, the government must also prove beyond a reasonable doubt that someone committed each of the essential elements of the offense charged

Again, merely being present at the scene of a crime or merely knowing that a crime is being committed or is about to be committed is not sufficient conduct for the jury to find that the defendant aided and abetted the commission of that crime

The government must prove that the defendant you are considering knowingly and intentionally associated themselves with the crime in some way as a participant, someone who wanted the crime to be committed, not as a mere spectator

Now, a statement made with good faith belief in its accuracy does not amount to a false statement and is not a crime This is so even if the statement is, in fact, erroneous.

Also, if a defendant believed in good faith that he or she was acting properly, even if he or she was mistaken in that belief, and even if others were injured by his or her conduct, there would be no crime

The burden of establishing lack of good faith and criminal intent rests upon the prosecution A defendant is under no burden to prove his or her good faith Rather, the prosecution must prove knowledge of falsity or bad faith beyond a reasonable doubt

When the attorneys on both sides stipulate or agree as to the existence of a fact, you may accept the stipulation as evidence and regard the fact as proved You are not required to do so, however, since you are the sole judges of the facts

You will note that the indictment charges that the offense was committed on or about a certain date The proof need not establish with certainty the exact date of the alleged offense It is sufficient if the evidence in the case establishes beyond a reasonable doubt that the offense was committed on a date reasonably near the date alleged

The word "knowingly," as that term has been used from time to time in these instructions, means that the act was done voluntarily and intentionally and not because of mistake or accident

The term "intentionally," as used in these instructions, means to act deliberately and purposefully That is, the defendants' acts must have been the product of their conscious objective rather than the product of a mistake or accident

The intent of a person or the knowledge that a person possesses at any given time may not ordinarily be proved directly because there is no way of directly scrutinizing the workings of the human mind In determining the issue of what a person knew or what a person intended at a particular time, you may consider any statements made or acts done by that person and all other facts and circumstances received in evidence which may aid in your determination of that person's knowledge or intent

Now, the defendants have offered evidence of their good character for various traits The jury should consider this evidence along with all other evidence in the case in reaching its verdict

Evidence of a defendant's character that is inconsistent with those traits of character ordinarily involved in the commission of the crimes charged may give rise to a reasonable doubt since the jury may think it improbable or unlikely that a person with the defendant's character would commit such crimes

Notwithstanding the evidence of character, if, after weighing all the evidence, you are convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendants are guilty of the crimes charged, you should find them guilty On the other hand, evidence of good character alone may create a reasonable doubt as to a defendant's guilt.

The government has produced testimony relating to Mr McDonnell's compliance with Virginia's gift and disclosure laws You may not consider that testimony as evidence that Mr McDonnell violated Virginia law by failing to report certain gifts and loans on his annual Statement of Economic Interests There has been no suggestion in this case that Mr McDonnell violated Virginia law

Robert F McDonnell and Maureen G McDonnell are on trial together In reaching a verdict, however, you must bear in mind that your verdict is individual Your verdict as to each defendant must be determined separately, solely on the evidence, or lack of evidence, presented against each defendant without regard to the guilt or innocence of anyone else

The indictment contains the total of 14 counts Each count charges a defendant with a different crime

There are two defendants on trial before you You must, as a matter of law, consider each count of the indictment and each defendant's involvement in that count separately, and you must return a separate verdict on each defendant for each count in which he or she is charged

I caution you, members of the jury, that you are here to determine the guilt or innocence of the accused from the evidence in this case The defendants are not on trial for any act or conduct or offense not alleged in the indictment Neither are you called upon to return a verdict as to the guilt or innocence of any other person or persons not on trial as a defendant in this case

Also, the punishment provided by law for the offenses charged in the indictment is a matter exclusively within the province of the Court or the judge, and should never be considered by the jury in any way in arriving at an improper verdict as to the guilt or innocence of the accused

Now, you likely have noticed throughout the trial that counsel for the defendants have consulted with each other and have divided the of the trial in an effort to facilitate their presentation and to avoid duplication

The fact that defense counsel have consulted and cooperated with each other in the conduct of their defense is not to be considered by you as having any significance with respect to the issues in the case The issue of each defendant's guilt is personal, and you must make a separate determination as to whether or not each defendant's guilt has been proven beyond a reasonable doubt In making that judgment, you are to disregard entirely the circumstance that counsel for the defendants have worked together during the trial Indeed, especially in a case of this length, it would be unusual and wasteful of time and effort if counsel did not share the burdens of the defense

Any verdict must represent the considered judgment of each juror In order to return a verdict, it is necessary that each juror agree thereto In other words, your verdict must be unanimous

It is your duty as jurors to consult with one another and to deliberate in an effort to reach agreement if you can do so without doing violence to individual judgment Each of you must decide the case for yourself, but only after an impartial consideration of the evidence in the case with your fellow jurors In the course of your deliberations, do not hesitate to re-examine your own views and change your opinion if convinced it is erroneous But do not surrender your honest conviction as to the weight or effect of the evidence solely because of the opinion of your fellow jurors, or for the mere purposes of returning a verdict

Remember at all times, you are not partisans You are judges Judges of the facts Your sole interest is to seek the truth from the evidence in the case

Now, during your deliberations, you should not discuss or provide any information about the case with anyone This includes discussing the case in person, in writing, by phone, or by any electronic means, via text messaging, e-mail, Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter, blogging or any Internet chat room, website or other feature In other words, do not talk to anyone outside this jury on the phone or in person, correspond with anyone or communicate by electronic means about this case with anyone except with your fellow jurors and only then while you are in the jury room

If you are asked or approached in any way about your jury service or anything about this case, you should respond that you have been ordered by the judge not to discuss the matter, and you should report the contact to the Court as soon as possible

Along the same lines, you must not try to access any information about the case or do any research on any issue that arose during the trial from any outside source, including dictionaries, reference books, or anything on the Internet. Information that you may find on the Internet or in a printed reference might be incorrect or incomplete In our court system, it is important that you not be influenced by anyone or anything outside of this courtroom Your sworn duty is to decide this case solely and wholly on the evidence that was presented to you in this courtroom

Now, upon retiring to the jury room, your first order of business is to select one from your number to act as your foreperson, and the foreperson will simply be your spokesperson here in open court

We've prepared a verdict form for your use. And let me describe it and explain it to you This is a five-page, typewritten document At the top of the first page you will find the -- what we refer to as the style of the case, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA v ROBERT F MCDONNELL and MAUREEN G MCDONNELL, and then the legend "Verdict " And below that you come, first of all, to Count One It explains what Count One is, conspiracy to commit honest services wire fraud

And then there's a place for you to write in your verdict For instance, "We, the jury, unanimously find the defendant Robert F McDonnell" -- write in "guilty" or "not guilty," as the case be -- "as charged in Count One in the indictment " And then similarly, "We, the jury, unanimously find the defendant Maureen G McDonnell" -- "not guilty" or "guilty," as the case may be -- "as charged in Count One of the indictment "

And it goes on like this through all of the counts You will note that in Count Twelve, Robert McDonnell is -- is charged alone In Count Fourteen, Ms McDonnell is charged alone

Now, once you all have deliberated and come to unanimous verdicts on all of the charges and counts, the foreperson will sign the verdict form and date it The foreperson will let the marshal know that you've reached a verdict, and then what we will do is bring you out and receive the verdict in open court

Now, if between now and the time that you reach a unanimous verdict you have some question or note, some inquiry, what I would like for you to do is the foreperson will write that question or inquiry down Again, sign and date the note Give it to the marshal, who will then bring it to me And in the normal circumstance, if it's a question or inquiry that I can respond to, I will bring you into court and answer the question

Now, notice I said if it's something that I can respond to Sometimes jurors ask for things that I can't give you And if that's the case, I'll send you a note back saying I appreciate your question and your inquiry, but I can't answer that But if it's something that I can appropriately respond to, I will bring you out here

Now, one caveat about that If that happens, if there's some question or inquiry and I have to bring you out here, we don't ever want to know how you stand until you reach a unanimous verdict We don't want to know if you're eight to four or nine to three or whatever the situation is Don't say that, on the foreperson Don't put that in your head Don't come out and say something like that If you have written down the question, we will communicate that way

Now, the exhibits will be available to you They'll be coming to you swiftly And if -- if there's something in particular that you want -- we will make sure all these exhibits that have been admitted will come to you We have a DVD player for any audio or video that you want to look at And, of course, lunch will be provided to you throughout this process while you're deliberating

And I -- I come down to what is just an extremely difficult task We have to say good-bye, sort of, to our alternate, Ms  (Juror Number 0431) And I say "sort of" for this reason; that although you won't, obviously, begin deliberating with this group of 12, we want you to continue to maintain your oath until we call you and let you know that everything is over Because, obviously, and we certainly hope and pray that nothing happens to any of these jurors, but believe me, in 28 years I have seen this kind of thing happen Somebody gets sick or have a problem, then we have to bring the alternate back in So we want you to continue to stay away from any news coverage, any media items Don't talk to anybody about it We will get your information so that we can contact you directly to let you know when you can be at ease All right

And then I really want to say how much I thank you for your participation in this case You have been attentive and you've been here on time and eager and a cheerful spirit, and there's nothing like taking on a tough task And I know it's tough Believe me, I know it's tough But the spirit of this jury in total has been terrific, and Ms  (Juror Number 0431) in particular Just a good trooper And I want you to know, we really, really appreciate it All right And so, Ms  (Juror Number 0431), you can now be excused And you will be hearing from us

(The juror exited the courtroom)

THE COURT: All right And whoever is chosen as foreperson, when you sign the verdict form or any notes that you might send out Please print your name because the handwriting has been a lost start So many times I get the scribble I don't know who it is And so please, print the name as well so that I can know who our foreperson is

And with that, we will send you out to begin your deliberations As I said, select your foreperson, and we'll take care of you in terms of your food and so on We will -- again, I -- you take your time It's your business now And we will wait -- await to hear from you And you've got a lot to go through, I know And so as -- if we go on into the afternoon and evening, what we normally do, if that happens, we will stop at our normal time of 5:30 and come back the next day and begin your deliberations again

If that happens, as I say -- it's up to you This is your business now But if that happens and you have to go home, when you come back, you can't start deliberating until I bring you back in here, bring us back in session, and then send you back out All right So don't come in and -- if we have to come in tomorrow morning, don't come in and just sit down and start your work Don't do that Just come in We bring you in Bring you back in session, and then you can start your deliberation Okay I think that's everything We're good All right Just follow, and we'll wait to hear from you

THE COURT: All right We'll be in --

MR ASBILL: Judge --

THE COURT: Yes Come on up

(At Bench)

MR ASBILL: I think there may be a mistake on that On the top of that instruction, it should read Count Fourteen rather than Count Twelve

MR FAULKNER: Which instruction?

THE COURT: This is Number 58 It should be Fourteen, and it says Count Twelve And we'll make the correction

MR FAULKNER: Your Honor, also, just so you know, we have a copy of the redacted indictment as you requested on here

THE COURT: Sure

MR ASBILL: Could we see a copy of that?

THE COURT: You all take a look This is redacted Okay I think we're good

MR ASBILL: Thank you, sir

MR BURCK: Thank you

THE COURT: All right We will await the jury's call

(In Open Court)

(Recess taken from 11:59 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.)

THE COURT: All right, bring them in.

(The jury entered the courtroom.)

All right, we are going to adjourn for the day and send you all home. I'd like for you to come in tomorrow at 9:45 As I told you before, when you come in at 9:45, I will bring you in, open up the session, and send you back out to deliberate. All right, so you all continue to abide by your oath and do not review any media items relating to this case, and don't discuss the case with anyone, and be ever vigilant against anyone approaching you at this stage of the case especially

So be careful and be safe, and we will see you tomorrow at 9:45

We will be in adjournment until 9:45

(Proceedings adjourned at 5:33 p.m.)

THE CLERK: Day twenty-eight, Case Number 3:14CR12: United States of America versus Robert F. McDonnell and Maureen G. McDonnell. Are counsel ready to proceed?

MR. DRY: The United States is ready to proceed.

MR. BROWNLEE: Mr McDonnell is ready, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Government?

MR. DRY: Your Honor, we are here for Mr McDonnell's sentencing today He was convicted on Count One of conspiracy to commit honest services mail fraud in violation of 18 U S.C. 1349; Counts Two through Four, he was convicted of honest services wire fraud in violation of 18 U S C. 1343; Count Five, he was convicted of conspiracy to obtain property under color of official right in violation of 18 U S.C. 1951; and Count Six through Eleven, he was convicted of obtaining property under color of official right, also in violation of 18 U S C. 1951 On each count of conviction he faces a maximum sentence of 20 years of imprisonment, a maximum of three years of supervised release, a maximum of a $250,000 fine, and a $100 special assessment on each count

The Presentence Report calculates the defendant's Offense Level of 32, Criminal History Category 1 That leads to an Advisory Guidelines Range of 121 to 151 months The United States has no corrections or objections to the Presentence Report.

The defendant has many unresolved objections The parties have submitted more than 220 pages of briefing and their respective positions are well known to this Court, and the government is ready to proceed in any manner the Court so chooses

THE COURT: All right Thank you. Mr McDonnell, would you stand up where you are, please?

(Defendant stood.)

Mr McDonnell, have you had an adequate opportunity to review the Presentence Report and discuss it with your lawyers?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right, thank you You can have a seat Counsel for Mr McDonnell, would you approach the lectern? Counsel, have you had an adequate opportunity to review this Presentence Report and discuss it with your client?

MR. BROWNLEE: Yes, Your Honor

THE COURT: Now, I understand you have a number of objections Do you have any corrections or amendments to the Presentence Report as offered?

MR. BROWNLEE: Not as of this morning, Your Honor We have made all our filings, and we rely on those for any corrections, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right. I'll hear any objections that you deem appropriate

MR. BROWNLEE: Thank you very much, Your Honor We just have a couple of points And again, we rely on our papers and we appreciate the Court reviewing all those We do have a couple points we would like to raise, to highlight for the Court this morning, and we will get right to that.

First, I want to just let the Court know that, from all counsel and Mr McDonnell, we want to thank the Probation Officer, Mr Brown, for his professionalism in this As you can imagine, we submitted a lot of paper He was extremely patient with us, responded every time, and we do appreciate that and wanted to let the Court know

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. BROWNLEE: I have two issues I'd like to raise: The value of things obtained, I'd like to talk about that briefly, Your Honor, and then the obstruction of justice

With regard to the value of things obtained, there were essentially 12 items that the Probation Officer used to come up to the approximately $177,000 figure Six of those were charged. Of the charged six, three were the loans. I'll talk about those in second. The other six were uncharged. That equals about 38,000, just a hair under $38,000

It is our view that none of the charged conduct or charged amounts should be treated as relevant conduct. These were not submitted to the jury, and they simply could have been The jury did not have an opportunity to pass on these So there is no evidence in the record, we believe, sufficient to treat these as relevant conduct

A couple, I want to highlight just a couple of these, Your Honor, particularly the shopping trip for Ms McDonnell We believe the evidence in the record is that these things were kept from Mr McDonnell, at least the source of who paid for them. Mr Williams certainly didn't testify he told Mr McDonnell Mr McDonnell testified he did not know that Mr Williams had paid for these items for his wife Submissions indicate as well that Ms McDonnell intentionally kept these And if you believe, if you look at the record in total, this case kind of started in a meeting in New York about the purchase of another dress, and I think the lessons learned from that is when he learned about it, he and his staff shut it down. We don't believe that 20,000, or a little under 20,000, should be treated as relevant conduct.

In addition, a very small amount, but the work that Mr Williams' brother, Donnie, did for the McDonnells I think the evidence is from his own testimony that he did not submit a bill until the work was completed, which was later on, I think in March. When it was submitted, it was paid. And we don't believe there is any evidence in the record that this should be treated as relevant conduct pursuant to the bribery convictions

Then lastly, the trip to Chatham, Massachusetts, as well as the Smith Mountain Lake boat trip Again, I think it is less than $10,000 But these items were disclosed on his SOEI It was our understanding that items were not placed on the SOEI in an effort to disguise them or hide them or deceive those because they believe that these were bribe payments These were freely disclosed on the SOEI at that time through normal process. So we just don't believe those things should be treated as well Let me -- that's all I have on that, Your Honor

Let me move to the loans, if I may, which is probably the most significant, Your Honor The Probation Officer treated for calculations of the $177,000 $120,000, just the face value of the loan. We believe the case law, particularly the FITZHUGH case and the government has essentially, I think, recognized this, is not the proper way to do it. When these are loans and they are actual loans, as we believe these are, I think all the evidence in the record is that these were real, enforceable loans There was paperwork involved in the loans They were booked as loans on Mr Williams' internal paperwork within his company It is true that there was no loan agreement, but in Virginia that's not necessary And the fact that there was no collateral, there was no collateral with the Dr Davis loan, and so we believe that these were real loans.

Indeed, part of the Government's case, if I recall, Your Honor, is that because they were enforceable loans, because they were real, Mr McDonnell should have placed these on some of these bank documents. It is part of, I think the government at the time at least argued to the jury that those are real enforceable, loans and should have been disclosed on those paperwork, and so we believe they are loans Once they are treated and there is a recognition they are a loan, then the real effort by the Court is to determine the value of getting the Williams loan versus the value of some other type of comparable loan

We have filed in our paperwork the IRS standard.

I think the government has put some standards out as well through Agent Hulser's affidavit. I do think that what makes the most sense, it seems, if the Court is not inclined to go with our IRS analysis, which we believe is the best one, is the secondary one, which is the Dr Davis loan. This was a loan that he had recently given He was more than willing to do it The McDonnells had paid it back with interest in a timely manner If we are looking at something that's comparable, I think the Dr Davis loan is a place the Court could go and feel comfortable.

The only difference would be that, as the Court is aware, the Dr Davis loan, the first one was in December of '09 If you look at the interest rates at that time, and we noticed, put this in one of our footnotes in one of our final briefs about this, if you look at the T-bills, just to see how interest rates were being treated, between March of 2010, a T-bill was 2 43 percent By May of 2012, when Mr Williams loaned the last 20,000, it was down to 76, a drop of about 75 percent. So what we did, if you look at the T-bill rates and how they dropped over time, if you apply those changes to the Dr Davis loans, what you get is a 5 63 percent loan for the first 50,000, 3 15 percent for the second, and 2 325 And all that is is applying the change in the T-bill rates to the Dr Davis loan. What you get is a net advantage to the McDonnells from using Mr. Williams as opposed to Dr. Davis of $12,841 And then the final piece to that, Your Honor, then I'll close, is that if you take that difference, $12,841.53, and you add everything else, if you include all the relevant conduct as the Probation Officer has found, plus everything else, the three charged conduct, you get a total of $69,640 53, which for Guidelines calculation purposes is plus six as opposed to plus ten.

So we believe, and we have put this in our papers, and I know the Court has looked at it, we believe that that is the appropriate level, 69,000, as opposed to the 177,000

Let me move on finally to the obstruction of justice The Probation Officer and the government believe that the defendant should receive a two-point enhancement for obstruction of justice We strongly dispute this, Your Honor Let me touch on a couple points that were touched on in our papers but I'd like to highlight

First of all, I think if you look at Mr McDonnell's conduct throughout the trial, this is not a man who tried to obstruct the proceedings I think one note here is his handwritten notes As the Court is aware, Mr McDonnell was subpoenaed for records He got his handwritten notes, gave it to his lawyers, and they were turned over Mr Asbill argued that this should reflect on Mr McDonnell at the trial And government counsel responded that because there was a subpoena, he had an obligation to turn it over, but had he not, he would have been violating another law, which would have been obstruction. I think that's telling as to how he conducted himself within this trial

There's other examples of where witnesses had a different understanding of what happened. Lisa Hicks-Thomas, in the meeting that the Court has referenced, versus Sara Wilson. There was a dispute between those two. When he was asked about it, he could have very easily said, "Sara Wilson is right " That would have been in his interest But what did he do? He said, "I don't really remember, I could have said that, I don't know " This was a witness who was trying to get it right

Same way with the Jasen Eige phone call What he said was, "Listen, I thought that Mr Williams deserved a call back. He had given $200,000 " Certainly not in his interest to say those things The June letter, what did he say? He could have very easily said, "I never saw it " What he said was, "I think I saw it, maybe I scanned it," trying to get it right, trying to be truthful

With the eight items that were mentioned in the Presentence Report, I'm not going to go through all of them, but I would note that the first one seems to be where the government focused most of its attention. And the case law, it is not perfect on this, but I think the essence of it is when a defendant testifies to his own mental state, that's usually not or typically not the basis for obstruction. And so he believed that he did not enter into an agreement That's his testimony. Mr Williams never testified that he entered into an agreement with Mr McDonnell If you look at some of the jurors, I know these are always difficult to do, media interviews with jurors afterwards, but even they said one of the things they looked at was would the McDonnells have received these gifts if he weren't Governor That doesn't lead one to believe that there was an agreement.

Then finally, even the Court's instruction says, "if you find beyond a reasonable doubt that a public official solicited or received a thing of value at least in part in exchange for the performance " Which leads them where they could have found that he didn't specifically do it My only point is, these are subjective mental state and I don't think these are the kind of things, particularly in light of these other things, that would warrant an obstruction bump

The other things, we just believe that there are disputes For instance, did he believe it was a wedding gift to his daughter I think the testimony was it was a wedding gift to his daughter. There's disputes about why and how it came in, but certainly the check had "Wedding Gift" on it. Others, the Molly Huffstetler meeting, the purposes behind that, again, this was not a count in the indictment. The jury never passed on why this was set up or how it was set up. Mr McDonnell's testimony was he heard about the meeting and certainly didn't want his wife there with Mr Williams alone.

With regard to that he intended his company to operate at a loss, I think what he testified is that he expected them to operate at a loss That's just an important difference, again. These are semantics. But we believe this was a man who was trying to get it right.

Lastly, the loans to MoBo. Again, these were loans to the company The company accepted the loans, the company booked the loans, and the company used the loans He has never disputed that he wasn't part of getting the loans But again, if you look at was it a lie, was it perjury? No. These in fact were loans to the company

So again, we just believe that the right amount for the loss is under 70,000, which would be plus six, and we do not believe that this defendant deserves the six-point -- I mean a two-point enhancement for obstruction of justice. Unless the Court has any questions, thank you for your time.

THE COURT: I don't have any questions. Tha
you very much Government?

MR. FAULCONER: Good morning, Your Honor Ryan Faulconer for the United States

I'm going to address the loss argument or the calculation of the value of the bribes, and then Mr Dry is going to address the obstruction argument

Before I begin, Your Honor, is there any particular area that you would like me to focus on with respect to the value of the bribes?

THE COURT: No.

MR. FAULCONER: So, Your Honor, then what I would like to do is just sort of refocus our attention a little bit on what the exact standard is that you have to apply and then respond to a few things from the defense's reply brief that were raised by Mr Kosowsky in his Declaration in response to Agent Hulser's Declaration

Turning first to the standard that Your Honor actually has to apply here: The standard is whether, or is to determine a reasonable estimate of the greater of the value of the bribes or the value of the official actions that were at issue in the quid pro quo agreement here

In making that estimate, Your Honor should look at all relevant conduct, including all reasonably foreseeable actions of others acting with the defendant.

And the standard at sentencing, as Your Honor well knows, is a preponderance of the evidence standard or more likely than not. And so ultimately, the question is here, what is more likely than not a reasonable estimate of the reasonably foreseeable bribes that were at issue here So we are not talking about here today every possible valuation or every potential calculation out there, but what is a more likely than not reasonable estimate

So looking at what we put in our briefing, Your Honor, we have given about four different ways to support the PSR's ten-level enhancement. But I'd just like to talk about the two areas that Mr Brownlee addressed.

Starting with the uncharged items, Your Honor, first and foremost, these six uncharged items, they are only uncharged in the sense that they didn't have a specific substantive count. They were charged as part of the conspiracy; they were certainly part of that course of conduct But when you look at those they only end up affecting the calculation here if you don't end up going with the face value of the loans So in some sense, Your Honor doesn't need to reach that if you go with the face value of the loans as the full value there.

But to address them briefly, there is really no argument that's being made about these quote/unquote uncharged items that's any different than the same arguments that were made about the substantive counts at trial It is all about, well, the timing wasn't explicit, or there was no explicit quid pro quo agreement All those items came over the same period of time as part of the same relationship with Mr Williams When you look at Mr Williams' testimony, it is clear there was no friendship motivation for some of these gifts. It is not like some of them were bribes and some were sort of outside of this bribe scheme It was really all one course of conduct and they all should be included in our view

Moreover, Your Honor, when it comes to the two big ticket items in this set of six additional items, it is really the shopping spree and the Rolex that we are arguing the most about over here. Again, just to bring Your Honor back to the standard, the defense has said in a bunch of different ways, "Mr McDonnell didn't know about this, he wasn't told about this, they didn't have a conversation about it." The question is not whether he knew about it for sentencing purposes The question is whether or not it was reasonably foreseeable to him.

As we pointed out to Your Honor in our pleadings, we really think there is only two explanations One, that he did know about it -- two reasonable explanations One, that he did know about it, or two, that he should have known about it and that it was reasonably foreseeable to him given his knowledge of his wife's past conduct, given his knowledge of the circumstances that were attendant to those incidents, and given his knowledge of what was going on between him and Mr Williams

Your Honor, to move on briefly to the loan amounts, I think it is useful to highlight a couple of things that the parties do agree on here. First off, the parties agree that some loans can be valued at face value That sometimes you do go ahead and look at the face value of the loans. The parties also agree on what were the stated terms of the Williams loans There has been a little bit of back and forth about were these documented loans or undocumented loans When we have said "undocumented" we mean no loan paperwork, and there is really no disagreement on that Everybody agrees these were loans that required no payments for four or three years, depending on which loan you are talking about, that they were uncollateralized, and they had a two percent interest rate over that course of time that compounded annually Then the question is, is this one of these loans that the law says you use face value to calculate. Then what both parties have cited is you go to FITZHUGH and look at that case and that case talks about there are some loans where you use face value and some loans where you don't use face value So then the question becomes which ones do you use for which? We have said in FITZHUGH, they cite the examples of loans this in which you don't use face value and those are loans where either the guarantee is essentially worthless or unenforceable, or there are circumstances in which you couldn't have gotten that loan at any other price absent the illegal conduct that was at issue.

Then what FITZHUGH says is, well, but if you do have a comparison you are going to make, what you want to do is compare it to the quote/unquote same loan and look at what the difference in terms was on the quote/unquote same loan. I think what's important to note about that, Your Honor, is FITZHUGH is not saying that you look at a loan and say, well, all -- you have to have the exact same terms completely 100 percent and only compare that, because then you would have no delta you are actually distinguishing between. It also doesn't mean that you could look at any loan at any price with any terms and just calculate between the two. The reason for saying you look at the same loan is trying to say what is a reasonable estimate of a reasonably likely alternative that was actually available at the time.

And that brings us to what we have asked Your Honor to look at, which is their own expert on the stand during trial said basically there are a couple of options that they had. One option is these cash advances on the credit cards We have walked true that calculation for Your Honor in Agent Hulser's Declaration. If Your Honor has questions given Mr Kosowsky's Declaration, I can run through more specifics on the numbers, but I think it is pretty self-explanatory from his Declaration

One thing I do think it is useful to look at for why this is a conservative estimate, Your Honor, is I actually have a copy for one of the documents entered for Mr Kosowsky's cross-examination. If I could hand this up It is Exhibit 660 Your Honor, this is the set of credit card statements from May, 2011 when that first loan was obtained. Now, in Agent Hulser's Declaration, essentially what he did is he said as of the times of each of these loans, what were the interest rates on cash advances, and the reason why those were used was to say that's something where you can have cash in hand immediately, spend it on whatever you want, because if Your Honor remembers, there were expenses here like buying stock, making mortgage payments, making credit card payments, things you couldn't have done on a credit card, that you would have actually had cash to make Agent Hulser says, "Okay, look at cash advances " He used the interest rate starting with the most favorable ones going up to the least favorable ones. But if Your Honor looks at the actual credit card statements, if you look at the fine print, what you see on the first page here on the Visa card about two-thirds of the way down under "Payment Information" is it says "Late Payment Warning " "If we do not receive your minimum payment by the date listed above, you may have to pay a late fee of up to $25 and your APR may be increased up to the penalty APR of 17 99 percent "

Then if Your Honor flips forward to the fifth page of this document, on another one of the credit cards, for I believe this is Citibank, it says that the penalty APR for making no payments would be 29 99 percent. And the reason why I wanted to highlight that for Your Honor as a point of why Agent Hulser is being conservative here is because essentially what the credit card companies are saying there is, "Look, if you want to take out cash or make charges, and you want to have access to that capital immediately, but then what you want to do is turn around and say, 'You know what, I know it is a loan, I know I owe it, but I don't want to pay anything over time or pay anything for three or four years,'" the credit card companies, economic conditions say, "You know what, we are going to jack those rates up all the way to 18 to 30 percent," those rates that are well above the average rate that Agent Hulser is calculating Essentially, his estimate for the cash advance ended up netting out, and Mr Kosowsky essentially agreed to this, netted out to a little bit over a 15 percent rate If you apply a 15 percent rate to the alternative, you would end up with more than the $63,000 or so that's necessary to clear that threshold

At the end of the day, to take a step back, what we are really saying is if you try to compare apples to apples, first off, there is no comparison out there to a loan that Jonnie Williams gave, trying to say no payments over the course of this length of time at that low of an interest rate. But if you try to compare it to what was actually available to the defendant at the time, you look at these credit cards and we gave them the benefit of assuming they wouldn't hit that penalty rate. If you hit that penalty rate it goes far in excess In some circumstances, Your Honor, what actually ends up happening is you end up paying more in interest if you pay those penalty rates than the face value of the amount you are borrowing. That's why when you have a loan like this where there are no payments required over time, we think it is reasonable first to use the face value of the loans, second to use Agent Hulser's estimate, and third off, Mr Brownlee mentioned the Dr. Davis loan; we don't think it is reasonable to say let's hypothetically speculate about what Dr Davis would have lowered the interest rates to. The only private loan at arm's length in any way that the defendants were able to get here was a seven-and-a-half percent loan Even if you go that conservative, even with a loan that's requiring payments, you would still end up with a number that would only make a difference of two levels of the Guidelines You would end up with the immediately adjacent 97 to 121 range

At the end of the day, Your Honor is equipped to make a judgment call between those two. But we think that based on the record at trial the most reasonable estimate is that the value of the loans and the value of all the other bribes was in excess of 120,000. If I could have one moment, Your Honor

MR. FAULCONER: Thank you, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right

MR DRY: Thank you, Your Honor I'll try to keep this brief I'd like to focus on the first area of obstruction The defendant denied ever doing anything or agreeing to do anything in exchange for things for value

When determining the obstruction, it is important to look at the actual testimony On Transcript Page 4852 the question was asked by the defendant's own lawyer on direct examination: "Question: Did you ever do anything for Williams or Star in exchange for any gifts, any loans, any money? Answer: No. Absolutely not I did not do that Question: Did you ever agree with Williams or your wife to do something for Williams or Star in exchange for gifts or loans? Answer: No Question: Did you ever promise, and I use that term broadly, in any way, written, oral, nod, wink, anything -- Answer: No. Question: -- to do something for Williams or Star in exchange for gifts or loans? Answer: No, I did not Question: Did you ever ask your wife or agree with her to try to help Star or Jonny in return for anything that was ever given to you or anyone else in your family by him? Answer: No, absolutely not "

Now, the defense argues that this is mental-state-type testimony and it cannot form the basis of an obstruction of justice enhancement. The Court should look at the sentencing of United States versus Hamilton, which occurred on August 12th, 2011 in this very courthouse That defendant was enhanced two levels for the following testimony: "Question: Did you solicit or demand a job from Old Dominion in specific in exchange for your support of a budget amendment and voting on that budget? Answer: Absolutely not. Question: Did you agree to accept and in fact accept a job from Old Dominion University in specific exchange for your support of a budget amendment and vote on that budget? Answer: Absolutely not Question: Did you seek or accept a job from Old Dominion University with the intent to be influenced in supporting a budget amendment and voting on that budget or to be rewarded for doing those things? Answer: Absolutely not Question: Did you obtain a job from Old Dominion University in exchange for your specific acts of supporting a budget amendment or voting on that amendment? Answer: Absolutely not."

Judge Hudson found that, "This testimony was directly contrary to the jury's verdict. The Court thus finds the defendant gave false testimony at trial," and enhanced for obstruction of justice by two levels

In this case, the falsity of the defendant's testimony is shown by the jury's verdict, which was found beyond a reasonable doubt Now, this Court has an independent duty to find all three elements of the obstruction of justice enhancement That includes falsity, materiality, and willfulness But the Court has already found the falsity element In its memorandum opinion denying defendant's renewed Rule 29 motion, Page

4, the Court found, "Substantial evidence supports the jury's finding that McDonnell actually performed official acts in exchange for gifts and loans from Williams."

Judge, the materiality of this, they don't even argue it is not material They couldn't It went to the heart of the Government's case, the existence of the quid pro quo agreement. As far as willfulness, this testimony was not a result of confusion, mistake, or faulty memory It was repeated and unambiguous It occurred on direct testimony The defendant admitted that he had prepared, quote, with his attorneys, quote, every day since he was indicted. And the defendant has repeated his denials in his most recent pleadings

Judge, I'm not going to go through all eight areas But that area is enough Once you find one, the obstruction enhancement applies, and in this case, it should. Thank you

THE COURT: All right Rebuttal?

MR BROWNLEE: Very briefly, Your Honor With regard to the loans, which is the best, I think we are all now in agreement that these are in fact loans and the Court should look -- so that the Presentence Report itself, the way it was designed with 120,000, the face value, is just not accurate So we have to look to another, as they say, reasonably likely alternative and then try to base it from that. And I think what they used as credit card analysis, I don't think there is any evidence in the record that that's what they did, and sometimes for smaller amounts, but nothing like this. What they did that would be comparable, that would be reasonably likely, it is included in their own affidavit by their own agent, and that's the Dr Davis loan But if you are going to go to the Dr Davis loan, it only makes sense to look at the nature of the environment with the interest rates at the time and what they would have negotiated What we do, we are not creating something out of whole cloth to try to get to some particular number All we are doing is taking what were the treasury rates, how did they change over the identical time, applying them to 7 54 percent, and then what do you get When you add everything else in, it is still under 70,000 We believe that's the most reasonably likely I will tell you one other thing we've done is we used, when I did these calculations, we used the five-year treasury note as opposed to the three Off the line it either had five or three I used the higher rate because these were balloon payments and I wanted to use a higher rate so that when the Court looked at this it could say, "Yeah, but there were balloon payments," we used the higher rate to factor that in. We ask the Court to use that rather than the most expensive one the government can find.

With regard to the shopping trip: Again, the question is, is it reasonably foreseeable for Mr McDonnell to know who is out there buying his wife's clothes? This man, I think the testimony was, was Governor of the State of Virginia He had other important duties She was shopping with her Chief of Staff and Williams was there and there is no evidence in this record from any of the witnesses, Mary-Shea, Jonnie Williams, Ms McDonnell, anyone, to say this man knew. Yet they want to take his wife's clothes and put it on to him to try to run these numbers up We just don't think that that's appropriate under the standard.

Finally, with regard to the obstruction: Mr Dry talks about, again, I don't want to reiterate how Mr McDonnell conducted himself in this trial, and how he tried to answer questions and do the very best he could with the questions that were presented. But I do know there were jurors interviewed by the media after the case And they were on TV, and you can see it and we cited it. One of them said, "I did believe Bob " She found Mr McDonnell's testimony truthful Granted, the same witness said she found Jonnie Williams truthful You always have to take that with a grain of salt. But to say that this man committed perjury when what he was saying in his mind with his interaction with Mr Williams, that he did not come to any explicit agreement, Mr Williams never testified there was an explicit agreement. We have great respect for what the jury has done and what the Court has done But we believe under the standard here, it is just not appropriate And with regard to the Hamilton case, I know the Court has read all the opinions and is familiar with that, but Mr Hamilton's case had e-mails in which he was explicitly saying he had an agreement There was nothing like that in this case. So we believe that that is just a completely different matter Thank you

Blake?

(Court conferring with Probation Officer)

All right, let me resolve these two objections The value of the things obtained: In my estimation, when we are trying to determine what would be reasonably foreseeable, the government has the best analysis I'm going to, as I always do in these matters, give the defendant the benefit of the doubt I think we easily get into the range of 97,000 to 121,000, which would be a plus eight enhancement rather than the ten, so that becomes minus two from what was originally applied, that is, an Offense Level of 32, so we are down to 30

Then we have to think about the obstruction enhancement And I went through this over and over again And once again, some of these things are indeed Mr McDonnell's subjective view of what it is that he was doing, what he was thinking when he was going through this process And I don't think it is appropriate to punish him for putting on his case There were certainly things that were rejected by the jury, and I respect their right to reject what he had to say But I also respect his right to put on a case and say what he thought was going on in his head So I don't think it is appropriate to apply the obstruction of justice enhancement. So that would be another two points down. All the other objections are overruled.

This brings us to a Criminal History Category of 1, an Offense Level of 28, Guidelines Range of 78 to 97 months

All right, defendant? I will hear you in any way you care to proceed.

MR. BROWNLEE: Thank you very much We have several witnesses we would like to call if we may, Your Honor, for brief testimony here

THE COURT: Sure

MR. BROWNLEE: I call Gary Nelson

GARY NELSON,

called as a witness by and on behalf of the defendant,

having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. BROWNLEE:

Q Good morning, Mr Nelson

A Good morning

Q Would you state your name and spell your last name for the court reporter?

A Gary E. Nelson, G-A-R-Y, N-E-L-S-O-N

Q You are here as a character witness today for the sentencing of Mr McDonnell; is that correct?

A Yes, sir

Q And how did you meet Bob McDonnell and please tell Judge Spencer the nature of your relationship

A Well, I was for one year when he came into the Army Reserve, I was the Executive Officer And he worked directly for me And then for the next five years I was his commanding officer Therefore, for six years, Bob McDonnell worked directly for me every month during drills, administrative meetings, summer camps, and interim meetings for matters regarding the unit So I had a very close relationship with him for over six years in the Reserve

Q Just for the Court, how many years did you spend in the United States military, both in active and reserve?

A I retired in 1994 with 32 years

Q What was your rank when you retired, sir?

A Full Colonel

Q Tell us a little bit about or tell the Court, excuse me, a little about the Bob McDonnell that you knew many years ago when you worked with him and you were his commander

A He had just come off active duty into the reserve program, and I got to know him and started working closely with him. There were many unresolved issues at the unit as the higher command had seen fit to turn over a new executive officer and eventually commander, and I found him extremely easy to work with, extremely efficient. He worked with, at summer camp, sometimes millions of dollars of equipment for which he was responsible as a Supply Officer, Medical Supply Officer, and then eventually he became a commander of troops He was just efficient and he was always, even all of his prior reports said his military bearing was absolutely perfect And each and every thing that he did was exemplary

And as commander of troops, one thing he had was great compassion when he worked with these young people coming in that sometimes didn't want to adhere to the rules, and he would deal with them and work with them, sometimes allowing them to have a second chance And retention rates in that unit were very, very low Retention rates were always measured by how many people decided to re-up or stay in. And under Bob McDonnell's leadership at that level, retention rates increased dramatically

Q Did there come a time when Mr McDonnell as a member of your unit came to you with a decision he was thinking about, whether or not to enter politics?

A One day I got a phone call and he said, "Colonel Nelson, I'd like to talk over something with you, could we meet for breakfast?" And he and I have joked over the years, we both remember that incident very clearly. And we sat down, we had breakfast, and he said, "I'm thinking about running for public office and I'd like to have your input " And it kind of caught me off guard because he didn't mention it And that's -- I kind of sat back and said, "Well, of all the people that I know, your integrity, your honesty, everything about you speaks highly to becoming an elected official However, why do you really want to do this where your whole life, your faith, everything in which you believe will be examined all the time? That's sometimes a difficult position to be in " He said, "Colonel Nelson, all I really want to do is help people " And it came back time and time again that he really wanted to step out into other areas because he just found within him he wanted to help people So that seemed to be his driving motivation. He never once wanted power or fame or fortune He drove an old beat-up car at the time. And he just wanted to help people

Q Mr Nelson, when Mr McDonnell worked under your command, did you find him to be trustworthy and ethical?

A Absolutely His ratings, I went back and looked at some of the reports, and he was always rated in the top one percent of all officers He was completely trustworthy He would many times have to deal with hundreds of thousands of dollars of airplane tickets when we were going to summer camp and getting on board, getting equipment and things like this Very trustworthy

Q In your dealings with him, did you ever believe him to be greedy?

A No, sir

Q Or request special treatment from your command?

A Never once Even when he became elected while still in the unit, never once did he ask time off to be away at official business or government business He always met his obligations in the military, and he never, ever was in a position to do anything that I would consider greedy

Q All right. As Mr McDonnell sits before you today, he has been convicted of very serious offenses And do you still believe in him? Do you still believe in his integrity and trustworthiness?

A Absolutely, 100 percent

Q The last question I have: Is there anything else you would like to tell the Court before I ask you to step down?

A Your Honor, I would just say over my 25 years of knowing this gentleman, I have seen him to be incredibly compassionate and merciful with people When he was a prosecutor he was that way And people would just be drawn to him because of his very persona I heard a report just yesterday that out of the Virginia Beach Court when he was a prosecutor, that one of the prosecutors said how wonderful it was that he gave a lot of young people a second chance And this prosecutor or this attorney knows some of these young people And these people have talked to her and said, "It is really wonderful that he gave my son or daughter or friend or whatever a second chance "

The other thing is, I had an occasion to want him to take an official act to give somebody their voting rights back, a dear friend that had been -- that had a felony conviction. And I thought as Governor he could just make that happen fairly easily He looked me right in the eye and says, "You've got to go through the system. As much as I'd like to help, you need to work through the system." So I found him just by-the-book compassionate and honorable at every step of the way And I just, my heart goes out to him, and I would just, my plea to you, Your Honor, would be that if you could find it in your heart to give him mercy, as he has given others in this sentencing, that would certainly be appreciated

MR. BROWNLEE: Thank you Please answer any questions of the United States

MR. DRY: No questions by the United States

THE COURT: Thank you, sir You may stand down

(Witness stood aside)

MR. ASBILL: Your Honor, the defense calls Mr Bill Horan

WILLIAM F HORAN,

called as a witness by and on behalf of the defendant, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ASBILL:

Q Good morning

A Good morning, sir

Q Mr Horan, would you please give us your full name?

A My full name is William Francis Horan, H-O-R-A-N

Q Where are you from?

A I was born in Grand Rapids, Michigan, sir

Q Where do you live now?

A In Virginia Beach.

Q Are you employed?

A I am, sir I'm the President of Operation Blessing International.

Q And what is Operation Blessing International?

A We are a global faith-based charity We do humanitarian work in the United States and around the world.

Q You say around the world. In how many countries does your charity operate?

A We have daily operations and offices in 23 countries We work in more countries than that because we respond to major disasters. For example, the tsunami in Japan, we had never worked there before but we do work there now We work every day in 23 countries

Q What are other examples of disasters to which you respond?

A Well, domestic disasters in the U S like Hurricane Katrina and any major disaster that occurs in this country and any major disaster that occurs almost anywhere in the world. Right now we are responding to the Ebola crisis in Nigeria where they manufacture chlorine, still working in the Philippines picking up the pieces from last year's big super typhoon. Virtually any major disaster you can name, we have either been there or are still there.

Q How many people work for your organization?

A I would say globally somewhere around a thousand

Q What's the annual operating budget?

A This last fiscal year, it was right at about 365 million.

Q And how long have you been with this organization?

A Twelve years, sir

Q When you started, what was the operating budget?

A 37 million

Q How do you know Bob McDonnell?

A Well, I met Bob McDonnell before he was Governor and had dinner with him one night Other than during the last month or so, that was the only physical contact I have ever had with him. But I felt like I've known him for a much longer time When he went to Regent Law School, he went on a scholarship that was provided by the man that introduced me to Pat Robertson twelve years ago that led to my position at Operation Blessing His name is Bill Dooner

Q Do you have any knowledge of Mr McDonnell's connection in any way with your organization?

A Yes, sir Post-Katrina, I don't remember exactly how long it was after the actual storm hit, but I would say somewhere between a year-and-a-half and two years, we were still actively working in the New Orleans area doing all sorts of humanitarian relief and recovery, and Bob McDonnell called our office one day and said that he had a one-week vacation coming up and he wanted to take his whole family down there and volunteer working with Operation Blessing So we told him great, and made arrangements for him to do that.

Q This was when he was Governor?

A No, sir No, he was not Governor

Q He was Attorney General at the time?

A I believe he was

Q And in fact, he went to New Orleans and worked with your organization?

A He did, sir They were scheduled to work for a week, and he was really doing a great job. In fact, I got a lot of really positive feedback from my staff But one night he wanted to exercise and we had renovated a community center in St. Bernard Parish and put in a new basketball floor and he wanted to play basketball and he had his sons there and one of our staff members and he ran over the court into a steel post and broke his jaw

Q What sort of work did he do in New Orleans before he had that unfortunate event?

A He and his family participated in one project building a home that had been inundated by the floodwaters of Katrina, clearing up the mud and carrying broken, soggy things out of the house I wasn't there, I can't tell you exactly what they were doing, but I got a lot of feedback from my staff We have a lot of celebrity-type people that show up for disasters for media purposes, and I know my staff was really impressed with Bob, saying he had a real heart to serve and that he would do anything they asked him to do

Q All right Now, based on those reports about his prior engagement with your organization, have you had an opportunity to talk to him or talk to his counsel about ongoing potential opportunities for Mr McDonnell in terms of working with your organization?

A Yes, sir Two or three weeks before Thanksgiving I got a call from Bob McDonnell explaining that his sentencing was coming up, and that he and his legal team were interested in creating some sort of an alternative to incarceration. And he wondered if there was a place that Operation Blessing had -- well, actually, what he said was, "Is there a country where you are working where living would be extremely difficult and a hardship for me and a place where I could really help you?" I said, "Well, we have a number of places like that." But Haiti was the first place that came to mind. So that's how the discussion began.

Q With respect to Haiti, why Haiti?

A Well, I'm especially personally involved in our operations in Haiti We have a large operation in Haiti A lot of the charities that went down there when the earthquake happened have left and gone home We are there for the long term. We have a home for children with disabilities, which as far as I know is the only one in the country. We've got a large fish farm where we produce about half a million tilapia a month that we are planting in all the lakes and reservoirs around the country We have a number of safe water projects, we manufacture chlorine, fighting cholera, working with Partners In Health and Dr Farmer from Harvard and manufacturing chlorine they use for surface disinfection to help prevent the spread of cholera and help disinfect the water We produce enough chlorine to disinfect about three-and-a-half million gallons of water a day down there

We built a school We run several schools We've got feeding programs And we are involved in agricultural improvement. So there's lots of things that we are doing And I thought that someone with Bob's skills and experience and his willingness to serve and his clear love for the poor, that it would be an enormous benefit to Operation Blessing if he could come down there and work for us And he said he would work for nothing and pay all his own expenses

Q How many times have you been to Haiti?

A Actually, quick counting it, 45 times since the earthquake, sir

Q With respect to the living conditions for folks who work for your organization in Haiti, tell us about those

A Well, our headquarters is a five-bedroom house within a compound with a ten-foot wall with concertina wire We have shotgun guards 24/7 The five-bedroom house serves as our headquarters Then we built an 11-bedroom guesthouse within the compound behind our main house. And if the Judge decided that it was a good idea for Bob to come down there, he would live in the guesthouse, one room and one small bathroom. It is very hot and uncomfortable City power is only on for a few hours a day We could have generators to make electricity, but it is very expensive to provide diesel fuel so we can only run the air-conditioning a few hours during the night So it is very uncomfortable. There's lots of mosquitoes It never cools off So conditions are rough and it is hard for us to attract people, and certainly someone of Bob McDonnell's character would be almost impossible for us to find someone of that caliber, sir

Q If you found such a person, what would it cost you to afford them or pay them?

A I can't even imagine finding someone with his qualifications But we, right now, the position that we have open, there is our deputy director, which was about a $60,000 salary plus travel expenses, living expenses, and so forth. We could never hire someone like Bob McDonnell for any kind of $60,000 a year, that's for sure

Q Over and above the salary you would pay someone, what would be the other costs --

A The benefits, insurance and all that. It is not necessarily double your salary, but it could be close to that, so say $100,000 gross at a minimum.

Q Is it hard to find people to take this job because they don't want to live in Haiti?

A Extremely hard, sir A family person that has children at home wants to go home quite often, and that doesn't work out so well Young people are attracted to this sort of work, but as soon as -- like our deputy director went off to get her Master's degree in public health, we lost her, or they want to get married or something happens So it is very difficult We have about 35 Haitians full time on our staff and only two Americans, and we are in dire need of a deputy director right now

BY MR ASBILL:

Q If Mr McDonnell were allowed to -- to work for your program as part of the sentence in this case, would he be allowed, on any kind of regular basis or quarterly basis, to return to the United States?

A That would certainly be up to the Court, sir

Q All right And others who have worked there in the past, what sort of deals have you -- have you struck with them?

A Typically, we pay -- we pay for one trip home per quarter where we buy the plane tickets And they get about a week off four times a year

Q All right In terms of supervising somebody, would they -- would they have -- would somebody in Mr McDonnell's position, were he in Haiti, have access to Internet or Skype or cell phones?

A Oh, absolutely Yeah The -- there are no fixed landlines in Haiti that I've ever seen So virtually everyone has a cell phone Cell service is actually quite good And I use my U S cell phones when I'm down there I have an international plan

But we have quite good Internet reception at our headquarters It isn't broadband on U S -- same speed as here, but it's quite good and it's quite reliable So a lot of our management is by Skype, sir

Q Would you or others in your organization working in Haiti be willing to work with the probation officer, with the Court, to set up any kind of appropriate supervision for him?

A Oh, absolutely, sir We would bend over backwards to do that

Q With respect to -- with respect to disposition -- I know we've talked about Haiti for a second Are there domestic needs for your organization that Mr McDonnell could also fit into or slide in?

A Yes, sir The two major programs that Operation Blessing is involved in domestically are disaster relief, which is sporadic When there are big disasters, we have lots to do, but not much to do between disasters So we didn't feel like that would be appropriate for full time

And so the other thing that we do is we call it our Hunger Strike Force We have 75 trailers -- 65 of them are refrigerated -- 18 trackers, or power units And we have distribution hubs in Chesapeake, Virginia; Bristol, Virginia; Ocala, Florida; and Grand Prairie, Texas

And between the four of those, we distribute up a hundred million pounds of food and relief supplies per year that we give away to faith-based organizations that are involved with feeding the poor in America

Q Why Bristol?

A Well, Bristol, we have a history there. The Gregory family had a ministry in Bristol where they were reaching out into Appalachia with food It was called the Lord's Storehouse And for some years, before my tenure, which is 12 years, Operation Blessing was delivering food to the Lord's Storehouse Several -- maybe two truckloads a week, something like that

And then about five years ago, it could have been six, the Gregory family asked Operation Blessing if we could take over that operation Evidently, they weren't able to afford to run it anymore, and they said that if we would take it over and -- that they would lease us the building for a dollar a year and pay the rent -- pay the utilities and pay the taxes

So we have been running it now for five or six years Last year we delivered a little over ten million pounds of food to Bristol, which then was distributed to -- to faith-based organizations in five states: Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, and Kentucky, with a focus on the poorest parts of Appalachia

Q How poor are the poorest parts of Appalachia?

A Well, you don't need a passport to go to a developing country Literally When you get up in those hills, it's just unbelievable There is chronic poverty there, and there's a whole new demographic -- we called it the newly made poor Americans that have had jobs, particularly in the coal industry, and there's been a trend to tamp that down lately And so many coalminers that have had their jobs and supported local businesses have lost their jobs just in the last few years And so it's -- it's very, very dire there in Appalachia

Q Do you have an opening in your organization, a job opening as we speak, that Mr McDonnell could slide into?

A We do, sir Our manager there was a fellow named John Reed, who was there since the beginning He suffered a stroke eight months ago And up until a few weeks ago, or maybe a month or so ago, we thought he would return to work But he's been declared permanently disabled He'll never be able to come back to work, and we feel like that would be a perfect spot for Bob McDonnell

Q In general, what would he do on a daily basis in that role?

A Well, he would manage the -- the hub there; both the inbound freight, which is all this food and relief supplies and drinks and juice He would manage all that physically and help unload those trucks when they come in

And then the distribution is -- we don't deliver much from that location It's more that the -- the ministries that we serve come from these five states on a regular basis So some come every other Tuesday Some come every

Thursday Some only come once a month It's all carefully choreographed And his responsibility would be to make sure that those ministries, when they got there, they were loaded in a hurry and on their way

Beyond that, he would have to visit some of these ministries to see with his own eyes the need And what my thought is is that someone with a -- as dynamic as Mr McDonnell is, once he got his arms around our operation, that I'm sure that he would call upon his experience, his network, the people that he knows, the companies that he has known over the years possibly to donate more food or even money to Operation Blessing so that we could expand that and serve more people in a more effective way

Q What sort of companies now give to Operation Blessing?

A Well, Hershey gives us candy bars Quaker Oats gives us granola bars Allen Canning gives us canned vegetables Kimberly Clark gives us paper products, which are an enormous blessing to the poor: Disposable diapers, feminine napkins, toilet paper, tissues

And we get these massive truckloads of this stuff, which it wouldn't make sense to deliver a whole truckload of candy bars to a ministry So we need these distribution hubs where we can shake out the loads and then mix up what has been donated to us to -- to help the people we're trying to help

And I believe that Bob McDonnell not only could easily manage that, but I think that he could help us to expand that enormously

Q Would part of the job require physical labor?

A There is some physical labor, yeah He would have to learn how to -- and become certified in a forklift so that he could physically participate in the unloading and loading of trucks This is a small -- we run lean and mean We don't have a lot of money to throw around

And so that operation is basically three people And Bob, if he was allowed to go there, would run that operation on our behalf

Q All right And, again, would I be correct in estimating that the salary that you would have to pay to someone to fill the slot that's now open would be roughly equivalent to what you were talking about with Haiti?

A It's about the same thing, sir Yeah About -- probably 60,000 salary and then all the benefits on top of that, that it could easily amount up to $100,000 a year

Q Okay And with respect to -- with respect to that operation as well, the operation in Bristol, is that something that if Mr McDonnell were allowed to participate in by the Court, that you would be willing to interact with the Court and the probation office in any supervisory way that they deem necessary?

A Absolutely, sir Anything that the Court asked us to do, we would be willing to do

Q All right And, finally, sir, do you have any requests to make of the Court?

A Sorry?

Q Do you have any requests to make of Judge Spencer?

A I just would beg the judge to please consider having mercy on this fellow If he's buried in a jail, it would be like the -- the proverb about the talents in the Bible In my opinion, it would be like burying something of enormous value

Bob McDonnell could be -- have a -- be a force multiplier in the world of humanitarian charity, either in the United States or in Haiti, and we would pray that the judge would look favorably upon one of these alternative sentences, sir

Q And, finally, I know you've -- you and I have talked about some combination of social programs, basically, in the Bristol area, including one that would also involve the Diocese of Richmond, the Catholic Diocese of Richmond

If Bob were able to -- to do it all, to spend 60 hours or week or 70 hours a week, or whatever it required, to try to do a number of different things with different organizations down there to benefit the poor in a variety of different ways, is that something that you would be willing to co-partner?

A We'd certainly be interested in demonstrating flexibility Along those lines, I'm sure there would be synergy with the diocese I've been talking to the Monsignor out in the witness room about that possibility And since we're feeding the poor and their constituents are the poor, I'm sure that there are common denominators that Bob McDonnell could spend some time on

We would -- if -- if he took on the position of running our Bristol operation, it would require what most people would think of as full time But we certainly would be willing to share him, especially in a synergistic manner

Q Thank you very much

A Good morning

Q Would you please tell us your full name

A Monsignor Timothy Edward Keeney

Q And how are you employed, Monsignor?

A I'm the pastor at St Bede Catholic Church in Williamsburg, Virginia

Q And how long have you been in that position?

A Two years there

Q Tell us a little bit about your educational background

A Well, I was in the seminary from the time I was 16 years old, degree in philosophy in college Did three years of graduate studies Left the seminary at that point Went to Washington and Lee law school, got my JD I worked for two and a half years at Williams Kelly & Greer in Norfolk, practicing Went back to the seminary Was sent to the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome, got my STB Was ordained a priest in '96 Went back to

Rome for additional studies for license in dogma and then have been parochial vicar for four years at Mt Carmel, then 12 years in -- as pastor at St Anne's in Bristol, Virginia, and now two years at St Bede's

Q All right So you were in Bristol, Virginia, for 12 years in your position; is that correct?

A Yes

Q Okay And when you talk -- the Diocese of Richmond, what geographic area does that cover?

A Well, the far southwest corner, it would be LPA 15 and 16 in terms of the diocese

Q I'm sorry I don't know LPA

A Those are local planning groups

Q Oh

A The diocese is broken into a series of them, and that particular area of the diocese would be about the equivalent of the size of New Jersey, and it has 18 parishes in that area

Q All right So all of Southern Virginia, from the --

A Oh, you mean the entire diocese?

Q -- from the ocean to the --

A Yeah It's the Eastern Shore -- if you took a compass point and put in Washington, D C , went down to Fredericksburg and took off that top corner, everything else in the state would be the Diocese of Richmond

Q Okay Now, what sort of operations or charitable operations does the diocese have ongoing in the Bristol, Virginia, area?

A Well, every parish has, as part of its work, social ministry Even though we're very small, in terms of representation out in that area, we have an effect far beyond our numbers

Q Why is that?

A Well, because we -- we're able to organize -- because of the power of the diocese, we're able to organize ministries that have blossomed We've done a lot of ecumenical things, like Bristol Faith in Action It started with 13 churches, with St Anne's as one of the founding groups It's now up to 75 churches Primarily doing -- taking care of utilities and rentals Trying to keep people in their home

Bristol Family Promise Same concept except that deals with homelessness The Health Wagon, which was started by Sister Bernie out there, blossomed into the remote medical area clinic, which now sees thousands of people on a yearly basis

So those are the kinds of things that the diocese has been able to do out in Southwest Virginia by organizing not only our resources, but then reaching out to the other local churches

Q What is the -- what is the poverty level of the population you serve in that area?

A It's pretty extensive You have to look at that particular area in two different ways There's the I-81 corridor, which has Pulaski, Wytheville, Abingdon, Marion, and Bristol And the poverty level there is still -- there's a lot of -- as I always say, there's a lot of wealthy people and a lot of poor people, and there's not a lot of middle class

Once you, however, get into the interior, you're dealing with really severe poverty and chronic levels of unemployment Most of the young people don't end up staying there They most -- after any kind of education, they usually leave So the level -- especially with the coal, collapse of the coal jobs there, it's been pretty extensive

Q And what sort of services do your ministries there supply to the poverty-stricken folks in that region?

A Well, again, we try mostly -- mostly, we're trying to keep people in their homes, trying to -- power -- power, water, utilities There's a great deal of food service We've tried to reach out to basic medical needs in other areas There is some legal assistance that we've tried to help -- help with people in different areas

In Pocahontas and Grundy, they're just trying to keep the town afloat The churches, one of the few institutions in Pocahontas that actually is sustainable The town is basically collapsed

Q Where do you get the money to fund these projects?

A The diocese has a fund for mission parishes We also have -- St Anne's itself has some very generous parishioners who have been able to support some of these area-wide things The diocese also invests money in social ministry through its annual appeal And then also there are grants which can be written for -- there's a number of Catholic granting agencies that have been very generous in helping us with projects out there

Q Is Bob McDonnell known to the diocese?

A He is very well-known to the diocese We worked with him a great deal in terms of Catholic school teach -- Catholic schools He has been very helpful in a number of other projects with the Catholic Commission that is a joint project of the -- both the Arlington Diocese and the Richmond Diocese with Bob -- oh, my goodness Blanking on his name

Anyways, the -- the -- the -- it's what -- it's what we use with the legislature to see about the ten priorities that the Catholic church has in education and social justice, and he's been very helpful in that

Q Are there job openings for Bob McDonnell in Bristol?

A In Southwest Virginia, we've historically had a coordinator for social justice for the -- working for the diocese Our current -- the last person who held that job has moved on to another position That job is currently open.

With all the things that are happening in the diocese, it's always hard to maintain these kind of jobs at the level It's a fairly entry-level position It's about $35,000 a year, but -- we're trying to commit to having somebody out there, but having somebody like Mr McDonnell out there would be probably something we could never afford to do at the level that we would normally have to offer this kind of job.

Q And how would you utilize his skills and talents were he permitted to do this work with you?

A Well, the -- the basic function of that job is to coordinate the social ministry of the parishes and the diocese, and then work with the other powers and entities in the locality to try to best use those resources for the sake of the economically poor in that area

There's also a need, at this point, to do an assessment of what is actually the need The situation has changed over the last ten years, particularly with, as I said before, the collapse of the coal economy that much of that area was relying upon So there's a need to do a kind of true assessment of what's going on

There's also -- that position has historically dealt with migrant ministry for the diocese and also helping to resource prison ministry, helping to train people to go in and visit the prisons in that area and then throughout the diocese as well

Q So once the need assessment has been completed, then the -- then the goal would be essentially to figure out how to fulfill those needs?

A Well, I mean, we think that we're doing some things, but we -- if there is a better way of using our resources, a more effective way of using our resources, we hope that need assessment would be able to point us in a stronger position than what we're doing now

Q You know, I take it, that my client has been convicted by a jury in this court of 11 felonies?

A Yes

Q Does the diocese, the bishop, have any hesitation at all in terms of hiring Mr McDonnell?

A I mean, we're in the job of redemption And that's part of -- you know, I -- I always tell folks that if we all saw our secret sins at mass, we'd probably all run screaming from the room

And so all of us are -- have those things that we need to overcome through the grace of God So that's no different than any other person that we would hire

Q Aside from what Bob McDonnell could do for the diocese in that area, do you have any thought about what working in that capacity would do for him?

A I always have said that one of the great gifts that God has given me has been the ability to work with people who are so much on the edge but really allow the joy of God to still shine through their lives

It really -- it cannot but affect anybody who truly gives themselves to this ministry It changes how you see yourself, how you see other people, how you see the world when you deal with people on a daily basis who are just really struggling to survive, them and their family And then helping them and allowing -- they allowing you to share some of their joy even in the midst of that struggle, it really puts everything in perspective

Q So Bob could help restore them and vice versa?

A Absolutely

Q You know that another potential option, should the Court permit, is this Operation Blessing?

A Yes I'm aware of that

Q In Bristol Is that something that you all would be willing to co-partner with and try to work with together to try to utilize whatever talents and skills Bob has to the maximum possible benefit of the folks in that region?

A I mean, I'm aware that both of these positions are substantive positions But I believe that working in cooperation, there's the possibility of somebody who would really be willing to work hard to be able to do a competent and successful job doing both

Q And, finally, do you have any requests to make of Judge Spencer?

A I would really ask you to consider the urgent need of -- of the folks out in Southwest Virginia Governor McDonnell, I think, would bring some very unique talents to this that would not otherwise be available to the people in Southwest Virginia

So I'd ask you to consider seriously this option, and hopefully it can be part of this way of paying back the citizens of the Commonwealth

Q Thank you, sir

MR ASBILL: I have no further questions

THE COURT: Government?

MR DRY: None from the United States, Your Honor

THE COURT: Thank you, sir

MR BROWNLEE: Bill Howell

WILLIAM J HOWELL,

called as a witness by and on behalf of Defendant Robert F McDonnell, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR BROWNLEE:

Q Good morning, sir

A Good morning

Q Would you please state your name, and spell your first and last name for the court reporter

A It's William J Howell W-I-L-L-I-A-M, H-O-W-E-L-L

Q And, sir, you know you've been asked here to testify at the sentencing of Bob McDonnell; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q Okay How long have you known Bob McDonnell?

A About 20 years

Q Okay Can you tell Judge Spencer how you first met him?

A Bob was elected -- I had been in the House of Delegates for about four years when Bob was elected and came up from Virginia Beach, and we became close friends pretty quickly So I've known him pretty well for the past 20 years

Q Okay And just briefly describe for Judge Spencer the Bob McDonnell that you know

A Bob -- excuse me I'm sorry Bob was a very intense legislator, took it very seriously, was very interested in the public service aspect of it I think people would have described Bob as a Boy Scout, highest integrity, highest character Great work ethic, great member

Q All right. And as a friend, describe for the judge, tell us what he's like as being a friend to you

A Well, he's a very close friend, very loyal friend I think Bob is the kind of person that would do anything to help you that he could He enjoyed being around people

I was talking with my wife yesterday about some of Bob's characteristics, and we both acknowledged that Bob has an ability to be a friend, to be interested in everyone, not just to those that are in positions of power or prestige or whatever. But Bob was also just as friendly, just as concerned, perhaps even more interested, in those that the world might classify as -- as being somewhat the least of these And I think Bob certainly does exemplify that passage of scriptures that the Lord talks about when you've done this to the least of these, you've done it for me And when I think of Bob McDonnell, I think of that

Q It has been described that at times, with the General Assembly, that it can get somewhat heated. And it's also been described that Mr McDonnell tries to find the best in people, as opposed to the other Is that true, and can you describe instances in which you've seen that?

A Bob has always been interested in -- in how people feel about the different issues and concerned about it I had an issue a couple of years ago where I was called upon to make a parliamentary ruling on an amendment to a -- a Senate amendment to a House bill dealing with redistricting And it was quite controversial And an awful lot of people in my caucus disagreed with my decision that the amendment was not properly before the body And Bob called me up that day and said, "You did the right thing, and I certainly stand behind you on it " Things like that

Q It's my understanding that soon after he joined the General Assembly, there was a Bible study that he joined and you had actually started with him And tell us a little bit about that and what you gained from it and perhaps what he gained from it

A Well, it's one of the -- I think the highlights of my legislative career I guess it was probably about 18 years ago, 4 of us formed a Bible study where we would meet every Wednesday morning at 7 a m and discuss different books of the Bible And it continues We still do it today It's grown some For the first couple of years, it was just the four of us And when you're in an intimate group like that, you really do get to know a person You get to know what their thoughts are, what their aspirations are, what their concerns are It was a great time to share and to learn and for all of us to grow

Q Let me move towards after he was elected Governor You and Mr McDonnell, after he was elected Governor, paired up on some legislative items Some weren't that popular, but you did it Can you tell us a little bit about working with him when he was Governor and kind of your sense of what his view was of his governorship?

A Well, I think he was an outstanding Governor I think when Frank Atkinson writes his fourth sequel to his book about government in Virginia and covers this period, he will talk about a lot of very good things that were accomplished

And Bob, as Governor, again, was concerned with trying to do what he thought was good for the people of the Commonwealth And we had some discussions, some -- I won't say arguments, but differences in the way things -- we should approach things, but we were always able to resolve them in a good way And I might add that in a lot of the major accomplishments, it was -- it was Governor McDonnell's driving the train that really helped to get it done

Q Is it fair to say that his governorship will be marked by doing what he thought was right, as opposed to what may be politically expedient?

A There's no question about that Yeah

Q Let me talk a little bit about this case As you know, as he sits here today, he's been convicted of serious offenses, and soon Judge Spencer will issue his sentence

One of the factors, one of the things we look at here is deterrence, and I think that one of the places that I think the United States will hope that this case will have a deterrent effect is on your body that you are speaker of

Can you tell the Court, from your sense, as we sit here today, before any sentence is imposed, how you view the government's case, and has it had a deterrent effect on those who could be deterred?

A Well, it mostly certainly has had a deterrent effect As you know, the -- both the Senate caucuses, House and Republican, and the House and Democratic caucuses, have had people come in and talk to them about what the McDonnell trial results mean to them as sitting legislators And I think there's a great concern that we're in a situation where we really do need to dot all our i's and cross all our t's and be very careful

Again, as I think you're probably aware, we did what I think is significant legislation in the 2014 session on ethics reform, and the Governor has formed a commission that's come up with some additional recommendations And I'm quite confident in the 2015 session, which begins next week, there will be some additional significant amendments to our policies on gifts and such And I do believe this is a direct result of this trial

Q Okay Let me switch gears a little bit to Bob McDonnell, your friend How have you seen him change over the last year or so since this case has come, and how has -- from your vantage point, how has it affected him and how has it impacted him?

A Well, I think it's had a devastating impact on him I think you can see the weight on his shoulders I do think that Bob's faith has been a remarkable help to him throughout this process And I've never heard him say -- and I've talked with him quite frequently and I've visited with him on numerous occasions over this past year I've never heard him say a word of anger or frustration towards anybody involved in this process He's never said, "Well, it's somebody's else's fault " He recognizes that there perhaps were some things that he should not have done

But more than that, again, I think he's just -- he -- I'm not sure I could bear up like he has He's done a marvelous job of bearing up under this He's a good man

Q It's fair to say, though, that his political future, whatever it was, is over?

A Yeah Bob -- if you look and you stop and think about it, Bob has spent his whole life in public service, whole adult life, and that's gone The elected public service is gone I think that -- I think he still has a lot to offer society I think he could offer a lot more meaningfully and helpfully if he were able to do some of these alternative proposals which we've been discussing this morning

Q Let me just talk briefly about that, and you've heard these this morning If Judge Spencer were to allow him to -- to issue a probationary sentence, subject to these types of rigorous community service, are you confident that he would, in fact, follow through and work hard and do these things --

A Oh, sure

Q -- in a committed way?

A Yeah Yeah Absolutely I think he would relish the opportunity

Q All right Do you believe that as he sits here today, after all he's been through and you've watched your friend, that he has, in fact, been punished enough?

A I believe he's been punished enough I don't know how he could be punished more at this point I mean, I think clearly he can, but I think the damage to his dreams and his aspirations has been done

Q Okay My last question is do you have anything you'd like to say to Judge Spencer before you conclude here?

A Well, Judge, I thank you for this opportunity to come and talk about -- about my good friend And as the others, I would just humbly request mercy in this case I think that Bob has a lot of things that he can still do as a way of public service, and I don't believe he can accomplish it in a federal penitentiary I really would ask for your leniency and mercy

Q Thank you, sir

THE COURT: Government?

MR DRY: Nothing from the United States

THE COURT: Thank you, sir You may stand down

(Witness stood aside)

MR ASBILL: Clovia Lawrence

CLOVIA LAWRENCE,

called as a witness by and on behalf of Defendant Robert F McDonnell, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR ASBILL:

Q Good morning

A Good morning

Q Please tell us your full name

A My name is Clovia Johnell Lawrence

Q And tell us a little bit about your educational background.

A I am a graduate of Richmond Public Schools and a 1987 graduate of Virginia Union University, with a BA in broadcast journalism

Q And are you employed?

A Yes, I am employed I'm in the radio broadcast arena, where I've spent almost 28 years And I'm employed with Radio One Richmond

Q And what exactly do you do with Radio One Richmond?

A I'm an on-air announcer and also community outreach and news director

Q All right And what's the target area for Radio One Richmond?

A Richmond and Central Virginia So pretty much the metropolitan area We have a 100,000-wide inspiration station where you can hear us just over the North Carolina line

Q And when you say -- I'm sorry, inspiration?

A Inspirational station We play gospel music on one of our radio stations

Q Okay And you have a number of different radio stations?

A Yeah We have another radio station, which is iPower 92, which is a younger generation radio station, demographic 18 to 34 And we have an urban contemporary radio station, which the demographic is 25 to 54 age group listeners

Q Do you know my client?

A Yes

Q How?

A I met Governor Bob McDonnell maybe around seven years ago He was the State Attorney General And I was doing a lot of work with bringing diversity to Nascar at RIR with the races over there And I was working with this young man, Norm He was bringing the diversity into the Richmond Public School, and he said he wanted to give Attorney General Bob McDonnell an award So he was like -- he asked me to come along with him

So we went We presented him with an award at his office And after we did that, I offered some of his staffers tickets to the races over RIR And that's when we first met He was kind He was really into what we were talking about, about the diversity in Nascar And that was the first chance meeting

Q And subsequent to that, did you have any other contact with him?

A Yeah. Maybe a few months or so after that, he announced his candidacy, that he was going to run for Governor And I immediately -- I'm a part of a sorority, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Incorporated And we do gubernatorial and senatorial community forums, which means we want to bring the candidates directly to the community

And I sent a letter of invitation for him to participate in the gubernatorial And within five or six days, he responded, yes, he would participate So we held the gubernatorial forum in September of 2009

Q All right Once he became Governor, when he was elected Governor, did you have continue to have contact with Governor McDonnell?

A Yes, of course Actually, that day while he was in the green room at Virginia Union University, he said, "Clovia, what do you want me to do?" And I said, "Automatic rights restoration for felons in the Commonwealth of Virginia I believe in second chances and redemption " And he said, "It's a process, but we'll work on it "

So he sent the letter to us, thanking myself and the sorority and all of the participants He enjoyed the gubernatorial, and then he sent a personal note, "We're going to work on it "

So maybe around April the following year, he called stakeholders in from Richmond and across the Commonwealth to come in and talk about how we can make the restoration of rights for felons a simpler and easier process

Q And not only talking about it, did he do anything about it?

A Yeah Definitely

Q What did he do?

A He did something about it Made the actual nonviolent forms quick and simple and easy You could get your rights restored on nonviolent offenses in under 60 days And we were actually there, along with state police and Clerks of Court, from all around the city and state

Q And --

A And he had us to participate with making with the changes All of the stakeholders.

Q And in connection with that process, did he have occasion to visit jails and talk with folks whose rights you were talking about restoring?

A I'm pretty sure he did But that's something that we did on behalf of my group We would go into the jails to talk about the new and simpler and easier process

Q And you yourself have gone to jails to talk --

A Yes

Q -- about that?

A Yeah, of course

Q Have you talked to inmates about it?

A Yes

Q How important is it to the inmates to have rights restored?

A It's extremely important to start the process of getting your rights restored, to run for public office, to serve on a jury That's very important

Q To vote?

A And, of course, to vote

Q And with respect to -- to Mr McDonnell, had you ever worked on rights restorations with other governors in the past?

A Yes, I did

Q And was there a difference in degree in terms of what Bob McDonnell did to help restore rights?

A It was, to him -- again, he wanted to make the process simpler and easier for folks who have been convicted of felony convictions in the Commonwealth of Virginia, and he believed in second chances So he worked with all of the stakeholders to get that done within the communities and actually coming on air I had an on-air show, which is called Community Conversations He came on to talk about that and other important needs in the Commonwealth of Virginia

Q Do you have any idea how many, under his administration, how many felons had their rights restored?

A I think under at the close of 2013, it was approximately 8128 persons who received their rights

Q The folks whose rights were restored, did Bob McDonnell expect them to vote Republican?

A No No He wasn't -- he wasn't a party Governor at all In fact, in 20 -- during the 2012 elections, the presidential election, it was the voter registration deadline And I'm usually out all day on the voter deadline I think it was October 14th, 2012 And I was down at 18th and Broad, down in the Shockoe Bottom area, from like 5 a m until 7 p m , giving the folks an opportunity to get registered to vote or check on their voter status

So maybe starting around noonish, between noon and 2, I had a drove of people coming down to 18th and Broad, the gasoline station, talking about, "I got my rights restored I got my rights restored, and this is the date " And I'm like, "Hold on Wait a minute " So I called over to the Department of Elections, and I talked with the voter registration coordinator there And he said, "You didn't get your e-mail?" And I said, "No, because I've been out on the streets since 4:55 a m " He said that, "Yeah, Governor McDonnell's administration are calling people up and granting them their rights "

Q This is on the day -- the last day to register to vote?

A Right

Q Was that a popular thing for him to do politically?

A I don't think he was doing it as a politician I think he was doing it caring about the people and getting them registered to vote Because we had an election that was going to come up in November So what he wanted to do was make sure everybody voted.

Q Regardless of how they voted or for whom they voted?

A Regardless of how they voted

Q All right Do you have any requests that -- or statement that you'd like to make to Judge Spencer?

A Yes

Judge Spencer, thank you so much for all of your work that you're doing in the community I am praying for leniency for Governor Bob McDonnell He's worked so hard and diligently with folks who are returning to society, who wants them to have a second chance to be able to take care of their families So I think he's worked diligently He didn't act political when he supported people in the Commonwealth of Virginia He just wanted everybody to have a second chance to start at life Thank you

Q Thank you

MR ASBILL: No further questions

THE COURT: Government?

MR DRY: No questions, Your Honor

THE COURT: Sure

MR BROWNLEE: Thank you, Your Honor

MICHEL ZAJUR,

called as a witness by and on behalf of Defendant Robert F McDonnell, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR BROWNLEE:

Q Good morning, sir

A Good morning

Q Would you please state your full name, and spell your first and last name for the court reporter

A My name is Michel Zajur And it's M-I-C-H-E-L Michael without the A And the last name is Z-A-J-U-R.

Q And, Mr Zajur, how long have you lived here in Virginia?

A I moved here from Mexico I came here in 1961

Q Okay And what line of business were you in in your adult -- before you took over, what I'll get to, your current position?

A Yeah I ran a Mexican restaurant, La Siesta, here in Richmond with my family for close to 35 years

Q And you no longer run that restaurant?

A No, huh-uh We've sold the property

Q Okay What is your current position?

A I'm president and CEO of the Virginia Hispanic Chamber of Commerce

Q All right And when did you begin that? When did you start? Are you one of the founders of it?

A Yes, I'm the founder It started from the restaurant, and it -- it grew It's a statewide organization We have the chamber, and then we have the foundation side

Q About how many businesses are part of the chamber now?

A Well over 200 business members

Q Okay And did there come a time as part of your working with the chamber that you met Bob McDonnell?

A Yes I -- I met Bob I think at a reception once And -- and -- and when I first really got to know him was at a -- I was lobbying for a bill that Bob McDonnell was chairman of the committee when he was a legislator And it was -- he was chairman And -- and at the time, it was -- they had the votes to pass it But it was really detrimental to -- to the Hispanic community in -- in general, and he killed the bill as chairman. And I really admired that, and I got to know him after that incident where I really saw firsthand where he took his leadership

Q All right And this was before he ran for Attorney General?

A Yes

Q So this is at least ten years ago?

A Yes

Q Okay And so you -- you met him through kind of business Did you develop a friendship with him outside the relationship in business?

A Yes Yes, I did

Q Tell Judge Spencer just a little bit about your relationship with Mr McDonnell

A Well, it really developed just seeing Bob from time to time He was very interested in learning about the

Hispanic community and really wanted to reach out and help support me and my effort in the mission of the chamber of what we're doing And he had a great interest

When -- I'll never forget when I had quadruple bypass and Bob McDonnell called up to see how I was doing He -- he would constantly keep in touch When he was Governor, he would -- even if there was a legislation that -- that -- something that he passed or was going to authorize with the State Police enforcing immigration, he reached out to me to explain that he was going to do this And I just find that really -- you know, he took the time to call me, and especially when I was going under the medical procedures

Q In all your interactions with him, did you find him to be a person of integrity, someone that you could trust?

A I -- I find him the most integrable person I -- I -- I can't even imagine he is here because he is highly -- every dealing that I have had with him, I -- I -- totally -- the highest ethic person I can imagine

Q Okay And if people use words to describe him like greedy or materialistic, would you disagree with that?

A That's -- that's not true If anybody knows Bob McDonnell the way I know Bob McDonnell, that is totally not true

Q Now, as he sits here today, as you know, this is his sentencing hearing He's been convicted of offenses And -- but do you -- as you sit here today, do you still believe in him? Do you still believe in him and trust him as someone that you believe to be ethical?

A You know, I -- I believe -- because I know him, and you just can't rule as Governor and what I've seen him rule if you're not -- the way he did it, if you don't have the ethics, he would not do anything that he knew would be illegal in my dealings that I've ever saw And I -- I think the community, the other leaders and business leaders and community leaders, you know, through all this, I think they just feel so bad that, you know, how can anybody suffer more than what he's gone through Of course, you can, but it's -- it's tremendous And still in spite of that, he holds his head and -- and greets people He's a very, very, I think, genuine person

Q All right Sir, is there anything you would like to say to Judge Spencer here before we ask you to step down?

A Judge, I just -- from everything that I know about Bob McDonnell and every dealing, I have the most high admiration for him And I think especially what he could give back with community service, I think it would be a model of -- and I know with everything, he would change the lives of so many people He is a good man that, you know, I -- I think he's suffered so much And he's going to suffer the rest of his life every day reliving this -- this -- that's -- really, it is so painful I can't imagine what he has already gone through, and he's going to have to live with it the rest of his life

Q Thank you Thank you, sir

THE COURT: Government?

MR DRY: No questions, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right

Thank you

Q Would you pull the microphone a little closer, please?

A Sure I've been teaching in Amherst County for about 12 years now in kindergarten

Q And what's your relationship to my client?

A I am Bob McDonnell's sister

Q Okay

A I'm two years younger than he is

Q And how many -- how many siblings do you all have?

A There are five of us Bob is the oldest I'm next My sister Eileen, my brother Ken, and my sister Maureen

Q Are all of them here today?

A All of them except my brother Ken

Q Okay And you've written the judge a letter in connection with this case --

A I have

Q -- for the sentencing process?

With the Court's permission, would you like to adopt that as part of your testimony --

A Yes

Q -- here today?

All right How close are you to Bob McDonnell?

A We're very close Family has always been most important to the McDonnells And we learned that from our parents We talk to each other We text each other. We e-mail each other We talk to each other many times on the phone We see each other at my home, at his home, at my parents' home, at my siblings' homes We see each other frequently, and we talk to each other frequently

Q Has that been true historically or only in connection with this case or over the last year and a half?

A It's been true historically It's been true historically We've lived sometimes in the same state Sometimes in Virginia Sometimes in Illinois together We've traveled to see each other at Notre Dame football games And, you know, we've been close We're a close family We've always put family first, and we've always been close

Q So, obviously, you know his children well?

A I do

Q You know his family well?

A I do I know his children well They are very -- they are close to my children

Q Okay Over the last year and a half since the investigation of this case commenced and throughout the trial process, et cetera, have you maintained that level of communication or increased it or decreased it or what?

A I think we've probably increased it You know, we certainly want to -- not that there was ever any doubt before how much we loved Bob and believed in Bob and we're here for Bob We certainly want to make sure that he knows how much every day how much we love him, support him, believe in him, and care about him You know, with cell phones, we can send a quick text, "Love you, thinking about you, praying for you " So certainly we're in contact, you know, as much as ever, if not more, since this has started

Q Were you able to attend any of the trial?

A I did I attended probably the last three weeks of the trial I took time off from my job to be here to support Bob

Q Okay How important to your family is faith?

A Faith is very important to our family My parents didn't just tell us to be faithful and take us to church, but they showed us through the way they lived their lives that faith was important My dad was a lector in the church and an usher in the church He would -- he would take communion to nursing homes My mother was a eucharistic minister My dad taught catechism, CCD, which is the Catholic Christian Doctrine. So they showed us this is how you live your faith, this is what faith means My mother was a Girl Scout leader, or a Camp Fire Girls leader They -- they showed us how to be involved in the community, how to live your faith, how to treat others

Q How important was faith to Bob McDonnell particularly?

A Faith was important to Bob He went to a -- he and I both attended Catholic school as young children He attended a Catholic boys high school He attended a Catholic university He was an altar boy growing up in the church Faith has always been important to Bob He reads the Bible He -- he thinks about the Bible He likes to talk about the verses, what is God saying to me as I read these verses

Q Did he try to incorporate that into his daily life?

A Absolutely The first thing -- the first thing he does in the morning is read the Bible, and it's the last thing he does at night That's the book on his nightstand

Q Watching how Bob has responded to the investigation and to this entire process over the last 18 months, how has it impacted your family?

A My family is heartbroken, devastated, shocked, disbelief It's -- it's been an absolutely devastating experience for our family You know, we know Bob We love Bob We believe in Bob It's been absolutely an unbelievably terrible experience for the family For my family, for his family

Q How have you seen it impact him personally?

A I've watched him physically struggle You know, he lost weight I think he wasn't eating He was -- he was upset And then I've seen him, you know, pull himself together and say, you know -- and exercise and eat healthy to, you know, try -- he's -- he's fighting He's a fighter He's -- he's used that to physically improve himself Emotionally support with Bible study groups He meets every week with the Bible study group He certainly has a spiritual advisor that he consults with, Father Wayne, on a daily basis It's -- it's been hard It's been hard He's been devastated, but he has faith in God He has his family and he has his friends, and that's been a source of great strength for him.

Q In your opinion, has Bob given up hope in terms of his ability, in the future, to make amends, restore his life?

A No He hasn't given up hope He hasn't given up hope He -- this is a bump in the road We have faith in the appeals process And he's a fighter, and we're here with him

Q Have you ever heard Bob say a negative word about another human being?

A Never

Q In your entire life?

A In my entire life

Q Even after this trial, even after the verdict in this case, some of the testimony from Jonnie Williams, et cetera, have you ever heard him say a single bad thing about another human being?

A No, sir Never In fact, he has prayed for the judge, the jury, for the prosecutors He's never said anything negative about them He knows people are doing their jobs

Q In some of the pleadings in this case, some of the sentencing related pleadings, my opponents have described Bob as greedy Is that a word that applies to your brother?

A Not at all Bob is the least materialistic person that I know He is most comfortable in his Notre Dame T-shirt and his jeans and his tennis shoes He's not greedy He doesn't care about material goods. He never has

Q Is he greedy for power?

A Absolutely not Absolutely not When Bob McDonnell walks in a room, he never thinks he's the most important person in that room

Q Who does he think is?

A The people that are standing in the back, the wounded warrior, the young child Everybody else in the room is more important Because his job, when he walks into the room, is to serve the people of Virginia, the people that maybe are forgotten

Q My opponents have described Bob as an entitled person Does that adjective work either?

A No, sir He's not entitled He's never felt entitled He is honored and humbled to serve the people He was honored and humbled to serve as Attorney General, as the Governor He came into this not for political gain, fame, fortune, whatever He came to the job as Governor to serve the people of Virginia, to improve their lives, to make their lives better, to see what the needs are, and to address those needs

Q Do you think that Bob is sorry for what he did? Did he ever express any remorse to you for any of the things that he's done that have landed him in this courtroom at this time?

A Yeah. He publicly expressed his remorse to the people of Virginia Yes, he's expressed his remorse

Q Privately? Privately to you and your family?

A Yes Yes, he -- he -- he has. You know, you know there are decisions he -- he wishes he had done differently And, yes, he has apologized

Q What would the impact be of your brother being sent to prison for any substantial period of time, or at all? What would the impact on your family be?

A We've lost our mom and our dad So Bob is the heart and soul of our family, the five siblings Bob is the heart and soul of our family He's the glue He's the one that brings us together He's the one that we go to for guidance, for advice, for love He's the one that's most like our mom

He's also the heart and soul of his family His children come to him to share their problems, their joys, their questions, their concerns He is the heart and soul of my siblings' family and his own family His children adore him They need him He's their go-to parent

Q They are all adults, but that's still true?

A They are You never stop being a parent It doesn't matter if your children are 34, 4, 14, anything in between You still need your parents And they still go to Bob They talk to him All five of them call him every day, once, twice Sometimes I'm on the phone with him and he'll say, "Oh, I got Jeanine on the other line" or "I've got Cailin on the other line " His children call him. They go to talk just to talk "Dad, how are you? I love you Let me hear -- "let me tell" -- you know, they share their day with him

Q In your view, up to this point, has Bob been punished?

A Absolutely

Q In what ways?

A Emotionally, it's taken a big toll on him He -- he was grief-stricken, in shock, I think, with the way things unfolded, the jury's decision That was heartbreaking for him It's tested his faith He's met that challenge His faith is stronger than ever He knows that God has a plan for him He has suffered every day

He is looking at losing his law license He's a convicted felon He has been convicted of multiple felonies He's looking at his right to -- losing his right to vote He's looking at losing his pension that he's worked many, many years to earn So his -- his political career, his chosen profession, being an attorney, helping people, that's gone That's gone He's lost everything

Q How important is the -- forget about the financial consequences, how important is losing the right to vote to my client?

A To Bob McDonnell, it's -- it's everything Not only is voting your right, but it's your privilege It's your privilege People have died to fight for our right to vote It's very important That's how you voice -- that is how the citizens have a voice

Q And, finally, do you have anything you'd like to say to Judge Spencer?

A Your Honor, I have known Bob McDonnell for 58 years In that time, I have never ever known him to tell a lie He is a good, honest, caring, compassionate man He has many, many gifts and talents Please use his gifts and talents to serve others He has the heart of a servant Use him for good Use him in the neglected areas of our state Use him to feed the hungry, to -- to show them God, to embrace them in Bible study, to go mulch their yards or paint their house Use him as your servant for good Thank you

Q Thank you

THE COURT: Government?

(Witness stood aside)

THE COURT: How many more witnesses?

MR. ASBILL: One

THE COURT: You just got one All right We'll take a break after you finish with the next witness

MR ASBILL: Terrie Suit

Excuse me, Judge We have two more witnesses I'm sorry

THE COURT: All right Go ahead

TERRIE L SUIT,

called as a witness by and on behalf of Defendant Robert F McDonnell, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR ASBILL:

Q Good morning

A Good morning

Q Tell us your full name, please

A Terrie L Suit

Q Could you either move the microphone or move a little closer to it, and everybody can hear you a little better?

A I'm sorry Terrie Suit T-E-R-R-I-E Middle initial L Last name spelled S as in Sam, U-I-T

Q And tell us a little bit about your educational and employment background?

A I am a military daughter and military spouse I did not have an education up until 2003 when I finished my associate's degree In 2005, I finished my bachelor's at Old Dominion University, and I'm finalizing my master's now at University of Mary Washington

Q And how are you employed?

A I apologize I'm the Chief Executive Officer for a Trade Association for Real Estate Professionals We are a 30,000 member association in the Commonwealth

Q And prior to that, what did you do?

A I was, for 20 years, a mortgage lender Could have justified on a lot of that pricing for mortgage loans I spent two years as a registered representative for the New York City Stock Exchange as a stockbroker And I spent nine years as a legislator in the House of Delegates for -- as the first Secretary of Veterans Affairs and Homeland Security for the Commonwealth, and then now I am the Chief Executive Officer for the Trade Association

Q So you were in the General Assembly in Virginia for how many years?

A For nine years

Q For nine years And then you became a cabinet secretary?

A That is correct

Q In Governor McDonnell's administration?

A That is correct

Q And how did you -- how did you come to know Bob McDonnell?

A I met Bob McDonnell in 1994 I was 29 years old I had, like I said, grown up military. Never really felt a part of a community My husband was an active duty Navy SEAL We had been transferred to Virginia Beach

I had lived there for about four years, and my husband said that he could probably stay there Because in the enlisted ranks, you don't have to transfer back and forth and the SEALs were based primarily on the East Coast in Virginia Beach And so I thought, This is my chance I can finally get involved I was very frustrated with the treatment by the community of military families I know now it's all great, but back then, it was the Post-Vietnam Era We were called transients We were said that we didn't have a voice in the community We didn't vote And I was really disillusioned with how I had been treated growing up, and I wanted to get involved and be a voice for military families and for a military community

I met Bob at a luncheon, and I expressed to him my desires And he seemed really supportive and wanted to help me activate my voice and make a difference, and so he started opening doors for me I had never desired to run for public office, but after about four years of being involved and Bob providing a lot of different activities for me to be involved in, I decided to run for public office

Q And tell us about that Tell us about that conversation when you were running for public office

A Well, Bob encouraged me to run It was a seat that was in play It was -- it kind of -- could go 50/50 either way And I had lived there for nine years in that seat, and he said I should run for it And I said, "Look I'm an E-6 wife," which is an enlisted wife "I don't have a college degree We don't have any money, and I'm not from here " And he said, "Terrie, anybody has a right to participate in our system of public policy Anybody has a right You don't have to be entitled "

And so he encouraged me to run And so I made the decision to run, and a few months into that decision when things were really getting going, I had a call And I had made the rounds and met with all the people I thought I was supposed to meet with But I received a call from a very influential man, and he said there were a group of men that wanted to meet with me about my race And it didn't sound positive And I said, "I'm only meeting with people who support me and want to see me win in November " And he said, "Well, we have a problem " He said, "If you run, the sheriff of Virginia Beach will run against Bob

McDonnell because there is a belief that he's the one who's gotten you into this, but if you will back out of the race, we can get the sheriff out of the race "

And I was shocked because I thought, This is America I mean, this is a place where people like me are supposed to be able to run for office without being intimidated by good ol' boys And he -- I said, "I can't talk to you anymore " I hung up My husband was deployed at the time I was all alone And I thought about it, and I was just devastated And I called Bob McDonnell and I said, "I've just gotten this phone call " And he said, "Yeah, I heard that was going to happen " And I said, "Well, what do you want me to do, Bob?" And he said, "I want you to win your race so that we can serve together in Richmond in January "

And I -- I've got to tell you, Your Honor, most politicians would take the easy way out They would say, "You know, maybe it's not your time Maybe this isn't the year you should run Let's work on you for another couple years " And that race for him was the most expensive race in Virginia history for a House of Delegates seat, but he won and I won, and we served together in Richmond from that point forward Our districts were side by side Our desks, initially, were one in front of the other, but then side by side Our offices were across from each other

He was my formal mentor and my informal mentor, and he worked with me to teach me how to be a good public policy person and how to be effective and do the right things for the military; like getting in-state tuition passed for both military dependents and active duty, and getting education policies passed for military children so that they didn't have to repeat classes like I did, moving eight times to eight different schools and taking Home Ec twice, which is ridiculous So -- which my husband loves, but no, it's not such a great thing

But he was a great friend and a great mentor, and he taught me -- he taught me about integrity If -- I remember the first bill I had that had a Senate amendment -- God bless the Senate The amendment, I was told, was technical, and I didn't really understand it So when I got up on the floor to explain the amendment, I said, "It's a technical amendment " So it was engrossed, the bill And I sat down, and Bob looked at me and he said, "Terrie, that was not technical " And I said, "Well, the Senate said it was technical " And he said, "Well, you can't believe what the senators tell you " He said, "But you can't let that go The other members voted in favor to engross your bill because they believed how you explained it " He said, "You've got to call the bill back up and reexplain it " I said, "But it's already passed You know, it's fine It will pass again " And he said, "It doesn't matter that it would pass again anyway Your integrity is everything Not all the legislators read the bills, and so they rely on your explanation And if you don't explain the amendment properly and they vote for it and they find out later, you will lose your integrity And integrity is everything in the legislature "

And so when we returned to morning hour, I asked that the bill be reconsidered, and then I, very red-faced, reexplained -- once Bob explained to me what the amendment really did, reexplained the bill And it was still engrossed, but it was the right thing to do

Q Aside from integrity, let me ask you whether or not Bob taught you anything about charity?

A Oh, my goodness There wasn't a cause that he didn't get involved in We had a gal at the Oceanfront, Brenda McCormick, that had a -- she's passed now She had a charity called Mothers Inc And every November Bob would call me up, "Terrie, you've got to help her We've got to raise money We've got to help her buy turkeys She wants to buy turkeys for every mother that's single at the beach "

And we had educational causes We had a student leadership program that we put on together It was very important to Bob to teach young people about being involved and about having a voice and being active And so we put on the student leadership program together I mean, he represented people pro bono all the time to try to help people It just -- it's an endless list of charitable activities. I think the Court has heard so much about that already today

Q Tell us a little bit about a particular pro bono thing that Bob did for a friend of your husband's

A My husband was the platoon chief That was an E-7 position, Your Honor And they were getting ready to deploy It was shortly after 9/11 And a young man in the platoon called us on a Saturday night at about -- well, actually, it was about a Sunday morning, about 1:00 in the morning, from the jail at the Oceanfront And he had been arrested for driving his motorcycle 100 miles an hour down a notorious road -- it's notorious for fatalities in Virginia Beach He was just an E-4 He was a young kid

And -- so he called -- of course, was calling his noncommissioned officer to come get him out of jail We went down to the Oceanfront together and bailed him out And I said to the young man, "Do you understand that your" -- "you could go to jail for this? This was 100 miles an hour on a 45-mile-an-hour road on a motorcycle where there have been fatalities You will probably lose your license You'll probably go to jail You will definitely lose your security clearance Your career as a Navy SEAL is probably over." I said, "You have got to have legal representation and, you know, go before the Court "

And he was shocked He was like, "Ma'am, I was at a Bible study I promise you " The group from the Bible study was there waiting for us to bail him out He was not a troublemaker He was not a problem young man But he was a young man that my husband desperately needed in the platoon He was his com guy and they were getting ready to deploy

So Bob agreed to take the case He talked to my husband about some actions that would be necessary to testify to regarding how my husband treated him as his noncom prior to the case being heard And so when this young man went to court, Bob represented him pro bono And my husband got on the stand and explained all of the punishments that he was, within military regulation, allowed to put this young man through, and the Court dismissed everything and allowed this young man to go back and serve his country And they deployed within, I think, about two weeks of that case or so

So Bob never charged him a dime He had significant court costs that he had to pay, but Bob didn't charge him anything

Q From your knowledge of Bob and from your -- would you say you have sort of 360-degree view of Bob?

A Yeah Oh, my goodness As a friend I was his loan office for this house in Henrico I did that loan And he shouldn't have refinanced it because he'd be at 2 75 percent right now It was a LIBOR index with a 2 25 At any rate, he would have been great if he had kept that loan

But I knew his finances I knew him personally I knew his children I knew him as a mentor I knew him as a friend He spent -- God bless him -- two hours -- I got sick at an event that we carpooled to, and poor Bob had to drive for two hours with me throwing up in the car nonstop He delivered me back to my husband I think very happily He was very -- he told me, "Don't worry My kids throw up in the car, too "

He was just a very kind, sincere person that I knew professionally, I knew as my boss when I was in his cabinet, I knew as a friend I knew him as someone who had a deep compassion for the military and for our veterans

I was in the hospital with a very close friend of my husband's He had been diagnosed with an aggressive brain tumor on Christmas Day We lost him three weeks later He was the father of four children, 11 and under Bob called me at the hospital He had heard through Jeanine about this young man He was a reserve Navy SEAL, and desperately wanted to be buried -- he knew he was dying He wanted to be buried at Arlington But Your Honor would know that, having been a JAG, as a reservist, unless you have a combat-related injury that leads to your death, you cannot be buried at Arlington

And Bob called me, not knowing I was there He said, "You're my Secretary of Veterans Affairs I need you to get ahold of Arlington We've got to do whatever we can Jeanine has called me She knows some of his friends in Virginia Beach They have told her Please, what can we do to fix this?" And I said, "Bob, this is one I don't think we can fix " But I spent hours on the phone with the JAG at Arlington He looked at everything he could We do not get Mike buried at Arlington Mike passed away, and Bob said, "Do what" -- he didn't have a CACO You're a reservist It was a brain tumor, not a combat injury So there was no CACO And Bob told me to take as many weeks as I needed to to help the family get everything arranged, and I did

We didn't fix that one, but there was one we were able to fix And that was for the Wise brothers Jeremy

Wise was another young man that had been a SEAL that I had a home loan for and knew well He had gotten out of the SEAL team He was going to become a CIA officer And he was in Afghanistan when a suicide bomber -- you'll have seen it in the movie Zero Dark Thirty -- was supposed to meet them at a location and blew them up And Jeremy's wife decided that she wanted to bury him at our Veterans Cemetery in Suffolk

And about three years later, Jeremy's brother, an SF enlisted service member, was killed in action And the family, not from Virginia, but they also wanted to bury him with his brother But Your Honor would know that at a Veterans Cemetery, burials are done symmetrically side by side You don't -- you don't have a spot reserved for someone

And so when I caught the Governor in the hallway and explained the dilemma and said, "They want their sons buried side by side so that they can be together for eternity," Bob said, "Just do whatever you have to do "

And so I called my agency and said -- the head of the Veterans Cemetery department said, "Don't worry about the cost Either the Governor or I will absorb it out of our offices, and do what we have to do and disinter Jeremy and rebury Jeremy beside Benjamin " And so they did

And so we couldn't fix Arlington, but we fixed that one

Q Is Bob somebody that holds grudges?

A Never In fact, I used to feel so guilty because he's so nice and never says a bad thing or is -- has any retribution toward anyone, and I couldn't say the same of myself And sometimes it's hard to spend so much time with someone that really is -- I mean, I know that so many people have testified to that, but it's really true, Your Honor It's really true

He is not a vengeful or grudge-holding person or someone that ever says an ill word or would ever express anything through an expletive I don't think he knows what an expletive is It's not in his language It's just not in his DNA

Q Does he have any flaws, from your perspective?

A I think that, at times, he's gullible and naive I think that he is someone that people can take advantage of Because he looks for the best in people He doesn't, I don't believe, identify when someone has an agenda and is just looking to get something from him

And that's something that was a little bit of a frustration And there would be times that I'd say, "Bob, you can't" -- "you've got to see where this person is coming from They are not" -- "they don't have your best intentions in mind here "

Q And his response would be?

A "Oh, Terrie No, no You've got to be a better person than that You've got to look for the good in people "

Q If Bob were out and about in business, would you work for him again?

A Absolutely Absolutely

Q Do you have any hesitation about that whatsoever, in view of what's transpired over the last 18 months?

A No I know Bob McDonnell I've known him for 20 years I -- no I -- no hesitation

Q And, finally, do you have anything that you'd ask -- that you'd like to ask Judge Spencer?

A Well, I mean, Your Honor, thank you for allowing us I know it's been a long day I used to sit on the floor and we would hear bill after bill, and members would get up and give these speeches, and I would just -- you know, all of us, and a lot of us, would think, "Oh, come on Sit down There's one more person taking up our time "

But every now and then, somebody would get up, like a Kenny Melvin, and they would make a statement that was just so compelling it made you stop and think and maybe change -- change your action, what you were coming in to do Maybe all of the sudden just because they said something very compelling, you thought, you know, maybe I will rethink this one

And, Your Honor, I don't know that I have the talent to say something so extraordinary and compelling, but I would just ask that you would hear the requests of all of those who have sat here today And the law gives you discretion, and I would ask that you use that discretion Guidelines are guidelines, but you're the one that the people have instilled, through your appointment, to make a decision based on what you think is right And I would just ask you to use that discretion, and if you find it in your heart, to give leniency to this man He's a good man

MR ASBILL: Thank you very much

THE COURT: Government?

MR. DRY: No questions, Your Honor

THE COURT: Thank you, ma'am You may stand down

MR. BROWNLEE: We have three more witnesses We will be brief. Thank you, Your Honor Bert Poole, please

ALBERT H. POOLE,

called as a witness by and on behalf of the defendant, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR BROWNLEE:

Q Good afternoon, sir Would you please state your name and spell your first and last name for the court reporter?

A I'm Albert Harrison Poole, A-L-B-E-R-T, P-O-O-L-E.

Q You understand you are here for the sentencing hearing of Bob McDonnell, your friend; is that correct?

A That's correct.

Q Tell Judge Spencer, how long have you known Bob McDonnell and how did you meet him?

A I've known Bob McDonnell since 1991, Your Honor I got to know him then because we got a call -- I was at his law firm, soon to be his law firm. We got a call from the Commonwealth's Attorney in Virginia Beach, and he said, "I've got this Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney in my office that's going to need a new job." I said, "Yes, sir?" "Basically, yeah, he was elected last night and he can't work here when he gets sworn into the General Assembly." "As a result," he said, "this is a really, really good young prosecutor You need to talk to him." So we did We invited him over to the firm. We sat down, we interviewed him, talked to him, and, as they say, the rest is history We hired him and that was the beginning of my knowing Bob and the beginning of his what I will call his non-government legal service, being a young member of the General Assembly trying to get started and established with the General Assembly, at the same time with a young family at home trying to raise a family

Q So he came on to your firm as an associate and ultimately was elevated as a partner; is that correct?

A That's correct He went through the normal process and was successfully promoted to partner

Q And just a little bit if you could tell the Court, I want to talk a little bit about his being an attorney Describe for Judge Spencer Bob McDonnell as a lawyer in private practice Was he a good lawyer, an ethical lawyer? Please describe briefly for the Court.

A Bob McDonnell was a good lawyer Like anyone, he had to learn, because he was just starting out in the regular practice when he came with us But he was a quick learner, and he was always operating at what you might call warp speed because he was pulling down a full-time legal docket at the same time that he was doing his responsibilities in the General Assembly and learning both at the same time But he became a very good lawyer He was well known as, I think, a very ethical lawyer, very highly respected by members of the Bar in the Hampton Roads area And likewise, I think, the judiciary thought very highly of him.

Q This is someone you worked with on a daily basis for many, many years; is that correct?

A Yes

Q And at some time, your firm decided to make him a partner And that was, I would imagine, like any law firm, that's a big deal, to bring in new partners And you did that with Bob McDonnell; is that correct?

A That's correct And you are right, it was a big deal But he passed the test, he did very well And we made a good decision when we brought him in to become actually a shareholder in the firm. It was a very good decision.

Q He served in that until he was elected Attorney General of our state; is that correct?

A That's correct

Q And I want to hit a couple things from your vantage point and your knowledge of him within the legal community Did people find him to be truthful and have integrity and honesty in all his dealings with people?

A I think that's absolutely correct. In all the years that I practiced law with Bob McDonnell, I really don't remember anyone coming to me and saying, "He is not treating us right," or "He is not doing the right thing." That just was not who Bob was as an attorney As his other testimony today has encompassed, he had a very big heart and he sought out the cases in which he could make a difference And that's why he ended up doing a great deal of pro bono work. While some law firms were establishing specific pro bono departments, we had Bob McDonnell Every now and then we had to remind him that he did get a paycheck and we had to charge some of those clients But that's the type of person he was and he did a great job for our law firm and did a wonderful job for those that he represented.

Q Terms like "greedy," terms like "materialistic," in your judgment, with the man that you know, are these terms that you would apply to Mr McDonnell?

A No

Q Those are not -- you have never seen that kind of conduct by him?

A That's not the Bob McDonnell that I have known over all of these years And at the time, I mean, he could care less whether he had a brand new designer suit or

Italian shoes That was just not Bob. Bob was not materialistic in what he did and he was very generous with his time and with his efforts for people

Q All right Mr Poole, at this time I would just ask you, is there anything you would like to tell Judge Spencer here before he sentences your friend today?

A Your Honor, again, thank you for the consideration you have given to this Bob McDonnell is a special person Obviously, he has risen to great heights in his political career He has done a great job for many people I know it is a tough decision Certainly, I would ask that the Court consider leniency He has a lot to give to a lot of people, and the more he can continue to give back, the more society is going to get from him. If there was ever a case for someone who has been an elected official to receive leniency, this is the case This is the special person. And I just ask that you give that consideration And thank you very much.

MR. BROWNLEE: Thank you.

THE COURT: Government?

MR. DRY: No questions, Your Honor

THE COURT: Thank you, sir You may stand down.

(Witness stood aside.)

MR. BROWNLEE: I call Janet Kelly, Your Honor

JANET KELLY,

called as a witness by and on behalf of the defendant, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. BROWNLEE:

Q Ma'am, would you please state your name and spell your first and last name for the court reporter?

A Sure It is Janet, J-A-N-E-T, Kelly, K-E-L-L-Y

Q Ms Kelly, you testified at the trial for Mr McDonnell; is that correct?

A Yes, sir

Q And you have submitted a fairly lengthy letter for Judge Spencer's consideration; is that correct?

A I did.

Q And so I don't want to go over, retread all that stuff I know the Court heard your testimony, has read your letters There's a couple things I wanted to ask you specifically to kind of fill in a couple gaps if I might

A Sure

Q When Mr McDonnell, when he was elected Governor, he appointed you to a specific position; is that correct?

A Yes, sir

Q What was that?

A I was Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Q In 15 seconds, what are the duties of the Secretary of the Commonwealth?

A It is the Secretary of State equivalent in other states, but since we are a Commonwealth that's the title It is responsible for mostly the 4,000 Board and Commission appointments as well as restoration of voting rights and a number of other administrative duties.

Q And fair to say that you had worked with him a very long time and he relied on you to do other things in your duties; is that correct?

A Duties as assigned. Yes.

Q I want to talk about just a couple of those There was an effort after Hurricane Katrina to provide for relief there We heard a little bit about it today about Mr McDonnell and his family doing that Describe that very briefly for Judge Spencer I want to make sure he understands what occurred there

A Sure I had been down to New Orleans in 2007 and came back on Cloud 9 It was a very difficult but rewarding trip, and I had talked about it around the office. And something that I said triggered something in Governor McDonnell, and a few months later he said, "I'm thinking about going to New Orleans " And then I thought he was kidding, honestly, because that isn't something that most people would do. And he didn't just go; he called a charity down there and took his whole family on their spring break trip I asked him why he did that. He said he wanted to make sure his children knew how other people lived and what it was like to suffer, and really wanted to impart that empathy on to them. And I think as you have heard earlier, they were not celebrity guests; they actually worked really hard there.

Q Let me move on to adoptions This is an area that you focused on certainly when he was Governor, he focused on. Tell the Court just briefly about that effort that he made as Governor

A Well, there were several staff members, several Cabinet members who have personal adoption stories, and throughout one of the course of those stories, it became known that there were private adoptions where people adopt babies, but that there were also a thousand children in Virginia's foster care system waiting to be adopted. And I had been in government and politics for fifteen years and wasn't aware of that. He had been in state government for many, many years and wasn't aware of it, either And it took him about 15 seconds to say, "Fix it," and so my husband, Ryan, and I, we at his task started developing a plan to take care of these children. It was the last year of the Administration, which made it remarkable for a lot of reasons Most Governors don't take on those kinds of projects that far in advance It was really an impossible goal. We knew we weren't going to hit it going in. It was impossible because we had to work with 110 different localities in Virginia who have their own separate Departments of Social Services Working with social workers is great, but working with 140 people of any caliber is always like herding cats when you are working in that short of a time frame So it was very hard, in addition to all the other duties that we had going on that year with Boards

But we built a great team and the Governor did anything we asked him to do and would make suggestions and say, "Can we do this?" "Can I do that instead?" He showed up everywhere and really used the bully pulpit to draw attention to these children. By the end of the Administration we matched 1,041 children with permanent, loving families It is the most dynamic and fulfilling thing I've ever done, and I think he would probably agree I don't know You will have to ask him.

Q There were many other things like the St. Joseph's School, this was a school that was in disrepair, about ready to crumble, and fair to say he stepped in and provided great leadership and that school is thriving today?

A Yes.

Q On the restoration of rights, you spent a lot of time on this and Ms Lawrence talked about the important part of that It was fair to say that wasn't politically expedient for him?

A No, I think it was probably the opposite

Q Lastly, just these food banks This is a thing he had worked on as Attorney General Tell the Court briefly his efforts in that and the results of that

A Sure He worked on it as an attorney in Virginia Beach, and when he became Attorney General decided to take the regional approach statewide and took advantage of the naturally competitive nature of attorneys, if you will, to compete against each other in raising money for food banks And he created something called the Legal Food Frenzy It has raised millions and millions of pounds of food over the last eight years since he took it on. It was just one of those things that he just throughout, I think, the common thing, at least I hope that's emerging out of today and his life in general, is that he doesn't just care -- he cares about powerful people, of course, and he cares about people with means and influence, but he cares about the waitress and the guy behind the counter and the gas attendant or whatever equally as much as he cares about the people in power

Q Is there anything you would like to say to Judge Spencer here briefly before you step down?

A I would just say I'm not an attorney, as you know, Your Honor My understanding of what you have to do today is to issue a sentence that is just but not greater than necessary And I would urge you to seriously consider some of these alternative sentences. If you find it not just in your heart but in your mind, I think it makes a lot of sense to have someone of his caliber and experience and skillset actually doing good for people. He is going to do good regardless of where he is But I think he will be an enormous amount of good in these areas of great and dire need. Thank you

THE COURT: All right Anything, government?

MR. DRY: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right, thank you, ma'am.

(Witness stood aside)

MR. BROWNLEE: Governor Wilder

L. DOUGLAS WILDER,

called as a witness by and on behalf of the defendant, having been first duly sworn by the Clerk, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. BROWNLEE:

Q Good afternoon, sir

A Good afternoon.

Q Would you please state your name and spell your first and last name for the court reporter?

A L. Douglas Wilder, D-O-U-G-L-A-S W-I-L-D-E-R.

Q Can you give the Court just a brief summary of your background beginning with your education and through your present position, sir?

A Very briefly I was educated in public schools here in the City of Richmond and went to Virginia Union University, and then to Howard University School of Law And I've lived in the City of Richmond my entire life except for the military service of about a couple of years and the period of time that I lived in Washington at law school

Q And with regard to your military service, you served in Korea, in the war in Korea?

A Yes, sir

Q You are a combat veteran?

A Yes, sir

Q I understand you were awarded the Silver Star for your actions in combat?

A No

Q Excuse me, the Bronze Star

A The lieutenant that I turned the prisoners over to got the Silver Star I got the Bronze

Q My apologies, sir Bronze Star You are a lawyer?

A Yes, sir

Q And you were --

A Still have my Bar card, too I might need it

Q And you were a State Senator here in Virginia?

A Yes, sir.

Q And you were Lieutenant Governor here in Virginia?

A Yes, sir

Q From 1990 to 1994 you were the Governor of Virginia?

A Yes, sir

Q And you have subsequently also served as the Mayor of the City of Richmond?

A Yes, sir

Q And during that time, you got to know my client, Bob McDonnell

A Yes, I did.

Q Can you tell Judge Spencer a little bit about your relationship with Bob McDonnell, sir?

A I first met him, he introduced himself to me I was down in Virginia Beach giving a speech for a Veterans' Day event and he and his wife, Maureen, were there with the children. And if I am not mistaken, those boys were in a stroller and he said, "I want you to meet my family " I said, "I would very much like to do that " He said, "And I'd like to be chatting with you sometime, too, soon " I said, "Well, we will get a chance to do that." Then ultimately when he came back to the city and service, he had been involved with helping what I was doing relative to the One Gun A Month bill, which was Virginia law up until a year or so ago. And he was stalwart in that regard. And there were those who didn't think that he should have done that, being that his party is not my party So he stuck to his guns and we became friends at that time. But we, more than friends, became respecting of each other's philosophies, our various views of life, and the understanding of what public service really means It means to serve the public. I always liked that.

Q Do you believe he did that?

A I do.

Q And can you tell Judge Spencer why you believe that?

A Well, in the instances in which I have had occasion to chat with him or talk with him, it was always with reference to how we could improve government He was very proud of the fact that he had come from humble beginnings, as well as having served in the same position that Patrick Henry served in And I used to tell him, "I like that, too." I always got the impression that he was looking for something else to do to help rather than just to hold the seat I was also impressed with his military service and knowing that he had been involved in military service, that another higher calling would be serving in state government And I had great respect for him.

Q Did you in your dealings with him, sir, did you find him to be ethical and trustworthy?

A Yes. I found him to be of his word. If he told you something, you could go to sleep on it

Q And that's important to you, I would imagine?

A Most important to me, because don't all of us do that

Q Words like "greed," words like "materialistic," do those apply to your friend, Bob McDonnell?

A I never was impressed with that I never knew that One of the things that I have always admired in people who were in public service, that they not forget that they serve the public; that the office is not there for them, it is what they can use that offers to help other people And I was always of the impression that Bob did that

Q Let me ask you a little bit about being Governor You are one of the very few folks who have served in that position. There are certain pressures, I would imagine, with being Governor, many challenges

A Yes, sir

Q Describe for the Court, give us a sense of what that's like and what are those challenges and pressures that governors and the type of people you meet can be susceptible to?

A Well, one of the first things is to be certain that you keep your word and to be certain that if you make a commitment, you follow through with it; that you understand that you don't represent a group of people or a class of people, you represent everybody, even those who never voted, who couldn't vote And other pressures are such that people will always be calling upon you to do things and to fix things, and sometimes you can't do that, but you do the best you can. One of the things that I was very upset with was that I had promised so much to so many when I was elected, only to find out we were broke and I couldn't deliver on that. And it bothered me a great deal, so much so that I said, "I won't leave the next Governor broke." And I made certain that I didn't.

Q Yes, sir One of the things we talked about when we met was how many friends and supporters Bob McDonnell still has today, even after all this trial and after its result Do you have a sense of why that is?

A Well, I think he is a people person. And I think when he is in public, he is with the public. And I think that people have recognized many of the things he has done that have benefited them and helped Virginia His role as Attorney General was very strong, very good, very productive And he ranked high nationally as a result of that. When he came into office as Governor, he was able also to learn how to reach across the aisle and to work with people of both persuasions I have always admired that, too. I never knew, I hated to recognize the existence of an aisle, so it is not a matter of having to reach across it You talk to everybody And he did that

Q You have seen your friend over the last year, year-and-a-half I think we talked about how he has suffered, I think was the word you used Describe for the Court kind of what you have seen and how this whole thing has impacted him.

A Well, it's eaten at him to the extent that it is almost like the mythical creature that had a piece of his liver eaten out every day and then you find out, say. "How much is left?" So I was always concerned about how he was doing And I said to him on a couple occasions that he didn't look good. He had lost the color in his skin and it looked like he had lost some weight. And I would say to him that "Whatever it is you do, you make certain that you are level and you are rested. Don't carry it with you to the extent that it is going to bother you."

The pressures of the office are awesome Virginia, being a one-term Governorship, there is so much that you have to do in that four-year period of time. In his case, I knew he was dealing with some of these other things, and yet he carried out the responsibilities of his office as if that were not the case, that he was still above the fray, he was still involved with meeting his responsibilities and did so on a regular basis.

Q Yes, sir. As you may have heard, and I know we have discussed, one of the things that we have put forward here for the Court's consideration is a probationary sentence and what we call rigorous community service for three years to be out in the Bristol, Virginia area, Southwest Virginia, helping the poor, food banks, the missions that are out there You are a trained lawyer; you are a litigator Can you give the Court your sense of the appropriateness of that and why you think that is legitimate and important here?

A Well, one of the things that you asked earlier, and I didn't respond as I should have continued, Bob McDonnell, had he not run afoul relative to the charges being brought in this Court and in this case, would not be on anyone's short list for the Vice President He would be on the short list for President in this country Without question, had he not run into the difficulty again, he would have been ranked as one of the best governors that Virginia has ever had. And so with those two things now removed from the plate, he has been punished, been punished indelibly, forever That can never be removed. There is no magic wand that can be waved to take away that taint relative to what his reputation was and what it could be and what it might be

And yet, I'm almost confident that there are any numbers of persons that see so much good in him that they would like to see that good continue in the fashion that you have just described as it relates to providing opportunities and things for others to be able to do that they might not otherwise have the chance to do If Bob McDonnell were to be given fifty years, it wouldn't be any more punishment in terms of how he has suffered So it is not the measurement of the time; it is what do you do. He has been stigmatized already He has been hurt and wounded, almost permanently So I would think it would be, within the Court's discretion, of course, to temper justice with mercy, to likewise understand what good is there that could be shared, and looking at the totality of the circumstances, and then to decide

Q Sir, the only thing I have left is if you have anything you would like to direct to Judge Spencer, I would ask that you do that at this time

A Yes I would say to Judge Spencer that I have heard any number of persons describe the manner in which this trial has been handled and the measure by which this Court has presided, and I congratulate you again on that. Judge, I don't need to tell you any of those things that you have heard. You have heard it all this morning, and you have heard it heretofore And you are possessed of the qualities that would allow you to do those things that you would consider best serving the ends of justice Thank you.

THE COURT: Government?

MR. DRY: Yes, Your Honor Briefly

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. DRY:

Q Good afternoon, Covernor Wilder

A Good afternoon.

Q Sir, I'd like to pick up, you talked about how the defendant has been stigmatized by these convictions, right?

A Yes, sir

Q But isn't it true, sir, that every elected official that has been convicted of bribery is stigmatized?

A Yes

Q Wasn't Delegate Hamilton, in fact, stigmatized by his convictions in this courthouse in 2011?

A Yes

Q But you are aware he got nine-and-a-half years in jail, right?

A Yes

Q Sir, you said that one thing that's important to you is that elected officials should not forget that they serve the public, correct?

A Yes, sir

Q But you would agree that accepting bribes, that's not serving the public, right?

A I would agree.

Q And briefly, sir, you would agree with me that there is a cynicism in the United States from the public overall about their elected officials now

A Yes I couldn't agree with you more in that regard, so much so that it is dangerous Dangerous to the extent that if we have our young people believing that government doesn't exist for them, and if our nation doesn't continue to show that government is of, for, and by the people, then it is a dangerous precedent

Q Let's pick up on that, sir When you say "for the people," it is not just the people that have hundreds of thousands of dollars of things to bestow on the politicians, right?

A Absolutely right

Q Because access, regardless of station in life, to the political process, that's important, right?

A I couldn't agree with you more

Q In fact, when an elected official accepts bribes, that goes to the very heart of our democratic process, doesn't it?

A Yes, sir

Q And that increases the cynicism, doesn't it?

A Yes, sir.

Q And in fact, that makes people think that their vote doesn't really matter, doesn't it?

A And in many instances, it would. Also I would respond, though, that when you look at the totality of the case and you look at the progenitor of the bribe, that source of who was there, and when the public looks and sees that this person who actually started everything walks away clean --

Q Absolutely, Your Honor But did Senator Hamilton --

(Applause from the gallery)

Were the bribe payers prosecuted in Senator Hamilton's case or Delegate Hamilton's case?

A I don't know that much about that case. But I don't know that they were

Q Okay And sir, while you were serving as Governor, did you -- let's do it this way Would you have ever accepted a Rolex watch from somebody that wanted to do business with the state?

A I usually bought my own.

Q Okay, fair enough. And would you have accepted a Ferrari ride?

A No, I wouldn't have accepted many of those things. On the other hand, you would be surprised at what goes on that you don't know about I had people that would see me sometimes and say, "I really am glad that I had the opportunity to meet with you and chat with you and the appointment that you gave me in terms of just to talk." And I would say, "Well, fine, that's what we are there for " He said, "It cost me enough money " "It cost you money to see me?" "Yes " There are people who will hawk that office There are people who will say, "I can get you in to see the Governor" or do this and do the other and they are paid for it I didn't know anything about it To the extent that I started finding out about it, I made it very clear that anyone that wanted to see me, all they needed to do was call the receptionist and they can see me

Q So paying for a meeting, that would be wrong

A I would not permit it

Q Okay Last question, sir: Were you surprised when the facts came out about what Mr McDonnell had done in this case?

A That can go both ways I'll tell you why I say that People used to ask me, they'd say, "Wilder, don't think you are above everything because everybody has got a price " I would say, "Yes, that might be true " They would say, "What is your price?" I said, "My price would be that I never would have to buy anything, never have to pay for anything, I could fly all over the world when I wanted." They'd say, "You are asking for too much." I said, "That's the price " The point I'm making to you is that if you follow the case in terms of guilt or innocence, that's one thing We are not here for that today

Q No, sir

A What we are here to talk about, all of that having been done, all of that having passed, and I know the appellate process is going to take place, but has the action of the defendant in this case warranted what the Guidelines call for, or can the Guidelines be tempered to the extent that has been the case in many instances when judges have felt that, "Look, this doesn't make sense, notwithstanding this is what we should do."

Q But you would agree with me, sir, that in fashioning the sentence the Judge should look at the actual crimes themselves, correct?

A I think the judges should look, and I'm confident this Judge will look at the totality of the circumstances and take everything into consideration.

Q So am I, sir Thank you

THE COURT: All right You may stand down.

(Witness stood aside)

(Applause from the gallery.)

Anything else?

MR. ASBILL: No more testimony

THE COURT: All right Government, do you have any testimony?

MR. DRY: No evidence, Your Honor

THE COURT: All right All right, I'll hear argument from the defendant

MR. ASBILL: Thank you, Your Honor I know you have gotten a lot of letters, 450 letters, and 365 notes that my client's staff put together for him at the end of his term. And some of the writers of those notes overlap with some of the letters But I think by my count there are about 600, 650 individual people who have expressed their views about my client to you in their letters or in their notes that we have submitted. And I don't intend to reiterate each of those, but I want to focus on some of them. I'm not going to focus on the ones that have been referenced in our pleadings I want to focus on the ones that have not yet been referenced specifically in the pleadings and talk about it

I want to say as I start this, essentially what I am talking about is the nature and characteristics of my client. I'm talking about his character And that's obviously something that's an important factor in the sentencing calculus.

I look back at this and think about my client's character, and you know, somebody gave me a gift, a business colleague of mine gave me a gift this Christmas, and it was a little plate And it said, "Ability gets you where you are, but character keeps you there " And certainly with respect to Bob McDonnell, ability got him into the Commonwealth's Attorney's Office It got him into a law firm. It may have got him into the House of Delegates initially. But it was his character that made him a partner; it was his character that kept him in the House of Delegates; it was his character that made him Attorney General; and it was his character that got him to the Governorship.

I have spent literally thousands of hours with this man over the last year and a half in representing him in this case And like others who have testified here today, I have never heard him say an unkind or an uncharitable word about another human being, ever No matter how difficult the circumstances were, no matter how adversarial I felt the situation was, I have never heard him do that

I have watched him interact with people, and a lot of the folks who I'm going to talk about have interacted with him as well And I have been humbled, I've been astonished, frankly, at the compassion and the generosity that this man has shown to others He is somebody who is unique in my life experience in terms of being a healer He is a grief counselor He mends He loves in ways that I find truly remarkable They have been an inspiration to me, and it has been something that I just can't fully comprehend it. I know how in my own imperfect way to try to console somebody who is hurting, a friend or relative who has lost a loved one or had some tragedy occur I can't come close to connecting with that person in a way that actually helps them like this man can. It is truly extraordinary to me. But that's the human being that he is

I go through these letters and I read from some of them, here is a Joseph Adams writing: "My father passed away in a fishing accident " This is a friend of Chris and Cailin, my client's daughter and son-in-law "Bob didn't know the man but he was the only friend of this young couple that called to console the wife in this circumstance No other person that they know did that." And he writes to you and asks that you see the different side of the man from the Governor perspective, but from the personal perspective

I look at the letter from Richard Black, who is a State Senator here, who writes that "Bob could have been one of the wealthiest attorneys in the State of Virginia. Instead, he focused on public service and he was much more devoted to the Commonwealth than he was to himself, and he was kind to everyone, regardless of their station."

I look at Monica Block, who testified in this courtroom. "I remember thinking that if the prosecution could have spent a day working for him like I spent many days, they would see the real him and know that while things might have been less than perfect, his intentions were always pure "

I look at Karla Boughey's letter "Governor McDonnell made people at ease " And she tells about a moment when there was a reception for Governor Romney when a young man passed out, fainted, fell to the floor, hit his face, hit his nose, et cetera, a high school student "And the most embarrassing moment of his life turned into one of the best moments of his life because Bob McDonnell ignored everything else and went to this young man and picked him up and helped him out." And she writes that that tells the story of a man's character

I look at the letter from Lisa Caruso "After becoming Governor, I would see Bob and he always told me how proud he was of me. That meant so much. I told him how proud I was of him. Regardless of the verdict in the case, I'm still proud of him as a man and for all the positives he has accomplished. Knowing him has made me and countless others better people "

I look at Holly Clifton's letter "My favorite story was when Governor McDonnell attended an event where he was headlining in support of a candidate and he whispered to my colleague, 'Who is the guest of honor tonight?' to which she replied, 'You are, Governor ' I heard this story play out many times as he merely saw himself -- he never saw himself as the draw, the one others were coming to see and be with. It was with his humility -- In fact, it was his humility that was the draw for me and so many others who have worked for and known him. This sort of humility from a person of power encourages and challenges us all "

I look at Victoria Cobb. She did not agree with the Governor on strategies on a lot of issues, but she said that he was always an honest broker, he was a man with humility, despite the office he held.

I look at William Cofer's letter, who talks about humility and compassion and tells a very telling story about walking into the Patrick Henry Building on a legislative session and heading towards the elevators, and sees a young woman sitting dejectedly near one of the doors and the room was otherwise empty "And then suddenly a man rushes over to this young woman who is sitting on the floor dejected and tries to console her and find out what's happened And she starts telling that person that her life had been extraordinarily difficult over the past couple of weeks And the person who was consoling her was trying to comfort her, shared his compassion and empathy " And when this William Cofer looks closer, he finds out that it is the Governor who is doing this, giving this person his undivided attention and basically a shoulder to cry on, and he had no idea who this woman was and she had no idea who he was But this is the kindness, the compassion, the humble nature of this man towards others

I look at Sean Connaughton's letter, who was Bob's Secretary of Transportation. "In the years I've known Bob, I have never met a public servant more dedicated to doing what he thought was best for Virginia and its citizens He did not stand on partisan political ideology "

I look at Holly Cuellar's letter She tells a vignette about Bob being approached by a homeless person The man asked for money and explained his dire situation "Governor McDonnell stopped and listened and gave him money from his pocket and a business card and explained 'Let me help you find a job '"

This is his personal commitment to people Bob's brother-in-law, Jason Deane, writes: "To lose his guidance for any length of time would be a terrible loss to the family and friends of Bob McDonnell. But even more so to a complete stranger that finds himself fortunate enough to meet Bob along the way "

I look at Kathryn Deane's letter And she writes: "The hardest thing in the world is unconditional love It is selfless, sometimes painful, and always sincere. Uncle Bob loves unconditionally every day of his life "

I look at Karen Fortier's letter And she writes she supervised Bob McDonnell in the Commonwealth's Attorney's Office "The work we did had the effect of hardening the hearts of some of the prosecutors and defense attorneys There were sometimes cruel judgment against defendants and even some victims, sarcasm, profanity, and frankly a good deal of arrogance on the part of some of my fellow criminal attorneys on both sides of the cases And then there was Bob McDonnell, and none of that applied to him." She writes: "He is still a humble man He is not a Ferrari guy "

Paige Hahn, a fundraiser for Bob for six years, writes: "Governor McDonnell gave me hope in our elected officials and made me realize that there actually are good people in politics He is the real deal I've never worked with such an ethical, thoughtful, and inspiring man He fundamentally believes his purpose is to serve God, his family, and his country He doesn't give a hoot about money or personal possessions I think if the goal of this case is to send a message to politicians nationwide, they have heard it loud and clear "

Perry Hohman writes: "Despite Bob's circumstances, I'm not deterred from giving him the strongest recommendation Whatever the legal proceedings may call my assessment into question, I believe that many of us made mistakes and this does not waiver me from my reference I want to add that Bob called me to discuss this legal case and he could not have been more remorseful and more humble "

Stephanie Iaquinto writes: "Outside of my family, I cannot think," she was a volunteer in his delegate office, "I can't think of a single individual who has had a more positive or lasting influence on my life I have never heard him say a disparaging thing about another human being This trait frustrated some of us in his office who saw it as a sign of misplaced trust, even gullibility. In hindsight, though, it was clear it was an outward manifestation of his faith, showing grace to others because God had shown him grace "

Tamyra Johnson writes, he is a third-grade elementary schoolteacher: "I'm not going to waste your time with all the stories because I will tell you they are all the same He is caring, he is giving, he is loving, and he is the most honest man I have ever known I write this with every fiber of my being and I know it is true Loyalty is his cornerstone and he has served us well "

James Keegan, Bob's Notre Dame roommate: "It would have been easy for him to settle into a six-figure job but he wanted to help people His move into public service made complete sense to all that know Bob. Helping people was the core of Bob McDonnell He has never been into material things and he always wanted to make a difference with his life When my brother passed away suddenly in 2014, in July of 2014, Bob called to offer support to me, although his trial was just about to commence. He spent the phone call asking how I was doing, not talking about his needs or his problems He kept the focus on my grief and offered his prayers, his friendship, and his support "

Bill Kilberg writes: "My wife, Bobbie, and I have lived in Virginia since 1970 My wife ran for Lieutenant Governor. The contest was fiercely competitive and I observed close at hand the personal support Bob gave to Bobbie at substantial risk to his own political future with his conservative wing of the Republican Party which was opposed to Bobbie's candidacy Bob concluded Bobbie was the best candidate and it took courage on his part to stand up for it "

Andrea Kilmer writes: "The picture of his life painted in this trial is but a small glimpse of the man that many of us know personally and professionally to espouse the ideals of honesty, honor and integrity This has been a travesty not only for the McDonnell family but also for all of us in the Commonwealth "

Matt Lohr writes: "I will never forget," after he talks about his wife passing away with breast cancer, and in the months that followed after this occurred, "Bob attended the funeral and he arrived early to meet with the family I will never forget when he got down on his knees and hugged my five-year-old son while crying with all of us I saw that day a man who was truly grieving with us and was willing to do whatever he could to comfort all of us For the next two years, almost every time I saw him he asked me about how we were doing He is a man who truly cares for his family and feels the pain of those around him. To this day I will always be grateful "

The Bishop of Arlington, Paul Loverde, writes: "Bob has made a difference." He is talking about the adoptive program and the food banks "For the children and families he has made a difference that will last a lifetime and cannot be measured."

MR ASBILL: Christel Lewis writes, "I was one of Bob's mentors in the Commonwealth Attorney's Office He's the special person who always leaves one feeling good about himself I've never heard anyone say a harsh word about him "

And I want to pick up on that because in the course of this trial in this case and all the investigation that I did of witnesses and potential witnesses in this case, other than arguments from my opposing counsel, I've never heard anyone say a negative word about Bob McDonnell in this courtroom Even Jonnie Williams had to struggle hard to say something negative about Bob, but nobody else did

Edmund Matricardi writes -- and I'm sure you remember him and seen his letter

THE COURT: I've seen it

MR ASBILL: And he asks and reminds you of his own sentencing when he asked you to consider not trying to send a message or fall into that in terms of what you do at sentencing, but sentence him as the man, not as somebody that you can use as an example to others

Monsignor McCarron writes -- a priest for 37 years in the Richmond Diocese -- "I've come to see this man He's sincere in his integrity It's no mask or public persona to be taken on and off at whim It is simply who he is To see this man in a crowd as Attorney General, Governor, parishioner in the pew or brother of the bride is to see the same man There is no pretense, no haughtiness Just an honest man who likes the people he serves "

Robert McDowell writes: "He exudes a sincere sympathy that" -- "empathy" -- excuse me -- "that emanates from the foundation of his character He is genuinely sincere and has strong character It's apparent in all contexts, even outside of the public view "

Reverend Sean McGraw from the University of Notre Dame says: "Bob is the most generous, kind, thoughtful, and faith-filled person I have ever met He is certainly the most gentle and honest politician I have ever met, and I know a lot of them from my work as a political science professor here at Notre Dame "

Cheryl McLeskey, a friend from Virginia Beach, writes to this day, strangers come up to her and ask how he is carrying -- Bob McDonnell is carrying this burden "But to this day, Bob cares about others I saw him walk into the Kempsville Presbyterian Church A woman by the name of Juanita Gardner had just lost her husband Bob McDonnell walked up to the woman and knelt down on his knees, touching her cheeks, praying and expressing how sorry he was that her husband had passed He is a man with a servant's heart "

Senator McWaters writes: "I have yet to speak to one person who believes Bob acted intentionally to deceive the public and gain personally "

Robert Neil Miller writes: "I go by my middle name, Neil So it was popular for me to tell people I named my son, Bobby, after Governor McDonnell That's how much I think of him "

Mary Mints, a friend since college, writes that: "I've always found Bob to be kind, trustworthy, and a gentleman whom I consider not only a friend, but a brother I would trust him with my life "

Phil Miskovic, Councilman Town of Crewe, writes: "At events Bob would greet each person who approached him, listening to their concerns for as long as they would talk, giving each person a voice His servant leadership style continues to inspire me as I try to make my small part of Virginia a better place "

Loren Monroe writes: "He's the most human and humble of elected officials that I've come across in my 20 years as a lobbyist "

Deborah Munoz writes: "I was touched by the fact that Bob and my husband, Tito, who was an Hispanic immigrant, became close friends This is enduring to me because Tito is an unassuming and hardworking man who came here as an immigrant from Columbia Many people overlook him and do not care to listen, but Bob always did "

I read from Ashley Myers' letter: "As a low-level staffer in Bob's office, I was treated with the same respect as that of a foreign diplomat Governor McDonnell was and remains the most kind-hearted, humble, and thoughtful man I've ever had the pleasure of knowing I would work for him again in a heartbeat "

Mark Obenshain, whom I'm sure the Court is aware of, writes: "While I find some of the personal choices and decisions made by the Governor to be regrettable and difficult to explain, he is a man I admire and continue to respect I have seen political figures who have developed a loyal following arising from ambition or opportunism. That's what they want from him That's not the kind of commitment I've witnessed from Bob's staffers What I witnessed from them was their love was developed and fostered by his obvious care for them as individuals and by his commitment to public service "

Jeffrey Palmore writes: "I once had a Virginia legislator tell me that if he and his wife were not able to take care of their son for some reason and they could pick anyone to raise their child, they'd pick Bob McDonnell I have seen countless examples of him taking the high road and adopting honorable approaches to issues that confronted him when his opponents were adopting less savory approaches It's often said politics is a contact sport, but Bob McDonnell's political career was marked by dealing with friends and opponents alike, honestly and respectfully "

Todd Parker, a doctor, an emergency room physician, tells the story by starting that "Bob McDonnell is one of the finest people I have ever met " And he talks about his interaction with him And he goes, "I asked for his help with including funding in his final budget for a little known clause in the state Medicaid payments to emergency physicians that punished ER physicians caring for state Medicaid patients under federally mandated care

We met with him, and after reviewing the documents and hearing our case, he agreed it was not fair to punish ER physicians financially when caring for patients they are mandated to see, and he put money in his budget for this purpose

Most significant about this was that it required increasing Medicaid funding, something that he was opposed to, and would also be financially harmful to the company that his sister worked for, which was a Medicaid managed care company I pointed out these facts to Bob, and he said, 'It doesn't matter It's the right to thing to do, and if it's the right thing to do, it needs to be done '"

Sherri Paugh, a friend for 40 years, writes: "He is the guy who asks about you, how you were doing Nothing changed when he became Governor There was no arrogance whatsoever "

Charles Poindexter, from the House of Delegates, writes: "I found him especially dedicated to citizens that had experienced tragic events in their life One case stands out to me That was when Bob McDonnell stepped forward to assist counsel and become close friends with a Franklin County couple who lost their only son to an IED in Iraq He literally took them in as his own family, visited them, and helped them move forward with their lives "

Logan Pugh writes: "It was a great honor to work for the Governor of Virginia, but it was a much higher honor to work for Bob McDonnell, the man "

Emily Rabbitt, who testified in this trial, a Scheduler for Bob McDonnell, says: "I got to know him incredibly well Although I was still young" -- "although I am still young in my career, I'm confident that my service to the McDonnell Administration will remain the highest honor of my life I am a better person today because I was given the opportunity to work for Bob McDonnell Furthermore, Virginians are better off because Bob McDonnell was able to serve them for the last 20 years "

Liz Reiley, a childhood friend of Bob's who is a --

as she puts it, a rabbit Democrat, talks about Bob coming, at the time of his trial, to a mass -- a funeral mass for his sister Mame Reiley, who had died of cancer She was a well-known Democratic operative in Virginia and in national politics And her family, the Reiley family, did not know Bob was going to attend that funeral And he didn't know how he might be received because the family all shared the sister's liberal politics

"Without regard to that, Bob came to the mass because he respected my sister and he respected the shared history between our families He did it because it was the right thing to do, and he exhibited courage in doing so And then afterwards, when he was in Northern Virginia, visiting a classmate whose wife had been murdered, Bob, rather than dwelling in self-pity after his trial and conviction, went to see his friend and went to see me and others who were suffering That speaks to the good and decent man that he is, the same qualities I saw in him when he was a young boy He did not ask me to write this letter I sought out the opportunity to make a request on his behalf for leniency when he is sentenced "

Pat Robertson, the chancellor of Regent University, writes: "I have written to Bob McDonnell to indicate that Regent would be willing to offer him a position as a faculty member in the School of Government when his obligation of the current legal proceedings are at an end "

And he's one of many who write that they would still employ Bob McDonnell if he were interested in working for them, despite the convictions in this case

Bryan Rhode, who worked with Bob, writes: "I was privileged to spend a great deal of time with him He's the most genuine, kind, and dedicated public servant I have ever seen " He writes that: "He was an exceptional leader because the things he did were never about him He always rallied to a higher cause and sought to do what was best for the people of Virginia. No jail sentence, fine or other punishment will ever punish him more than he has punished himself He is my friend, but he is also a hero of mine The fact that so many people have continued to stand by him in this difficult time is a testament to the person that he is "

Samantha Rucker talks about Bob wearing clothes with patches in his suits, et cetera, during the gubernatorial campaign And also, on this greed theme that my opponents keep harping on, she talks about a situation -- she was in the Attorney General's Office with him And she said there was a time in the Attorney General's Office when the State was faced with a budget deficit "Bob, leading the way, I remember him and nine of his deputies, top deputies, taking a salary reduction to avoid staff layoffs My understanding at the time was that no other Attorney General had ever done such a selfless act "

A Notre Dame friend, Stephen Sanders, a Commander U S Navy Retired, writes: "Nobody I know ever had an unpleasant experience with or thought ill of Bob This was recently supported when a Washington Post reporter contacted our Notre Dame class ombudsman during the governorship campaign, looking to interview former classmates of his Word of the inquiry was spread and plenty of classmates who would be considered polar opposites politically of Bob had a perfect chance to speak to the reporter Like many Virginians even now, my classmates liked and respected Bob, and there were no takers "

Christopher Saxman writes: "Bob was always there for the right reason He respected everyone without fail, without sincerity" -- or excuse me, "with sincerity and with consistency He never got upset or short-tempered He was almost too nice When someone asked me what kind of guy he really is, I usually answered, 'The kind of guy who you hope marries your sister ' They would laugh, and I would say, 'I'm serious ' He's one of the finest men I've ever had the pleasure of knowing "

The retired chief of police for the County of Henrico writes to the Court, this is Henry Stanley: "This is the first" -- "in asking you for leniency, this is the first time in my 48-year law enforcement career that I have ever written a letter requesting leniency for anyone I gave much thought to whether I should write a letter to you, and in the end, I felt compelled to do that to share my experiences and observations of Bob McDonnell When all is written and spoken, he has lost much of the accomplishments in life, and the road to recovery is going to be difficult, if not impossible The attention the media has placed on this case will haunt him for a lifetime "

Lisa Sutton writes with this anecdote: "I've never met a man, let alone a politician, who has more integrity than Bob McDonnell As a legislator, he was beyond reproach I remember when he, along with other legislators, received a beautiful coffee table book of photos of Virginia At the time, the limit was $35 for gifts When he found out the book cost $37 50, he immediately returned it to the donor He is an asset to Virginia, and his absence will create a vacuum in the state he loves "

Ivan Tepper, the CEO of Delta Star, writes: "I have unsuccessfully attempted to avoid politics for over 33 years, but unfortunately, my wife is involved in politics so I'm dragged into it I'm from Chicago where politics is a blood sport But in any event, I have never met a more awkward and reluctant candidate than Bob was when he was asking for campaign donations I had to pull the number out of him Bob worked at a grueling pace as the Governor He is one whom I would be proud to have as an employee after these matters have come to pass if he wanted to work for me and my company "

Bruce Thompson, a friend of Bob's from Virginia Beach who has the largest hospitality company in the Commonwealth, writes a very telling story about Bob He said, "As a key supporter of the Governor, I utilized our friendship and the fact that I had supported him to lobby him to ensure that the schools would not open prior to Labor Day and, candidly, I was confident he would support my position in that regard I was wrong

He gave me the courtesy of a call to advise me that in spite of my friendship, in spite of my financial support for his campaigns, the education of the children in the Commonwealth, in his mind, was more important than the economic impact to the tourism industry as a result of sending students back to school prior to the Labor Day weekend

His support of opening schools prior to Labor Day cost my company thousands of dollars to mount a campaign against the Governor's initiative While to date, we have been successful in maintaining post Labor Day school openings in Virginia, it certainly was much to my dismay without the support or cooperation of, quote, my friend, Bob McDonnell

Then to add insult to injury, after being solicited to become a member of the UVA Board of Governors, it was Governor McDonnell who told me that at this time in the school's history, I would not be an acceptable candidate for the open position Once again, I was extremely disappointed I had dedicated a significant amount of my personal and financial resources to Bob's campaign efforts However, when it came time to assist me with my personal interests, Governor McDonnell acted in a manner that was what he deemed to be in the best interest of the Commonwealth I do not know the Governor who bargains campaign contributions and friendships for personal favors, and to this day, I don't believe that man exists "

Deborah Wood, the CEO of Renova Center, writes: "I would hire him in a minute if he returns to Tidewater I hope he will come to me for a job "

Chris Young, who is Bob's son-in-law, married to his daughter, Cailin, writes: "If there's one thing of which I am certain it's that Bob cares for the well-being of others unlike any other person I've ever met I have witnessed numerous occasions when he has comforted somebody who was suffering and the person didn't even know who he was I've seen him comfort somebody at the beach who lost their child while the lifeguards conducted a beach-wide search I've seen him comfort a neighbor whose dog has run away from home and has not returned He does these things all the time If he is allowed to remain out of prison, I have no doubt he will live an honorable and service-minded life dedicated to helping others The world will not be a better place for his absence "

And Adam Zubowsky, and I'm down to Z, writes -- he was Bob's body man He did not testify in this trial He's married to Jeanine McDonnell "Watching the trial play out on Twitter and in the press, like most of the community in Virginia, I was frustrated over and over again to watch innocent conversations and brief situations be turned around and manipulated with hindsight and spin I was there every day I could listen That was my job, et cetera

Bob was the first to create the Attorney General's Office food bank drive He was the first to bring this campaign to the Governor's office He was the first Governor to visit a jail during his inauguration week He spoke directly to prisoners about creating a prison education reentry program in his administration in order to help those who were incarcerated A lot of Governors do important things during inauguration week, but none besides Bob McDonnell actually went inside of a jail to speak directly to that constituency about he was going to be the Governor of every Virginian and to ask them what he could do to help them "

And a final letter I want to reference, because I think it's incredibly insightful, and I hope you've had an opportunity to think about it a little, is the one from Father Wayne Ball, who has counseled Bob over the course of this investigation and the trial, and with whom Bob has lived during the course of the trial and now as we speak as well And he talks about how he knows Bob and what he does in terms of his priest work And he says, "I mostly deal with marriage cases, and I've also worked as a chaplain for" -- "at Petersburg And I've worked mostly in psychiatry "

And he talks about Bob growing up in an Irish Catholic family, almost a stereotypical Catholic family "Everyone says the mother was a saint, and I have no doubt about that She drilled into her children the two great Commandments and the Beatitudes As the oldest and the one most like his mother, for Bob the primary Beatitude was blessed are the peacemakers By the time he arrived on my doorstep this summer, I knew that he had some distorted notions about what it means to be a good Christian and what it means to love You or I may have looked at Jonnie Williams and from a mile away said, 'Snake oil salesman ' Bob would have said, 'We are not being Christian ' I have no doubt Bob would have told Bobby to give back the golf clubs, but when Bobby said he was keeping them, Bob would have dropped it In his mind, Christian families do not fight Bob thinks like his beloved mother did; that you can love someone into good behavior But sometimes you can't

Part of the decision for Bob to move in with me was a recognition by his siblings that there was work to be done with Bob and that I, Father Wayne, was in a unique position to do it All of his siblings could attest that I have pushed not just Bob, but everyone to take ownership of any part they may have had in this tragedy Over these past months, Bob has come to accept many hard truths about many things, including himself Like all of us, there is still work to do, and I hope that someone will allow me to continue to accompany him in this process As for Bob, what more is there to do? His name is destroyed in the thing that he cherishes most in this world, his family, has been ripped asunder Please, Judge, show the world that you are a man of charity and most of all, a man of help Bob helps people grieve He helps people heal He helps people love The other relevant Beatitude, aside from blessed are the peacemakers, is blessed are the merciful And as Senator Kaine wrote, 'The first thing I ask when someone wants me to show mercy is whether they have been merciful to others ' And Bob has done so to his political detriment "

On my client's behalf and on the many hundreds of people's behalf who have stood by him, I ask you to temper justice with mercy in this case for my client Thank you, sir

THE COURT: Government

MR DRY: Your Honor, the defense argues that this is not a classic case of bribery and that on the scale of quid pro quo, this is a very, very, very strange -- strained interpretation They argue there's no evidence there was any pressure placed on anyone by the defendant They argue that there's no evidence the defendant took any unusual steps in exchange for bribes

The defense points to numerous letters on the defendant's behalf describing him as, quote, an exceptional man, an extraordinary public servant who cares about individuals, who takes on difficult causes, causes that are not popular, end quote

The defense offers the testimony of many character witnesses who testified that, quote, he's an outstanding human being He's a man of character He's a man of integrity, end quote The defense points out the defendant has -- is almost 60 years old, has never had so much as a parking ticket The defense extols the virtue of the defendant's more than 30 years of public service and argues that the defendant, quote, made it his personal cause to try to improve the lot of thousands of Virginians

The defense argues that the defendant is, quote, a man who has already lost just about everything The defense argues that a guideline sentence is more than necessary to deter other public officials, given the collateral consequences to the defendant of the convictions

Each and every one of those arguments was made on August 12th of 2011 at the sentencing of Phil Hamilton These are the same argue the defendants are -- the defendant has made in this case

After hearing those arguments, a judge in this very courthouse sentenced the defendant to nine and a half years in prison Mr McDonnell cannot claim that his crimes are less serious than Mr Hamilton's

Mr Hamilton's criminal conduct lasted less than a year The defendant's lasted almost two years Mr Hamilton was one of 140 state legislators

Mr McDonnell was the Governor of Virginia Mr Hamilton was not a lawyer Mr McDonnell is a lawyer and, in fact, formally served as the chief law enforcement officer for the Commonwealth

The quo at issue in the Hamilton case was a Center for Educational Excellence that everyone agreed was a good idea and continues in that mission today The quo at issue in this case involved promoting and obtaining studies for a dietary supplement that Dr Hazel, the Secretary of Health for Virginia, thought was akin to snake oil

Mr Hamilton's quid was $40,000 per year teaching position for which he was eminently qualified and he actually did the work Mr McDonnell's quid included expensive vacations, exclusive golf courses, expensive dinners a Ferrari ride, a Rolex watch, a $20,000 shopping spree, a $15,000 wedding gift, and a $120,000 in secret loans

Mr Hamilton violated his duty of honest services to approximately 100,000 constituents This defendant violated his duty of honest services to 8 3 million Virginians

We've exhaustively briefed the 3553(a) factors in this case, Your Honor, and I'm not going to belabor all of them here, but touching on the nature and seriousness of the offense, these crimes are unprecedented in Virginia's 226-year history The defendant sold the power of the Governor's office, once held by Thomas Jefferson and Patrick Henry, for $175,000 in loans, golf, vacations, and luxury goods

The defendant, in his pleadings, keeps trying to claim that he merely provided access, but the Court has already rejected that The defendant keeps trying to point out that there were no limits on the gifts under state law, but he didn't just accept gifts He accepted bribes

As Governor Wilder has acknowledged, Americans, we're increasingly cynical of our elected leaders After the convictions in this case, I -- I can't count the number of people that have come up to me and stated that they were appalled by the defendant's conduct, but they weren't surprised because they expect so little of our elected officials

That's what makes this case so serious, Your Honor It further arose the public's trust in their elected officials, and that trust is the very bedrock of a democracy Bottom line is that every case of corruption involving our elected officials is serious, and the fact that this involves a corrupt Governor just makes it more so

Listening to the testimony of the witnesses today, reviewing the letters, which we have reviewed, every one of them, you cannot help but be touched about the support that the defendant has Unlike most of the defendants that come before this court who come from broken families, are uneducated and have had limited opportunities in their lives, this defendant had had every opportunity in his life But his crimes were crimes of choice, not necessity

There's no denying that he has accomplished many good things in his life, but we expect that from our elected officials, or we should That's their job But that's not a license to commit bribery There's no denying that many supporters have attested to his good character and reasonably hold that belief, but the flip side is the offense conduct and then what happened in this courtroom

You were able to sit through the entire trial and witness the defense try to blame everyone but the defendant, including his staff, Mary-Shea Sutherland, Jonnie Williams, the State Police at one point, and even his own wife

This is a hard thing to say, but the defendant has shown no true remorse in this case for his crimes He keeps saying there were mistakes of judgment He fell afoul of the gift laws He doesn't acknowledge his crimes

His sister's testimony was touching, and she testified about his public apology to all of Virginians But let's not forget; that public apology, that came only after this all came to light in the press and after the defendant knew that he was under federal investigation This isn't a situation where he woke up one day and said, "I did wrong I need to come clean "

Turning to the need to prevent unwarranted sentencing disparities, look, we've listed numerous cases of senior elected officials who are serving sentences that are equal to or greater than what the United States has asked for in this case The defense can say, "Well, those are all factually distinguishable," but while every case may be unique, the bottom line is that lengthy prison sentences are the norm, rather than the exception, for senior elected officials who are convicted of bribery

A lot has been made of Mr Williams in the sentencing pleadings and even by the audience's applause today But the bottom line, Judge, is he's distinguishable from this defendant in two ways First, he admitted his wrongdoing and fully cooperated with the government But most importantly, most importantly, nobody elected Williams to anything The Williams of the world are a dime a dozen Corrupt governors are not, thankfully But when we find one, we have no choice but to prosecute them

Regarding the need to deter, the defense makes much of the collateral consequences of the convictions, but, Judge, every conviction carries collateral consequences

I've had the unfortunate duty of putting single mothers in jail with young children Nobody likes doing that, but that's what the law required

By the time of his sentencing, Mr Hamilton was reduced to parking golf carts for $10 an hour Mr McDonnell, he currently makes more than $12,000 per month And it's obvious, no matter what sentence this court imposes, he's going to have plenty of supporters He's never going to struggle for money like most of the defendants that come before this court after their convictions

The defense claims that any prison sentence is unnecessary for deterrence The government acknowledges that it's unlikely that Mr McDonnell is going to reoffend, but the sentence in this case must send a message to every public official that accepting bribes will result in a stiff prison sentence if they are caught That's got to be the bottom line

The defendant's claim that he's entitled to community service, it's, frankly, nothing short of remarkable Here's a man who stands before you claiming that he's entitled to that sentence because of his life-long commitment to public service, but at the same time is telling you, oh, by the way, public service would be a punishment The government wants to make clear that it supports the idea of Mr McDonnell doing community services and encourages him to do so, but after he serves his prison sentence in this case

In conclusion, Mr Asbill got up here and he said that no one said anything negative about the defendant in this courtroom But what he forgets, apparently, is that the jury's verdict was that the defendant accepted bribes And I can't characterize that as anything but negative

I began by discussing the sentencing of Delegate Hamilton Let's not forget; Mr Hamilton's sentencing occurred in the midst of the bribery scheme The sentencing was 15 -- was after the $15,000 wedding gift and the first $50,000 loan It was less than two weeks after the Smith Mountain Lake vacation, the Ferrari ride, and the defendant sending the e-mail setting up the Huffstetler meeting And it was a little more than two weeks before the defendant attended the Star launch event at the Governor's Mansion, which she did during a state of emergency

When Delegate Hamilton was sentenced to nine and a half years in prison, the defendant did not claim that

Mr Hamilton should have gotten community service He didn't say, "Oh, my gosh Any prison sentence, that would be too much Delegate Hamilton has so much to give back That doesn't make sense " Instead, the defendant publicly stated that, quote, today's judgment is a reminder that no one is above the law, end quote

This court has the opportunity to send a message to this defendant and everyone else that there's only one system of justice in this country and no one is above the law Any sentence of community service would send the exact opposite message

That's why the government asks this court to sentence the defendant within the guidelines like the vast majority of defendants are sentenced In this case, in recognition of his public service, sentence him to the low end guideline of 78 months imprisonment

Thank you, Your Honor

THE COURT: You get the last word, if you want

MR BROWNLEE: Just very briefly, Your Honor

I think it's important, the government has talked a lot about the Hamilton case Hamilton was a very different case The Court -- I don't know how familiar the Court is with that case It was with a different judge

But Delegate Hamilton was convicted of exchanging a

$500,000 state tax appropriation in exchange for a 40,000-dollar-a-year job This case is significantly different than that case In our pleadings, in all of our times, we have asked the government to provide us a case that's comparable to this, and they have never been able to do that

The other thing, if you look at other disparities in sentencings, and we have briefed this, and I won't go through them But if you look at Congressman Renzi, who was recently sentenced, his was 36 months Congress Ney, 30 months Conduct very, very different than what we have in this case

And lastly, with Mr Williams We agree that defendants who cooperate are in different positions, and the case law supports that under disparity in sentencing analysis

But Governor Wilder struck on something, and Mr Dry raised it, and it is about sentences and it is about two different kinds of systems of justice What Mr Williams got in exchange for -- to change his testimony was truly extraordinary I don't think anyone would doubt that it's never happened before in this courtroom to get transactional immunity not once, but twice To get transactional immunity for offenses completely separate and apart from Bob McDonnell, tax and securities fraud

And if you believe what the paper writes this weekend, Mr Williams sits at home in his condo in Palm Beach, Florida, and he didn't get convicted of a crime He wasn't charged with a crime He wasn't prosecuted for a crime He didn't pay a fine, and he's not going to do any sentence

And so when the public looks at the cynicism of all of this, whatever it may be, I do think they look at was the government prosecuting corruption or was the government prosecuting a man? I don't know the answer to that

And I'm not questioning the government's motives As this court knows, I've sat on that side with the Department of Justice for 11 years, but I never did that And I think that's important when we ask is there two systems of justice

And, finally, I would ask this, Your Honor When I was United States Attorney, my office prosecuted a man by the name of Carl Hutcherson Mr Hutcherson was the mayor of Lynchburg, Virginia I was United States Attorney for the Western District He went to trial He was convicted of all seven counts One of them was lying to the FBI Others were corruption type offenses

He not only was mayor, but he was also head of his Methodist Church in Lynchburg And Mr Hutcherson had led a good and honorable life, and his father had been one of the leading civil rights leaders in that community

His guideline range was about 36 months And as United States Attorney, I instructed my AUSAs, much like these very competent and able and honorable Assistant U S Attorneys, went into court and asked for that guideline range And Judge Turk, who I know the Court knew, said no And one of the bases -- he gave him probation with some home confinement But one of the bases was that he said when people like the mayor, people like a governor, are at levels like that, their fall is greater and their punishments are unique

The Court sees a lot of defendants I defend them. I've prosecuted them, as has Mr Dry and others But rarely has there been a defendant that I'm aware of that has faced the kind of media, scrutiny, humiliation that this man has faced He was a legitimate candidate for higher office All that is gone Most defendants never have that kind of thing And so his suffering is unique

And I believe and I hope that the Court will consider that And these community services are real And so we ask that the Court sentence him to a period of probation and to a term of 6000 hours of community service

And we do greatly appreciate the Court's patience, and as I said in my opening statement, it's been an honor to be in your courtroom Thank you

THE COURT: Thank you

THE COURT: Mr McDonnell, would you stand up where you are, please?

(Defendant stood.)

Sir, do you have anything that you would like to say before the Court imposes sentence?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, Your Honor, I do.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

THE DEFENDANT: May I approach the lectern?

THE COURT: You certainly can.

THE DEFENDANT: Thank you, Your Honor Judge Spencer, I stand before you as a heartbroken and humbled man For the past 38 years of my life, my work has been dedicating my heart and soul to the service of my state and my country But I now stand here convicted of offenses against this great nation that I love, and I can't fathom any deeper humiliation for me, for my family, or any greater punishment

Prior to this indictment, I apologized on a number of occasions to the people of Virginia for the embarrassment that some of my judgments have brought to my beloved Commonwealth And I renew that deep expression of sorrow to the people of Virginia today

Over these past two years, Your Honor, I have scrutinized virtually every area of my life And I have had a very, very blessed life and good health and good fortune, and a great, loving, and supportive family, and an opportunity to engage in what I believe is life's highest calling; and that is service to others

But during my period of scrutiny, Your Honor, I reflected that during my term as Governor, I allowed my life to get way out of balance with an extreme focus on politics and on governing, and I neglected some of my personal responsibilities And in many ways, as a result of that, I became blinded by the busyness of my life So I hold myself fully accountable for all the words, all the actions, that I took as the Governor of Virginia

As a young man, my mom and dad taught me the cardinal virtues of hard work and honesty and integrity and love of God and love of neighbor While I have tried my best to honor these values over my 38 years in public service, I acknowledge that I am a sinner with many, many human frailties, and that I have failed many times to live up to their high calling

I know that some of my actions have caused immense suffering for me, for my family, and for many of those close to me. And it will require the abundant grace of God to heal those wounds. Yet I've been richly blessed by so many faithful friends who have loved me and encouraged me and my family during these past years, and I thank them today for their great kindness

Your Honor, I am now 60 years old. Whatever days the Lord will yet provide me on this earth, I dedicate anew to the service of others I ask Your Honor to permit me to employ my experience and my energy to serve people in need in our state or in other countries over these next few years, working in one of the myriad community service programs that my counsel has submitted to the Court.

And I ask that whatever mercy the Court may extend in this case, I ask that you consider granting it first to my wife, Maureen.

Throughout my life, Judge Spencer, I have placed great confidence in our system of justice, and even greater confidence in the providence and protection of the Lord Jesus Christ So Your Honor, with that, I submit myself to the judgment of the Court and I thank you for considering my words

THE COURT: All right, thank you. You can have a seat

(The defendant was seated.)

We come once again to what is indeed our most difficult task, deciding what is an appropriate sentence for another human being; appropriate for the crime committed, appropriate in light of the history, characteristics, the humanity of the offender, acceptance of responsibility, deterrence general and specific, the public good, protection, and retribution. Sentencing is an awesome responsibility and we take it seriously

This case requires some comment, some out loud analysis before sentence is imposed.

Now, there has been a lot of blame assessed to account for the defendant's predicament during the course of the trial and in the public arena First, the finger is pointed at the Justice Department, the U.S Attorneys The assertion was made that they have been too zealous in pursuing their prosecution. And what about the FBI or the Virginia State Police? Were they unfair or too vigorous in their investigations? Maybe it was the jury, who just didn't understand. Maybe it is the Judge Maybe it is Jonnie Williams, who snaked his way into the Governor's household Maybe it is his co-defendant, his wife, now, according to some, dangerously delusional. Maybe she was the one who roped the Governor into this predicament.

Acceptance of responsibility, a demonstration of remorse, these are factors that I am told to consider when discerning an appropriate sentence.

Now, there has been some suggestion that perhaps this trial was not fair We have certain metrics by which we measure a fair trial They are not secret or hidden They are written down in rules, statutes, and a

Constitution. A grand jury returned an indictment and the defendants were placed on notice of the precise charges against them. The defendants were brought before the Court, advised of their rights, arraigned, released on personal recognizance, and given a trial date, a trial date that allowed them more than adequate time to prepare Six to seven weeks of trial time was made available so everyone would have an opportunity to make their case

The defendants exercised their right to counsel, absolutely The defendants were represented by able, experienced, highly motivated counsel. And counsel put on a rigorous, multi-pronged defense and challenged the Government's case at every turn. There were dozens and dozens and dozens of motions and briefs The defendants aggressively exercised their right to confront any witnesses called against them. Cross-examination was thorough and relentless

Did the defendants have a full opportunity to put on a case? The defendant took the stand and testified for days The Court was beyond generous in allowing the expansive direct examination, even when I heard the same testimony for the third and fourth time But we wanted to give the defendant a full and fair opportunity to be heard. And then when we had the closing arguments of counsel, their final opportunity to persuade the jury to their point of view, there was no time limit These arguments were passionate and well done

Was this a public trial? You betcha. Unprecedented media involvement and access And as far as I can tell, no one was shy about using that media to get their message out

So my conclusion, based on all of the metrics that matter: Mr McDonnell got all the process that was due him. Whether or not you prevailed is not how you determine if a trial was fair

Let me say a few words about the jurors in this case, because they are not here to speak for themselves How many citizens do you think would gleefully give up six or seven weeks of their lives to sit on a jury? It is a tremendous sacrifice: social, educational, family, employment, financial sacrifice. Other than military service, jury duty is the pinnacle of public service for the average citizen. These twelve jurors who deliberated in this case and came to a verdict were a group of very fine people who persevered and fulfilled the difficult task they were called to do.

I also need to say this, because there is no record on this issue that has been bandied about: The name and personality of Robert F McDonnell didn't register on my radar screen until he ran for Attorney

General He didn't fully register with me until he ran for Governor And like all my fellow Virginia citizens, I had to decide between competing candidates And even then, the only thing I knew about him was what I could glean from political advertisements The bottom line: I don't know him, and he doesn't know me

Now, let's get to the job I have this morning: Finding a sentence that is fair and appropriate considering all of the factors that I am required to consider in 3553(a)

The starting point in the analysis is, of course, the Sentencing Guidelines Range A brief history lesson so that we can all understand where these Sentencing Guidelines came from: When I first came to this job in 1986, there were no Sentencing Guidelines There was a certain political orthodoxy that pushed the notion that sentencing discretion should be taken away from judges, and that discretion would be replaced by a system where you plug in the numbers and a factual matrix and out would pop a Sentencing Guidelines Range There would be no discretion. The Guideline was mandatory That is, the sentence would have to be within the Guidelines Range I[illegible]n't matter if there were exceptional, extreme [illegible] extenuating circumstances, youthful offender or not, physical health issues, mental health issues, family hardship, aberrant behavior There was no place for grace or mercy

But some of us judges, and I certainly was included in that number, pushed back at this notion that our discretion could be taken away by another co-equal branch of government We battled for decades until the U S Supreme Court finally said that the Sentencing Guidelines, to be constitutional, must be discretionary

Imagine if these Guidelines were mandatory and the Court had no choice but to sentence Governor McDonnell to seven or eight years in prison. That would be unfair It would be ridiculous under these facts. But somebody somewhere thought that was fair Maybe it is fair when it is somebody else's husband, or brother, or father But it never seemed fair to me

Hundreds of letters were filed in this case, and I have read every single one of them. Most of them were thoughtful and moving, personal recollections of good deeds, good character, and ultimately a request for a lenient sentence. Among these were particularly moving and honest letters from Reverend Wayne Ball and Thomas Farrell, Linda Hassell, Janet Kelly, an especially thoughtful letter that she wrote, as well as one from Clovia Lawrence, who testified here today

Then there were a few other letters that were not quite as helpful. They either continued to blame, cast blame on others, or see conspirators behind every tree But the overall view of the defendant that I got from these letters: That he is a good and decent man, has done a lot of good during his time in the public arena. I have no reason to doubt this And I will certainly give him credit for that in my assessment in coming to an appropriate verdict

I also have great respect for those who've provided military service to this nation Anybody who knows me knows that's one of my weak spots, and he deserves credit and will receive credit for that I believe that honorable military service means something and should mean something in every assessment of a citizen in this country

This entire case has been tragic from beginning to end. I reviewed letters from some of the Governor's closest staff members, most of whom also testified during the trial And they are very loyal to the Governor, a loyalty that in the end amounts to devotion And they clearly have his best interest at heart They have his best interest at heart now; they had his best interest at heart when they were working for him. And they saw Jonnie Williams for what he was, and they sounded the alarm. There was good advice and counsel all over the place But it went unheeded While Ms McDonnell may have allowed the serpent into the Mansion, the Governor knowingly brought him into his business and financial affairs, and thus the seeds of this case were planted.

I have great sympathy for this family And if I could, I would turn back the hands of time and change this situation completely. But obviously, I can't do that.

No one wants to see a former Governor of this great Commonwealth in this kind of trouble But the facts of this case could not be ignored by the investigators, or the prosecutors, or by the jury, or by the Court for that matter The jury, by its verdict, found an intent to defraud. This is a serious offense that all the grace and mercy that I can muster, it cannot cover it all A price must be paid, and that is some level of punishment. It breaks my heart, but I have a duty and responsibility which I cannot avoid. Unlike Pontius Pilate, I can't wash my hands of it all A meaningful sentence must be imposed

Now, in the twenty-eight, almost twenty-nine years that I have been doing this, I have asked myself this question over and over again at sentencings at various times during the years: Why do good people end up in this courtroom, good people end up being found guilty of doing bad things? I don't have the answer yet, and I may never get it on this side of the Jordan. But I continue to be perplexed by it. Obviously, a man that could engender this kind of support, his friends adore him, his family, they love him. Why would you take these kinds of chances? I don't know But on these facts that went before this jury, they had an opportunity to accept the Governor's position. His case was made. They heard it. They rejected it and accepted that the facts led to the conclusion that he committed an offense And I simply cannot ignore it

All right, Mr McDonnell, would you please stand where you are along with your counsel

(Defendant and counsel stood.)

It is the judgment of the Court that the defendant, Robert F McDonnell, is hereby committed to the custody of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons to be imprisoned for a term of 24 months The term consists of 24 months on each of Counts One through Eleven, all to be served concurrently The defendant shall surrender for service of the sentence at the institution designated by the Bureau of Prisons before two p.m. on February 9th, 2015 as notified by the U.S. Marshal

Upon release from imprisonment, the defendant shall be placed on supervised release for a term of two years This term consists of two years on each of Counts

One through Eleven, all to run concurrently Within 72 hours of release from the custody of the Bureau of Prisons, the defendant shall report in person to the Probation Office in the district to which he is released.

While on supervision, the defendant shall not commit another federal, state, or local crime, and he shall not unlawfully possess a controlled substance, and he shall not possess a firearm or other destructive device. The defendant shall comply with the standard conditions that have been adopted by this Court.

The defendant shall also comply with the following special conditions: The defendant shall not incur new credit charges or open additional lines of credit without the approval of the Probation Officer The defendant shall provide the Probation Officer access to any requested financial information As reflected in the Presentence Report, the defendant presents a low risk of future substance abuse, and therefore, the Court hereby suspends the mandatory condition for substance abuse testing However, this does not preclude the U S. Probation Office from administering drug tests as they deem appropriate.

The Court has considered the defendant's financial situation in its totality, and the Court finds that the defendant is not capable of paying a fine, and therefore, none will be imposed.

As to Counts One through Eleven, the defendant shall pay a special assessment in the amount of $100 for each count, for a total of $1,100 The special assessments shall be due in full immediately If the special assessments are not paid immediately, any balance remaining unpaid on the special assessments at the beginning of supervision shall be paid by the defendant in installments of not less than $100 per month until paid in full Said payments shall commence 60 days after the defendant's supervision begins. Payment of any unpaid balance shall become a special condition of supervised release

Nothing in the Court's order shall prohibit the collection of any judgment or assessment by the United States

Mr McDonnell, you have a right to appeal any finding of the jury as well as the sentence of the Court, and if you were going to do that you would have to file a Notice of Appeal within fourteen days of today's date That completes this matter

MR. BROWNLEE: Your Honor, we request that he be designated to a place closest to his home, which I believe is Petersburg, if that's appropriate to the Court

THE COURT: I will recommend to the Bureau of

Prisons that he be housed at the closest appropriate facility to his home

MR. BROWNLEE: Thank you, Your Honor

THE COURT: Thank you all very much:

MR. BROWNLEE: We had filed a motion regarding bond pending appeal, Your Honor I don't know what the Court --

Dear Messrs. Cullen and Weingarten:

This letter sets forth the terms and conditions under which your client, Jonnie Ray Williams, Sr. ("Williams"), would receive transactional immunity from the United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia and the Public Integrity Section of the United States Department of Justice ("these Offices") in exchange for his complete and truthful cooperation regarding potential violations of federal criminal laws related to public corruption. This letter supersedes and replaces the letter agreement dated July 1, 2013, between Williams and the United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia.

The conduct for which Williams would receive immunity is limited to: (1) conduct involving his agreement to provide, and his provision of, things of value to former Virginia Governor Robert F. McDonnell, former First Lady of Virginia Maureen P. McDonnell, and their family members; (2) conduct related to loans Williams received from 2009 to 2012 in exchange for his pledge of Star Scientific stock; and (3) conduct related to Williams' gifts of Star Scientific stock to certain trusts from 2009 to 2012. No other conduct or potential violations of federal criminal law are covered by this Agreement.

In exchange for the above-specified transactional immunity, your client agrees to the following:

First, Williams will answer all questions completely and truthfully during any court proceedings at which he may be called as a witness, before the Grand Jury, and during any interviews with these Offices. If at any time Williams refuses to answer any questions during any court proceedings, before the grand jury, or during any interviews with these Offices, then this transactional immunity agreement will be null and void.

Second, it is understood that if Williams committed any crimes on or after July 1, 2013, or should the Government determine that at any time on or after July 1, 2013, Williams has ven false, incomplete, or misleading testimony or information, or should he late any provision of this Agreement, Williams shall thereafter be subject to r any federal criminal violation of which these Offices have knowledge, including perjury and obstruction of justice. Any such prosecution that is not time-barred by the applicable statute of limitations on the date of the signing of this Agreement may be commenced against Williams, notwithstanding the expiration of the statute of limitations between the signing of this Agreement and the commencement of such prosecution. It is the intent of this Agreement to waive all defenses based on the statute of limitations with respect to any prosecution that is not time-barred on the date that this Agreement is signed.

Third, it is understood that if Williams committed any crimes on or after July 1, 2013, or should the Government determine that at any time on or after July 1, 2013, he has knowingly given false, incomplete, or misleading testimony or information, or should he otherwise violate any provision of this Agreement, (a) all statements made by Williams to these Offices or other designated law enforcement agents, and any testimony given by Williams before a grand jury or other tribunal, at any time, whether prior to or subsequent to the signing of this Agreement, and any leads from such statements or testimony shall be admissible in evidence in any criminal proceeding brought against Williams; and (b) Williams shall assert no claim under the United States Constitution, any statute, Rule 410 of the Federal Rules of Evidence, or any other federal rule that such statements or any leads therefrom should be suppressed. It is the intent of this Agreement to waive all rights in the foregoing respects.

With respect to this matter, this Agreement supersedes all prior, if any, understandings, promises and/or conditions, between these Offices and Williams. No additional promises, agreements, and conditions have been entered into other than those set forth in this letter and none will be entered into unless in writing and signed by all parties.

Subject: Re: Golf Trip

Yes basically this means find out who we known in these cities, that owns golf courses and will let me and my family play for free, or at a reduced cost. Also finding out where to stay for free / or reduced cost. So this means go to Monica and Paige and find out about pac donors, and rga donors, who will host rfm. Also, Katherine keeps a list of people who have offered to host RFM over the past 4 years, so go through that list. Put everything into a nice briefing, so when you meet with him, you have ever offer you can think of, on paper. Then I'd go to the golf course websites, brief off the general info, and also copy and paste it into the briefing form, so he can pick based on the type / description of the course.

Make sense?

Mr. Jonnie Williams

Dear Jonnie,

Thank you for taking the time to call today. I made the decision to write to you because I have little confidence the a breakfast meeting with ever take place again.

I do believe that you owe me an explantion on the events that occurred last September. The following outlines the months leading up to DATE. Perhaps you could fill me in on the rest.

In June, following the trip to Florida where I accompanied the First Lady, you called me to say that I was the type of person you wanted working for you and that you would pay me outside of my job with the state to help you. I remember the day clearly, I was in a dressing room with my niece when you called. We arranged to meet for breakfast, the first of several.

At breakfast we had a very honest conversation. You zeroed in on my unhappiness, to paraphrase, you said "you can't fool an old southern boy." I explained that I was looking to leave but in order to do so needed an anchor client to take back to Benedetti and Farris in order to cover my salary. At that time you were not interested in that plan but suggested that we should talk to Jerry Kilgore about having McGuire Woods put me on staff and he would just charge you extra. Again, you reiterated that I was the type of person you wanted working for you, not just on Anatabloc but for you personally. You specifically mentioned that you didn't have time to organize your own life and with the work going on at your home in Richmond and all of your travel you saw me as the person to manage all of that for you.

You went on to discuss that Jerry your secretary was not going to be with you much longer but that even she didn't handle all that you needed covered.

We met again with Jerry Kilgore over lunch at the Berkley. It was decided at that time that it would not work to have McGuire Woods hire me and that it made more sense for me to return to Benedetti and Farris and you would be the anchor client. We shook hands on that and when I asked didn't you want to talk about compensation you said that didn't worry you and asked Jerry Kilgore to handle that. We left lunch and you said, "just send Jerry the paperwork and we will get it all taken care of."

Following that meeting, you and I had a final breakfast at the Jefferson and again confirmed that I would leave the First Lady's office and you would be the anchor client for me. You were insistent that I not tell the Governor's Office I was leaving until after the luncheon at the Mansion for the doctors. You said to trust you and that I should only give them two weeks notice instead of the month I had suggested. You had asked that I stay until you got Anatabloc launched and we agreed at that time that I would leave October 1st

Following this breakfast, Benedetti and Farris sent a contract to Jerry Kilgore, per your instruction. According to Jerry, he tried a number of times to reach you to get the contract signed and when he didn't he sent it to your attorneys for signature. I realize that this was a mistake but Jerry did what he thought necessary.

You called me following this to say that because of company policies you could not sign a consulting contract but that we should invoice you each month for my services and you would pay it out of your marketing budget. You said for me to have Tom Benedetti call you and that while you couldn't sign the agreement your "word was something to take to the bank," and that you would tell Tom that and you also said you would enjoy catching up with Tom – you even suggested that the two of you get coffee.

It was after that phone call that everything changed.

Somehow – the Fisrt Lady found out that I was leaving. I have been told that you told her but I have a hard time believing that. But you need to know what happened after she found out.

I was called into her office. This after she had the night before gone through my desk and taken all of my business contacts – card that I had collected over years of working. None have been returned. While in her office she questioned me intensely – I felt like a criminal – but at no time did I divulge any of our conversations or plans. She grilled me about the proposal that had been sent to you and accused Tom of soliciting business out of you. She even told me that you told her Benedetti and Farris had approached you to try and get business from you and that they were hounding you. Their reputation has been damaged and frankly they deserve an apology – they did NOTHING wrong.

She then forced me to give her the password to my computer so she could look for evidence. There was nothing for her to find. Every communication you and I had was via text, I do have copies of all of them but did not keep them at the office. If I had kept those copies in my desk she would have had quite an eyeful.

The entire situation became intolerable and even though the Governor wanted me to stay in the job I knew that it was impossible. I am sure you can imagine the hell I was but through. In the end I walked away with my dignity and not much else. And I left without having a job to go to or a source of income.

I have been able to pick up small projects here and there but continue to struggle to makes ends meet. Yes it is true that I told you I wanted to leave but I also told you that I could not leave until I had either another job or a client to take to Benedetti and Farris. Again, it was you that offered to be that client. I never sought you out as a possible client, it was only after your phone call in June that any of this started.

I understand that you don't know feel that you need my services but I do want to remind you that the event aspect of my working for you was a subpart to what you really wanted which was my helping with your "life."

I feel that I am owed an explanation of what really happened and if you were the one that told the First Lady and started that avalanche – I want to know why.

At no time did I ever reveal any of our meetings, conversation or your sentiments on the First Lady. I never told anyone about your calls to me asking me to get you out of the trip to Maine, I never told anyone about you guiding me in my resignation process – I kept every confidence you ever shared with me.

I honeslty don't know what to think. Even today when you called you told me how badly the McDonnells treated you and yet I know that you continue to lend your plane and that you even had lunch at the Mansion yesterday.

Star Scientific Has Home Run Potential

by: Dr. John Faessel

April 29, 2011 | about: CIGX

"The single phenomenon that holds the key to sickness and health – The holy grail of medicine" *

Today the study of inflammation is ascendant in medical research. Thousands of articles now reference this "first" response of the immune system, and the multitude of pathologies and human woes it can cause. Interrupting the negative cascade of the body's response to first insult has become a busy frontier of research, with countless multitudes of lives and dollars at stake

I recall Pathology Professor Dardin in one of my early classes at Georgetown many years ago lecturing to medical and dental students on the topic of inflammation, the biological response to harmful stimuli. "Calor, dolor, rubor and tumor," he quoted in Latin—heat, pain, redness, and swelling being the four classic signs of inflammation originally recorded by the Roman encyclopedist Celsus in the 1st century A.D. Little did Dr. Dardin know that today the study of low-grade, chronic, unresolved and untreated inflammation spurred by an immune system overload is now considered a key causal factor in almost all chronic degenerative and lifestyle diseases.

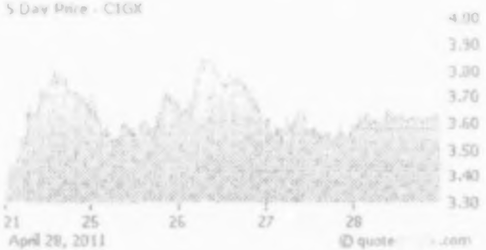
ENTER: Star Scientific Inc. (CIGX)

A proprietary Star Scientific compound is now being tested on humans at the Roskamp Institute, Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, and in new research just underway referred to as the "Flint" study, where Star and the Roskamp Institute have obtained institutional review board approval for a multi-site human clinical trial. This testing involves the treatment of neurological conditions as well as conditions associated with elevated blood levels of C-reactive protein [CRP]. Star's compound, anatabine, is found in tobacco and in peppers, eggplant, and green tomatoes. Could it be that from tobacco, of all things, a new method of dealing with and treating low-grade inflammation might be realized, possibly eliminating a whole world of woe?



On 10-7-2010 the eminent research institution Roskamp Institute announced that it will soon begin human clinical trials of [illegible] for the treatment of Alzheimer's Disease. Star Scientific has said that, "extensive pre-clinical research has been conducted." The compound was developed, patented and provided to Roskamp by a 100% owned subsidiary of Star Scientific. See link here.

Because of the astonishing success of the Star Scientific compound in encouraging new neuronal cell growth and reducing inflammation at the cellular level, Johns Hopkins University—a major research institution—is phasing in new uses of the compound in several other disease venues: cancers, thyroid, arthritis, and other diseases. Of note, research at the Johns Hopkins suggests that a low grade inflammation in pregnant women can pass through the placenta and blood-brain-barrier and cause aberrant neuronal growth within the fetal brain that could lead to autism and other disorders of presumed neurodevelopment origin, like schizophrenia and cerebral palsy."

More recent research from January-February 2011 at the Department of Neurochemistry, NY State Institute for Basic Research in Developmental Disabilities, reported similarly: "Our findings suggest that inflammation and apoptosis may play a significant role in the pathogenesis of autism..."

It has long been known that rubella/measles is the principal non-genetic cause of autism, so the conclusions above do make "connect the dots" sense. Star has recently trademarked a product called Anatabloc and the data picture that I've viewed on the Internet indicates that it's "Anti-Inflammatory Support Lowers C-Reactive Protein" (Again CRP is the critical marker) See this link to trademark data.

Medical research is now unwavering in its assessment that low-grade inflammations, once they become chronic, do significant harm to the body. Today, clinicians treat many diseases like asthma, arthritis, periodontal disease, lupus, cancer, ulcers, heart disease and many others with anti-inflammatory drugs to neutralize, diminish or block the process of inflammation.

A recently published graph from the Roskamp website shows the astonishing effects of the naturally occurring compound anatabine (RCP006) on the molecule that typically causes inflammation during bacterial infection. The chart demonstrates the dramatic effect of anatabine versus Lipitor, well known to have advanced anti-inflammatory properties (about double the therapeutic effect of aspirin). See link to the entire Roskamp page that includes the graph.

The graph demonstrates vividly how anatabine is more than three times more effective than Lipitor in reducing inflammation.

On 2/9/2011 Star Scientific announced that the subject of its provisional patent application, a pure form of a single isomer of anatabine, could be administered to treat numerous disorders, including those with inflammatory components, aberrant immune response and/or inappropriate cell proliferation. The application indicates that the disorders which may be treated with this discovery include inflammation occurring in brain swelling or neurodegenerative disease such as Alzheimer's disease, multiple sclerosis, and Parkinson's disease. Star said: "This isomer can be administered in a composition containing a therapeutically effective dose of anatabine to treat chronic low-level inflammation."

Star understands the impact of this information on the scientific and medical community and has revealed in the press announcement that it is working with McColl Partners LLC on "structuring a controlled auction for bidding by pharmaceutical companies for licensing and/or co-venturing relationships."

McColl Partners is an independent investment banking firm co-founded by Hugh McColl, former Chairman of Bank of America ([illegible]). See link here.

So, the sum of these studies of inflammation adds several more powerful hi-power arrows to the quiver of Star Scientific's armamentarium and its company-making strategy, now suddenly morphing Star into a new category or sector: that of a dynamic Biotech with legions of possibilities. One can only wonder who else is looking at these developments, which offer such tantalizing opportunities on mega-issues of our time: aging, Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid, senior citizen housing, hospitals as we've known them throughout the 20th and early 21st centuries, and the costs of drugs on almost the entire spectrum of disease as we define disease. Big Pharma, I'm certain, understands the totality of this data and is marshaling its forces to participate in the market playout of these inflammation discoveries in some form; it is always in search of significant new revenue sources. Obviously licensing, co-venturing, and buyout possibilities abound here.

Let's recall that the ancients found the bark of the willow tree to have anti-inflammatory properties. We now know that medicinal substance as aspirin. It may well be that from tobacco, a source of anatabine, a new treatment for all these afflictions could be realized.

Now, if that's not enough to get the hair up on you back, add this anecdotal story: it goes that a while back, Richard L. Sharp, founder and a board member of [illegible] ([illegible]) (NYSE, and former Chairman of Circuit City and Carmax) was part of a study at Roskamp Institute. He had taken a leave of absence from his post due to what was thought to be Alzheimer's.

Rumors were out there that Sharp was the beneficiary of some kind of miraculous healing from this devastating illness after his visit to Roskamp. I repeat that this account about Mr. Sharp and his experience at Roskamp is 100% unsubstantiated, but the story got around. It is certainly interesting in light of what we know about the goings on at the Roskamp Institute as regards its human Alzheimer studies.

Now we see that Mr. Sharp is a new board member of Star Scientific (March 17, 2011). Let it be said again: Star Scientific makes the product the Roskamp Institute uses for its Alzheimer studies.

And oh, I almost forgot: Mr. Sharp is a member of the [illegible], so he must have been aware of the Johns Hopkins involvement with the testing of Star's anatabine/RCP006 compound.

Orders of magnitude more than interesting, right?

I like to say about Star that the "connect the dots" tendency of its narrative could make CIGX a stock for the ages. Here is a quick look at some of this matrix of dots.

Star's mega [illegible] against tobacco giant RJ Reynolds is supposedly the "largest patent infringement lawsuit ever," and is being orchestrated by the powerful law firm [illegible]—a major patent law impresario that has lost just a couple of patent suits over its long history. This story alone drove CIGX to just below $6 last year.

Star is now marketing [illegible], an over-the-counter (no doctor prescription required) Tic-Tac style non-nicotine nutraceutical made from natural ingredients that temporarily reduces the urge to smoke. Just picture the market. And you can purchase it very simply [illegible].

Gross cigarette sales are $325 billion a year. Tobacco use will kill 6.5 million people in 2010 from cancer, heart disease, emphysema and other diseases. Moreover, 40% of those who smoke try to quit each year. With smoking issues so enormous worldwide, wouldn't some enterprising Big Tobacco company become involved with either a type of licensing agreement or even a buyout? Rumors are "out there" about this.

There's even more home run potential: Star has applied to the FDA for approval to advertise its proprietary BDL (Below Detectable Levels) technology that can lower the nitrosamine (the harmful part of tobacco complex) content to the zero level. Importantly, CIGX is the one and only company that can do this. Imagine if it gets FDA approval on that one? "Big Tobacco" will have to license the BDL technology ASAP, I believe. It should be noted that on March 11, 2011, Star's patents were validated by the United States Patent & Trademark Office with no possibility of appeal. The entire tobacco industry is now beholden to Star Scientific. How beholden? Perhaps to the tune of billions of dollars—but any way you look at it, after the 10-year lawsuit it is going to cost them a bunch.

Another big positive hit last month: Star Scientific [illegible] official word from the U.S. Food & Drug Administration [FDA] the net effect being that it will allow Star's modified risk tobacco products to be advertised, marketed and distributed. The ruling stated that Star's modified risk products are not "subject to regulation under FDC Act Chapter IX"; effectively approving Star's request to market and advertise its Ariva-BDL and Stonewall-BDL "BDL" (Below Detectable Levels) products.

Boiled down to basics: Star can [illegible] its tobacco products that have the cancer-causing, potentially lethal tobacco agent removed.

[illegible] continues to grow. I believe that currently about 81 financial institutions hold about 30% of Star shares. Last November, insiders and 5% holders bought an "additional" $14 million worth of shares plus warrants, in addition, I believe, to a 6-month lock-up. Just last month, on 3/19/2011, Star CEO Jonnie Williams bought up 500,000 shares of the company's stock for $1.97 according to securities filings. Hedge fund Tradewinds Investment Management, a more than 16% shareholder of Star, also picked up another 1,000,000 shares at $1.84 per on the same day, to now total 20.3 million shares.

* Noted author [illegible], an inflammation specialist at the [illegible] makes the point that inflammation "may well turn out to be the elusive holy grail of medicine, the single phenomenon that holds the key to sickness and health." Inflammation, Dr. Meggs writes, is a common thread that links heart disease, some forms of cancer, diabetes, migraine headaches, irritable bowel, and even periodontal disease.

Disclosure: I am long [illegible].

Additional disclosure: I have no connection with the company other than owning shares.

Jerri,

I spoke with the Governor regarding flying down to speak to the RosKamp Institute on June 1st. Unfortunately, after checking with his daughter (she is getting married that Saturday) he doesn't believe he will be able to attend due to some Dad commitments that day. I'm so sorry this won't work out!

What else can we do to fix this? The Governor is planning on being in Florida in December, could we tie something in then? When is their next event?

Thank you!

Dear Governor McDonnell,

The particular intent of this letter is to provide the Commonwealth of Virginia with a technology platform to lower healthcare costs. Attached you will find a protocol for a clinical study of Anatabloc (RCP006) that is currently underway in Flint, Michigan (the "Flint" study). This study is designed to screen for participants with high C-Reactive Protein (CRP) levels, an inflammatory marker that is used primarily by cardiologists in the diagnosis of heart disease or atherosclerosis. It is rarely used by other specialties since there are no known treatments to lower CRP, elevated levels of which are generally accepted in medicine to be associated with a number of diseases including autoimmune diseases. The Flint study is now underway, and a study for thyroid function at the University of Pisa, in conjunction with the Head of Endocrinology at Johns Hopkins, is about to begin. The Roskamp Institute in Florida has also filed a submission for a study in Alzheimer's patients.

I am suggesting that you use the attached protocol to initiate the "Virginia study" of Anatabloc at the Medical College of Virginia and the University of Virginia School of Medicine, with an emphasis on endocrinology, cardiology, osteoarthritis and gastroenterology. We will work with those institutions to ensure that they have all the necessary support for the required regulatory process, and to subsequently conduct the clinical study. We propose to use Health Diagnostic Laboratory Inc., a Virginia company, for some of the blood analyses to be carried out in these studies.

The endpoint of these studies is to demonstrate that Anatabloc maintains normal inflammatory function, as measured by CRP and other inflammatory markers. This landmark study will provide the data for an evaluation of the economic impact of Anatabloc in healthcare, and if we are right then I believe that the results of the Virginia study will have a major impact on reducing healthcare costs for Virginia.

Dr. Fiona Crawford from the Roskamp Institute in Florida, together with Dr. Paul Ladenson, Chief of Endocrinology at Johns Hopkins, have agreed to assist the medical institutions in Virginia to initiate and complete this study. Once you have had a chance to review this please have someone on your staff contact me.

Respectfully yours,

Jonnie Williams
CEO

Title

A single-blind, multi-site trial of the dietary supplement anatabine (RCP006) to determine the effects on peripheral markers of inflammation in patients with elevated levels of C-reactive protein (CRP).

Objectives

To determine whether use of the dietary supplement has an effect on maintaining peripheral markers of inflammation, such as CRP, within normal clinical range.

Primary Objective: To determine whether the dietary supplement lowers blood levels of CRP in patients with elevated levels of CRP

Secondary Objective: To determine whether the dietary supplement modulates levels of additional peripheral markers of inflammation such as interleukin 1, interleukin 6 and serum amyloids.

Background and Rationale

Inflammatory dysregulation

Anatabine, an alkaloid with similar properties to nicotine and found in Solanaceous fruits and vegetables and tobacco, is a cholinergic agonist and is expected to behave in the same way as nicotine with respect to systemic inflammation. Smoke, (both wood smoke and cigarette smoke) but not nicotine (Allen et al., 2011, Ikonomidis et al., 2005; Hamer et al., 2010a; Hamer et al., 2010b), is associated with increased CRP levels primarily due to the damaging effects of smoke on vascular health. Nicotine has previously been shown to decrease CRP levels in Crohn's Disease patients when given as an enema (Ingram et al., 2008); in this study 6mg nicotine enemas were reported as "well tolerated and safe" These data are supported by animal studies showing that nicotine self administration is associated with decreased serum C-reactive protein levels in rats (Cecconi et al., 2008).

Studies have suggested that nicotine can block pro-inflammatory cytokines in a variety of in vitro and in vivo paradigms. For instance, at concentrations of nicotine found in the blood of smokers, LPS-induced NF-kB activation is blocked in epithelial cells. This effect is mediated by the alpha 4 beta 2 nicotinic acetylcholine receptor (nAChR) (Hosur and Loring, 2011).

Direct activation of nicotinic receptors on immune cells has been shown to inhibit pro-inflammatory cytokine release. For instance, in a murine model of acute lung injury release of the pro-inflammatory cytokines TNF-α-α, IL-1 and IL-6 was inhibited by nicotine after intra-tracheal lipopolysaccharide (LPS) treatment (Mabley et al., 2010). Similarly, nicotine reduces NF-KB activity and TNF-α in muscle in a model of inflammatory myopathy (Leite et al., 2010).

Similarly, nicotine suppresses IL-6 release from stimulated endothelial cells (Sharentuya et al., 2010) and suppresses TNF-α release from human monocytes and whole blood after endotoxin stimulation (Rosas-Ballina et al., 2009).

In addition to direct anti-inflammatory effects on potentially pro-inflammatory cells, nicotine has been shown to have anti-inflammatory effects via stimulation of the anti-inflammatory cholinergic pathway via stimulation of the vagus nerve. The inhibition of the innate immune system by nicotine is now being widely explored (see for instance, (Cui and Li, 2010) for review).

Roskamp Institute scientists have generated analogous data in an array of in vitro and in vivo studies for anatabine. For instance, we have shown that, in cells engineered to generate a luciferase signal upon NF-KB activation, anatabine reduces this pro-inflammatory pathway in a dose dependent fashion. Moreover, in transgenic models of Alzheimer's Disease we show that the pro-inflammatory molecule Aβ is down regulated due to reduction in NF-KB dependent pathways. These data suggest that anatabine has similar modes of action to nicotine and it has been classified as a weak nicotinic agonist due to it's known high affinity binding to nicotinic receptors (Maciuk et al., 2008). All of the known anti-inflammatory effects of nicotine have been associated with nAchR agonism and/or partial antagonism. All our preliminary data suggest the same mechanism of action of anatabine which has a similar chemical structure to nicotine. With respect to the use of tobacco alkaloids for the maintenance of health, anatabine may have particular advantages over nicotine primarily because anatabine has a longer half life requiring less frequent administration and achieving more stable blood levels, and is likely to have physiological effects at non-psychoactive blood levels. Preliminary data suggests that the levels of anatabine that can be achieved in humans with the doses recommended in this study will produce area under the curve (AUC) values that are in the same range as those that reduce inflammatory markers in animal models.

Dietary modification has been reported in the literature to lower CRP (Salas-Salvadó et al., 2008) as has exercise (Kuo et al., 2006; Kuo et al., 2007; Lin et al., 2010), aspirin (Solheim et al., 2003) and herbal extracts (Kripa et al., 2011). We expect that supplementation of the diet with solanaceous alkaloids may well exert a similar action.

Given the data linking nAchR agonists to reduction in inflammation this investigation will examine the ability of anatabine to normalize systemic inflammatory processes. As nicotinic agonists have been shown to reduce inflammatory markers in a broad array of inflammatory conditions we wish to recruit a broad range of subjects who have evidence of systemic inflammation as indicated by high CRP levels. We anticipate that anatabine will normalize inflammatory markers in at least a subset of patients with high CRP levels. We have chosen to examine normalization of inflammatory markers in individuals with high CRP rather than examining markers in individuals with normal CRP because the variance in CRP levels in normal individuals is limited. The primary objective is to determine whether CRP itself can be normalized by anatabine and the secondary objectives are to determine whether other markers of inflammation - particularly inflammatory cytokines can be normalized by anatabine.

Although we will not specifically select individuals who have high markers of inflammation other than CRP we anticipate that for many individuals with high CRP other inflammatory cytokines will be elevated.

RCP006

The dietary supplement under investigation, RCP006, was developed to temporarily reduce the desire to smoke without nicotine or tobacco and contains the dietary ingredient anatabine. RCP006 is a dietary supplement that does not contain any investigational drugs, and is being evaluated for its effect on the body's inflammatory function. Therefore as per the latest relevant FDA guidance (October 2010) no Investigational New Drug (IND) authorization from the FDA is necessary.

Anatabine, the active ingredient of RCP006, occurs throughout the world in the human food chain. Anatabine has been in the human food supply and in human use for centuries. Humans are exposed to anatabine in tobacco products and common and widely consumed food crops (potato, peppers, eggplant and tomato). In general, anatabine has been consumed in amounts up to 400 µg/day for non-tobacco users and 4,008,500 µg/day for tobacco users (since at least the discovery of the New World). These doses appear to be safe and easily metabolized and excreted by humans. Toxicological evaluation of the CigRx product showed the NOEL for rodent species to be at least 6 mg/kg/day, approximately one hundred times the proposed maximum human dose of 0.08 mg/kg/day. Anatabine is a clear oil that decomposes when heated or exposed to light in the presence of oxygen, and can easily be complexed with polacrilex or an acid (e.g. citrate) in a fashion similar to nicotine.

The normal role of nicotinic alkaloids (nicotine, nornicotine) is thought to be that they act to protect plants from animal and insect predators. Anatabine is formed in solanaceous plants by the dimerization of nicotinic acid followed by dehydrogenation (Leete and Slattery, 1976). Anatabine can be extracted from Solanaceae (most efficiently from tobacco) or synthesized. Anatabine is the most common of the minor alkaloids of tobacco, and is known to be absorbed following tobacco use (Jacob et al., 1999; Jacob et al., 2002). Anatabine accounts for about 2-3% of the total active alkaloids in tobacco, whereas nicotine, the primary active alkaloid in tobacco, accounts for over 90% (Jacob et al., 1999; Saitoh,J et al., 1985). Studies have shown that anatabine remains in the body longer than nicotine, which has allowed its widespread use as a marker (particularly in urine) of tobacco use (Stratton et al., 2001; Jacob et al., 2002).

Humans ingest anatabine in many common vegetables in the food supply, and tobacco users are exposed to anatabine on a daily basis. There have been no reported toxic or adverse effects of anatabine at the levels routinely consumed in food or tobacco products. Given the similarities in structure (and likely physiologic function) of anatabine compared to nicotine anticipated side-effects if ingested in purified form at doses much larger than those found in food or tobacco are likely to be similar to those experienced after nicotine overdose. These include nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, pallor, tachycardia, and convulsions (Taylor, 2006). The active ingredient of RCP006, anatabine, is the main ingredient of CigRx a product marketed by Rock Creek Pharmaceuticals, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Star Scientific, a publicly traded company. CigRx is marketed as a product to assist smokers in curbing the urge for a cigarette. CigRx contains 0.1mg of anatabine per lozenge and smokers are advised to take up to 20-30 lozenges per day. Data collected from users of CigRx have suggested that the product is well tolerated and safe. In a recent trial of anatabine (CigRx) for smoking cessation of 107 subjects, no serious adverse events (AE) were reported and one AE was reported overall. This AE was oral hypoesthesia and did not lead to subject withdrawal from the study. Other particular AEs were probed in the trial: nausea and throat irritation were seen with the active nicotine control, but none were reported for CigRx use. The exact number of individuals who have consumed CigRx to-date is not known, but based on sales the total number is approximately 45,000. Of these, over a 15 week period, 24 non-serious AE were reported to the company via an on-line site and by a telephone reporting service offered by the company. The following complaints were recorded:

headache (2); "felt funny" (1); jittery (1); vomiting (1); nausea/stomach pain (7); tongue/gums burning (5); tastes "chalky"/"funny" (5); fast heart rate (1); blacked out when drinking (1).

Due to the large number of lozenges that can be taken per day to match a cigarette smoker's exposure to anatabine (approximate 20) alternative formulations with higher doses have also made by the company. One such formulation contains 0.3mg of anatabine per lozenge and the company recommends that smokers use the product when there is an urge to smoke, with the expectation that a smoker would use approximately 10 per day to approximate the same dose of anatabine as the CigRx product. This product was also inspired by the observation that smokeless tobacco users (who have a different pattern of exposure to anatabine than cigarette smokers) were taking several CigRx lozenges at the same time. Smokeless tobacco users take an average of 2-10mg of anatabine per day and thus may require greater doses of anatabine substitute as an aid to curbing smokeless tobacco use. As the proposed dosing in this study ranges from 3-6mg per day (up to 0.06mg/kg/day), for the convenience of participants a "10 x" formulation called "Anatabloc" has been developed, which contains 1mg of anatabine per lozenge. Participants will be asked to take the study drug in accordance with the details below.

Investigational plan

Ethical approval & consent process:

Individuals interested in the study will be recruited through physician's offices throughout Michigan. It is anticipated that approximately 15 offices will each identify 20 potential study participants, with a total number of 300 screened subjects. The consent process will be conducted before any study related activity takes place. Trained and certified study staff will follow the ICH GCP guidelines to conduct the informed consent process (ICP). The study participants or their legal representative/caregiver will be provided ample time to read, review and ask questions. Potential risks and benefits will be discussed and a signed copy will be provided. The ICP will be conducted in English. The ICP documentation and the consent form will be retained in participants' medical charts and maintained in a secured storage area. A code will be assigned to each study subject to maintain confidentiality.

Overall study plan:

This is a multi site investigation to assess the effects of the dietary supplement anatabine, formulated as RCP006, on normal inflammatory function as determined by blood markers of inflammation such as CRP. In order to determine whether or not RCP006 can recover normal blood levels of inflammatory markers, the study population will comprise individuals with documented elevated levels of CRP. High sensitivity blood levels of CRP (hsCRP) will be determined prior to, during, and after treatment with RCP006 in a sequential placebo-RCP006-placebo study design. Where blood samples are available, additional markers of inflammation will also be investigated, such as IL1, IL6 and serum amyloid, and blood levels of RCP006 will also be determined. Subjects will be selected either by:

a) clinical chart review with election for telephone call being made on the identification of previously high C-reactive protein, or
b) after high C-reactive protein levels are identified during routine clinical work up.

In both cases patients will be approached for their interest in participating in the study and if they agree to participate they will be asked to return to the clinic (visit T_1), will be consented in-person, and they will be screened for eligibility including weight measurement, vital signs, completion of an intake medical history and a pregnancy test if appropriate. They will provide a blood draw for routine clinical laboratory tests and for high-sensitivity CRP (hsCRP) evaluation. Once full eligibility, including an elevated hsCRP (≥3mg/L), is confirmed, patients will be asked to return to the clinic at the earliest opportunity to initiate the trial. At this visit (T_2) participants will be given instructions on dosing and administration regimen for the placebo or RCP006 (to which they will be blinded). Participants weighing less than 75kg at screening will be instructed to take one lozenge three times a day (with a daily active ingredient intake of 3mg); participants weighing more than 75kg will be instructed to take two lozenges three times a day (with a daily active ingredient intake of 6mg). Participants will be instructed to take their treatment first thing in the morning, mid-afternoon and mid-late evening, and will receive a study diary in which they will be asked to record their daily intake of dispensed compound. At T_2 participants will be provided with a 3-week supply of placebo lozenges and asked to return for the T_3 visit 2 weeks after T_2, with a window of +7 days to allow for scheduling difficulties. The second visit (T_3) will thus occur 2-3 weeks after T_2, at which time another blood sample will be collected for hsCRP evaluation. Participants will be asked to return all bottles including any unused lozenges that were dispensed at T_2. At the T_3 visit participants will be provided with a 5 week supply of RCP006 and asked to return for the T_4 visit 4 weeks after T_3, with a window of +7 days to allow for scheduling difficulties. At the T_4 visit, after 4-5 weeks of treatment, participants will return all bottles including any unused supplies of RCP006 to aid in assessment of their compliance. They will provide another blood sample for hsCRP evaluation, will be provided with a 5-week supply of placebo lozenges and asked to return for the T_5 visit 4 weeks after T_4, with a window of +7 days to allow for scheduling difficulties. At the final study visit (T_5) participants will return their study diaries and all bottles including unused supplies of placebo. They will provide one more blood sample for evaluation of hsCRP, inflammatory markers and basic clinical labs. Weight and vital signs will be recorded. Where appropriate they will also undergo another pregnancy test.

Adverse events (AEs) will be recorded at T_3, T_4 and T_5. Participants will be asked open-ended AE questions, and specific questions addressed at systems known to be associated with use of nicotine. If open-ended questioning "Have you experienced any change in your health since your previous visit?" results in AE reports they will be classified by the Investigator as follows: DNR=definitely not related; PNR=probably not related; PR=probably related; or DR=definitely related. Medical management of AEs may result in no changes in study participation, discontinuation of study treatment (placebo or active treatment) or discontinuation of study participation. Although, as stated, no serious AEs (SAEs) have been reported to Star Scientific in an estimated exposure of over 45,000 subjects, we will probe for nicotine-like side-effects during both the placebo and active treatment phases of the investigation. Thus subjects will be specifically asked if they have experienced any of the following: nausea, vomiting, diarrhea or other gastrointestinal symptoms; tachycardia or other cardiovascular symptoms; convulsions.

Study location & recruitment:

The study will be co-ordinated and managed by the Roskamp Institute located in Sarasota, Florida. Participating physicians will be recruited from Michigan. Participating clinical sites will include those in several clinical specialities from which subjects with high C-reactive protein can be recruited. Blood will be drawn at a local laboratory. It is anticipated that approximately 15 clinical sites will each identify 20 potential participants for the study with a total of 300 subjects screened. The dietary supplement and placebo will be provided by the sponsor, and the sponsor will pay for all laboratory tests that are not covered by the subject's insurance. Subjects will not be paid for their participation in this study.

Participants weighing less than 75kg will be instructed to take one lozenge three times a day (with a daily active ingredient intake of 3mg); participants weighing more than 75kg will be instructed to take two lozenges three times a day (with a daily active ingredient intake of 6mg).

Subject selection:

The following inclusion/exclusion criteria will be utilized to determine the eligibility of a subject for enrolment into the study.

Inclusion:

1. Age 18 years or older.
2. Both genders, all ethnic groups.
3. Values within normal range on all standard clinical laboratory assessments.
4. High sensitivity C-reactive protein of greater or equal to 3mg/L at the screening visit (T_1).
5. Otherwise stable medical history and general health.
6. Negative pregnancy test (for females under 60 years).
7. Females agreeing to take an acceptable form of birth control (where relevant).

Exclusion:

1. Have a dry mouth (e.g. Sjorgen's Syndrome) that would interfere with dissolving of the lozenge.
2. Have contraindications, allergy, or sensitivity to the study products or their components.
3. Have any significant medical condition that could, in the investigator's opinion, be expected to interfere with the study parameters or study conduct; or put the subject at a significant risk. These may include but are not limited to the following: untreated chronic hypertension, myocardial infarction within 6 months of screening; renal failure; hepatic failure, and/or receiving chemotherapy. Presence of acute conditions known to impact C-reactive protein levels i.e. acute infection, acute post surgical states, recent severe trauma.
4. Have any history of seizure disorder.
5. Current unstable medical condition (e.g., symptomatic uncontrolled diabetes mellitus), or a condition that might affect their ability to participate (e.g., cancer requiring frequent medical visits for chemotherapy).
6. Actively taking steroidal treatment.
7. Tobacco use (including smokeless tobacco products).
8. Values outside of normal range on standard clinical laboratory assessments that are deemed medically significant.
9. Pregnancy or women at risk for pregnancy.

Primary End Points: Changes in hsCRP between T_1/T_3 and T_4 will be the primary endpoint. Changes between T_4 and T_5 will also be assessed.

Secondary End Points: Other markers of systemic inflammation will be assessed in the same comparisons as for the primary end point hsCRP. In particular, TNF-α, IL-1, IL-6 and serum amyloids will be measured and compared between T_1/T_3 and T_4 and between T_4 and T_5.

____We will also assess safety as a secondary outcome. Adverse events will include new or undesirable change of an existing medical condition. Hospitalization for elective procedures of pre-existing conditions will not be considered an AE. Serious adverse events (SAE) will include those that are fatal, life threatening or require hospitalization, or cause prolongation of hospitalization, an important medical event or congenital abnormality. Adverse events previously associated with nicotine will be considered related. The site investigator will provide a description, dates of onset and resolution, severity, assessment of relatedness to study treatment, and the action taken for each event. The IRB and sponsors will be immediately notified if an SAE occurs.

Potential Risks and Benefits to Participants

There have been no reported toxic or adverse effects of anatabine at the levels routinely consumed in food or tobacco products, nor have there been any serious adverse events reported from over 45,000 individuals using the smoking cessation product CigRx with estimated daily dose of 1mg anatabine. Moreover, toxicological evaluation of the CigRx product showed the NOEL for rodent species to be at least 6 mg/kg/day, approximately one hundred times the proposed maximum human dose in this study of 0.08 mg/kg/day. Therefore this study is considered to hold minimal risk as there are no anticipated risks to participants in this study. This study is designed to increase our understanding of how anatabine may assist in maintenance of normal inflammatory function, and there are no direct benefits to participants in this study.

Alternative to Participation

The alternative to participating in this study will be to not participate. Contacted subjects will not need to take part in this research and not taking part in the research will have no effect on their usual medical care. Participants may decide to remove themselves from the study at any time, and there will be no consequences to the participant of early removal from the study.

Single-blinding:

Participants will be kept blinded to the treatment regimen and will be unaware that they will be receiving placebo during the first and last phases of the study. They will however, be told that they will receive both the dietary supplement and placebo during the course of the study. The placebo will be similar to RCP006 as judged by taste, smell, appearance and physical properties. Study staff will be aware of the study design and treatments but will be instructed not to inform subjects of the design and order of placebo and dietary supplement.

Trial coordination & training:

The Roskamp Institute will manage all study activities including document preparation, site selection, training, monitoring, performing data checks, reporting and dissemination of the findings. A site manager will be identified for each participating site. One week of training on study conduct will be provided by Roskamp Institute staff to all the sites, including screening, enrolment, laboratory procedures, data collection and entry, as well as a review of ICH GCP guidelines. Roskamp Institute staff will review overall performance at two time points; prior to the start to ensure adequate training and understanding of study material, and after one month to ensure the overall study conduct is in compliance with the protocol.

Study visits:

In general, participants will be identified from clinical chart review looking for persistently high hsCRP, and once their interest in possible study participation is ascertained they will be asked to come to the clinic for the screening visit, T_1.

T_1 Visit (Screening):

At screening, written IRB-approved consent and HIPAA compliant release form must be obtained from each participant prior to any study-related activities being conducted. If participants are eligible for inclusion (based on the inclusion/exclusion criteria listed above), blood tests will be ordered for hsCRP and baseline clinical labs, as well as for analysis of additional blood markers of inflammation. Each participant's weight and vital signs will be recorded. Where relevant a pregnancy test will be carried out. The screening visit baseline blood tests will include standard renal, liver and cardiac function tests; blood chemistry; full blood count. The participant's medical history will also be obtained.

If subsequently, a high hsCRP is reported from the screening visit tests and the other baseline blood tests do not exclude the participant he/she will be asked to return for the T_2 visit at his/her earliest convenience.

T_2 Visit (Enrolment):

Those participants who continue to meet criteria for the study will be contacted by phone or at their next scheduled routine visit and be informed that they are eligible to participate. Participants who are not eligible by virtue of their baseline blood tests will be informed that they are not eligible and follow up medical care will be given as necessary in accordance with normal standards of care. Eligible participants will be given a 3-week supply of placebo (to accommodate any possible delays in scheduling T_3 at the desired T_2+2 weeks timepoint), and instructed on how to take them. Participants weighing less than 75kg will be instructed to take one lozenge, three times a day, while participants weighing 75kg or more will be instructed to take two lozenges, three times a day. Participants will also receive a study diary in which to enter information on compliance and any side-effects they may experience.

T_3 Visit (Placebo evaluation):

Two weeks (with a window of +7 days) after T_2 participants will return and adverse events (AE) will be assessed. All AE will be recorded on an AE form. Placebo containers, including any unused placebo, will be collected, together with data from the study diary. For female participants we will confirm that there is no possibility of pregnancy; if this cannot be confirmed then another pregnancy test (urine) will be carried out. Another hsCRP blood test will be ordered for that same day. Participants will then be given a 5 weeks supply of RCP006 (to accommodate any possible delays in scheduling T_4 at the desired T_3 + 4 weeks timepoint) with instructions that once the T_3 blood draw has been taken they should continue with administration according to the previously established regimen (those weighing less than 75kg at screening will be instructed to take one lozenge, three times a day, while those weighing 75kg or more will be instructed to take two lozenges, three times a day). Note: dosing will remain constant throughout the study, as determined by the participant's weight at screening, regardless of minor fluctuations increasing or decreasing the participant's weight around the 75kg mark. Participants will also be asked to continue to record in their study diary information on compliance and any side-effects they may experience.

T_4 Visit (Treatment evaluation):

Four weeks (with a window of +7 days) after the T_3 visit participants will return for the T_4 visit when Adverse events will be assessed as before, and recorded on the AE log. Unused RCP006 will be collected, along with all RCP006 containers, and the study diaries reviewed for assessment of compliance. Another hsCRP blood draw will be ordered for that same day. For female participants we will confirm that there is no possibility of pregnancy; if this cannot be confirmed then another pregnancy test will be carried out. Participants will then be given a 5 weeks supply of placebo (to accommodate any possible delays in scheduling T_5 at the desired T_4 + 4 weeks timepoint) with instructions that once the T_4 blood draw has been taken they should continue with administration according to the previously established regime.

T_5 Visit (Placebo evaluation):

Participants will return approximately 4 weeks after visit T_4 (with a window of +7 days) and AE's will be assessed and recorded. Placebo containers, any unused placebo and study diaries will be collected and another blood draw will be ordered for routine clinical laboratory tests and for hsCRP A pregnancy test will be carried out for all relevant participants to confirm lack of pregnancy. Each participant's weight and vital signs will be recorded.

Sample size:

Our estimates of required sample size come from the following assumptions modeled from repeat measure ANOVA data of our own, and those of Nidorf et al, (2007); a mean T_1 value of CRP of 4.35 mg/L with a standard deviation of 2.21 mg/L and a .58 mg/L difference between T_1 and T_3. We wish to detect a 10% fall in CRP from T_3 to T_4 and assume a return to T_3 levels once treatment ceases. Given our study design and assuming no heterogeneity of sample we require a sample size of 50. However, based on the known heterogeneity of causes of raised CRP, we assume that only a fraction of subjects will respond to RCP006. Assuming that only one in four subjects have a raised CRP that is due to low level systemic inflammation (as opposed to specific disease conditions such as prostatitis or cancer) we estimate our sample size will need to be 200 subjects. Given our selection from physician's offices of subjects with a high previous CRP, we expect a low failure rate on screening, and a low attrition rate throughout this short study. We estimate a 30% screening fail rate and a 5% attrition, bringing the required original number of screened individuals to 300.

Data Management, Storage and Confidentiality:

CliniProteus, clinical trial software (Mathura et al., 2007), will be used for the data processing and management. Data entry portals will be accessible through a web-browser via a secured web service (Secure Socket Layer, SSL) that encrypts all communication. Case report forms (CRFs) will capture visit data. Each trial site will be registered into the system, together with information regarding the person responsible for the data entry at each site. Individual patients recruited at different sites will be registered in the system using an entry code comprising the pre-approved two letter site code followed by [first initial of participant's last name, first initial of participant's first name, last four digits of the SS#, and four digit year of birth (YYYY)]. This same entry code will be used on all CRFs for that participant. The system will internally index by generating a unique identifier in response to the registration of a new subject. Subsequently new data will be added and held in the Roskamp Institute system that will be devoid of any personal information, and will be accessible to the sponsor (and those conducting data analysis) only with regard to the unique identifier. All data entry fields will be provided with edit checks for data entry errors and inconsistencies. Errors flagged by the system at the time of data entry will be corrected by the data entry staff. Additional data validation will be carried out at the server end before data are finalized. All reports to the trial investigator will contain this unique identifier to maintain anonymity and a high level of privacy for the enrolled subjects. Blood drawn at clinical laboratories local to the clinical site will send results of hsCRP analysis back to the relevant site and these data will be entered into the internet portal using the entry code and the personal identifying data will thus not be generally accessible to the sponsor. Additional blood drawn from local laboratories will be sent to the Roskamp Institute for studies of additional inflammatory biomarkers. This blood will be labeled by the drawing laboratory with the participant code as described above - two letter site code, patients initials, last four digit SS# and DOB (YYYY). However, on arrival at the Roskamp Institute the samples will be received by a single study coordinator who will enter this code into the database in order to obtain the corresponding unique identifier for the subject. The coordinator will then label the blood sample with the unique identifier prior to passing the sample on to the Roskamp Institute laboratories, thus all personal identifiers will be removed for any subsequent research data generation. Administrative access will be limited to one individual (Dr. Venkat Mathura) who will have the access to the local interface at the Roskamp Institute in order to be able to generate the patient identification numbers, register new sites and data entry users. All study data will be backed up daily on to an external hard drive and also archived every week on to a physical-media like CD-ROM. The server will be guarded for unauthorized access or intrusion using firewall. All system logs will be routinely monitored by the administrator. Automated reports will be used to determine missing data and for periodic quality control checking. Generated queries will be routinely sent to the trial site (clinic) for corrections if necessary and hard copies of the CRFs will be digitized and sent to the sponsor for comparison against the electronic data.

Safety monitoring:

Dr. Andrew Keegan of the Roskamp Institute will be the medical monitor for this study. He will consult with Dr Neil Williams of Rock Creek Pharmaceuticals, Inc., who has most experience in the known side-effects of RCP006 with the company's product CigRx. As noted this product has a very good side-effect profile to date with no serious AEs reported to Dr. Williams. However, ongoing monitoring of the product will provide additional data that will be relayed to Dr. Keegan during the course of these investigation. Any AE will be reported using the AE form, and reporting of any SAE will be faxed to the sponsor within 24hrs of learning of the SAE. The sponsor will immediately relay this information to the medical monitor who will take appropriate action.

Dear all,, Just got off the phone with Paul Ladenson, Chair of Endocrine at Hopkins who wanted to explore our interest in participation in funded projects dealing with a tobacco alkaloid (anatabine) which is owned by John Williams (CEO of Star Scientific here in Richmond). Apparently the compound has potent antianflammatory effects (inhibits NFkB and virtually eliminates the inflammatory response of acute thyroiditis (which is why Ledenson got involved)) and Mr Williams specifically wants to fund projects in Virginia to test the compound. Mr Williams is very good friend with the Governor and the governor would like to sponsor these trials as evidence of Virginia's committment to research and entrepreneurship. There would be a need for a GCRC-like venue as well as other CTSA resources which is why we were called. There is a meeting planned saturday July 23 on Gibson Island in the Chesapeake Bay. Sounds like a unique opportunity. Your thoughts and insights are very much appreciated. John [illegible] This message has been replied to.

Dear all. It was an interesting meeting. Jonnie williams has a nutriceutical (anatabine) which appears to have potent antiinflammatory effects. The Governor would like to use tobacco funds to support virginia research demonstrating the states committment to support research to reduce health care costs in the commonwealth. $25 k planning grants are proposed towards submission of demonstration grants which have a very high likelihood of funding. jonnie would supplement this to the tune of $2.5 - 4.0m. I am happy to discuss the possibilities. I proposed a study to pursue the effect of anatabine on progression to diabetes based on similar studies with salsalate which was enthuisiastically received. John

BREAKTHROUGH TECHNOLOGY ALERT

August 2, 2011

NanoViricides Proves HIV Virus Efficacy, Protext Releases Distracted Driver App and More Astonishing Star Scientific Data

Dear Breakthrough Technology Alert Reader,

I should have covered the news from NanoViricides Inc. (OTCBB: NNVC) and Star Scientific (NASDAQ: CIGX) last week, but I was on my way to Vancouver when both stories broke. I managed to work the Star news into my presentation up north, so I'll begin with NanoViricides, which released test results regarding the company's HIV/AIDS drug candidate.

I predicted the results of HIVCide, the HIV drug candidate from NanoViricides. Nevertheless, the results have left me stunned. The implications of this development are simply overwhelming.

Essentially, they are this. NanoViricides released animal data showing that their first pass at a therapy for HIV/AIDS works as well the current standard treatment used globally. That treatment, HAART (highly active anti-retroviral therapy), is a triple-drug "cocktail" that has problems so serious that many experts believe its demise is inevitable.

First of all, HAART is enormously expensive, which is not surprising, as it consists of at least three drugs that attack viruses at different stages. Moreover, there are many HAART therapies. For optimal results, HAART must be tailored for individual patients and usage strictly overseen. This is simply not practical outside the developed world.

As a result, there are enormous pools of HIV virus that are not being eradicated by the cocktail approach. This means that forms of the virus resistant to the drugs are surviving and multiplying right now, much as drug-resistant bacteria have been created by overuse of antibiotics.

This brings us to the second problem. In Africa, 40% of HIV/AIDS patients are no longer treatable using the HAART approach, due to drug resistance. So it is, in my opinion, only a matter of time before similar and worsening resistances occur in North America and Europe. Those who think that HAART has conquered AIDS are, sadly, wrong. Moreover, the third issue is that these drugs are associated with serious side effects.

Fortunately, Nanoviricides has just shown that it has the solution to all of these problems. Yes, it's true that HIVCide hasn't been tested in humans. Now, allow me to review again the reasons why I believe that it doesn't matter...

Unlike all of the drugs in the HAART cocktails, the NanoViricides "drug" does not modify complex cellular mechanisms. Nanoviricides are not drugs in the classical sense at all. They are a fusion of nanotech and biological components that create what is, essentially, a tiny machine that kills viruses.

This means that nanoviricides do not modify the biochemistry of the infected person. They kill the virus through direct contact, using both mechanical, bioelectric and biochemical means. It doesn't matter where the nanoviricides contact viruses. In test tubes of blood, in petri dishes of cells or in the vascular system of animals, they simply devour and disassemble viruses. In animals, the nanotech virus killers, with their cargo of annihilated viruses, are safely passed from the infected animal.

One component of these nanotech virus killers is the polymer micelle. NanoViricides' micelles, however, are not simply nanovesicles. Nanovesicles are normally just enclosing structures that protect or deliver another substance to a desired destination. NanoViricides' micelles, though, are an active part of the nanoviricide technology. There are many variants in their design that alter their biochemical characteristics.

Chairman and President Dr. Anil Diwan explained to me recently, in fact, that the effectiveness of the mycelle is so strong that it actually makes it difficult to gauge the second component of the drug, the ligands. To measure the ligands' effects, he has had to perform tests with micelles that have been made purposely less effective at killing viruses.

In the final products, however, the micelles are optimized to fit the reproductive strategies of specific viruses and virus families. These variants are not, incidentally, theoretical. Dr. Diwan has already done the research. Having completed the process of discovery and developed manufacturing techniques, he can now quickly fine-tune his micelles.

The other part of NanoViricides' amazing virus killers is the ligand. I suspect that I have undersold these remarkable biological components. In general, I've described them simply as "signaling molecules" that can bind with the molecules that viruses use to locate their target cells. In fact, ligands are enormously sophisticated molecular devices that manipulate intermolecular forces in ways that humble the most complex electronics. Dr. Diwan uses "in silico" simulations of viruses and ligands running on computers to find likely lock/key matches.

So NanoViricides scientists have a huge number of options when designing their virus killers. Once the in silico work is done, real-world experimentation begins. Preclinical tests are designed to maximize the information generated regarding the behavior of target viruses. Then the "optimization" process improves the drug candidate.

Think about it. The data just released by the company regarding that HIV/AIDS treatment were only a first-pass test designed to provide the information the company needs to create a truly effective drug. Nevertheless, HIVCide has already officially met the FDA's criterion for "noninferiority."

That is bureau-speak meaning that this preliminary HIVCide is already as effective as the best HIV/AIDS therapy in the world. We know, however, that it is actually superior, for several reasons. It is less expensive. It has no known side effects. Viruses can only become resistant if they stop reproducing, which renders them harmless. In fact, it renders them extinct.

Moreover, HIVCide works by an entirely novel mechanism. This means that it can be used safely with existing HAART cocktails or as a stand-alone product. My prediction, by the way, is that the final form of HIVCide will render the cocktail obsolete. Let's examine why by recalling the FluCide optimization process.

When NanoViricides began working on an influenza drug, the first-pass effort produced several candidates that were about eight times better than oseltamivir, Tamiflu. The current version, however, shows a 1,000-fold greater viral load reduction than Tamiflu. That's the track record of optimization.

If NanoViricides were to improve HIVCide by only a factor of two, it would still be twice as effective as the current best therapy. That would be an enormous breakthrough in terms of health care costs and survival rates, and the medical community would celebrate. Personally, I will be astonished if the final form of the product is not many, many times more effective than HAART.

Either way, the advantages of a cheap therapy that cannot produce drug resistance are enormous. In fact, this technology will have a measurable impact on the world economy when it finally comes to market.

AIDS is the biggest factor keeping many African nations in poverty today. When these countries are finally freed from the disease that drains them, the whole world will feel the benefits. Incidentally, few economists understand how critical this sort of scientific progress is to our recovery. One of the few is U. of Chicago economist Dr. Gary Becker.

Another group that is missing the importance of this news is the entire financial industry. I feel the same about science journalists. It is negligence for the so-called experts to miss the importance of this revolutionary technology.

My irritation is not, however, because the stock is grossly underpriced. I've said many times that our timeline here is at least five years out. If you want quick returns, this isn't the place. "Get rich quick" doesn't exist. "Get rich slow," however, is a proven investment philosophy, and I'm not going to worry about the short run. In fact, I'm happy that my newer subscribers still have a chance to get this stock at bargain rates. When NanoViricides finally breaks into sunlight, it will make a lot of people very wealthy.

I'm irritated at science journalists because they could be helping accelerate the movement of this therapy to the millions who need it. Journalists, who like to imagine that they play a critical role in society, are not serving us. They'll wear their red ribbons and feign concern, but it's clear to me that they're not willing to do the intellectual work to find out what's really happening on the frontiers of science.

In fact, I've written at length about the inability, historically, of societal elites to accept big scientific changes. It appears to me that most people when they're sitting pretty are afraid of anything that might threaten the status quo. This may help explain why NanoViricides put out a second clarifying press release in hopes that the media might understand the truly revolutionary advance that they have just announced.

My bet, unfortunately, is that it won't work. When the product begins to save lives, however, it will have all been worth it. I almost forgot. NanoViricides just secured the funding it needs to get the products into human trials.

Being wrong about big scientific progress shouldn't surprise us, of course. The elites have been wrong on matters of economic policy for decades. Simultaneously, they have pretended that those of us who've gotten it right didn't even exist.

Protext Expands Platform to Include Distracted Driver Options

As those of you who attended the Vancouver conference know, Peter Charles, the CEO of Protext Mobility (OTCBB: TXTM), gave an important presentation about the mobile convergence. During the event, Protext rolled out new features on its platform, including the ability to monitor the speed of users' travel. This gives parents the ability to determine if their children are texting while driving and, if necessary, to disable all but emergency calls.

As I've said before, however, I'm not interested in this company because of the AmberWatch app, even though its a truly impressive product. Text is already the killer app of the wireless network, but it continues to explode. We've only begun to see the potential of text.

Ultimately, the lawyers will catch up with this technology and we're going to see lawsuits filed against employers who allow texting while employees are driving. We're also going to see efforts by workers who get texts outside of normal business hours to extract overtime compensation. Employers are going to have to protect themselves, which will require the kind of sophisticated platform that Protext offers.

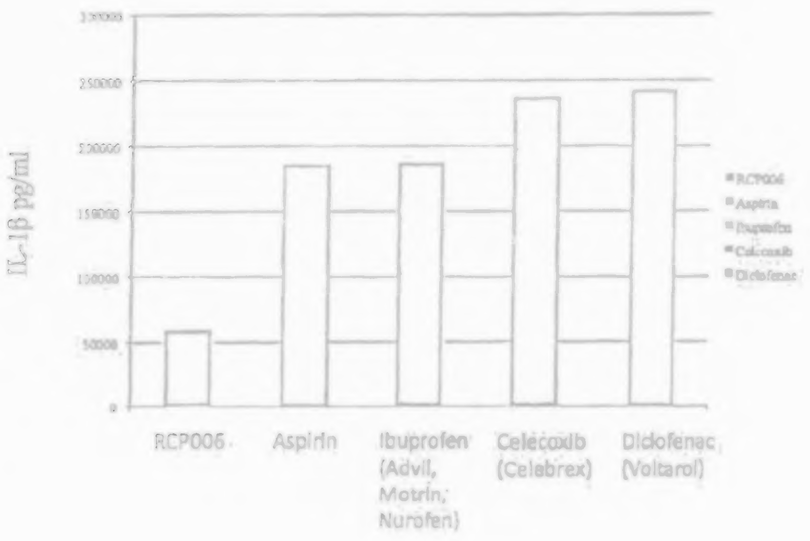
SEC compliance is another huge area. Protext also has the ability to detect and report real-time shifts in public opinion by tapping into the text cloud. Read the entire press release here.

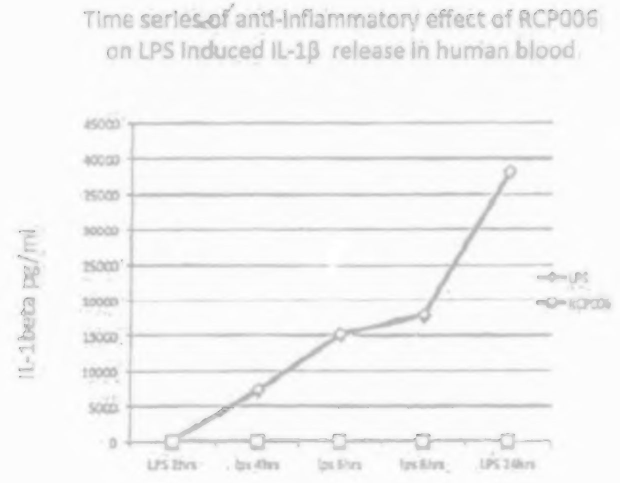
Star Scientific's Nutraceutical Outperforms Celebrex, Voltarol

As mentioned earlier, more important information about Star Scientific's product Anatabloc has been published. In this case, the prestigious Roskamp Institute has presented a comparison of well-known anti-inflammatories with RCP-006, their lab designation of anatabine citrate.

As I've said many times, I don't blame people for being skeptical about this product. It is nearly unbelievable that a natural alkaloid found in tomatoes, tobacco and bell peppers is better at controlling chronic inflammation than Celebrex, Voltarol, ibuprofen or aspirin. Nevertheless, it does. Check out both charts.

Comparison of anti-inflammatory effects (IL-1β Inhibition) of RCP006 compared to NSAIDs after treatment of whole human blood with LPS





Time series of anti-inflammatory effect of RCP006 on LPS induced IL-1β release in human blood

Also, please look at the second chart. Inflammation in human blood provoked by lipopolysaccharides (LPS), a molecule present in bacteria, is completely nullified two hours after dosing with anatabine citrate. This is amazing.

Yours for transformational profits,

Patrick Cox

The lunch is with Doctors and Researchers from MCV, UVA, Johns Hopkins and the Rosskamp Institute along with Jonnie Williams and a few others that are involved in the various research projects.

This would be an occasion to bring all of the medical professionals together as they begin to start the studies at UVA and MCV on anatabloc and its uses for reducing public health costs. Johns Hopkins has done the bulk of the research and now UVA and MCV are going to further the studies.

The date for the lunch was selected due to the launch of the product.

Does that help?

Hi, Maureen!

I hope you are doing well! Jonnie Williams, Sr. has asked me to compile a list of MD's in the area for you to include on your invitation list for the event coming up the end of February. I have attached a list of about 35 MD's in the Richmond area for you to invite. Just in case they do inquire, is there any way I can get a copy of the invitation that you send out?

Let me know if you need anything else from me! Thanks!

PS: I saw the Governor live on Fox the other morning... He did such a great job!

Subject: More names

The First Lady and Governor were going over list last night for the healthcare industry event. The Governor wants to make sure the people below are included in the list. Can you tell me if they are already on there. If not, do you have information on who these folks are that you can send me?

- Head officers at VCU/MCV, UVA, EVMS, Massey Cancer Center
- President and Chief Medical Officers at top 10 health systems in VA (he specifically mentioned Sontera, Riverside, and Bon Secours, but wants the top 10).

The First Lady just sent a list of about 50 docs to be added to the list, so we are sending those out today. The other invites went out yesterday!

Thanks for your help!

I have attached a document that Curt created for Paul in preparation of that meeting, and it includes a description of the officials at UVA that were on the call. Background (Paul Perito)

Star Scientific is a Virginia based company that has been making and selling various products to reduce tobacco related harm for about a decade, operating out of its offices in the DC area and its manufacturing plant in Chase City, Virginia. In 2008, Star formed a new company, Rock Creek Pharmaceuticals, to develop new and innovative products to reduce tobacco related harm.

Rock Creek Pharma developed a nutritional product, called CigRx, which was built around anatabine, one of the non-addictive alkaloids found in Solanaceous food plants (potato, peppers, eggplants, tomatoes, tobacco, etc.) which had weak nicotinic activity, a longer half life then nicotine, and which might reduce tobacco craving. Extensive pre-clinical testing proved it safe, and the product was put on the market.

Concurrently, researchers at the Roskamp Institute in Florida and the Johns Hopkins University conducted pre-clinical research with anatabine and found it to be one of a few compounds that interacts with the inflammatory pathways at the level of NF-kappa-B, and to be active in vitro and in animal models of autoimmune thyroiditis and Alzheimer's disease.

The Head of Endocrinology at Hopkins, Dr. Paul Ladenson, set up a scientific conference in June of 2011 to review the findings and discuss potential next steps. Rock Creek was interested, but it was clear that funding research beyond the most basic level was beyond the ability of the company. The company was able to provide a small number of protocol development grants to interested researchers. This resulted in protocols being developed in the following areas:

RB Turner	UVA Pediatrics	NF-KB mediated airway inflammation
BH Annex	UVA Cardiology	Peripheral Vascular Disease
EJ Barrett	UVA Medicine	Inflammation due to Metabolic Syndrome
J Truwitt	UVA nephrology	Acute Kidney Injury
J Mammen	UVA & JHU	Thyroid dysfunction due to INF Gamma therapy
J Clore	VCU	Adult Onset Diabetes Mellitus
D Nixon	VCU	HIV Associated Inflammation
R Sterling	VCU Gastroenterology	Hepatitis C associated inflammation
E Miller	JHU	Cardiovascular Risk (CRP)

The governor of Virginia and his wife became interested, and asked the company to present the results of the symposia at the Governor's mansion. After reviewing the material the governor asked three questions:

1. Was there enough evidence to suggest that this might be an important scientific finding?
2. Would the findings, if positive, have the potential for significant health gains for Virginia?
3. Would successful findings result in good jobs in economically depressed counties in Virginia?

Hearing affirmative answers to all three questions, he suggested a grant be made to the Tobacco Commission.

Since grant applications to the Tobacco Commission must be made by a not for profit entity, and since the majority of the applications were from UVA, we hoped that UVA would be willing to serve as the host facility for the grant.

Our ideas for UVA and Rock Creek Partnership- UVA would submit a grant to the T/C, administrate the grant, manage all funds and act as the host institution. Funded studies at other institutions would be managed as collaborating investigators under the grant as per multi-site trials.

Scope of Work to be done at UVA v. VCU and Hopkins- The majority of the work (4 studies) would be at UVA,1 study jointly at VCU AND JHU, 3 studies at VCU and one study at JHU.

Business Arrangements- Usual grant management by UVA with co-investigators at other institutions. Rock Creek Pharma provides scientific and toxicological information under CDA, and supplies at our cost. Rock Creek asks for no funding, and expects to neither receive nor grant funding for this project.

Potential Challenges- Star Scientific owns Star Tobacco, a tobacco company.

Rock Creek Pharma has been set up as an independent entity from Star Tobacco and receives no funding from the sale of tobacco.

Successful results will result in a net gain for Rock Creek Pharma, how does this benefit Virginia?

Rock Creek Pharma and Star Scientific currently manufacture products in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. If the company has sustained, successful, positive growth the plan is to set up our plant in Chase City as our manufacturing facility, with direct gains in high quality, non-tobacco, manufacturing jobs in the tobacco growing region of Virginia.

As the grant will be administered by UVA, and 90% of the research will be done in Virginia, at Virginia institutions, 90% of the money invested will go to research in the State, and support in-state academic institutions.

Is this a sound use of precious research capacity?

We don't know. That is why we need to do the research. There are currently no effective nutritional or pharmacological interventions for NF-Kappa-B mediated inflammation.

Who will manage the IND/NDA or related FDA paperwork?

Anatabloc™ brand of anatabine nutritional supplement, is currently lawfully marketed as a nutritional supplement. It may be studies without and IND or FDA application as a nutritional adjunct to the medical management of any condition, provided that no claim is made that it is a specific medical treatment for any disease. Rock Creek Pharma will not supply anatabine for any study developing anatabine as anything other than a lawfully marketed nutritional supplement.

Here are two attachments that I hope will help you.

First, we (Curt, Paul, Bob, and me) had a call with several UVA officials on 29 November 2011 to discuss UVA's role in submitting an application to the VA Tobacco Commission to fund these studies. I have attached a document that Curt created for Paul in preparation of that meeting, and it includes a description of the officials at UVA that were on the call. In addition, below I have included their email addresses, and a UVA website where further contact info and bios can be found:

Mark Crowell: mcrowell@virginia.edu

Phil Parrish: parrish@virginia.edu

Sharon Krueger: sharonkrueger@virginia.com

UVA Vice President for Research organizational chart (with contact info and bios): http://www.virginia.edu/vpr/organization.html

Second, I have attached a spreadsheet that lists a bit of detail (perhaps more than you need) about the investigators that submitted proposals (or intended to – there are a couple I never received) for clinical studies with anatabine. These investigators were from UVA, VCU, and Johns Hopkins.

Let me know if you have any questions about this info.

Thanks,
Ryan

McDonnell daughter to hold wedding reception at mansion

Advertisement

By Anita Kumar June 2, 2011

RICHMOND — Virginia's historic governor's mansion has survived nearly two centuries, 54 governors and a Civil War. Now, it's time for a wedding.

On Saturday, Gov. Robert F. McDonnell will walk his daughter down the aisle at St. Patrick's Catholic Church before Virginia's first family opens the doors to the mansion for a late-afternoon reception.

About 200 guests will wander the estate's gardens and ornate rooms filled with art and artifacts dating to a bygone era as they celebrate the marriage of Cailin McDonnell and Chris Young. The couple met in college and have dated for six years.

First lady Maureen McDonnell said her daughter fell in love with the house the moment the family walked through it shortly after McDonnell (R) was elected governor in November 2009.

"Ever since they are born, for every little girl, they start dreaming about their wedding day," said McDonnell, her voice breaking. "We just thought this would be an amazing place. It's always been a dream to live in a place of history."

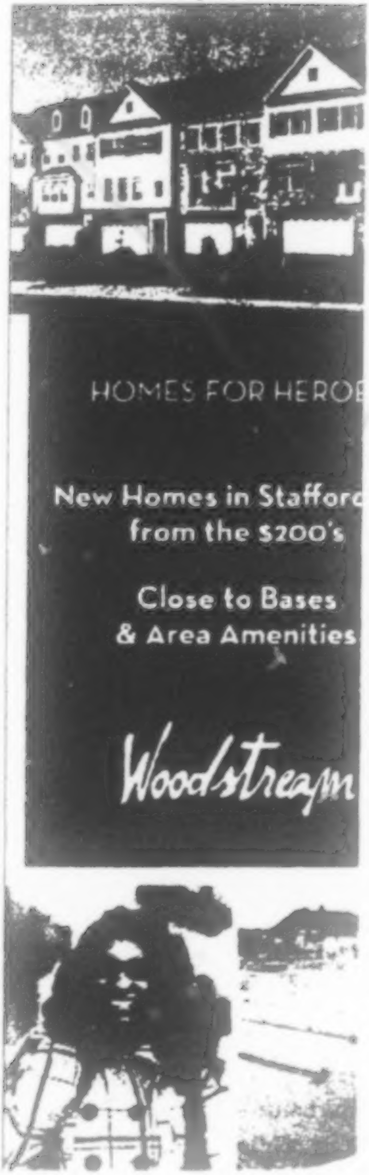
The butter-yellow Federal-style mansion is touted as the longest continually occupied governor's residence in the nation. It has been home to three future U.S. presidents, visited by the likes of Charles Lindbergh, Queen Elizabeth II and Barack Obama — and featured on "American Idol."

Records from the governor's office indicate that only four daughters of governors have been married or held wedding receptions at the mansion, built in 1813. The last was the youngest of L. Douglas Wilder.

Loren Deane Wilder married Edward Joseph James 18 years ago in a white-tie wedding at St. Paul's Episcopal Church and then rode in a horse-drawn carriage across the street for a reception attended by 450 guests.

"It just seemed like the perfect place," said Loren James, who lives with her husband and two sons in Northern Virginia. "How many people can say they have done that?"

"It was a fairy tale," said her father, the nation's first elected black governor. "I was happy I was able to do that for her."



McDonnell may have learned a thing or two from former governor John N. Dalton (R), who was criticized for trying to charge taxpayers for a $2,500 yellow-and-white tent for his daughter's wedding. McDonnell spokesman Tucker Martin said the family is picking up the tab for all wedding costs.

Over the years, a handful of governors' relatives have used the mansion for weddings. The first was at the turn of the century and the most recent was the niece of Gov. Mark R. Warner (D) in December 2005.

"It's your house," said Roxane Gilmore, wife of former governor James S. Gilmore (R), whose book about the mansion is set to be released in November. "You have graduation parties. Your children get married. You do the things you normally do. You just do it down there. You can't put your lives on hold."

The Gilmores — who raised two sons in the mansion — moved out for six months so the house could undergo a $7 million renovation that both restored its historic accuracy and made it more modern.

The house — once in the center of the capital of the Confederacy — has served as a gathering place for dignitaries of all sorts: queens, prime ministers, ambassadors, presidents and state lawmakers. It is estimated that at least 20,000 tourists visit annually and that 100 receptions, breakfasts, recitals and other events take place there each year. It still features a table from

Patrick Henry and a china cabinet from Virginia's 24th governor, William Giles, who began serving in 1827.

Cailin McDonnell, 26, who works at the Henrico County Victim Witness Office, and Young, 27, an engineer, will marry at St. Patrick's before they retreat to the mansion for the reception. Guests will include House Majority Leader Eric Cantor (R-Va.) and his wife, Diana, chairman of the Virginia Retirement System board, who are former neighbors and longtime friends of the McDonnells.

Cailin is the first of the McDonnells' five children to get married. Her sisters, Jeanine and Rachel, will serve as two of six bridesmaids. Her twin brothers, Sean and Bobby, who attend the University of Virginia, will be two of six groomsmen.

McDonnell, a staunch supporter of Virginia wines, will serve wine only from the Old Dominion, including the Barboursville and Chatham vineyards.

The menu will include fresh poached jumbo Virginia shrimp, bruschetta made with Virginia tomatoes, stuffed free-range chicken breast with Virginia tomato pan sauce, sesame crusted chicken satay, marinated and grilled London broil served with fresh horseradish, as well as locally grown fruit, a salad bar, assorted cheeses and a smashed-potato bar.

The bride will wear a white strapless satin A-line Maggie Sottero dress with lace embellishments from Maya Couture Bridal Salon in Virginia Beach.

"She knows herself very well," owner Maya Warburton said of the bride. "It's classic, yet romantic and very soft."

Staff researcher Magda Jean-Louis contributed to this report.

Governor

I have completed my research and as you suspected we find ourselves in a precarious position with regard to loan to value and the ability to refinance.

- 3112 Sandfiddler shows listed for sale at $1.099mm
- 3113 Sandfiddler also shows listed for sale at $1.295mm
- 770 Devil's Knob Loop is giving me a challenge with regard to locating a value. Using your estimate we would be looking at approximately 85% ltv.

With the first 2 listed for sale and the 3rd as a rental with 85% ltv, they would all be ineligible for traditional, straight vanilla financing like we would do here in the first mortgage origination office.

I have reached out to Gary Gore who is our Market President and there may be another avenue available to you through his group in US Trust. I did not want to forward your information to him without your authorization, however, if you give me the go ahead I will certainly pass it on.

Thank you governor McDonnell for giving me an opportunity to see if I could assist you through a more traditional means.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
RICHMOND DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

v.

ROBERT F MCDONNELL,

Defendant.

Action No. 3:14-CR-12-1

ORDER

THIS MATTER is before the Court on a Motion for Issuance of Rule 17(c) Subpoena Duces Tecum ("Motion") (ECF No. 155) filed by Robert F. McDonnell. Upon due consideration, the Motion is GRANTED IN PART.

Defendant moves the Court to issue subpoenas duces tecum pursuant to Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 17(c). Mr. McDonnell requests that the Court order the Clerk to issue three subpoenas duces tecum addressed to Star Scientific, Incorporated ("Star Scientific"), Jonnie Williams, Sr. ("Williams"), and Paul Perito ("Perito"). It is well established and understood that Rule 17(c) speaks to pretrial production of specific evidence that would be both relevant and admissible at trial. United States v. Beckford, 964 F. Supp. 1010, 1022 (E.D. Va. 1997). The burden is on the requesting party to demonstrate that his request meets each of these three requirements: specificity, relevancy, and admissibility. United States v. Nixon, 418 U.S. 683, 700 (1974). It is also abundantly clear that Rule 17(c) is not a general discovery provision.

Ten categories of information are sought from Star Scientific, Williams, and Perito. The instant Motion seeks to subpoena:

> Any documents, records and correspondence related to:
> a. Internal communications of Star Scientific and its affiliates regarding Virginia officials, employees, and their family members, from January 1, 2009 to the present;

b. Communications with representatives of Virginia universities and colleges regarding research involving anatabine or products made or marketed by Star Scientific or Rock Creek Pharmaceuticals, Inc., including Anatabloc and CigRx, from January 1, 2009 to the present;

c. Communications with representatives of the Virginia Tobacco Commission, or about the Commission, relating to obtaining funding for Star Scientific or its affiliates or for research of anatabine or Anatabloc, from January 1, 2009 to the present;

d. Internal communications of Star Scientific and its affiliates and/or communications with representatives of McGuireWoods LLP or McGuireWoods Consulting LLC regarding research of Star Scientific products at Virginia universities or colleges or regarding benefits from the Virginia government, including budget line items or funding from the Virginia Tobacco Commission, from January 1, 2009 to the present;

e. Investigations of Star Scientific or Jonnie Williams, Sr. conducted by the Virginia Department of Taxation, IRS, SEC, or FDA, including any communications regarding immunity or any settlement agreement or consent decree;

f. Communications with Star Scientific shareholders regarding any objections to Star Scientific's actions, including written demands made by the shareholders on Star Scientific's board of directors and whistleblower complaints;

g. Communications between Star Scientific representatives and law enforcement agencies or their respective lawyers, including notes, transcriptions, recordings, or memoranda regarding any investigation of Star Scientific or Jonnie Williams, Sr. for the time period of January 1, 2009 to the present;

h. Communications regarding an internal investigation of Star Scientific conducted by Chadbourne & Parke or Abbe Lowell, from January 1, 2009 to the present;

i. In re Star Scientific, Inc. Securities Litigation, No. 3:13-cv-183-JAG (E.D. Va.) or In re Star Scientific, Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 1:13-cv-00550 (E.D. Va.), as it relates to the Government's intervention in these cases, including communications between Star Scientific representatives and Government agencies or their lawyers regarding the Government's intervention; as well any documents related to Star Scientific's budget for defending these lawsuits; and

j. Information related to Star Scientific's policies, procedures, and training regarding company expenses and their approval.

(Def.'s Mot. for Issuance of Rule 17(c) Subpoena Duces Tecum 1-7). The information categories a, d, f, g, h, i, and j do not meet the requirements of Nixon. Therefore, the request of subpoenas duces tecum relating to said information categories is DENIED.

The time parameters of information categories b and c will be narrowed to the time period of January 1, 2010 to the date of the Indictment—January 21, 2014. Thus, the language in the subpoenas will read:

Any documents, records and correspondence related to:

> b. Communications with representatives of Virginia universities and colleges regarding research involving anatabine or products made or marketed by Star Scientific or Rock Creek Pharmaceuticals, Inc., including Anatabloc and CigRx, from January 1, 2009 to January 21, 2014;
> c. Communications with representatives of the Virginia Tobacco Commission, or about the Commission, relating to obtaining funding for Star Scientific or its affiliates or for research of anatabine or Anatabloc, from January 1, 2009 to January 21, 2014;

The information in category e will be narrowed so as to confine its reach to relevant and admissible evidence. The request will be redrawn as follows:

> e. Any communication which discusses or pertains to an offer or acceptance of either an immunity agreement, a settlement agreement, or a consent agreement flowing from an investigation of Star Scientific, Inc. or Jonnie Williams, Sr. As well as any document(s) that memorialize said agreement;

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 17(c), the Clerk is DIRECTED to issue subpoenas duces tecum to the entities and persons listed below:

and

MAUREEN G. MCDONNELL,

Defendants.

Action No. 3:14-CR-12

ORDER

THIS MATTER is before the Court on two Motions for Issuance of Rule 17(c) Subpoenas Duces Tecum ("Motions") (ECF Nos. 210, 212) filed by Defendants. Upon due consideration, the Motions are GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN PART.

Defendants move the Court to issue three subpoenas duces tecum pursuant to Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 17(c) addressed to Jonnie Williams, Sr., Mary-Shea Sutherland, and Verizon Wireless. Defendants bear the burden to demonstrate that their requests meet each of three requirements: specificity, relevancy, and admissibility. United States v. Nixon, 418 U.S. 683, 700 (1974). Based on the inferences that may reasonably be drawn from the draft letter underlying the Motions, the Court finds that the Nixon requirements have only been satisfied as to those records described below.

   d. Any text messages, emails, or other documents (or drafts of the same) exchanged with Jerry Kilgore concerning Jonnie Williams.
3. To Verizon Wireless, c/o Verizon Subpoena, 180 Washington Valley Rd., Bedminster, NJ 07921: all text messages and records related to text messages and phone calls for the time period June 1, 2011 through January 1, 2013 for the following numbers:
   a. [REDACTED] (relevant phone number as previously requested by Defendants); and
   b. [REDACTED] (relevant phone number as previously requested by Defendants).

The requested information should be produced at the office of Holland & Knight c/o Timothy J. Taylor, 1600 Tysons Boulevard, Suite 700, Tysons Corner, VA 22102, on or before Wednesday, June 18, 2014, at 12:00 p.m.
